The Swedish navy may be independent of oil importation in the future thanks to recent developments of shale oil deposits on the mountain of Kinnekulle, in the central province of Vestergothland. By means of a new method invented by Sven V. Bergh, a Swedish engineer, it is now possible to produce in 24 hours between two and three tons of fuel oil out of 81 tons of shale at a price considerably below the present market price of imported oil.

London Jack is to turn over his duties to a younger colleague with orders from officials at Waterloo station calling for honorary retirement with full comforts. London Jack is almost blind. He is the famous, friendly old black dog which has collected more than $20,000 at the station in behalf of needy railroad workers and their families. His record is said to be the best in England for continuous work, loyalty, observance of rules, politeness and worthwhile duty.

Masterpieces of two of Japan's foremost artists, Taikan Yokoyama and Gyokudo Kawai, will be displayed at an exposition of Japanese art to be held in Italy next spring. The pictures include Yokoyama's "Night Cherry Blossoms," and were selected for the exhibition through the good offices of Baron Pompeo Aloisi, retiring Italian ambassador, who will take the pictures to Rome. The pictures were inspected by the emperor and empress last month, after which the emperor gave a luncheon to the Italian ambassador and the two artists.

SHE THOUGHT:
"Nice boy—but 'B. O.' makes you impossible."

Yet, to be polite, SHE SAID:
"I'm terribly sorry—but I won't be in any night this week."

Girls liked him at first

..but couldn't forgive "B.O." (Body Odor)

SHE DID so hate to turn him down again. He was good-looking, agreeable, just the type she liked. But what could she do? "B.O."—body odor. No, she couldn't overlook that.

Fortunately he discovered his fault later and the simple way to correct it. Today he's well liked—welcomed everywhere—engaged to the very girl who once thought him "impossible."

"B.O."—we all need to guard against it! Even in winter our pores give off a quart of odor-causing waste daily. We become so used to this familiar odor that we don't notice it in ourselves. But the least trace of "B.O." is instantly apparent to others.

Yet, it's easy to avoid offending. Just wash and bathe with Lifebuoy, the delightfully refreshing toilet soap millions love. Its mild, abundant, deep-cleansing antiseptic lather purifies pores—quickly ends "B.O." Its pleasant extra-clean scent, that vanishes as you rinse, tells you Lifebuoy purifies!

CHIEF JUSTICES CHANGE

Although warned somewhat by the recent illness of Chief Justice Taft, the news that his illness was serious enough to cause his resignation came with unexpected suddenness and is the cause for sincerest regrets. It involves one of the most important offices in this country and one of its leading men. It means not only a change in the head of the highest court of the United States but it takes from public service one who has served conspicuously in capacities which are entrusted to but few. When a man has so held public confidence as to be chosen a cabinet member, governor general of the Philippines, president and chief justice of the United States, he has gone successively through the most important offices the country has to offer.

Chief Justice Taft has been a hard worker in the nearly nine years that he has been a member of the court. He went to the court with the advantage of valuable government service. He recognized the need of speeding up the handling of the cases and much of his efforts have been directed to a beneficial revision of court procedure and it is greatly to his credit that the congestion which prevailed in the high court docket has been virtually overcome. He has given close application to his duties, even during the periods when the court was not in session, and apparently at times when his health was not of the best, so much so that it will be conceded that he is entitled to a rest and it is to be sincerely hoped that he will be permitted many years in which to enjoy it.

Quickly upon the heels of the news of the resignation came the announcement of the selection of Charles E. Hughes as his successor. While the country greatly regrets the retirement of Justice Taft, it will, nevertheless, applaud the selection for the new chief justice. If there is an outstanding person with all the qualifications for that high office, Mr. Hughes is the man. He has already had six years' service in that court, an office which he resigned to become a candidate for the presidency and to which office he should have been elected, and he has demonstrated in whatever position he has been placed, whether in the cabinet, where his work was most conspicuous as secretary of state, on the bench or as a member of the world court, that he has the judicial qualifications and the temperament for the chief justiceship. It is believed that he will be a most worthy successor to the retiring chief justice, and the country is fortunate in the selection made by President Hoover.

BEAUTIFYING THE ROADS

There is no getting away from the fact that there is a public appreciation of attractive scenery while motoring. Those who roll along like to see the hills, the valleys, the meadows and the beautiful combinations with their trees and farm lands. There is a pleasing effect obtained by getting rid of the signboards and improving the appearances of the roadsides by trees and shrubbery.

In the state of Missouri a plan similar to that adopted in other states is to be carried out whereby the roadsides will be made more attractive under the direction of a landscape artist. This will mean that the new highways will not only have improved roadbeds but that the roughness of the graded banks and ledges will be relieved, trees will be planted and grass plots will be encouraged, all for the purpose of pleasing the motorists as they drive.

The idea is in keeping with that which is being carried out in Connecticut and yet we wonder if the people of Missouri, or any state, would not appreciate more the expenditure of the money, which is now going into beautification, in the betterment of those roads which are not getting any attention. In other words, while the idea of beautifying is commendable, there is a much more important service that needs to be rendered in making more good roads available before funds which should go for road building are employed in embellishing those highways which are acknowledged to be the best.

When the time comes that all the roads that are entitled to attention are put in good condition, then there can be no objection to beautifying any and all of them. Landscaping, it is believed, should be allowed to wait until some of the needed road construction is completed.

"CHOKE" YOUR BUTTS

One important point upon which emphasis has been laid in connection with the prevention of forest fires has been the practice by motorists of throwing lighted cigar or cigarette butts to the side of the road as they drive along. It has been maintained that many fires have been needlessly and unintentionally started in this way when the firebrands happened to land in leaves or dry underbrush which kindled quickly and soon after the passing of the responsible person was a roaring woodland fire.

Attention has been repeatedly directed to the fact that such could easily have been prevented by extinguishing the cigar or cigarette before discarding it, and the advice is such as must appeal to any thoughtful person.

But it seems that the motorist is not the only person who is in a position to start such fires. There are always those who are roaming through the woods, the hunters and the fishermen in season, but through tests which have been made it has been established that cigar and cigarette butts dropped from a height of 500 to 1,000 feet by persons in flying machines have been picked up burning, and it is quite evident that such firebrands dropped over woodland with its carpet of dry leaves would furnish the proper inducement for costly fires. It can be fully appreciated, as is pointed out, that the dropping of butts from an airplane would be much worse than throwing them from autos, since they might be at much more inaccessible places for the fire fighters than along the highway.

Probably it would be a useless effort to try to induce motorists to refrain from smoking. There is, in fact, no need for any such undertaking. The situation can be fully met if those who ride in autos or flying machines and smoke will take the simple precaution to see that all fire is extinguished before the butts are thrown away. It is only when they are "alive" that there is any danger and it cannot fail to be apparent to any smoker that harmful results can be expected to desks, to chairs, to clothing, to property, unless the butts are carefully "choked." It is a habit which every smoker should cultivate.

LEAVING MOVING DIRIGIBLES

Just how much real use will ever be made of the fact that an airship can carry and successfully launch a glider remains for the future to disclose, but it has been demonstrated that it can be safely accomplished. As the result of the test that has been made in New Jersey, such uncertainty as has prevailed concerning it has been eliminated.

In connection with the use of airplanes, dirigibles and gliders, it was inevitable that thought should turn to a combination use of them sooner or later. The airplane carrier serves as the landing field for planes on the water without anything of the kind being actually required on land. There are times when those in airplanes or dirigibles might wish to get away quickly from emergency conditions. Under such circumstances the parachute would probably be the quickest means, and yet the question has often been raised as to why some other means could not be perfected for departing from a big airship while in motion.

The development of the glider caused attention to be turned in its direction. Lighter than any airplane because it carries no engine, one was attached to the Los Angeles as it soared over New Jersey and once it had attained the desired speed the glider's operator jumped into his seat, gave the signal, contact was broken and he was soon making his way to the ground by long graceful twists and turns. He landed easily and safely. The experience was a success in every particular. The belief that it could be done has been sustained by an actual accomplishment. The experiment was as much of a success as that when a motored plane was tried.

Just what advantage, if any, barring less weight which the glider has over the motored plane for any such method of leaving a moving airship is difficult to understand. It would appear that there is none, while, on the other hand, the motored plane would appear to have advantages which are not provided by the glider, in that it could carry more, and yet in each instance it is apparent that someone of experience in the handling of such machines must be available in order to properly guide the machine when leaving a dirigible.

A PUBLIC MENACE

There are those who are always ready to indulge in a practical joke no matter what the effect may be upon others, and there are those who are prepared to do most anything for spite, but when such action involves a third party and may be a matter of life or death to them it is time that the person responsible for it should be made to feel the effects of the law.

All too often there are those who raise the cry of "fire" in a public hall when there is a fire, but when other means of getting the crowd out in an orderly way would be much more sensible. In a Springfield theater one night recently there was a patron who was making a disturbance and he was ejected. In order to get even with the management he raised the cry of "fire."

There was no fire but the audience did not know the difference. It had no reason to suspect that the warning was not genuine and, as is customary under such circumstances, the people began to pile out headlong. But for the fact that the manager was able to calm the people, inform them over the hubbub that there was no fire and keep the picture going there is no telling what harm might have been inflicted upon themselves by the rushing and jamming crowd.

It was a case where the person who cried "fire" was actually endangering the lives of the people. He had no cause for any such thing. That wasn't what he undertook to do. His hope was to injure the theater management but it was the indirect effect of the method he adopted that he failed to consider, but he should get a full opportunity to do so from the court in which his case will be presented. Such persons are a public menace.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Congressional debate and the weather bureau make what old-fashioned New Englanders call a "fancy match," this week, when more than a foot of snow was on the ground surrounding the capitol, and inside the senate chamber was a heated discussion on the tariff on straw hats.

It reminded old stagers in the gallery of that day in June a few years ago, when Senator Dillingham of Vermont was urging an increased appropriation for removal of snow in Washington, and at the same moment was mopping his face and vigorously fanning himself, as the mercury showed a record of 100 degrees in the shade.

This time, however, it was Connecticut that was in the midst of the fray, Senator Bingham taking the leading part for the protection of Connecticut and other New England hat industries.

In fact, Senator Bingham has been a leader of debate much of the week, in not only tariff matters but in questions regarding insular possessions, in which he is especially interested.

Senator Walcott has reiterated his belief that a tariff bill will be ultimately passed by congress that will meet the approval of the president, and that the debenture clause will be cut out and the flexible tariff included when the conferees finally agree on the measure to be put before congress for a vote.

Mr. Walcott believes the western farm bloc would not venture to prevent passage of such a measure, as it represents the greatest effort to help farmers that the republican party has ever attempted.

Congressman Tilson was in Connecticut much of the week, having gone to New Haven when he learned of the death of Col. Ullman, and remained until after the funeral.

Col. Tilson has been elected a member of the board of managers of the newly organized National Republican club which has its headquarters in Washington.

The Colonel and Mrs. Tilson will entertain at another large dinner this month, which will be in honor of the speaker of the house and Mrs. Longworth. The date set is February 18.

Republican women here are at odds whether or not the old time slogan "Feed the Brutes" as applied to men in order to win them over, can be applied to women, with good effect, if given a more alluring title. It came about through the advice given the Woman's National Republican club by its acting head, who recommends all political clubs be equipped with suitable cooking facilities, and that "teas" shall form a large part of the political campaign. Militant women have scouted the suggestion, but it is notable here in Washington both the republican and the democratic National Woman's clubs serve tea, with due publicity once or more a week, and that luncheons and dinners form a large part of the basis of get-togethers for political discussion.

The death within the week of Mrs. Felton, of Georgia, recalls to many of us here that stately lady who is the only woman to have ever held the office of United States senator. She was "Senator Felton" for 24 hours, and we all recall her charm, dignity and the chivalry and courtesy she received from the entire senate, during the few brief hours she enjoyed its membership.

The appointment of Mrs. Felton by Governor Hardwick of Georgia, came about through an unusual combination of political wisdom, as the story ran at that time. It was at a moment when the political air was filled with dark clouds, much smoke and considerable fire over the matter of woman's suffrage, and every candidate for office was on the alert for votes. There was a vacancy in Georgia, which Senator George won by election, but the governor was also a candidate for a high office. Both admired Mrs. Felton. The result was that the governor stole a march on Georgia and appointed Mrs. Felton to the senate, for an unexpired term which George's election made an empty honor. Then George, not to be outdone, declined to take his seat the day on which he was entitled to do so, thus playing a match-game with the governor, and Mrs. Felton served one day. Then George took his seat, which he still holds.

Of course, we on the outside cannot vouch for the facts, but that is the story as it went the rounds at the moment. However, it may be, Mrs. Felton, dressed in an old-fashioned black silk dress and black bonnet, wearing long white gloves and looking every inch a gentlewoman of the old school, sat in an aisle seat, as well poised and unperturbed as if being the only woman so honored was merely an every day occurence.

It was as if the old lady, who was far up in the nineties at the time of her death, had said to herself, "Why should they not treat me with deference?" And so accepted the honors and attentions showered upon her, as if they were a matter of course.

And no matter if Mrs. McCormick, Mrs. Owen or any other woman is elected to the United States senate, she cannot take from Mrs. Felton the prestige of having been the first woman United States senator.

The only distinction could be between election and appointment to that high office. Which, in fact, carries no difference whatsoever.

Representative Temple, of Pennsylvania, ranking member on the house foreign affairs committee, is telling a story of something that occured when, in 1923, he was on his way to France as a delegate to the inter-parliamentary conference. Senator Caraway, of Arkansas, was also a member of that commission.

It seems they had been assigned to the same state room, which was a large room with two beds, private bath and all in all a luxurious apartment.

It takes Temple to tell the story, but the first morning out, the conversation ran something like this:

Temple—"It's a fine day, you will feel better soon and then really enjoy the ocean; it is grand."

Even in his misery, Caraway's quick wit did not desert him. Pointing to the port hole, Caraway said feebly: "Do you see that port-hole? It had a screen in it when we left New York."

"Yes," said Temple, "but they threw it out soon after so the water should not rush in."

"No, they didn't," moaned Caraway, "I put my head through it and threw it out. It's surprising how much you can throw through a port-hole! I hate the ocean with a hatred that is bitter and personal!" And with a groan Caraway closed his eyes and lapsed into silence.

And the story went the rounds, for there is nothing colleagues in senate and house like better than to get a joke on one another, for all are personal friends, regardless of partisan enmity. And it was many a day before Caraway heard the last of his "hatred that was bitter and personal."

COFFEE FOR TWO

I'm selling coffee," began the sweet little thing with the melting brown eyes rather breathlessly as she entered the office with abruptness.

"Well, what of it?" barked the irascible man who had just been called down by the boss higher up. Fire and brimstone did not precisely emerge from his nostrils but one felt that any minute it might happen. She regarded him with great interest. Otherwise she did not seem in the least quelled.

"Why, but I'm selling you some," she elucidated further, seating herself in a handy chair with an air of feeling very welcome.

"I'm not interested in coffee today," the irascible man cut her short, ruffling the papers on his desk fiercely. "I have bought all the coffee that our stores need for the next—oh for months! I'm extremely busy. I've bought the same brand of coffee anyhow for the last five years—"

"Now, wouldn't that be just like a man," his caller remarked sadly to the desk lamp. "Really, men are dreadfully poor shoppers. Can you imagine a girl sticking to the same brand of face powder that long? In that time she would have tried out all the ninety-eight new kinds put on the market just to see whether or not she was getting cheated on the old brand. Why, I'd be tired to death of the same kind of coffee at breakfast for five years. Unless, of course, it was the coffee I have to sell. That's different."

"They're all different," the man at the desk told her pessimistically. He swung around and frowned a bit because he really did not see how he was going to pry her out of the chair, which did not belong there anyhow. It made it too easy for callers to sit. "We dont need any coffee," he told her again a trifle uncertainly because repetition sounded weak.

"Oh, my, yes, you do, really!" The demure little thing corrected him, her eyes large with reproach. "I stopped in your store in my neighborhood this morning just to see and there were only three cans on the shelf. You need it awfully. Nothing makes a housekeeper so mad as to go to buy—er—coffee and find that the store hasn't any."

"What do you know about housekeeping?" the man at the desk demanded scoffingly. "You don't look as though you had ever cooked a meal in your life. You don't look—"

"As though I knew anything?" his caller finished for him. "Well, I guess I don't. I just thought I'd sort of drop in this morning and tell you about the coffee your stores needed and that, seeing it was so handy and everything, you'd sign an order. I've got the blank all filled out—see?"

"One thousand sacks!" the man at the desk read aloud and snorted. "Say young woman, you believe in doing things lavishly, don't you? I don't get you. You've gone at this thing all backhanded. I never saw a salesman like you nor one who used such odd methods. I'm used to men coming in here and starting with golf, politics and the British labor situation and getting down gradually to the brand of coffee or tea on their minds, administering the nauseous dose with a firm hand no matter how I squirm or protest. Direct attacks are frowned on by all schools of salesmanship. Have you really any idea that you are going to sell me 1,000 sacks of coffee? By the way, what coffee is it—have I ever heard of it?"

The pretty little thing nodded vigorously.

"I should say you have!" she told him. "Exactly eleven calls and fast talking for thirty minutes each time ought to have informed you about Dream coffee! Only you always were stubborn and roared and so I told Jack he couldn't be using the right methods at all. There was no sense wasting so much time talking about golf scores and elections, was there? Just sell your stuff and get it over—"

"Jack—who's Jack?" demanded the bewildered man at the desk.

"I'm going to marry him," confided his caller in one burst. "Jack Deeming—he works for the Dream coffee people and he's tried so hard to land you and it means so much—because if he does he gets his salary raised—but I guess after all I'm no more good as a salesman than he was—"

"Well, I'll be darned!" gasped the irascible man. He picked up the order blank and he looked at the girl. She sat very disconsolate. "I know the Dream brand," he spoke out. "It's O. K. Here—I'll sign up for 500 sacks."

"Really?" stammered the sweet little thing. She seemed about to waft away on wings of joy. "Well, I just knew that Jack's method was all wrong. Wait till I tell him!"—Exchange.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3—Do you want to know who's the poorest paid government official in view of the size of his job?

Listen, then to Rep. David J. O'Connell of Brooklyn, N. Y. He'll tell you about a man who commands a federal office that brings some $80,000,000 a year into the treasury; a man who directs a force of 20,000 federal employes; a man who is a veteran of 40 years' "efficient and hard working" service to the government.

And he gets for the job about .0001 per cent of the money he collects. Not only that. He and all of his predecessors in that office have been getting paid at the same rate for 55 years. There has been no high-cost-of-living or other boost in the salary of the post since 1875. The man thus circumstanced is John J. Kiely, postmaster of New York city.

$8,000 A Year

"For this amazing work and his great authority that has been given him by reason of his position, with its tremendous responsibility and the great amount of money he brings into the treasury, for every cent of which he is bonded to the government, the United States pays him just $8,000 a year," O'Connell said. "It is a ridiculous rate of compensation. Surely something should be done about it."

Kiely is not the only sufferer, it seems. There are 14 first-class postoffices where the maximum of $8,000 a year is paid the postmaster.

They go into that class when they reach receipts of $1,500,000 a year. New York was over that mark when the act went through 55 years ago.

Even some members of the house could not believe that there had been no boost in pay for New York in all that time.

Representative Sproul of Illinois, postoffice committee veteran, assured them, however, that O'Connell was "absolutely right." Pay of postmasters is graduated on a scale hinged on the receipts of their offices and Sproul has a bill now pending to revise and enlarge that scale. It would raise Kiely and all other postmasters who do an annual business of $40,000,000 and upward to $12,000 a year.

Passed Before

Such a bill has passed the house and the senate before, but never in such circumstances as to get on the statute books. Last time, a year ago, it got through the house but died in the senate in the last days of the session.

It is again on the legislative ways, however, with prospects of being launched early enough to escape any last minute jam.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To The Solid Men Of Groton.

"Solid men of Groton, look to your houses, Solid men of Groton, take care of your spouses."

From An Old Scrap Book.

We, the tax payers of Groton, desire to ask the "solid men of Groton" a few questions:

No. 1—What is the definition of the word extortion?

No. 2—If the assessors put an individual's property into the tax list for thousands of dollars more than the individual paid for same, would that individual be justified in calling the surplus tax on his property an extortionate sum of money?

No. 3—How can the assessor know how much the foundation of an individual's home cost him, or how much the installation of his electric lights cost him, or how the installation of his bath room fixtures cost him, or how much his heating equipment cost, or how much his house lot cost?

No. 4—How can the asserror put an excessive valuation on land wherever located when he does not know how much such land would bring if put up for sale?

No. 5—Suppose the town of Groton should oppress the poor to such an extent that they would be obliged to sell their homes at public auction, would it be possible or probable that they would realize the valution as fixed by the assessors?

No. 6—Have the assessors the right to assess old houses and old buildings at the same proportional as new buildings?

No. 7—Have not old houses, say from 60 to 100 years old, deteriorated after so many years of use and decay?

No. 8—Who was the instigator of itemizing the inside, necessary fixtures of our homes for the tax lists of Groton? Not the state, surely, or the same would have been done in the town of Stonington.

No. 9—Are the people not already taxed enough for the use of the fixtures of their homes, without having a second tax put upon them? Is not such an outrage despotic?

No. 10—Who was to blame for continually boosting a high school for Groton?

No. 11—Who was to blame for claiming that the cost of sending our children to the high schools at New London and Stonington would be equal to running a high school of our own? We understand that such propagation was imposed upon us before the high school was voted for.

No. 12—Why should the town of Groton oppress the poor of the town by unjust taxation? Even the rich do not like to be taxed unjustly.

No. 13—Did the authorities at the head of the town of Groton advocate such an expensive appendage as the new high school building and garage at Poquetonock?

No. 14—Every one is asking if there was a just reason to run the town of Groton in debt for a pest house. Was a pest house a necessary appendage?

On The Back Trail

Mr. Editor: As I look through the window I notice it is raining, and now and then the snow is falling and I think that we had much colder winters when we were young than we do today. And yet, I think there was an element of truth in that statement, for going over the back trail we recall just a little snow squall in March, 1888, a matter of only 42 years ago. I can remember this very distinctly for I had to travel four miles through that terrible night, which no one had seen the like of before, and certainly never has seen since. The early days were a source of endless delight for all us "kids", loved to just wallow in the snow. What did we care if we got wet clothes. When we got tired of all this we would find some place on the ice which had become a little thin, and then the most daring one amongst them would run "Bend Ohs." Do you remember all that? Do you remember when you became too smart, and the other "kids" would tell you that you were showing off? Today, this is called playing to the grandstand. During that moment you would suddenly feel as though you had lost your breath when the ice gave way and you got soaked. Then the gang would tie their coats together and pull you out. You didn't feel so smart then with all your wet clothes and your boots full of water, did you?

I am not giving you a call for I did the same stunt myself, and of course, got wet, but what of it! These were the happy days of childhood, and we didn't even get a cold. Well, we were a tough bunch of "kids" and I don't mean maybe, but the hour of reckoning came when we arrived home, looking a wreck, clothes smelling of smoke, faces dirty, and with bloodshot eyes and looking altogether disreputable. But we were boys and you can't erase that from the book of time. Some of us chewed tobacco and used an old T. D. pipe to smoke the tobacco in. We could say "Gal darn it," and "by thunder" as good as the grown ups. Understand, all these things were done when the older ones were absent. Now look at the difference for the boy of today borrows the old man's auto, puts a few of dad's Perfectos in his pockets, borrows a pack of cigarettes from the old gent's supply, starts the auto, goes down to what he calls "seing his Jane," steps at her house, gives a couple of honks on the klaxon. She comes to the door and she says, "All right, Buddy, I'll be out in a minute." And while waiting he lights up one of dad's Coronas, Corona's to make an impression on his sweetie, and then they are off. This is the boy of today and the picture is not overdrawn. This is out in the pen, and it is better than smoking on the quiet and getting caught and then getting a larruping. The "kids" of yesterday had to depend more on themselves than they do today. We didn't have basketball, tennis, golf, ping pong, or airplanes, or even a cash allowance. If we wanted to go anywhere we could walk and if we got tired of walking, we could run a way. For reading matter we had the daily paper, The Bulletin, or Robert Bonner's New York Ledger, or Street and Smiths Family Story Paper and Cooley's Weekly that came once a week. All these papers were, in those days, family papers, and no well regulated barber shop, pardon me, tonsorial parlor, would be complete or considered up to the minute without a copy of Richard K. Fox's Police Gazette, or the Police News. You know the old fellows didn't read these two last named papers, no siree, just looked at the pictures. We kids loved to read Jack Harkaway, Beadle's dime novels with their stories of the Indians. They had such an effect upon us that we would wander into the woods with a home-made bow and arrow. The bow was made from an old barrel hoop. Then the Indians would take to the tall timber, at least we didn't see any, but didn't we just love the old woods even if we didn't see any Indians!

Today, even today, what memories are awakened when we give a thought to our old pals, Jack Blumley, Charlie Perry, Jim and Joe Scott and others when we wandered out through the many woods and places we knew so well—and now they are gone, for they have gone to sleep and have moved toward the setting sun, peaceful and quiet, while I carry on and dream of those happy hours, like a summer cloud. Youth, indeed, has crept away and so I wander along, on the back trail.

YOUR INCOME TAX

Your Income Tax

Failure to receive a form does not relieve a taxpayer of his obligation to file an income-tax return and pay his income tax within the period prescribed—on or before March 15, 1930, if the return is filed on the calendar-year basis, as is true with most individuals. Forms may be obtained upon request, written or personal, from the offices of collectors and deputy collectors of internal revenue. The tax may be paid in full or in quarterly installments, due on or before March 15, June 15, September 15, and December 15.

Persons whose net income for 1929 was derived chiefly from salary or wages and was not in excess of $5,000 should make their returns on Form 1040A. Persons whose net income was derived from a business or profession, including farming, or from the sale or rent of property, although the amount was less than $5,000, are required to use the larger Form 1040. The use of Form 1040 also is required in the case where the net income was in excess of $5,000, regardless of whether from salary, business, profession, or other sources.

The filing period ends at midnight March 15, 1930. The returns should be filed with the collector of internal revenue for the district in which the taxpayer lives or has his principal place of business.

PUTNAM STARTS MOVE OVER CURTAILED NORWICH-WORCESTER R. R. SERVICE

The Putnam chamber of commerce has initiated a movement which indicates a purpose to have passenger trains restored to this territory on the Norwich and Worcester branch of the New Haven railroad.

Through a committee on railroad service a questionnaire has been sent to communities along the line, designed to sound out the sentiment as to the loss of adequate railroad service and inviting co-operation in any attempt which may be made to restore the service.

Questionnaire Letter

The following is the committee's questionnaire letter:

"The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Co. operates what is known as the Norwich and Worcester branch between Worcester, Massachusetts, and New London, Connecticut. No passenger trains are operated on this line other than a through train from New York to Portland, Maine.

"The chamber of commerce of Putnam has appointed a committee, and the writer is the chairman of this committee, for the purpose of securing adequate railroad facilities on this branch. It has been brought to their attention that communities situated along the right of way of this railroad feel as do the people of Putnam that something ought to be done and with the purpose of gathering the facts a list of questions is herewith handed to you as one of various bodies in these communities interested and representative of the community.

"The matter is of unusual importance because if the past action of the railroad company is indicative of the future, it is apparent that it is the intention to abandon this branch of railroad to anything but through freight transportation. It is unnecessary to say that the abandonment of this branch would be of very serious consequence to the communities which it is supposed to serve.

"The committee appointed by the Putnam chamber of commerce is uncertain just what the sentiment is regarding this matter, but for your information it may be said that it is the present intention of this committee to pursue the matter until some definite determination is made and the refusal of the railroad company to voluntarily take care of the matter is not by any means that determination. Your answers to the inclosed list of questions would be appreciated and if you are interested and as soon as enough communities have answered, we will be glad to furnish you with the results. If you are not interested in the subject, please do not ignore this communication but advise us to that effect so that we will be certain just where the matter stands.

"Naturally the situation appeals to various communities in line with their needs, but it is certain that the matter is an extremely important one and it would seem that it is an extraordinary situation when a railroad company, from the point of view of the region through which it operates, practically abandons its service, especially when that region is dotted with cities and towns of importance and considerable size.

"The representatives of this railroad have met with the local committee and refuse to operate any passenger trains on this line.

"This letter and questions have been sent to various bodies in every community interested, as it was uncertain just who were interested. Action in this matter should be taken at once and for that reason will you forward your answers as soon as possible?"

Fifteen Questions

The 15 questions to which answers are sought are the following:

1. What is the sentiment in your community regarding the service of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Co., on the Norwich and Worcester branch?

2. What criticism can you make of present operation of this road, that is from the standpoint of how the railroad company could increase patronage?

3. Will the attorney for your community (town counsel, corporation counsel) join in presenting before the proper tribunals petitions for the purpose of securing adequate railroad facilities along this line?

4. Would you or someone whom you know assist in a financial way in employing an expert to present the matter to the proper tribunals, assuming that the expense would be divided among a number of communities and that the answer "yes" is not in any sense an obligation to eventually pay?

5. Would you assist in presenting the facts to the public in your community? (Meaning securing newspaper publicity and support, bringing the matter before the municipal body, before the selectmen or any other body interested, and joining in petitions to proper tribunals.)

6. Do you feel that if passenger trains were operated on this line that they would be patronized and if so to what extent?

7. Do you feel a conference of a group representing the various communities along this railroad line would do any good in this matter?

8. What course would you recommend adopting, assuming that you are dissatisfied with the present service?

9. Has your body or any body to your knowledge taken this matter up with the railroad or any tribunal and if so, with what result (the committee would be very glad to secure such information and if you have and would allow copies to be made, it would be greatly appreciated)?

10. Do you believe that busses and trucks can satisfy the needs of your community to the same extent that a railroad can?

11. Have you any criticism of present freight conditions on this road?

12. Have you any criticism of present mail facilities which are affected by the lack of trains on this line?

13. Do you wish your answers to these questions held confidential?

14. Do you know of any individual or corporation who is particularly interested in this particular proposition, and if so, would you care to give the name?

15. Is there anything further connected with this matter that you feel should become a part of it?

CHARMING VIOLIN PROGRAM FOR MUSIC ASSOCIATION

Catherine Wade-Smith, violinist, gave the members of the Norwich Music association, in the February meeting Monday evening at Slater hall annex, one of their best programmes of the season, and it was evident that the association lost nothing in artistic enjoyment by the fact that she took the place of a string quartet that was originally assigned for this date.

She displayed a mastery of her instrument that made the programme wholly enjoyable. Her tone was rich and colorful, the strings sang with a velvet smoothness under her skillful bowing, and the artistry of her performance brought spontaneous demands for encore numbers which she graciously gave. William Beller, at the piano, provided very acceptable accompaniments.

The programme was given as follows:

Menuet	Porpora-Kreisler
Ave Maria	Schubert-Wilhelmj
Perpetual Motion	Ries
Poeme	Chausson
Lotus Land	Cyril Scott-Kreisler
Holzaphel und Schlewein	Korngold
En Bateau	Debussy-Choisnel
Danse Espagnole	DeFalla-Kreisler

All candidates for the rank of tenderfoot will also be present by 7:30 to practice the investiture ceremony.

According to the local Scout headquarters the largest classes in scoutcraft will appear at the court that have ever appeared before a court of honor in Norwich. The much coveted Eagle Scout badge, the highest award given to a Boy Scout, will be presented to Nick Tarrant of Troop Five. Many merit badges, first class and second class badges will be awarded.

An interesting feature of the program will be the talks given by the New London Jamboree Scouts who have been so well received at Rotary and Lions clubs. Parents of Scouts will have the opportunity of hearing these boys for the first time tell of their experiences at the World Jamboree of Scouts in England last summer and on the continent.

A shipment of the flags of all nations of the world is expected from New York to decorate the town hall and add color to the scene. Several other novel features will conclude the program. Every parent in Norwich will receive a personal invitation to attend the court and witness the ceremony and hear the Scouts from England.

President H. D. Larrabee, recently elected, will be one of the presiding officers of the court, and it expected that many members of the executive board, troop committeemen, and other Scout friends will be present.

The question is often asked, "What is an Eagle Scout?" For the benefit of those who might wish to know what Nick Tarrant had to do to win this award, the requirements are appended here:

For the Eagle Scout award:

1. His record of satisfactory service, as a First Class Scout, shall have been for a period of at least one full year.

2. He shall have qualified for twenty-one merit badges which shall include (1) First Aid, (2) Life Saving, (3) Personal Health, (4) Public Health, (5) Cooking, (6) Camping, (7) Civics, (8) Bird Study, (9) Pathfinding, (10) Pioneering, (11) Athletics or Physical Development. When it is recalled that it takes most Scouts from one to two years to become first class Scouts and that few Scouts average passing even one merit badge a month, it will be seen that in earning 21 merit badges in 21 different subjects or vocations, Nicholas Tarrant, has had to apply himself pretty consistently to the mastery of scoutcraft for a period of several years.

NEW LONDON POLICE CATCH THIEVES BEFORE NORWICH MAN MISSES STOCK

NEW LONDON, Feb. 3—Five boys were arrested today by Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh charged with theft and will be given a hearing in the juvenile court within a few days.

The Capitol tailor store, Bank street, was recently damaged by fire and Sunday night Sergeant Cavanaugh discovered that since the fire and closing of the store a quantity of shirts, hosiery, neckwear, collars, etc., had been stolen. The officer's investigation resulted in the finding of about 50 shirts beneath a pile of lumber in the rear of the National Whaling bank and in the homes of the five youths on Hobron, Shaw and Belden streets were found the greater part of the remainder of the loot. The boys gained entrance to the store through the rear. George McCormack, of Norwich, is the owner of the property. Mr. McCormack did not discover the theft until today. He went to police headquarters to report it and was informed that the boys had been apprehended an that most of the goods taken had been recovered.

A SECOND LOVE NEST IS BROKEN UP AT SUB-BASE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 3—George Andrews, sailor stationed at the submarine base and Catherine Hogan, New Bedford, Mass., were in Groton town court today charged with lascivious carriage. Andrews was fined $25 and costs and the young woman was ordered to leave the borough. Andrews and his girl friend were maintaining a love nest in a cottage near the submarine base and there they resided as man and wife until early this morning. Then State Police Officer William Elmer MacKenzie, who had been investigating the case upon complaint, and who determined that George and Catherine were not married, arrested them. The couple is the second to be arrested at the submarine base living out of wedlock within a fortnight. The other pair were aroused from bed and taken before Judge of Probate Arthur Anderson who married them.

MRS. TURNER PAYS BOND— GEO. O. WRIGHT GOES FREE

NEW LONDON, Feb. 3—George O. Wright, 64, former nurse, who had been charged with violation of the state health law in practicing chiropody without a license, was not tried in the police court today, although the charge was disposed of. Wright was presented in court Nov. 23, last and his case was continued from time to time, until Dec. 31, when he failed to appear and his bond of $200, which had been secured by Mrs. Elisha Turner, was declared forfeited. Today and when Wright could not be found, the case was reopened and a nolle ordered upon the payment by Mrs. Turner of $100 and the costs of the court.

Luigi Muolo, 8 Elizabeth street, was charged with violation of the liquor law. The prosecution was not prepared to go on with the case and a continuance was ordered until Wednesday next. Muolo furnished a surety on his bond of $1,000. He was arrested at the union station Sunday. Muolo dispatched a youth to his home in a taxicab with instructions to obtain two one-half pints of liquor, for the former had agreed to supply that quantity to a sailor. The police were informed of Muolo's act and when the boy returned and delivered the liquor to the former and he handed it to a sailor, Muolo was arrested. The incident brought about Muolo charging Robert Scott, colored, 110 High street, Norwich, with theft, Muolo claiming that Scott refused to return a watch which had been given him as security. Muolo said that he tendered Scott the watch in order to obtain transportation to Westerly, but when the trip was not made, Scott refused to return the watch. Scott admitted the transaction, excepting that he claimed to have returned the timepiece. Neither Scott nor Muolo had the watch when arrested. The charge against Scott was nolled.

Oscar Carlson and Archie Beattie, strangers, were charged with breach of the peace and intoxication. They were given suspension of judgment. Carlson and Beattie engaged in a fight at their rooming house, 87 Green street, Saturday.

Harold Knapp, Woodhaven, N. Y., was charged with evasion of responsibility, but the charge was nolled. Knapp was arrested Saturday, upon complaint of George Nichols, Station 12, Waterford. Nichols claimed that while he was driving his automobile on Bank street the auto driven by Knapp caused the former to guide his car against the curb in order to prevent a collision and in doing so Nichols' auto was damaged.

Raymond McPartland, on a charge of breach of the peace and intoxication, was fined $25 and costs. As he could not pay he was committed to jail. McPartland went to Ye London grill, last night and became involved in a heated argument with James Ducas, a waiter. Before the quarrel ended, McPartland attacked and beat the waiter, who caused his arrest. Another pair of fighters at the restaurant were Malcolm R. Gillis, 62 Lewis street and Henry Thompson, U. S. Coast Guard. Gillis and Thompson fought at the restaurant at 3:30 o'clock Sunday morning and were arrested by Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin and Edward Skocsylas. Gillis and Thompson were not presented in court.

A man who has been before the court many times on a charge of intoxication, was there again today and on the same complaint. He was sentenced to 30 days in jail, but execution of the sentence was suspended.

The New London and state police have been requested to maintain a lookout for James Cavanaugh, 17, of Westerly, who disappeared from his home Saturday. He is described as being about five feet 10 inches in height and weighs about 130 pounds, has brown eyes and dark hair.

LINWOOD FARRELL HELD FOR HEARING, WITHOUT BAIL

NEW LONDON, Feb. 3.—Linwood "Peanuts" Farrell, 17, the colored youth who confessed Saturday to delivering the blows that resulted in the death three weeks ago of Jacob Waheman, Lithuanian, was in police court this morning, charged with being a material witness, but the complaint was amended to murder and robbery. He was held without bail for a hearing Thursday next. Farrell was in court last week, when his case and those of William "Rattlesnake Pete" Franklin, and Ernest Johnson, also colored and charged with being material witnesses, were continued until the 6th inst., but because of Farrell's confession he was brought into court again today. Tomorrow, Coroner Edward G. McKay of Norwich will render his finding in the case and it is understood that Farrell will be charged with murder in the first degree.

The three Negroes have been under arrest since the day following Waheman's death. Farrell declared until Saturday that Charles Williams, Negro bargehand, had delivered the blows that resulted in the Lithuanian's death and claimed to have seen Waheman attacked on Shapley street by Williams. His story was doubted from the start and when Farrell was put through a grilling of five hours at the detective bureau Saturday, he broke down and confessed following Waheman from a Main street restaurant and attacking him when near the Lithuanian's home. While Waheman was unconscious in the gutter, Farrell rifled his pockets and stole $10.75.

Michael Cosnihan, 137 North Bank street; Mrs. Archibald Chester and infant daughter, Groton; Mrs. Donald Kenyon and infant son, Waterford; Miss Stella Olbreys, 26 Richards street; Miss Sylvia Goldstein, Connecticut College for Women; Mrs. Clinton Enney, Groton, and Joseph Kain and Ervin Geary, United States coast guard, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged Sunday and today.

DRIVER HART SUSPENDED BY CITY MANAGER HOLT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 3.—Roy Hart, 41 Montauk avenue, employed by the city as driver of Nameaug Engine company's fire apparatus, has been suspended from duty by City Manager William A. Holt. The suspension is the result of Hart having been arrested last week, charged with theft of an automobile, being intoxicated when taken into custody. He will be given a hearing before the city manager whenever his case is disposed of in the police court. When Hart's case was called last Saturday he did not appear and his bond of $2,500 was declared forfeited, but when his counsel informed the court that Hart was absent because of having a fractured jaw, which injury he sustained when the auto he stole was wrecked, it was made known that the case would be re-called whenever Hart's condition warranted. Hart was arrested in Center Groton last Friday night by State Police Officer James Dygert, after the auto had crashed against a telephone pole. The arresting officer charged Hart with being intoxicated. In the auto was found a woman's hat. Hart took a Studebaker coupe, owned by Olaf Hanson, 26 Masonic street, from that highway and drove to Center Groton where, it is claimed, he purchased liquor and became intoxicated.

HENRY B. PLANT RECOVERS— ABLE TO LEAVE HOSPITAL

Henry B. Plant, Eastern Point and New York, son of the late Commodore Morton F. Plant, who has been a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital for a week, ill with a severe cold, was discharged today and returned to New York.

The police discovered the entrances to three stores unlocked Sunday night, the officers either being able to secure the stores or summoning the proprietors, who locked the doors. The stores were Arthur Thompson's news store, 185 Bank street; Hudson Silk Co., Main street, and Freidman's store, Huntington street.

JONES' FRACTURED JAW STORY NOT SATISFACTORY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 3—John Jones, colored, U. S. Coast Guard, attached to the destroyer Ericsson, is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, and is believed to be suffering of a fractured jaw, which he claims he sustained as a result of being attacked on Main street at 2:30 this morning. The Negro went to the state pier in a taxicab at 3 o'clock and claims to have been wandering about the streets since he suffered the injury and was then transferred to the hospital. The police are disinclined to accept Jones' statement as to how he got his beating and are more of the idea that he received it near the corner of Pearl and Bank streets. Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith is making a check-up of Jones' statement and within a few days an arrest of more than one person will probably be made.

Neglects Wife and Children

Frank Cooney, 29, residing at 37 Eastern avenue, was arrested tonight charged with non-support of his wife and their four minor children, Frances, 6, Elizabeth, 5, and Mary and Roderick, 3. He will make his excuses in the police court tomorrow morning.

A lecture which was to have been given this month by Padraic Collum, Irish poet, at the Diocesan Bureau of Social Service, has been postponed until April because of circumstances which prevent the poet from leaving Europe before late spring. In his place Rev. Raymond J. O'Callaghan is to speak Feb. 10, following the regular meeting of the New London branch of the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women.

Mrs. Charles L. Canfield entertained the members of the Saturday club at her home in Connecticut avenue.

Francis McGuire, son of Attorney and Mrs. F. L. McGuire of Pequot avenue, a student at Dartmouth, spent the mid-year recess at home.

WESTERLY

TOTAL BUDGET $469,000 APPROVED BY TOWN COUNCIL

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Feb. 3—At the February town council meeting Monday morning all seven councilmen were present. The council passed a vote recommending the passage of the following 1930 budget amounts, which will have the united backing of the council at the annual financial town meeting this (Tuesday) evening when the taxpayers vote funds for the carrying on of the town's business:

Highways $105,000; schools $161,000; police $25,000; town officers $21,000; town hall $4,000; lighting $20,000; American Legion, etc., $15,000; printing and advertising $4,000; interest on school bonds $14,500; miscellaneous $9,000; mothers' aid $4,000; assessors' plats $1,000; state tax $21,000; refunding town debt $47,000; interest $21,000; publicity $1,000; charities $9,000; total $469,000.

On recommendation of Councilman Isaac G. Smith the town council is to have the supervision of the expenditure of the $1,000 amount for publicity. The members of the council have determined in the future to have the budget item "lighting" appear in place of "street lights," so that bills for police traffic signal lights and such items as the lighting of the front of the town hall and the town clock will be paid from the lighting account.

Director of Public Aid Oliver P. Crandall appeared in chambers to ask that the budget figure for charities be $10,000. There are five town charges at the Rhode Island State Infirmary in Cranston and each one as interviewed by him preferred to remain where they are rather than go back to "the old bedbuggy town farm." There are some town charges boarded at the town expense of $7.50 a week in Westerly, who prefer to remain in Westerly where they may be able to see their friends. The Westerly town farm remains closed.

Town Clerk Col. Everett E. Whipple who was named a committee at the last regular council meeting to investigate the reported vandalism in burying grounds off Pond street, aided by Councilman Joseph Fraser, made lengthy written reports on their findings. Boys residing in the vicinity of the burial plots declared that they had seen tombstones broken and pitched down an embankment to be covered over later by filling material. There yet remain vestiges of graves, one that of a Civil war veteran, George P. Newton. The council voted the committee continued.

A communication signed by Samuel Tefft and John H. Sweet, Civil war veterans, and Richard Joseph Rooney for Amos P. Chapman Camp, Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War, was read in which Col. Whipple's authority to decorate soldiers' grave as he had reported at a previous council meeting was questioned.

In changing of previous budget figures $5,000 was taken from the previous highway account of $110,000. It was found that more money was needed to mature bonds and a previous estimate of $30,000 was raised to $35,000. The police amount was placed back at $25,000 and the amount estimated as required for lighting was made $20,000 instead of $19,000. Charities was kept at $9,000.

The January report of Dr. Samuel C. Webster, superintendent of health, showed four contagious diseases: Chicken pox, 2 cases; diphtheria, 1; scarlet fever, 2; septic sore throat, 1.

The report of Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown for January showed 6 arrests; operating auto faster than reasonable and proper 1; disorderly person 1; murder 1; idle person 1; non-support 1; breaking, entering and larceny 1. Two persons were taken into custody. Five doors were found unlocked and secured.

The 64th annual convocation of Palmer chapter is to be held April 21st.

PROMINENT LABOR LEADERS URGE WORKERS TO ORGANIZE

President Cornelius A. Riley presided Sunday afternoon at the meeting held in the United Theatre under the auspices of the Westerly Central Labor Union. Albert Coates, president of International Car Men's union of Providence, detailed the advantages of organized labor in bringing within the reach of the laboring class of such modern conveniences as the automobile and the radio. Former Rhode Island State Senator John J. Powers arraigned workers in general for their failure to organize more strongly, declaring that by perfect organization only can they hold their own. He said that instead of the north going to organize the south, the opposite might more likely be the case within a short time.

Charles Farr of Providence, of the International Tailors, supported Senator Powers' plea for organization. "Stick together," was the gist of his advice. Mr. Farr reviewed labor's fight and ultimate victories in England and declared the same possible in this country if workers would unite solidly and fight as one great body.

John Burns of Pawtucket, president of the Rhode Island State Federation of Labor, declared that neither tariff, prohibition nor investigations constitute the real question of the day, but rather the unemployment situation. "In this state we have no prosperity, but a mild panic on our hands," he declared. "There are upwards of 35,000 men and women out of work," he added.

President Burns also touched on the proposed old age pension and compensation insurance. He closed with a plea that all Westerly workers organize in their respective trades and unite under the banner of the American Federation of Labor.

PERMITS FOR FOUR NEW DWELLING HOUSES GRANTED DURING LAST MONTH

During the first month of the year fifteen building permits were granted at the office of Fire Marshal Henry R. Taft. The permits call for an expenditure of $31,440, an estimate of the cost as placed by the applicants for the permits. This total is well above the normal average for January which usually is a very slack month for building in Norwich. Included in the 15 permits are four for new dwelling houses.

The permits were as follows:

New frame houses	4
New frame garages	4
Alterations to frame buildings	4
Alterations to brick buildings	3

Estimated cost, $31,440.

But one building permit was granted during the past week, that for an addition to the present building owned by Joseph Zamoita on Mohegan road. The addition will be 8x7 feet and will have a stone and concrete foundation. The superstructure will be of frame. The addition will be used as a bathroom. The estimated cost of the construction work is $30.

Work on the various building projects in Norwich and vicinity has progressed with fair speed during the past week. Many of the larger contracts have been brought along at a rapid rate. At the Norwich Inn the plasterers are still at work and some of the exterior work is being done by Peck-McWilliams company who have the contract.

Local contractors report that they are being kept fairly busy during the slack period, many have small interior jobs underway. All report that work will begin to pick up with the coming of warmer weather. Homer G. Montie has practically completed the two apartment house at the corner of Asylum and Newton streets. The house for Daniel O'Connor in Grant court is practically completed with the exception of the grading work which can not be done until warm weather.

The two houses on McKinley avenue extension have been practically completed and will be ready for occupancy within a short time. Here, grading remains to be done as soon as spring arrives.

In other parts of the city numerous houses are fast nearing completion and will be ready for occupancy within a short time.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week there were six sales of real estate, exactly the same number of sales as during the corresponding week in 1929. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $78,216 and $29,950.

There were eight sales of real estate in New London during the past week, one more sale than during the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $22,239 and $16,300.

NEW LONDON

Building operations, particularly where the jobs are not enclosed, were progressing under a handicap during the past week due to the cold and snow. On some of the brick and plaster jobs work had to be postponed two or three times while work on frame jobs went on after delays in many instances.

That the midwinter slump in building circles has set in is indicated in the few building applications being received by Building Inspector William Gunn.

Several contractors are reported to be simply marking time at the present but are looking forward to a busy spring. The lull has also resulted in some artisans being forced to seek employment elsewhere during the slack period.

The contract has been awarded for alterations and an addition to the brick building of Guy F. Radway at Jefferson avenue and West Coit street. The additions will consist of two one story brick extensions, one on the rear of the present building and one on the side. The alterations will include a new brick front with a plate glass window and a new entrance. The plans call for the removal of wood columns and for the construction of new partitions on the ground floor. The second floor will be arranged for a store and office. There will be new plumbing, heating and electric wiring.

Work has been practically completed on a new house built for Robert R. Congdon in Shirley lane. The new house is of frame construction with the exterior finished with white stained shingles. The lines are simple and without frills, the one outstanding contrast being the immense stone chimney located at the north end. The roof is finished with slate. In the rear is an attached two-car garage. Plans for the house provide for all improvements and conveniences throughout.

A two-family house has been completed in Rogers street for Fannie Goldstein. The new dwelling is of frame construction and is finished on the outside with gray painted shingles. The roof is finished with composition material. The interior contains six rooms and bath on each floor, with sun porches located in the front. A two car garage is located in the rear of the house. Private plans specified all improvements and conveniences, including steam heat, hardwood floors throughout, brass piping and built-in features.

WESTERLY

The monthly report of Westerly Building Inspector Thomas Wills as filed with the Westerly town council for action on Monday at the regular February council meeting and covering the month of January, 1930, showed but 15 permits acted upon for the month. This was the smallest number of permits to be considered by the building inspector's office since zoning was adopted in Westerly. The fact that but few permits were acted upon during the month did not mean that Inspector Wills had any less busy month, but on the contrary building operations in various parts of the town and especially at the Westerly seashore beaches of Watch Hill, Misquamicut, Atlantic Beach and Weekapaug, where many changes are remodelling operations were in progress, demanded an extra number of inspection trips.

For the last week in January, Westerly Building Inspector Thomas Wills and Zoning Inspector Louis J. Rossi have issued the following permits:

Jan. 31. G. Patsy Toscano, 31 Canal street. Build one-story addition, 11 feet by 20 feet, to summer cottage at 287 Atlantic avenue, Misquamicut.

Jan. 31. James Pucci, Canal street. Build one-story addition, 12 feet by 18 feet to rear of present store in business area at 339 Atlantic avenue, Atlantic Beach.

NEW ELEMENT IN HOME FURNISHING OF TODAY

Apparently the public has adapted itself so readily to the idea of radiator enclosures that heating and household supply houses have been compelled to handle them as they would furniture and produce them in as many models and designs as are found in the average stock of furniture. A visit to a furniture and interior decorating salesroom during recent days revealed to the writer the fact that these convenient enclosures, whose chief function it is to hide the old radiator from sight, are being made in patterns and designs which definitely follow the various "orders" of furniture.

For example, there are Chippendale enclosures, and Sheratons, and Adam period, and numerous others, each following faithfully the lines of design which have made these various lines and designs distinctive for the past century or two. Comparison likewise showed that these same styles and designs are not merely sketched but are followed down to the last essential item of design.

This fact is more than ordinarily significant because it means that home owners who once considered the radiator a necessary evil, to be tolerated as something which could not be helped, now can include a radiator cover as a definite part of the furnishings of livingroom, diningroom, bedroom or boudoir, and use fine taste in their selection. One design, for example, is finished in a variety of ways, just as certain designs of furniture are produced in various woods or degrees of finish. The tops or sides can be one style, or they can be another, depending on which one of them blends best with the particular style of furniture to be installed in a room.

Some likewise combine the virtues of the humidifier, although usually to a much more limited extent than the bona fide humidifier, which is considerably more than a radiator and infinitely more than a radiator enclosure.

It would be a wise plan for anyone refurnishing a room to bear this item of radiator enclosures definitely in mind. The right design can go far toward giving a final touch of tone to a room, while the wrong choice can ruin a room's effect as definitely as the wrong chair, table, electric light fixture or mantel design. While they have been about it the manufacturers of these handy household items have gone deeply into this subject of design, and it is not their fault if one makes a poor selection.

KEEP YOUR CELLAR WINDOWS CLOSED

Don't try to make your warm air furnace heat all outdoors. The old idea that the heating chamber should be constantly fed with fresh cold air drawn from outside the house has been exploded. Keep your basement doors and windows closed. Air kept in constant circulation remains healthful. Moreover in even the most carefully built home enough air leaks in through cracks around doors and windows to provide complete change of air from two to three times an hour. Recent tests showed that with the wind blowing at a normal rate of 15 miles an hour, 1318.7 cubic feet of air will leak in through 21 lineal feet of window crack one sixteenth of an inch wide every hour.

RESALE VALUE OF BRICK HOMES

Nine out of ten men, could they have their way by merely expressing it, would prefer a brick house to any other kind. And the percentage of those who consider the brick house beyond their means is almost as great. Unfortunately for them they do not investigate the matter of costs thoroughly.

It is to be regretted that every city in the country is not as favored as is Chicago. There is one firm of home builders, erect nothing but common brick houses, and prove conclusively that these can be built and sold with profit at prices within the reach of working men. In 1927 they built more than 600.

These are not built within the city limits, where frame construction is not permited, but in their own developments outside, where they might build anything they pleased. Yet they build of solid brick walls because they know they sell rapidly, satisfy and will be welcome additions to Chicago when the city assimilates them. No veneer, no substitutes or synthetic products for this concern.

Build a brick house that will sell at anything near the same price as its competitors and it can be disposed of twice as quickly.

That inborn preference for the brick house is a big asset in its favor when it comes to selling.

TILES MAY BE LAID UPON OLD FLOORING

Old homes as well as new ones may enjoy the advantages afforded by tiles. In remodeling all that is necessary for tile installation is a strong, rigid foundation such as is provided in floors, walls and ceilings of practically every house. Tiling can be set upon wood, brick, concrete, steel, hollow tile, gypsum and other materials.

Tiled floors frequently are laid upon existing floors. When the surface of the tiled floor is to be on the same plan as that of the old floor, however, the old floor can be removed, a sub-floor built between the joints, and the tilework set upon the new base. A concrete bed is applied and the tiles then are set neatly in this bed.

Many tiled baths are being installed in old homes during remodeling operations. There is hardly anything that will make a house more modern than installation of a tiled bathroom.

TO LIST VALUE AND OWNERSHIP OF HOME

A question on home valuation and rentals which will bring findings of great importance to the real estate profession according to the National Association of Real Estate Boards, will be included in the questionnaire now being prepared for enumerating the population in the 1930 census. For the first time the enumerators will ask the value of the home, if owned, or the monthly rentals paid on the home.

In making public its 1930 questionnaire the United States department of commerce stated that the question of home ownership would make possible a classification of families according to economic status or buying power.

The National Association of Real Estate Boards points out that the findings of the census will make it possible to ascertain the percentage of home ownership in the many cities, counties and villages throughout the United States, which, when correlated with the cost of homes in those same localities, will show to what degree the cost of homes in a given city determines the extent of home ownership in that community. Likewise the data collected on this question in the census taking, when correlated with a study of the obtaining systems of home financing in different cities, can show what, if any, influence the local home financing methods have on the extent of home ownership. Interesting statistics also can be made available on the average value of the home and the average rental in any given city as compared with the average home value and home rental for the country as a whole.

The University of Oregon will have floating schools which will tour both Alaskan and Hawaiian waters in the summer of 1930.

BEAUTIFUL HOME OF ADAMS P. CARROLL

The above is a photograph of the home of Adams P. Carroll on the corner of Broadway and Carroll avenue. The house, which is of brick and of colonial Architecture, was built by Contractor William S. Spencer. It is one of the most attractive homes in that neighborhood and is exceptionally well equipped with all the most modern building features.

The interior is very attractive, the rooms which are exquisitely finished in oak, are large and cheery. Everything about the house makes it one of the prettiest homes in the city.

INSULATE WALLS EASILY BY PRESSURE METHOD

"If I were building another house, believe me, I'd insulate the outside walls!"

One hears this positive statement time and time again from men who apparently bemoan the fact that nobody tipped them off to the benefits of insulated walls during the time they were planning to build.

As a matter of fact there is no cause for these vain regrets. The insulating can be done at any time on houses which have been built from two to 200 years and for an amount not much greater than the same work would cost on a new house. A clever little device has been invented which pumps the insulating material into the spaces between the studding and renders the walls as airtight as it would be possible to make them.

This method is used to unusually good advantage when a certain type of asbestos wall insulation is selected. The interesting part of the process is the fact that it makes no difference whether the sidings are of brick, stucco, clapboards or shingles. The workmen who do this sort of work merely remove a brick, make a small hole in the stucco opposite each studding opening, remove a clapboard or a shingle. After that a nozzle is inserted, asbestos insulation is poured in under pressure and continues to pour in until the entire space is filled. Then the brick is replaced, stucco is placed in, or the clapboard or shingle is replaced, after which the nozzle moves on to the next opening and the process is repeated, space by space, until the entire wall is filled solid.

Asbestos owes much of its insulating properties to myriad dead air cells which make it impossible for heat or cold to penetrate. The fact that it is applied after a house is built means nothing. The insulating is exactly as effective under the pressure application as it would be if applied while a home was being built.

Incidentally, the space between ceilings and the floors above can be filled in the same manner. All this is needed is a small opening, which can be closed the moment the insulation is inserted.

NOANK

Miss Margaret Roarke has returned to Providence after a visit at the home of her sister, Miss Carolyn Roarke.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Smith of Norwich were recent callers on relatives in the village.

Miss Grace Fitzpatrick of New York spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Fitzpatrick.

The honor guests were Deacon Morgan, Rev. Ernest F. Weise, William I. Spicer, superintendent of Sunday school, Dr. D. P. Fitch, assistant superintendent, and Charles Glover, principal of the Noank grammar school. Robert Anderson was toastmaster. A fine chowder was served, having been prepared by Hadley Fitch. After the supper a very interesting lecture with illustrated colored slides of California, was given by William I. Spicer.

The boat built by Orrin Oles for Elbert Palmer was launched from Oles' boatshop on the North cove Saturday. The boat is having a new engine installed and will be used for dragging.

Mr. and Mrs. Harrie Park spent Sunday with relatives in Providence.

Another in the series of invitation socials and dances, given by Liberty council, Daughters of America and Washington council, Junior O. U. A. M., was held in Mechanics' hall Saturday night. There was a large attendance at the dance and many out of town guests were present. Modern and old fashioned dances were on the list. Chappell's orchestra played for dancing and Lawrence Main was prompter for the old fashioned dances. At intermission sandwiches, doughnuts and coffee were served. The committee in charge was Frank Schoonmaker, Halstead Brown and Edwin Wolverton.

HOW A MOVING PICTURE WAS MADE IN THE VILLAGE

A movie man not long ago came to the village to take pictures. He stood 6 foot and 2 inches in his sox. His name was Bradley Barker and a squad of ten making a company, followed their master to the village by the sea. When the news went round that movies were to be taken the people were proud to think a company came to put Noank on the screen. Many Noank people took part in the big picture. Mr. Barker in charge had the story down on a long piece of paper that would reach from Pearl street to East Main street several blocks. The title of the picture was "Comrades," all in color, for Noank is a pretty village, with a good background, the waterfront, with woods and tall elms. One can look from Prospect Hill all over the water almost to Newport. Mr. Barker says he has been all over the world and none can beat a town like Noank for taking moving pictures. So the movie company got busy and had their machine taken down to Riverside avenue, near the packing house with the grocery store, coats, 10-gallon hats, overalls, ready to face the camera for action.

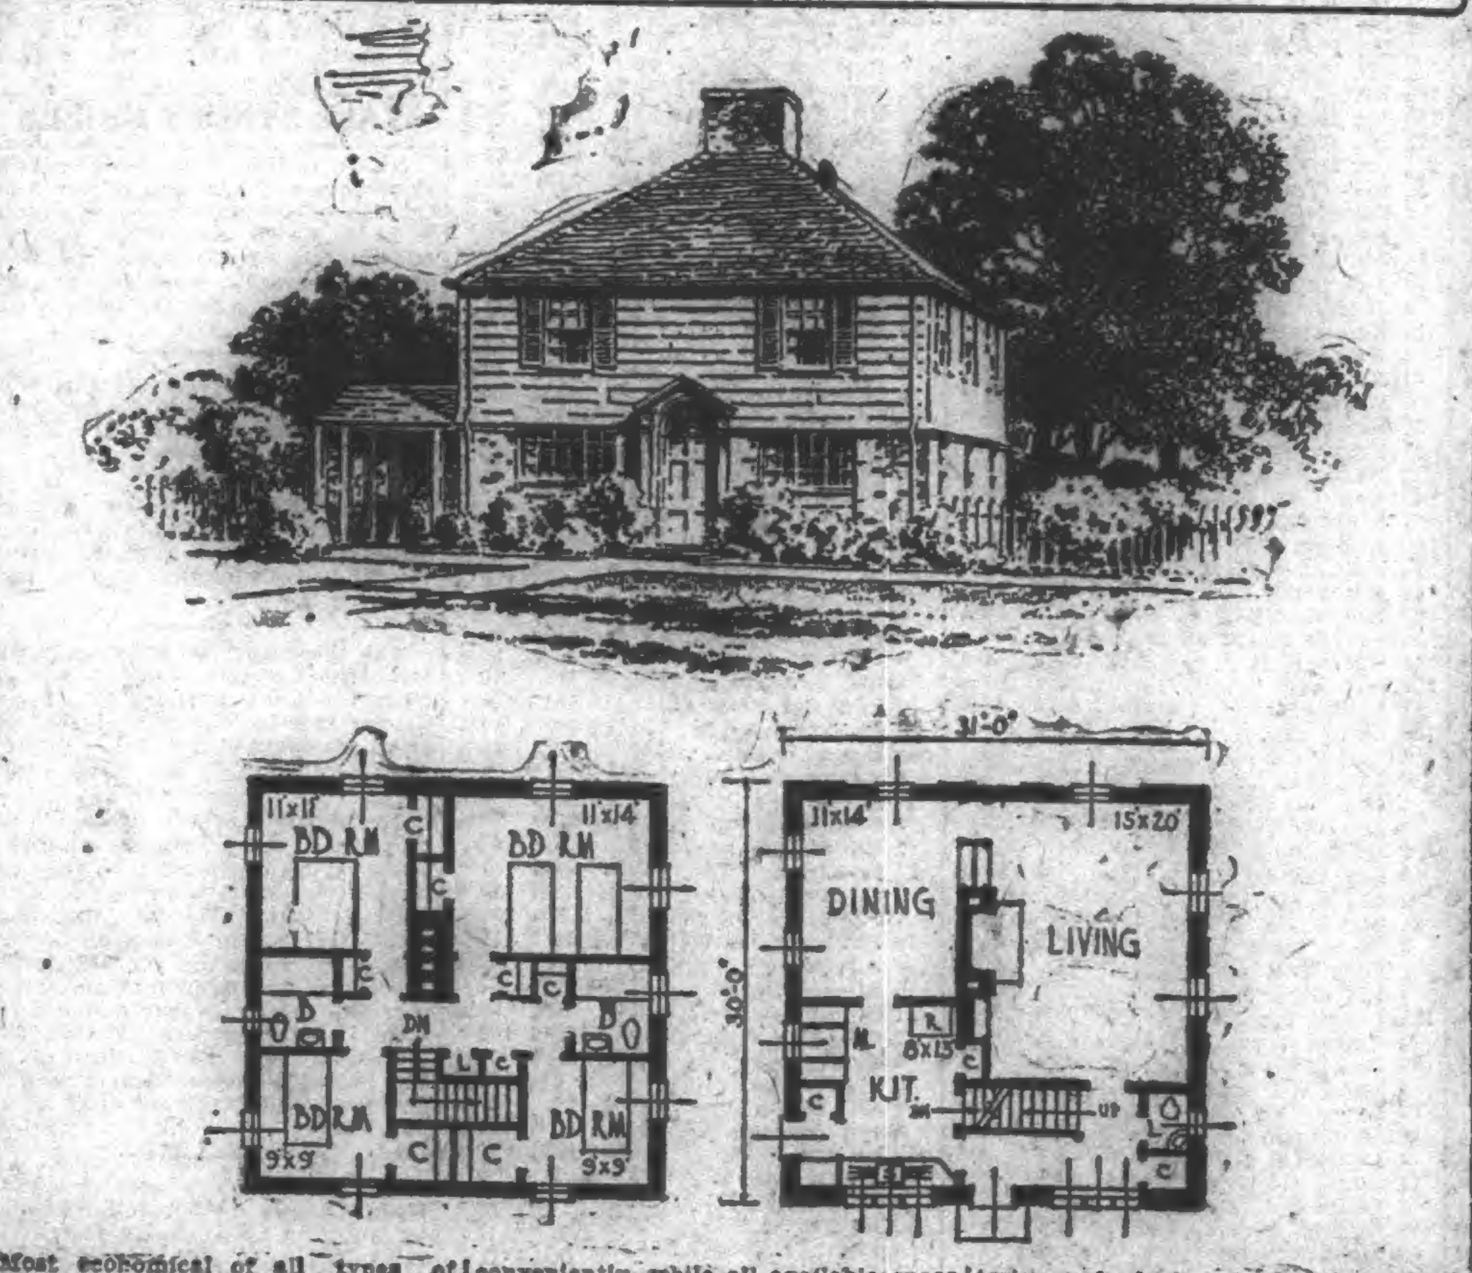
It was on the lawn of the old red house occupied by Aunt Lizzie Potter, known to everyone in town, that a checker game took place. Two old-timers, like the Smith Brothers' cough drop twins, dressed up with snowy hair and canes to help them walk, started to have a game of checkers for the championship of Hollywood and Noank. A crowd of over 100 Noankers came to see the big game. The leading lady, Miss Nellie O'Toole (Miss Martha Martin), was going to marry the winner of the match. Martin Peterson (Bert Jackson), started a fight over a move and he thought his pal, Sam DeLong, (Long Reach Billie Crane), pushed one checker too much; so both actors squared off like Gene Tunney did against Tiger Jack Dempsey, in Chicago. Miss Martin got between them, to try and stop the battle. A kid in the crowd cried out "A big fight!" and the people looking on thought so, too.

The movie machine almost got broke, as the crowd got closer to see the battle. They said "give us action like Dempsey does!" It took 30 minutes to get the wild crowd back, so the color picture could go on again. Miss Martin said "why, you men fighting over a game of checkers! Trying to win my hand! you ought to be ashamed of yourselves!" The violin player with his long hair said, "who would not fight over a game of checkers to win you as a bride, if it is not leap year?" The crowd got a big kick out of that one.

Mr. Barker told the ones looking on not to get excited over a fake fight, pulled off by the players, for it is all in the movie game. "We don't want to get hurt trying to keep all of you back! so let yourselves be your guide!"

Then the picture went on again. The fishing men were mending their nets and were in the picture and another fight took place between a red haired kid and a Shore avenue sheik over a fish pole. It was no fake fight, but a real one; the kid with the red hair socked the Shore avenue wonder with a hard right to the chin, but coming back like Al Singer does, caught his pal on the nose and almost sent him into the Noank harbor with the fish. They had to be stopped for they were not fooling. That sure pleased the crowd. Going up to Fish Town church, one of the oldest churches around here, they started to put on act 2, getting a horse and wagon like 50 years ago. It was a church act—Deacon Roswell Saywer was the minister who has sent many happy couples away on their honeymoon by saying a few words. Miss Florence Fitzpatrick also was in this part, seeing the big wedding pulled off. The horse, Spark Plug, and his 6x8 buggy from Ledyard drove up to the church with the bride, Miss Sallena Jackson, wearing a hoopskirt and carrying a big bunch of West View carnations and a sun bonnet to match with the bridegroom, George Olson, having a claw hammer coat, a 10-gallon hat, button shoes and with a sunflower in his right button-hole ready to slip the ring on the bride's finger. The church was crowded to see the wedding take place. Deacon Sawyer soon sent that couple off with their horse and buggy to a short honeymoon to Ocean Beach. Gee! the crowd was laughing over the wedding! The picture was all done. So it was shown in all the big cities. One fellow, Jake Norton, in California went to a show and saw "Comrades," That made the screen. He said, "It is funny—better than William Haines at his best!" This week at the Capitol show-house the name of Bradley Barker was seen in charge of a picture "Rubeville." About half the town saw it and claim it was great. It seemed good to see the man who put Noank in screenland with the movie people. Mr. Barker sure made a lot of friends, no matter if he only came in town and turned round, his name is on every one's lips. They sure like that movie man. At the street corner you can hear some one say "Barker in town!" or "over to the Capitol this week," and he always said at the waiting room before it closed its doors by Owner Smith he has been in a lot of towns taking pictures, but never in his life saw anything like it here in the Fishing Village.

Economy In Colonial Of Spuare Design



Most economical of all types of construction and embodying many desirable features is this colonial home of two stories with a center entrance.

While a most difficult house to design, it strikes a high note of practicability and efficiency.

The main rooms on both floors are grouped at the rear with large windows overlooking the garden. A dining alcove is included in the spacious kitchen and an attractive fireplace in the living room.

Two bath rooms, each serving two of the four bedrooms, are located conveniently, while all available space is utilized in large closets. A lavatory and toilet are on the first floor.

Owner and visitors alike will be particularly appreciative of the porte-cochere protecting the kitchen, making it possible to enter from the driveway without exposure to rain or inclement weather.

A closed porch or open terrace may be included at the rear, with access from both dining room and living room. The central chimney is a distinguishing feature of this type.

Brick is used for the first floor exterior and clapboards for the second floor. A color scheme radiating warmth and coziness can be worked out in variety of excellent treatments. Box bushes should be placed on both sides of the entrance and the lower portions of the house flanked by flowers and shrubs.

Construction cost of this home, considering its size and spacious proportions, is exceptionally low. Estimates for communities of medium size vary from $8,000 to $10,000 including plumbing and heating, and lower in the smaller cities.

BREAK IN WHEAT AND CORN CAUSED REACTIONARY TREND IN STOCK PRICES

NEW YORK, Feb. 3—(AP)—Efforts to extend the recovery of stock prices today were frustrated by a sharp break in the commodities markets. Operators for the advance succeeded in marking up a long list of issues 1 to 5 points in the early trading, but the break in wheat and corn apparently stimulated the liquidation of stocks by middle western speculators, who sought to protect margins in the grain markets, with the result that stocks turned lower in the last hour of trading.

Most of the early gains were cut down, or wiped out, and a long list of issues closed with net declines of 1 to 3 points. Total sales, which fell just short of 3,800,000 shares, set a new high record for the year.

Wheat dropped 4 cents or more a bushel to new low levels for the season on selling influenced by continued heavy offerings of the French and Russian products in Europe, unfavorable export statistics and a denial of reports that the department of agriculture had predicted higher prices later in the year. The March option sold down to $1.13 a bushel. Corn sagged more than a cent a bushel on reports of an increase in the visible supply. Cotton dropped $2 to $2.50 a bushel also to new levels, in sympathy with an earlier break in Liverpool.

Rails offered the best resistance to selling pressure, the index of 20 leading issues in that group setting a new high level for the year. New York & Harlem, which scored a spectacular gain of 106 points in odd lot trading last week, ran up 19 more to 324, broke to 275 and then rebounded to 279 for a net loss of 26 points. In view of the sharp advance in prices last week, the reaction in the public utilities and industrials was regarded largely as in the nature of a technical correction.

The bullish effect of a further upturn in steel operations was tempered somewhat by the fact that prices have been on the downgrade, and are lower than they were a year ago. U. S. Steel common touched a new high on the current recovery at 185, dropped to 181 1-2, and closed at 182 for a net loss of 2 1-2 points. Youngstown Sheet & Tube lost 6 1-4 points.

A brisk flurry of buying developed in the copper shares on reports of a sharp expansion in the operations of fabricating plants, although buying of the red metal continued quiet. Producers expect a sharp pick-up in the foreign demand in the next few weeks and believe this may also stimulate a demand from domestic consumers, who have been pursuing a "hand to mouth" buying policy in the belief that the price would be cut below 18 cents a pound. Gains of 1 to 3 points in the active copper shares were cut down when the general market turned heavy.

Late selling was directed principally against such speculative issues as Simmons, J. I. Case and Columbian Carbon, which have been the favorite trading vehicles of some of the large middle western operators. Net declines in this group ranged from 6 to 8 points.

Call money held steady at 4 1-2 per cent all day, with the supply of funds nominal, although the return flow of February 1, dividend and interest payment to the banks is expected to bring about a lowering of the rate later in the week. Time money was quoted at 4 3-4 to 5 instead of 4 1-2 to 4 3-4 per cent. Prime commercial paper and bankers' acceptance rates were unchanged.

The New York Stock exchange reported a decline of $4,743,203 in member loans last month, one of the smallest changes on record, bringing the total down to $3,984,766,065, which contrasts with a total of $6,735,164,242 on Jan. 31, 1929, and the record-breaking total of $8,549,383,979 on Sept. 30th last.

Establishment of new low levels for the year by the British, French and Argentine currencies featured the lower foreign exchange market. Sterling cables were quoted around $4.86 3-8.

At the same time the stockholders approved an amendment authorizing an increase in the no par common stock from 750,00 shares to 1,000,000 shares. The Greyhound Corp., owns a large bus transportation system and has an interest in a number of other large bus lines.

COTTON

NEW YORK, Feb. 3—(AP)—Cotton futures closed barely steady, 23 to 43 points lower. Spot steady; middling 16.10.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 3—(AP)—Prices on the New York Curb exchange started upward at the opening of today's market but ran into a torrent of profit-taking in the late afternoon, with the result that the close was irregular. Selling was most effective in some of the public utility and investment trust issues which had recorded sharp gains last week, although there were a few strong spots in these groups.

Electric Bond & Share, which had been setting the pace in the public utility groups, closed 3 3-8 points lower. American Gas & Electric dropped 3 points and American Superpower, Tampa Electric and United Light & Power A and B lost a point or more. Arkansas Natural Gas issues were heavily bought, the common advancing 1 7-8 and the A stock 1 1-4. United Gas also was turned over in large volume but closed unchanged at 30 3-4.

Deere & Co., which recently recorded a spectacular advance in connection with the announcement of a 5 for 1 stock split-up, broke 35 points to 620, and the new stock, which is traded in on a "when issued" basis, lost 4 3-8.

Newmont Mining ran up nearly 7 points but lost about half its gain, the flurry of buying being inspired by expectations of a sharp increase in the demand for the red metal.

In the oil group, Eureka Pipe Line dropped 3 3-4 points on a few sales; Gulf of Pennsylvania lost 2 1-4 and Humble 1 3-8, with most of the other leaders showing fractional recessions. Aviation shares were quiet, with Western Air Express dropping 2 1-4 points on one sale. Chain store stocks were irregular, Bohack dropping to a new low while Daniel Reeves and A. & P. showed moderate gains.

Net declines of 1 to 3 points were registered by Interstate Equities convertible preferred, Lehman corporation, Mayflower Associates and Western States B. Pennroad corporation was active and firm in response to a better demand for the railroad stocks on "the big board."

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Feb. 3—(AP)—Tumbling headlong downward almost 5c a bushel today, wheat future delivery contracts broke the season's low price record. Selling out on a big scale to stop holders' losses resulted from complete failure of the market to maintain advances, notwithstanding action of the federal farm board in appointing an advisory wheat committee. Conspicuous absence of export demand today for wheat from North America had also a decided unsettling effect, emphasized by acute weakness of Winnipeg and Liverpool quotations and by a large increase of the amount of wheat afloat for Europe.

Chicago closing prices for wheat were nervous at 3 7-8 to 4 1-2 a 4 5-8c a bushel lower than Saturday's finish. Corn closed 1 1-8 to 1 5-8 down, with oats 5-8 a 3-4 to 1c off, but provisions showing 10 to 20c gain.

Adding to selling pressure in the Chicago wheat market today were dispatches telling of British import purchases from Russia at figures apparently cheaper than were asked for wheat from Argentina or North America. Far outweighing such factors, however, was the circumstance that a majority of Chicago wheat traders appeared to regard as bearish instead of bullish the farm board's efforts to stabilize values. In this connection one of the foremost commission houses here issued a statement that there is no use mincing words, and that apparently the wheat market is going to be left to reflect fundamental conditions surrounding the world wheat situation.

Announcement that the United States wheat visible supply total today showed 2,274,000 bushel shrinkage as compared with a week ago was virtually ignored as a sustaining influence on prices. Word from official sources that the amount of wheat remaining on farms in the United States is 50,000,000 bushels less than the total a year ago was also practically without effect. On the other hand, sharp notice was taken that supplies of wheat on ocean passage to Europe are 2,000,000 bushels larger than a week ago, making 9,500,000 bushel enlargement in the last month, with stocks of wheat at Liverpool given as 7,884,000 bushels compared with 1,520,000 bushels at this time last year.

Corn and oats values went downgrade mainly as a result of the semi-demoralization of the wheat market.

Provisions rose because the monthly report of warehouse stocks of lard showed a gain of only 3,000,000 pounds against 30,000,000 pounds gain at this time last year.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 3—(AP)—Foreign bonds furnished the feature in today's market. Net changes in this group were well mixed, but there was considerable activity, especially in the French listings. That government's 7 1-2s made a new high at 131 1-4 on a turnover of $286,000, principal amount. The 7s also moved higher.

Other important changes included losses of more than 2 points in Colombian Agricultural 6s of 1947 and Colombian Mortgage Bank 7s. Belgian 8s eased nearly a point, but the 6 1-2s sold up to 102 for a net advance of 7-8. Denmark 6s, Budapest 6s, Italy 7s, several of the French municipals, Rio de Janeiro 6 1-2s, Australian 4 1-2s and Brazil 8s were other popular issues, although advances held to fractions.

Firmer time money, which was quoted at 4 3-4 to 5 per cent for all maturities, served to restrict interest in the domestic corporation bonds, which were again irregular. United States governments gained ground in the late trading after early easiness, the Treasury 4s and 4 1-4s rising 3-8.

Rails were irregular, Atchison General 4s lost 7-8, Baltimore & Ohio 5s dropped 1-2, Pennsylvania Gold 5s sagged 5-8 and New Haven collateral 6s fell a point. Some of the secondary rails, including Soo Line 5s, and Hudson & Manhattan refunding 5s closed about a point higher.

Communication convertibles sold off sharply. American Telephone 4 1-2s declined 3 1-2 points to 146 1-3, closing at 147 for a net loss of 3, while International Telephone 4 1-2s dropped 4 1-4, losing most of the gain they had made late last week.

Utility company bonds of standard descriptions were mixed. American Telephone 5s of 1965 held very firm, but easing tendencies prevailed in Consolidated Gas of New York 5 1-2s, Duquesne Light 4 1-2s, Southwestern Bell Telephone 5s and International Telephone debenture 4 1-2s. The last named yielded a full point. Small fractional advances developed on buying of New Orleans Public Service 5s, Series B, and Columbia Gas & Electric 5s, May maturity.

Most of the larger changes in the industrials involved speculative and semi-speculative bonds. Cuba Cane Sugar 8s climbed 2 1-4, International Paper 6s gained 1 7-8, Fisk Rubber 8s rose 1 and Punta Alegre Sugar 7s rose 2 5-8. Pressed Steel Car 5s lost a point. High grade industrials were firm.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

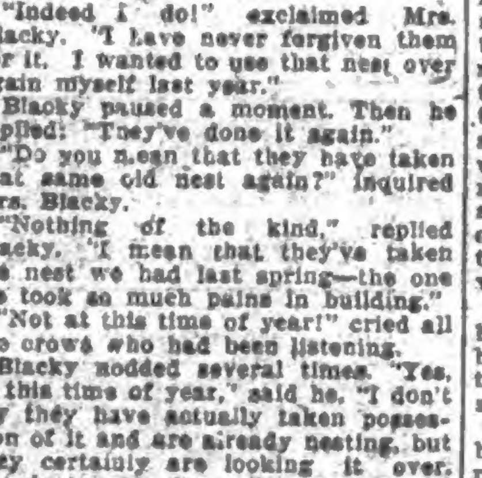
Blacky Calls a Conference

In unity is always strength,
And thus are ends attained at length.
—Blacky the Crow.

Blacky the Crow had been very much frightened. In fact, he had had the worst fright he had had all winter. He had visited his old nest in the Green Forest and had found Mrs. Hooty, the Great Horned Owl, on the edge of it and Hooty sitting close by. He had waited for nothing more. But now that he was safely away, he was becoming very brave. Many people are like that. His fright was over. Anger had taken its place. Muttering to himself, he began looking around for Mrs. Blacky. Failing to find her, he took up his position in a certain favorite tree and began to caw. "Caw, caw, caw!" he screamed just as loud as he could.

The first to answer him was Mrs. Blacky. She came hurrying over to find out what all the fuss was about. "I'll tell you, my dear," said Blacky, "as soon as the others arrive. You might help me call them."

So Mrs. Blacky joined in with Blacky and how they did make the Green Forest ring with their caws! Pretty soon from every direction crows came hurrying up. Of course, each crow right away wanted to know why he or she had been called. But Blacky wouldn't tell until all the crows had arrived.



"Caw, caw, caw!" he screamed just as loud as he could

When Blacky was satisfied that no more crows were within sound of his voice he told his story. "It's Hooty the Owl and Mrs. Hooty," said he. "You remember what a good time we had tormenting Hooty the last time I called you?"

"We remember!" cried all the crows.

"Well," said Blacky, "that time I was merely getting even with Hooty for having tried to catch me for his breakfast. This time it is another matter altogether." He turned to Mrs. Blacky. "My dear," said he, "you remember that once several years ago Hooty and Mrs. Hooty took one of our old nests?"

"Indeed I do!" exclaimed Mrs. Blacky. "I have never forgiven them for it. I wanted to use that nest over again myself last year."

Blacky paused a moment. Then he replied: "They've done it again."

"Do you mean that they have taken that same old nest again?" inquired Mrs. Blacky.

"Nothing of the kind," replied Blacky. "I mean that they've taken the nest we had last spring—the one we took so much pains in building."

"Not at this time of year!" cried all the crows who had been listening.

Blacky nodded several times. "Yes, at this time of year," said he. "I don't say they have actually taken possession of it and are already nesting, but they certainly are looking it over. I've just come from there and I left Mrs. Hooty sitting on the edge of the nest and Hooty close by. You know they nest very early. I don't suppose they have eggs there yet, so I called you folks to come help drive them away. I have an idea that Mrs. Blacky wants that nest again this year."

"I certainly do!" spoke up Mrs. Blacky. It was plain that she was filled with indignation. "Do you suppose that we really can drive them away?"

"Of course we can!" cried all the crows boastfully, for crows are great boasters. "Show us where they are and we'll drive Hooty and Mrs. Hooty away."

ROTARIANS ENJOY AN EVENING OF MUSIC

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 3—Musical night with a treatise on music by Ralph H. Gibson, chairman of the music committee of the club, was observed at the meeting of the Willimantic Rotary club held with a dinner at the Nathan Hale hotel this evening. The unique meeting was considered one of the best in some time and served to create a new appreciation of music. Chairman Gibson traced the history of music from the early folk songs of Russia to the art songs, the piano and the symphony. The first attempt at orchestral music was at Florence, Italy, in 1600. This was followed by the development of chamber music made possible by new instruments and still considered the finest of music. Assisted by members of the Peerless orchestra, of which he is leader, Chairman Gibson, violinist, demonstrated various types of music concluding with the American music by playing the American Patrol and then swinging in to several numbers of modern jazz. Feature selections were by Ruth Taylor, 8 year old daughter of Walter Taylor, who, at the piano, gave a fine execution of Rigoletto and the Dance of the Gnomes, the other feature being Bernard Beller in his piano rendition of The Storm. Members of the orchestra assisting Leader Gibson were John P. Quinlan, piano, Gaylord P. Mathewson, saxophone, Roderick Cote, clarinet, Adelard Dion, drums, and Leo Dion, string instrument. Chairman Gibson also mentioned the development of music in Willimantic, paying tribute to the work being done by the Blanchette School of Music. The meeting was presided over by President Louis H. Arnold, who introduced as guests of the evening, Harold W. Hunter of Boston, Nathan Canterbury of the Yale Forest School Union and Lawrence W. Rathbun of Dublin, N. H. and Dr. George C. Moon of this city.

FILLING IN THE CHINKS

Much of the draft one feels around one's feet in first floor rooms is not due so much to seepage under doors as that which comes into the basement between floor timbers and then steals upstairs around the baseboards. A small stock of lumber, a little blanket insulating material and perhaps a day's time is all that is necessary to stop up these chinks permanently by boarding up and insulating between the floor timbers and the outside walls. Such precautions also prevent rain from being driven through those small spaces, to cause timber rot in due time.

NEW LONDON COUNCIL HET UP ON SCHOOLS AND ASSESSMENTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 4.—The city council held a meeting of two and one-half hours' duration this evening. The board of school visitors and the reassessment of real estate were handled without gloves.

Councilor Fox replied to his critics for the statements he made two weeks ago and did it with a master hand. There was a full gallery to listen to him. Councilor Miner, chairman of the finance committee, opened the meeting by saying that since 1923 the city had issued funds of $833,000. This year $85,000 will fall due and the sinking fund will require $25,000, making a total of $105,000. He said that was half the budget 25 years ago and counseled the greatest care in making expenditures. He said that the revenue of the city was $62,222 less than it was a year ago. "We must keep down the expenditures to actual necessity and we mean to do that!" he declared.

Councilor Fox replied to his critics, who claimed he did not know what he was talking about at the previous meeting, but he stuck to his criticism of the board of education. He told of the cost of physical education and compared the expenditures with those of the city of Norwich, where $5,000 was paid to a superintendent who had 19 schools. "We pay $6,000 and $322 for travelling expenses," he stated. He declared that the School of Commerce cost the city too much and pointed out how the superintendent was paid. He had 13 days' vacation in Pennsylvania during the school year and was paid $8 a day by the state, also went to Louisville, Ky., at city expense during this term of school.

At South Manchester, the instructor is paid $3,500 and has an assistant at $2,000. At New London the cost is $9,272.33. At Torrington the instructor was paid $3,100, had no assistants and had 471 pupils. He said: "We pay $10,000 too much for what we get and the council should consider whether to continue to do it."

He said he was not criticizing the curriculum, but the cost of the school was what he criticized. The board of school visitors asked the city for a junior high school and the city voted down the request. Then they went to the legislature and got the right to use $150,000 of the school bond issue for grade schools, to take care of the overflow from schools. Mr. Fox said he had been a member of the school board for many years and offered to vote in the legislature for the erection of the Jennings school here. He said that in one year the School of Commerce had no graduates. In another it had three. He declared that it was not progressing as it should progress. There are three living graduates of the school and the attendance has decreased until it has 15 girls and one boy now. Bulkeley and W. M. I. could take care of all the common school children and the city could save $30,000. The additional cost to the city would not be $5,000. The cost per capita at Bulkeley is $84 and the city is paying $269 at the Commerce school. The state board of education will ask for improvements at the next meeting. He said the school board spent 56 per cent of the expenses of the city, the board is composed of nine members and they spend one-third of the money appropriated by the city. The people should know, he said, what the money goes for and what it produces and there should be no secret meetings of the board of school visitors. He wanted the board of school visitors and the city council to cooperate and keep the expenses within reason.

Councilor May thought the council had no right to interfere with the business of the school board. He said the charter defined the duties of the school visitors.

Mr. Fox replied that the school board had the right to fix the curriculum, but the council could pass on the expenses without paying $25,000 to do so and represented that the construction of the school buildings and the repair of the same rested on the council.

Councilor May called up the matter of the reassessment of real estate and declared that in some cases the assessments made were unfair. They were too high and the people were clamoring before the board of relief for redress. He declared that the statement that the tax rate is to be 20 mills was made to deceive. It was fooling the people, but the intelligent would not be deceived. He said it was camouflaged and pointed out that it was not too late to stop the reassessment. He wanted the board of relief to extend their hearings so that all who object might be heard.

Mrs. Emily Speirs defended the teaching of physical culture in the schools and said the money was well spent, but she wanted the expenses of the city reduced and advised beginning in the city hall. This statement brought vigorous applause, the first of the evening. She believed the people should know the cost of education and claimed they knew nothing about it from the year book that is published. She said she could cut $25,000 a year from several departments in the city and pointed out that because of high taxes a great many people were pressed hard to pay for them.

Mrs. Catherine Moran said the school teachers of New London were the worst paid in the state.

Mrs. Lina Beckwith complained of her increased taxes and said her assessment had been raised 50 per cent. She expressed determination to continue every day until she got a hearing before the board of relief.

Councilor Scott expressed opposition to the School of Commerce and said that he had opposed it from the time it was suggested and that no member of the council was in favor of it.

Only four applications for permits to build were presented and passed.

An ordinance amending the building code was presented to control wharves, docks and channels and to affect the zone under water.

The committee on public works reported progress on the proposition to erect an underpass or overhead bridge at Maple avenue.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

A SCOUT IS TAUGHT TO MAKE GOOD

A boy never gets through the "tenderfoot" stage without learning that more will be expected of him than of boys who have not taken the scout oath and have not solemnly pledged themselves to live by the scout law.

That the honor which is in his hands after he has been accepted as a scout is not only his own, but that of the thousands of other scouts is an early lesson. He becomes at once interested in how other scouts act, not only because he is now carrying their honor, but because they are carrying his.

But he is also taught most practical ways of doing things. He can kindle a fire in the forest on the wettest day and seldom uses more than one match to do it. In fact, he does not need any match at all. He has learned the secret of frictionsticks, as used by the Indians, or he can start a fire with his knife blade and a piece of flint.

But he has also been taught to take care of a fire, not merely to keep it going, but to keep it from going too far. He knows the danger of forest fires and he knows how to kindle a blaze that will not spread. And when he is through with it, the scout puts it out.

A scout does not run away or yell wildly for help in case an accident occurs. If a person has been burned, he knows how to alleviate the suffering. If any one is dragged from the water unconscious, he knows how to se to work at once to restore respiration and circulation. He does not need to be told that time is precious. And he does not have to wait for anybody to come. Many a Boy Scout wears a medal for having saved human life under such emergencies.

Not yet, however, do you know the whole of what it means to be a member of the Boy Scouts of America. In fact, no articles and no boks can put you wise to it all. The boy who goes into it will tell you that "the half has never yet been told."

But one of the big things of which you may have just an inkling is this: The Boy Scout is trained to kindness. Not only must he be thoughful of others, as we have just now shown in case of danger, but his thoughtfulness extends mercy to dumb animals. He has learned more about them than most folks know. He has also learned that knowledge is to be used in order to make it practical.

At Zvezyan, Jugoslavia, a wedding party was proceeding to the church when a white-hot meteor sixteen inches in diameter hurtled into a carriage in front of the bride's, killing one guest and injuring another. The bride fainted, came to, and went on with the ceremony.

Broadway Theatre.

Double-feature picture programs are no novelty, but the booking of two outstanding successes on the same bill is another story, and with tomorrow's program, the second in its Greater Entertainment Month schedule, the Broadway throws tradition to the winds and presents two smashing successes. The first, "Behind the Make-up," offers a most amazing cast with William Powell, Hal Skelly, Fay Wray, Kay Francis, Paul Lukas and E. H. Calvert in a thrilling story of three widely differing people, a clever comedian, a pretty waitress and a sinister foreign genius. Human to a degree, the story delves deeply into the lives of the people who create the laughs on the stage, and fully lives up to its title in disclosing what is "Behind the Make-up."

The companion picture, "Hell's Heroes," makes its Connecticut premiere showing, fresh from a record-breaking triumph on the west coast. It is a hot breath from the old west, filmed directly from Peter B. Kyne's famous story, "The Three Godfathers," and tells of the experiences of three typical "bad men," fresh from a killing raid on a desert city bank, and making their getaway across the trackless wastes of Death Valley. They wander on, discovering a woman in the ruins of a wagon, abandoned in the stifling heat. The woman dies, in spite of their crude efforts, but the new born baby survives, and is adopted by three cold-blooded killers, who see some atonement for their crimes in bringing the baby back to civilization and help. Only one of the grim trio survives the terrific heat and thirst and driving sand, and he faces certain death, for he discovers that he is on the outskirts of the very town which he had recently "shot up."

Palace Theatre.

Marilyn Miller, the star of the gorgeous picture, "Sally," which is now playing at the Palace theatre, began her stage career at the age of five, since when she has catapulted to the heights of stardom at which she is seen by those who attend the performances of her latest triumph in technicolor at the popular local playhouse. When she was five years old she was a member of the Five Columbians, the other four being her father, mother and sisters, and she has never left the footlights for any great length of time since that day.

Miss Miller was born in Evansville, Indiana, her first name being a combination of Mary, her grandmother's name, and Lyn, her father's. When Marilyn was 14 she was dancing in the Embassy club at London. She became a sensation, especially through her impersonations of other noted theatrical characters, and even the Prince of Wales came nightly just to see this very youthful and very talented American girl rattling the boards vivaciously.

That is where Lee Shubert first saw her and gave her a contract to appear at the Winter Garden where she became an overnight success. From David Belasco, Earl Carroll, John Golden, Sam Harris, Philip Goodman and many others came offers for her services. She signed with Ziegfeld and scored a sensation in the Follies, and then in the original stage version of "Sally." She played later in "Peter Pan" and most recently in "Sunny," and "Rosalie."

Miss Miller was married to Frank Carter, a singing star at the Winter Garden who was later killed in a tragic automobile accident. Then she married Jack Pickford, brother of Mary Pickford, but was divorced a few years later. "Sally" is her first screen appearance, and to judge by the enthusiasm of those who have already seen this matchless show she cannot appear too often in Norwich to suit the tastes of the local theatre-going public.

"Sally" is not a revue but a charming love story, charmingly filmed and acted. Playing with Miss Miller is the talented singer and actor, Alexander Gray, and the magnificent clown, Joe E. Brown, along with a host of other bright stars.

Connecticut College Concert.

Although the concert for young people and children announced by Connecticut college for the afternoon of Feb. 13, when The Cleveland Orchestra is here for an evening concert also, may seem as though it was intended to exclude older people, there is no intention to exclude anybody from it who thinks real enjoyment may be had in spending an afternoon in this way. Walter Damrosch once said that the audiences for his young people's concerts were made up of young people ranging in age all the way from eight to 80.

We have heard the remark so often repeated, "It's all over my head, I can't get it." One wonders if those who have felt that way about a symphony concert will not want to take advantage of this splendid opportunity and learn a little of what it is all about. Once you get it you will want more.

PLAINFIELD SWIMMERS WIN MEET FROM PROVIDENCE MERMEN, 31 TO 23

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, Feb. 3—The Plainfield swimming team won a fast swimming meet here tonight from the Providence Y. M. C. A. aquatic team by a score of 31 to 23, the locals scoring enough points, eight, in the last event of the evening, the 80 yard relay race, for a victory. The meet was witnessed by a large gathering.

The 80-yard relay race resulted in a tie in the first swim and had to be run off the second time, Plainfield coming out the winner by the small margin of a yard. The other events were also close and hotly contested with several good times being made. The exhibition events, the 40 yard free style and an under-water swim were features.

The locals expect to meet the swimming team from the Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs the first of next week in what is expected to be another good exhibition.

The results of the meet follow:

20-yard free style—Wood (P); Burby (P); Knowles (Pr). Time 3 4-5 sec.

NORWICH GIRLS TO PLAY PRELIMINARY TO Y GAME

The preliminary to the Y Seniors-Greenwich Y titular game at the Y gym the coming Saturday will be played by the Norwich Girls team against an opponent yet to be named, but which will probably be the Conn. Aggie freshmen. The local lassies have made a fine impression so far in their campaign and intend to continue on that path in their coming game.

New suits have been ordered for the team and they will probably arrive in time for Saturday's tilt.

Realizing that the least slip may be the death knell to their championship hopes from now on, the Seniors are going into their two league games this week with grim determination to take over Norwalk there tomorrow night and then the league-leading Greenwich club here Saturday.

It is expected that Coach Demarest will continue the change in the lineup that worked so well Saturday against the Sub Base and which sent Capt. Roland Harris from center to guard and Les Pingree from guard to center. Harris was sent into the game with instructions to trail Reeves, the Sub Base high scorer and to let the others do the Y scoring. Harris performed that job creditably as Reeves, who has been running wild all year, was held to two field goals, both spectacular shots from mid-floor. Harris has had the unenviable distinction, however, of being put out of the last three games on personals, having left the Middletown, Torrington and Base contests under orders of the referee.

The Seniors do not feel downhearted at all, about their chances to bring the state title here, although they stand in fourth place in the circuit at the present time. They have lost three games while Greenwich, Bridgeport and Middletown have lost but one each. The Seniors point out that they have one more game with each team and that Torrington, which has been considerably strengthened in the last two weeks, also plays these clubs again and they say that Torrington, although having lost six times, is at present one of the best clubs in the loop.

KILLINGLY AND PLAINFIELD MEET TONIGHT AT DANIELSON

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Feb. 3—Tuesday night the Killingly high school basketball team play their old rivals, the Plainfield high team. When these two teams meet there is usually lots of action. The action will start at 8:00 p. m. in the Killingly gym, at Danielson. Killingly has the better team according to scores, having beaten Putnam and Tourtellotte, who in turn defeated Plainfield. Plainfield came back strong to defeat Woodstock, who nosed out Killingly by one point, so both teams have as good a chance as the other.

Killingly will have to watch Shippee and Lang while Plainfield will have to stop Young, Slowik and Dascoli. All of these boys have been traveling at a fast speed for their respective teams. Killingly will be minus the services of Neilson who has been playing part of the games at guard, but has left school.

The probable starting lineup for Killingly will be: Slowik, and Szafranski, or Hammett at forwards; F. Dascoli, at center; Capt. Young and Wood at guards.

Plainfield's starting lineup is not known yet, but they will probably start the same lineup that started against Putnam. A fast preliminary will start at 7:45 p. m.

INDOOR TENNIS QUEST NARROWS TO 12 PLAYERS

By TED VOSBURGH

Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Feb. 3—(P)—Led by Frank Hunter who won again in a walk, the favorites in the national indoor tennis championship advanced all along the line today as the field narrowed to 12 contestants.

Among the survivors were all eight of the seeded stars—Hunter, J. Gilbert Hall of South Orange, N. J.; Julius Seligson of Lehigh, Herbert Bowman of New York, Harris Coggeshall of Des Moines, Iowa, now a student at Harvard; Eugene McCauliff, Jr., former Fordham player; Perrine Rockafellow, New York, and Merritt Cutler, New York.

Hunter, a one-sided favorite for the title he won in 1922, crushed S. J. Wadsworth, New York, 6-1, 6-3, to enter the third round. He now has dropped but five games in two matches.

Hall, who is expected to meet Hunter in the final won twice after defeating Abraham Bassford, New York, 6-2, 6-1. Hall trimmed Lincoln Halberstadt, New York, 6-1, 6-3.

One of the best of the younger contenders, Dick Murphy of Utica, N. Y., was eliminated by the more experienced Bowman, 6-3, 7-5. In an earlier match Murphy, who formerly held the national junior indoor crown and is now a student at Harvard, made an impressive debut by smothering Tom Cahalan of Fordham, 6-1, 6-0.

Also eliminated was Udo Zaenglein of Wurzburg, Germany, who was pulverized in the second round by Cutler in love sets.

The German was too erratic for the New York player who is at his best on the familiar courts of the Seventh Regiment Armory where the tournament is being played.

Coggeshall, the bespectacled Iowan, reached the third round easily by defeating Robert D. Little of Tuscaloosa, Ala., 6-2, 6-1.

Bob Considine, lanky Washington youth who shares the national public parks double title, stayed in the running and next encounters Rockafellow, former Colgate star. The Washington boy's second round victim was Giles Verstraten, New York youngster, who was beaten at 6-2, 7-5.

A possibility that Julius Seligson may play his younger brother, Sidney in quarter-finals was indicated when both reached the third round. If Julius of Lehigh can get by Kenneth Appel of South Orange, N. J., and Sidney of New York university, can turn back Coggeshall, they will meet.

A jump ahead of the field, McCauliff of the seeded group, was the only player to reach the quarter-final round. He did so by trimming Stanley Harte, of N. Y. U., 6-1, 6-1.

SHYMAS CLASH WITH WESTERLY TEAM TONIGHT

This evening at the Parish hall, Taftville, the fast Collegians of Westerly, formerly the Cottrells, will furnish the opposition to the local Shymas, who have been going great guns so far this season at the expense of the fastest amateur teams in this section of the state, in what should be a game filled with thrills as the Westerly boys have a record that is without a doubt as good as the locals. They have met all the best amateur clubs in Eastern Conn., and also all over Rhode Island and have been successful in most of their games to date holding victories over the fast Battery E team of Westerly, Peacedale Tigers, Noank Whirlwinds and many others of the leading teams in this section of the state. In their lineup are many former Westerly high school and also Stonington high luminaries and these boys have been performing together for a few seasons so that they have almost perfect teamwork. Al Henderson or Federico will be at left forward with Cruickshank at right, Cropper will jump at center, Holt and Sawyer will be the guards with Stefanski and Shea held in reserve.

The locals, fresh from their victory over Danielson, are practicing hard for this game and should be in fine trim tonight. They will present their fastest lineup in an endeavor to send the visitors back on the short end of the score. They will take the floor in the following order: Rabbit Gauthier or Labarre, left forward; Lefty Dugas right forward, and Pete Finn will be at the tossup position while the backcourt will be taken care of by Jim Murphy, S. Finn, Lemieux and Jerry Peltier.

How About It, Shymas?

Sports Editor: On January 31st prior to the start of the Shyma-Noank game in Shyma club hall, Manager Pat Sullivan of the Shyma basketball team told me he was without a game for Tuesday, Feb. 4th and asked me if I would pick up a team to play his club on that night.

After a great deal of effort securing players I finally got a team together capable of giving the Shyma club a battle and a good game was anticipated for the night of Feb. 4th. Now Manager Sullivan comes forth with an article in this paper to the effect that the Cottrells of Westerly are the attraction at Shyma hall tonight (Tuesday). Without notifying me in any way and after begging for a game he, or the board of strategy of the Shyma club called the game off and booked another attraction. When pressed for an explanation, Manager Sullivan and as a matter of fact, his entire "pride of Taftville" basketball team comes out with the old alibi "get a reputation" which by the way could not be acquired by defeating the Shyma club since they are in quest of one themselves.

It looks to me as though Pat Sullivan is "all wet" as manager of the Shyma club, that he is the figurehead or goat for this so-called board of strategy, since it has been rumored that if Mr. Sullivan went through with the game, he was through as manager and that he would have to play the game himself. However it is safe to say that the board of strategy, the manager and the players are afflicted with a serious attack of cold feet and called the game off rather than taste defeat from the hands of a team they regard as inferior to themselves.

In conclusion I want to take this opportunity to openly challenge the Shyma club through this paper for a series of games for fun, money or marbles.

Thanking you for the space in your paper, I remain,

Mgr. Army & Navy B. B. Team.

SENECA INDIANS AT PLAINFIELD WED.

A real basketball attraction is slated for the Plainfield Community house on Wednesday evening when the Seneca Indians, from the reservations of Tuscarora and Irving, clash with the Plainfield Pros. The Indians are on a two weeks' tour of the east before they leave for a tour of the Pacific coast. That the Seneca Indians have a fast basketball team is evidenced by the fact that they have beaten the Schenectady Five, a team that holds wins over the Brooklyn Visitations and the Renaissance Five. They also include Amsterdam and the New Britain club among their list of victims. The team has yet to be beaten by an eastern quintet.

Besides being one of the fastest basketball teams in America the Indians put on an exhibition of Indian dances and other native sports before the game and between the halves. Included in their lineup are some of the country's best known basketball players, many of them former varsity men on the Indian college teams.

That Plainfield will be in for a stiff battle goes without saying if previous records count for anything. Plainfield has been going strong this season with victories over some of the best teams in the East and mid-west but they have not met a stronger aggregation than the team with which they clash tomorrow night.

Manager Salisbury is satisfied with the way his team is working and will make no changes in the lineup for this coming game. There will be a fast preliminary game between the Plainfield Buddies and the Wauregan Town team. This game is a real grudge game and plenty of torrid action can be expected.

Now Mame, if you wanta get your hair bobbed go and get it bobbed. It's your hair, ain't it?

What's that, you don't know whether Charlie will like it or not? Well, whadda you care whether he does or not. If he was any kind of a guy he won't care whether it's long or short.

Now take my boy friend for instance, he wouldn't notice whether my hair was bobbed or long, combed or braided. He says it's my personality that attracts him and not my looks. Now Mame, you know that was a dirty crack, my boy friend ain't got dust in his eyes.

But as I was saying, if you wanta get your hair bobbed, do it. Oh that's all haywire about it not being in style, there ain't no style to the way you wear your hair anyway. No, Mame, I didn't mean it that way, I wasn't meaning your hair especially.

What I mean is that it depends on how you're built from the shoulders up. Now if you got big ears, don't have no boyish bob, 'cause them ears sure will show. And if you got a neck like a giraffe then long hair is the best and besides long hair covers up a lotta dirty necks.

But take you for instance. You ain't got big ears, although they do hear a lotta stuff they shouldn't. And then your neck ain't as long and skinny as it might be, if it was, you could tie a knot in it. So you see you could have a boyish bob all right.

And as for it being the style, why don't be a girl scout, Mame. Them that has long hair wishes it was cut short and them that have short hair wishes it was long, so what difference does it make? Now you take a girl with long hair and she has more trouble keeping it looking nice than 40 girls with short hair.

Now Mame you know how it is when you got long hair. You got to have those electric curlers and do it up every night or there ain't no wave in it in the morning. And you know how them curlers has a habit of getting in your ear just about as you get to sleep. Sleeping on them curlers is like sleeping on a handful of pebbles. Ain't I right, Mame?

Now if I was you I'd get my hair cut in a nice attractive bob. Why don't I get mine cut if I think it's so nice? Say, Mame? didn't I tell you that it all depends on the type. Well I'm a long hair type and you're one who should have bobbed hair.

And besides my hair is nice and curly while those with stringy hair should have it bobbed. Yes, Mame, you oughta have your hair bobbed.

Well if you think that you can do as you please. I'm only trying to tell you how you'd look best.

So long, Mame.

BABE RUTH'S ULTIMATUM DOES NOT BOTHER YANKEE MANAGEMENT AT ALL

By ALAN GOULD

(Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Feb. 3—(P)—Babe Ruth's latest gesture of defiance, in effect a threat to retire and live on an income of $25,000 unless the Yankees meet his demand for a new three-year contract at $85,000, caused no great excitement today along the Forty-second street baseball row in general or the Yankee club offices in particular.

"We are not interested and we have nothing to say," declared E. G. Barrow, business manager of the Yankees when advised that Ruth, either personally or through an agent, had broadcast a statement from Florida in support of his salary contentions.

Ruth has rejected the two-year contract at $75,000 a year offered by the Yankees and which, it is understood, represents the limit the club will go. It is $5,000 a year more than the Babe has received for the last three years.

Barrow and Colonel Jacob Ruppert, the club owner, not only feel they have dealt generously with Ruth but that they "should be examined" for risking that much money on the uncertainties of baseball, Ruth in particular.

The circumstances of the Babe's unexpected debut as a propagandist were somewhat mysterious. Sporting editors, tearing open their morning mail, were just about to toss some mimeographed stuff in the wastebasket when they noticed the Ruthian label. It turned out to be a snappy 500-word piece, designed to buttress the Babe's claims to bigger and better wages.

At least one morning paper had the story on its desk last night but did not print it because of suspicion as to the possibility of a hoax, in spite of the post-mark of Palm Beach, where Ruth has been sojourning. Furthermore, the man who has mimeographed most of Ruth's statements, Christy Walsh, is now in California.

"If the Yankees reject my request for an increase," reads the Ruthian statement, "I will remain idle, which, at my age, means retirement from baseball. I mean organized baseball, a few years ago I would not have taken this attitude. I would be obliged to sign at any terms for the same reason 95 per cent of all players have to sign—bread and butter.

"Well, there's enough bread and butter in our home even if I never touch another baseball in my life. Without receiving five cents from the Yankees during 1930 I am assured an income of $25,000 from established dividends and royalties.

"I have saved exactly $150,000 in less than three years, which pays me (an income) every three months. In addition I receive royalties from baseballs, underwear, baseball gloves and equipment, radio talks and the like. For example, three years ago a national advertiser paid me $1,000 for a ten-minute radio talk. Recently the same advertiser paid me $2,500 for the same job. Figure it out. Shouldn't the same increased value hold good at the Yankee turnstiles?"

On this basis, by inference, Ruth's salary this year should be two and a half times what it was in 1927—or $175,000.

"Take the matter of exhibition games. The Yankees have played more in the past ten years than most other major league clubs combined, and every exhibition contract reads, 'If Ruth does not play, the game is cancelled.' And yet Ruth never gets a dime from exhibition games.

"Today I am in fine physical shape, golf, fishing and hunting have kept me in trim since last October. During the winter I rejected easy money in vaudeville and talking pictures to keep myself in shape, but if the Yankees force me into retirement I will accept some of the many offers which include a variety of entertainment propositions, exhibition games during the summer and even an offer from a circus. But I prefer to stick with the Yankees at $85,000 per year on a three-year-contract.

WALKER-LOMSKI BOUT HELD UP BECAUSE OF INJURIES

DETROIT, Feb. 3—(P)—The bout between Mickey Walker, middleweight titleholder, and Leo Lomski, scheduled for Olympia, February 14, was postponed until February 21 today because of an injury to Walker's hand.

It was the second postponement of the bout, which originally was scheduled for February 7, but was put off on that occasion because of an injury which Walker received while sparring.

P. G. A. CHAMPIONSHIP TO BE HELD AT FLUSHING, L. I.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3—(P)—The 1930 professional golf championship will be decided over the Fresh Meadow course of Flushing, L. I., September 8-13, according to the announcement made today by the Professional Golf association. Fresh Meadow is the home course of Gene Sarazen, winner of the $25,000 Agua Caliente tournament.

Reds Sign Infielder

NEW YORK, Feb. 3—(P)—Tony Cuccinello, Columbus, American association infielder last season, today signed a contract with Cincinnati. The youngster assured Sidney Weil and Dan Howley, president and manager of the Reds, who are in New York, that he would qualify as the regular third baseman of the National league club.

WILL BE PROSECUTED FOR FAILING TO REGISTER

Dr. Stanley H. Osborn, state commissioner of health, has made the announcement that county health officers are to prosecute physicians, surgeons, registered nurses and others who have neglected to register with the state department of health as required by law.

Although many of the persons who are required to register have already done so, the state department of health has a large list of persons who have neglected to register during January. Within a short time these lists will be placed in the hands of county health officers with directions to proceed as required by law.

MAKING SCHOOL CHILDREN IMMUNE TO DIPHTHERIA

Toxin-anti-toxin is being administered all school children of the public schools, with the consent of parents, for the prevention of diphtheria. Town Health Officer Harrison Gray, chairman of the advisory committee of school nursing of the town, is administering the serum with the assistance of school nurses. Approximately 500 children have received the first injection. There are three injections which are given a week apart.

The children are said not to have any ill effects from the serum. Goat serum is being used by Dr. Gray. He stated Monday that the inoculations, which are given without charge, are not compulsory.

TOO MUCH DRAFT WASTES YOUR FUEL

A considerable saving in fuel expense may be effected by the proper regulation of drafts in the heating plant. Too much air reduces the efficiency of the furnace and increases the amount of fuel consumed regardless of the type of fuel used. Reliable automatic which have met with success on many heating plants. These appliances take care of the draft without attention from the home owner, allowing just enough air to reach the fire for maximum efficiency. The draft regulator also tends to keep down the stack temperatures by minimizing the loss of heat through the flues. Overheated stacks and flues constitute one of the chief fire hazards of an improperly regulated furnace.

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*

By refraining from over-indulgence, if you would maintain the modern figure of fashion

Women who prize the modern figure with its subtle, seductive curves—men who would keep that trim, proper figure, eat healthfully but not immoderately. Banish excessiveness—eliminate abuses. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. When tempted to excess, when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, reach for a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain the lithe, youthful, modern figure.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette a man ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

"Coming events cast their shadows before"

"It's toasted"

Your Throat Protection—against irritation—against cough.

*Be Moderate!... Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

GREENEVILLE

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS MISS FORMER PASTOR

Rev. and Mrs. Harry Brothwell are greatly missed at the Greeneville Christian Endeavor society in which they always took an active interest. Rev. Mr. Brothwell recently resigned as pastor of the Third Baptist church and will continue his preaching at the First Baptist church of Waterford.

The regular Christian Endeavor meeting of the Greeneville Third Baptist church was conducted by Harold Kinne, the subject: "How May Endeavorers Crusade With Christ?" There were 31 members and friends present. This, being a consecration meeting, proved very interesting. A solo was rendered by Mrs. Cousin and Rev. Mr. Eldridge of New Haven gave a brief talk on the C. E. movement of today. After the meeting, several of the members attended the "Christian Endeavor Rally," held at the Congregational church, Norwich Town, Sunday evening.

The K. D. Sewing circle of the auxiliary of A. O. H., No. 18, held the regular meeting Thursday evening with Mrs. Anna Burke of Roath street, when there was a large class present. During the first period of the evening much work was accomplished by the members on fancy articles and lamp shades, after which a social hour was enjoyed with piano and vocal selections being rendered. The members were then invited to the dining room by Mrs. Burke, where a chicken salad supper was served. The hostess was assisted in serving by Mrs. Nellie Dunion. The next meeting of the circle will be held Thursday evening at the home of Miss Nellie Gleason on Fourth street.

BRIDE-TO-BE PRESENTED TEA SET BY GUILD

The World Wide guild girls of the Third Baptist church held their annual supper at the home of the advisor, Mrs. Elmer Mulkin, of Boswell avenue, on Friday evening. The dining room and table were prettily decorated with rose-colored crepe paper and candles, and the favors were rose candy hearts. At 6:30, a bountiful supper, consisting of meat loaf, escalloped potatoes, beet salad, escalloped corn and tomato, pineapple shortcake with whipped cream and coffee, was served to the girls, after which they enjoyed a social evening.

A presentation of a lustre-ware tea set from the guild was made by the leader, Mrs. Henry Sebastian, to one of the members, Miss Frances Bugbee, who is soon to be married. A number of interesting games were played. Those present included: Mrs. Elmer Mulkins, guild advisor; Mrs. Henry Sebastian, leader; Mrs. Val Sebastian, Miss Edna Miner, Miss Dorothy Concklin, Miss Elinor Howard, Miss Frances Bugbee, Miss Jennie Sebastian and Miss Doris Lund.

Returns to College

Miss Isabelle Flynn has returned to her studies as a student at New Rochelle college, after spending the week end recess with her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Larose, of Fourth street.

Miss Jane Suplicki has resumed her studies at the Willimantic State Normal school, after spending the week end at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Suplicki on Golden street.

Supply Preacher Heard

The pulpit of the Third Baptist church, on Sunday, was filled by Rev. S. Leavens Eldredge, of New Haven, who preached to a large audience, and on next Sunday, Rev. Raymond Bates of Waterbury will be the supply.

On Wednesday evening, the Ladies' Aid society of the Greeneville Congregational church is planning to hold its annual masquerade social. This is always a meeting of great enjoyment and never fails to bring out a goodly number of original costumes.

PROBATE JUDGE AND PRIEST ARE CONTACT CLUB SUPPER SPEAKERS

Addresses by Rev. William A. Keefe, pastor of St. Mary's Memorial church, and Judge Nelson J. Ayling were interesting features of the turkey supper enjoyed Monday evening at the Wauregan hotel by over 50 members of the Contact club of the Norwich chamber of commerce. The supper, served at 6 o'clock, was provided at the expense of the losing team, the Reds, which took part in the recent membership and attendance contest conducted by the club. This team was captained by John P. Lyston and had as its opponents the Blues team under the captaincy of Francis T. Diggins.

During the supper hour an attractive programme of vocal selections was rendered and community singing was enjoyed with F. Russell Smith acting as song leader and Fred Geer at the piano. Pleasing solo numbers were given by Frank R. Murdy, president of the chamber, and John Richardson, secretary. There was also an entertaining quartet number by Fred Maples and Messrs. Murdy, Smith and Richardson.

Rev. W. A. Keefe Speaks

Following supper, John P. Lyston, the defeated captain, who presided at the meeting, introduced as the speaker of the evening, Rev. Fr. Keefe, who spoke in part as follows:

When invited to be the speaker at this gathering I wondered how I fitted in with a Contact club; how I come in contact with the interests of the city which you represent. You have had numerous other speakers, each one talking about his own particular line of business, so I do not think it will be out of place to talk on my line of work, the work which I stand for. There is a civic side to my line, a charitable side, educational side, also an economic side, and it seems to me that oftentimes men of our particular faith and others too, do not often consider. They think of us as just getting up on Sunday morning and preaching a sermon, and taking it easy for the rest of the week.

I want to call your attention to the fact that there are many ways in which the whole community comes in contact either directly or indirectly almost every day in some way or other with the great organization which I happen to represent in our city.

As I stand here tonight I think of the days when I was a student in Belgium. Around that great square are built the great guild houses or club houses of the various industrial and business organizations of the 15th and 16th century. Each organization built their particular guild house for the assembly of their members, and I was thinking that after all those were the contact clubs of those today. They are in many ways the models for many of our present day American organizations. And after all those same old guilds happened to have as one of their representatives their chaplain and their spiritual guide so that after all the presence of a Catholic priest at a meeting of this kind in the 20th century is not new.

I call your attention to facts concerning my particular work here in the organization which I represent. I repeat that all of you at some time or other come in direct contact with the Catholic church or members of the church. I also call your attention to the fact that in many ways are you benefiting by your contact, sometimes without knowing it, sometimes without appreciating it. If you would stop to consider, it is a fact that the population of our city who attend the Catholic churches is a large percentage of the total. I call your attention to the fact that the organizations which we represent spend in our city each year directly among the merchants locally a large sum of money. I say that our plant costs in the neighborhood of $30,000 a year to run. St. Patrick's costs a little more than the Taftville church, the Sacred Heart church and St. Joseph's church. In each of these large parishes we have our own school. In our school we have eight teachers and 400 pupils. In St. Patrick's school they have a few more than we have. In St. Joseph's school they have 15 teachers and a larger number of pupils, etc. You all know what that means to the city of Norwich. The cost on an average for the teachers is from $12,000 to $15,000 a year. Multiplying that by the number of teachers it shows that you come in contact with that total. I wish to say that visitors are always welcomed to our schools at any time. Our doors are always open. We invite intelligent and concrete criticism at all times, which will be a benefit to the community and the education of the young of our schools. I call your attention to that fact because oftentimes people ask "what are we doing; what are we contributing to the community in dollars and cents. The expense of fuel, the expense of upkeep, the expense of reparation and extension, the expense of machinery, etc., totals up to a large amount. Our organizations are also a benefit in other ways namely the maintaining of a charitable department, our homes for the wayward boys and girls, our homes for the aged and poor, our homes for the orphans, etc. People sent to these different institutions are sent by us without any expense whatsoever to the city or taxpayers of Norwich. I claim that you come in contact with the organization that I represent in these particular ways, not a financial way altogether.

From a moral point of view I think we need no defense. We believe in the words of Calvin Coolidge, that what the nation needs today is religion and more religion and I think that the recent gathering of leaders from the various departments who met in Washington for the betterment of the laws makes us realize that there is more need for the respect of legal authority. We maintain our schools on this basis. We feel that the community is a beneficiary from the sacrifices and from the labors of our young women who have given up their lives to instill into the hearts of our young boys and girls the respect they owe themselves and their community. I call to your attention the way in which our boys and girls responded to Woodrow Wilson's immediate call when our nation was in danger. In that way, too, we came in contact directly with you as a very active and patriotic department of American life. We have, at all times, stood strongly against anarchy and socialism which threatened from time to time the industry and civic welfare of the nation. We have, at all times, stood very strongly against the evil of divorces, birth control, race suicide, etc.

I want to say, too, that one great movement that is a menace to the nation today and that we are strongly against is prohibition. Our particular stand on that question is that we teach temperance. Bishop Tierney administered the temperance pledge to our young boys and girls until they were 25 years of age. During the normal years we found that a large percentage of the boys and girls kept that pledge until they were 18 and 19 and many until they were 25. We found also that a great many kept it after they were 25. We teach and we believe strongly that temperance is a virtue.

Around our altars at all times every Sunday we find larger congregations, and we believe that our churches are becoming almost too small. We are teaching at all times a respect for law and order, a respect for purity and piety, a respect for womanhood and at all times the words of the Master, "Render to God the things that are God's, and to Caesar the things that are Caesar's." I suppose that it has not been out of order for me to talk on this impromptu line, the welfare of our city and harmony and good will among men.

On Current Events

Preceding Rev. Fr. Keefe's instructive discourse Judge Ayling gave a brief but apt talk on current events, especially stressing the coal situation that is being freely brought to mind in the press and of the startling condition under which Chicago finds itself at the present time along financial lines.

Among those present at the supper were: John P. Lyston, E. O. Rodier, F. Russell Smith, Roy Smith, J. B. Caron, Fred Geer, J. C. Worth, F. R. Murdy, Dr. H. C. Dixon, John Morley, J. E. Fitzgerald, Max Rabinovitch, William H. Cook, John E. Frink, Sam Pearson, J. F. Conway, C. E. Wilson, John Richardson, F. T. Diggins, J. F. Fleming, W. S. Williams, Abner Schwartz, Alex Pasnik, W. P. Hough, E. A. Rich, C. W. Cassidy, C. D. MacKinnon, Fred Maples, W. R. Baird, Martin Cohen, Max Hanover, Burton Young, Carl E. Berkoff, W. T. Clark, L. E. Millea, Dr. Andrew Sullivan and Russell Crowell.

TAFTVILLE

A large gathering of the members of the Taftville Social and Football club were present at the regular monthly meeting of the club in its rooms at the Ponemah house Monday evening. After the business session, they had the pleasure of listening to a most interesting talk, illustrated by lantern slides, by William C. Kendall. Mr. Kendall, who is also a photographer of reputation, took most of the pictures himself, which made his account of the trip all the more interesting.

Mr. Kendall described the road conditions in various sections of the country through which he passed on his cross-continent motor tour to visit his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Goodrum and family of Vallejo, California. Pictures of the Mojave desert, the petrified forest of Arizona, and views in Tucson, Arizona, and the national parks were greatly enjoyed by his audience. There were also some photographs of the beautiful scenery about Mount Tamalpais, the Golden Gate at San Francisco, and the old Spanish Mission of San Juan Capistrano.

At the conclusion of his address, the club members gave the speaker a vote of thanks, the club went into social session and refreshments of coffee and sandwiches were passed.

A prposed ordinance prohibiting the sale of milk in the city unless it is produced by tuberculin tested cows or pasteurized was presented at the February meeting of the court of common council Monday evening, accepted and consideration deferred until the March meeting of the council. The proposed ordinance was presented at the request of the city milk inspector, Dr. Clarence G. Thompson.

Petitions were received and acted on as follows:

From E. A. Price for permission to connect his lunch cart with the public sewer at the foot of Rose alley. Referred to the public works committee, which committee, later in the meeting, recommended that the permission asked be granted. The recommendation was adopted.

From Antoni Krupenski, et al., for acceptance of Mohegan Park road as a public highway. Referred to the public works committee.

To Brighten Union Street

At the suggestion of Mayor Robbins the council, by unanimous vote, requested the police committee to install an electric light opposite the telephone building on Union street, which is an extremely dark place at the present time.

Claims Received

Two claims were received and referred to the finance committee and the corporation counsel for investigation and report. One of the claims was from James McAvoy for personal injury and for damage to his automobile caused Jan. 10 while he was driving through Sachem street. A rotted limb from a tree fell on his machine, smashing the windshield and cutting him on the chin. Later in the meeting the council adopted a resolution, on recommendation of the finance committee and corporation counsel, settling the claim for $5.50. The other claim was from Jane T. Moore for personal injury received when she fell on a defective cross-walk on Spring street, Jan. 12.

The council adopted a resolution settling for $35 the claim of Muriel Throwe for personal injury received as the result of a fall on Summer street. A resolution, also adopted by the council, gives Tony Fatone permission to build a wooden addition on his house at No. 323 Franklin street. The house is of wooden construction, and more or less isolated from nearby buildings.

Proposed Milk Ordinance

The following proposed milk ordinance was presented and action deferred until the next regular monthly meeting of the council:

Section 1. On and after Oct. 1, 1930, no milk or cream shall be sold in the city of Norwich, except the same has been produced from herds of cows free from tuberculosis as determined by the official tuberculin test and re-test made in a manner and by a veterinarian approved by the commissioner on domestic animals. Provided, however, that if the milk or cream has been subjected to the process commonly known as pasteurization under specifications provided by the Connecticut milk regulation board, the requirement for the tuberculin test need not apply.

Section 2. Any person violating any provision of this ordinance shall, upon conviction, be fined not more than $100.

The police committee reported that they had decided not to grant a petition of Andrew Backsen for an electric light on Hammond avenue due to the fact that it would entail too large an expense. The report was accepted. The committee also reported that the petition of W. H. Baker for a bug light on Garfield avenue had been granted and the light installed. This report was also accepted.

"The Intellectual Pup"

WE SEE him occasionally in the Kansas City Star—in the title role in an amusing strip of comics. That Pup is surely clever at figuring the best way to get what he wants.

One day Aunt Helen had strapped The Baby in his high chair, and given him two pieces of cake. The Pup made it evident that he'd like a share, but The Baby stuffed the cake into his mouth so fast that about half of it went into his lap. Finally The Pup got impatient, and to attract the kid's notice, caught and tugged at his skirt . . . and then a shower of delicious crumbs fell from The Baby's lap to the floor.

So The Pup observes, with a broad smile of canine satisfaction, "Well, I learned something. If things don't loosen up—shake 'em!"

It's a good thought for business men, too! If you don't seem to have much of a market for your merchandise—why create a market! Shake 'em!

The best way, the most effective and satisfactory way, is through the medium of attractive printed matter.

Unusually good letter and bill heads imply much. Circulars, broadsides, booklets, blotters even—all help to shake loose the crumbs of commerce.

As to how well we do these things—we'd like to say, ask our customers, only you wouldn't. Perhaps it's enough to say that we GUARANTEE satisfaction, YOUR satisfaction.

HOUSE WETS ARE PLANNING ONSLAUGHT ON THE DRY LAW

Are to Solicit as Witnesses Prominent Persons Once Dry, But Now Wet—In the House Three Bills For Modification of the Dry Laws Have Been Introduced—Tomorrow the House Will Begin Consideration of the Williamson Bill to Transfer the Prohibition Bureau From the Treasury to the Justice Department.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4—(AP)—If the house wet bloc has its way, witnesses at the hearings on prohibition beginning before the house judiciary committee on February 12 will include prominent persons once dry but now wet.

Chairman Graham of the committee has said everybody will be heard, and the opponents of the eighteenth amendment along with advocates of its modification are preparing a slate of persons they want to testify. The bloc has decided, however, not to suggest the calling of former Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, or Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university. Their views against the dry laws are well-known.

Representative Linthicum, democrat, Maryland, chairman of the bloc, will include Cannon Cody, of Montreal, among those he wants called. Plans are for Cody to be questioned on conditions in the Canadian city before, during and after prohibition.

Another member of the bloc, Representative Dyer, republican, Missouri, is expected to name witnesses he wants to question concerning his proposal to authorize the manufacture of 2.75 per cent beer. The Missourian has asked the law enforcement commission's views on that proposition, and Chairman Wickersham is expected to present the letter to his fellow commissioners at its formal meeting tomorrow.

For several weeks it has been in recess so that the members could work on the various sub-committees. Following the customary policy of secrecy, however, nothing was given out as to subjects to be discussed.

Representative Cramton, republican, Michigan, introduced into the congressional record today a letter from Prohibition Commissioner Doran, which declared that should non-poisonous denaturants be substituted in industrial alcohol instead of wood alcohol millions of gallons would be diverted for beverage purposes. The use of non-poisonous denaturants has been proposed in a bill by Representative Sirovich, democrat, New York.

"The government," Doran wrote in denying charges made by Sirovich on the floor, "is not using any denaturant in sufficient quantities to be fatal if any one through ignorance or otherwise should use denatured alcohol as a beverage."

John F. J. Herbert, prohibition administrator for Montana and Idaho, against whom charges were reported to been made in the prohibition bureau, arrived here today to answer them. He conferred with various officials, but Senators Borah, of Idaho, and Wheeler, of Montana, said nothing more of the charges they had previously said were received by them against Herbert.

In the house three bills for modification of the dry laws were introduced, one each by Representatives Carley, Lindsay and Cullen, all New York wets.

Representative Linthicum announced the wet bloc would support seven resolutions now before the judiciary committee for the repeal and modification of the 18th amendment. "The only solution," he said, "is government control. However, we do not desire to give the federal government power to open dispensaries in states and political subdivisions where they are not wanted."

Thursday the house will begin consideration of the Williamson bill to transfer the prohibition bureau from the treasury to the justice department, as recommended by President Hoover and the law enforcement commission.

A letter to Dr. R. N. Holsaple, Michigan representative of the Anti-Saloon league, was made public today by Representative Clancy, republican, Michigan. He charged the league with opposing an increase in the number of representatives in the house from Detroit. Clancy also charged that the league had attempted to defeat him in his race for congress and that it had "shamelessly and unscrupulously" attacked him over a period of years.

CHICAGO FAMILY LOCKED UP AS BANDITS PILLAGED HOUSE

CHICAGO, Feb. 4—(AP)—Five soft-spoken bandits entered the colonial home of E. B. Mallers of Kenilworth, a suburb, early today, and after locking up the family and servants leisurely ransacked the place of loot valued at between $30,000 and $50,000.

The bandit gang, led by a man who was declared "most gentlemanly" by his victims, remained in the Mallers home for several hours, collecting jewelry, furs, clothing and bric-a-brac and joking with the owner of the residence. Piling their loot in the Mallers expensive sedan, the five robbers made a final checkup to see if anything of value had been missed, and drove away.

Mr. and Mrs. Mallers returned home shortly after midnight after attending a social function. They were greeted at the door by a neatly dressed individual.

"This is a robbery," he said, "but if everyone obeys orders no one will be injured. We have the servants locked up and the telephone wires are cut. We have been looking over this establishment for the last six weeks and have everything nicely planned. I would have robbed the place the other day during your big bridge party, but there were so many here, and my assistants—well, you probably have trouble getting reliable help, too. Now step this way, please."

Two children asleep in an upstairs bedroom were not disturbed, however, and slept throughout the robbery.

Hours later, when Mr. Mallers heard the quintet depart, he kicked a panel out of the closet door and released himself and his wife, and the servants. The wealthy co-owner of a loop office building found that practically everything of value and able to be easily moved had been taken.

TESTS TO DETERMINE THE UTILITY OF DIVING BELLS

ABOARD U. S. FALCON, OFF KEY WEST, Fla., Feb. 4—(AP)—Anchored off Smith's Shoals, 16 miles from Key West, the Submarine S-4 and the salvage ship Falcon made final arrangements today for the second step in a series of tests, to determine the utility of diving bells in submarine rescue and salvage operations.

The two ships sailed from the Key West navy yard today. Lieutenant Commander Palmer H. Dunbar, commanding the expedition, had hoped the ships would be moored off Smith's Shoals in time for tests this afternoon but last minute details delayed the start of the craft nearly two hours.

Tests this week will be with an enclosed type bell, designed by a New London, Conn., boat company. Under the plan, the bell will be reeled down to the submerged S-4 and seated over a motor hatch. Members of the crew will attempt to enter the bell from the submarine. It is designed to rise to the surface under its own buoyancy.

PROGRESS BY LONDON NAVAL CONFERENCE

LONDON, Feb. 4—(AP)—Moving with the greatest speed achieved since its start, the London naval conference today recorded definite progress in the cause of naval disarmament.

As the result of two important meetings, one of all delegates at St. James' palace this morning, the other a two hour session between American and Japanese delegates this afternoon, a more confident spirit seemed to pervade conference circles.

Moreover, the official communique for the first time since the conference opened departed from cold chronology of meetings sufficiently to indicate that "good results in preparing the way for an agreement" are being produced by private conversations among the delegates, and added that those talks would continue.

The setting of a date for the next public plenary session, which likely will be late this week or early next, will be one of the objects at a meeting of the chief delegates at six p. m., tomorrow. At that session the work of the conference thus far will be reviewed and interpreted.

NEW HAVEN WILL OPPOSE RAISING OF WATER RATES

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 4—(AP)—Harry B. Kennedy, acting mayor in the absence of Mayor Thomas A. Tully, said today that the application by the New Haven Water company to the state utilities commission for raising water rates to consumers here, will be opposed by this city if the new rates are considered exorbitant.

Stockholders of the water company were told at the annual meeting yesterday by President D. Y. Gaillard that the company intends to go to the utilities commission within the next two years and file application for permission to raise water rates. Heavy expenditures on the new storage reservoir in North Branford were advanced as the reason for the proposed increase.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE BUT BULLETS BOUNCED OFF SKULL

WARSAW, Mo., Feb. 4—(AP)—Either the skull of H. A. Beyer, 80 year old farmer of near here, is bullet-proof, or the pistol he used in a suicide attempt today is woefully shy of power.

Beyer pointed the pistol at his head and fired five times but all except one of the bullets bounced off his skull like hail off a roof top. One entered the scalp and was dug out by D. Lee Hurt, who found the lead flattened to the size of a 25 cent piece.

Beyer, who was not badly hurt, said he tried to kill a ram with the same revolver 30 years ago by shooting it in the head. The bullets had the same effect on the ram, he said.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Feb. 4—(AP)—A man with a new automobile who followed directions explicitly drove his small car for 10 miles from Waukesha to West Junction over bumpy ties and rails of the interurban right of way, officials of the electric company reported today.

The motorist stopped at Waukesha and inquired the shortest route to Milwaukee. He was told to follow the interurban tracks. This he did until a train crew stopped him at West Junction. Deputy sheriffs, who were summoned, heard his story and guided him to the highway which extends along the tracks most of the way.

FINDS DRUNKEN DRIVING BAR TO NATURALIZATION

BRIDGEPORT, Feb. 4—(AP)— "Too many of our citizens drive cars while under the influence of liquor and I think the courts should take a hand in stopping it, if possible," declared Judge Allyn L. Brown in naturalization court today when he dismissed the application of Giovanni Zenobio, of Stamford.

The latter admitted having been convicted of driving while under the influence of liquor.

During the session of the court, Judge Brown admitted 121 applicants to citizenship and Zenobio's petition was the only one dismissed for want of character. All of those admitted by the court were examined upon the question of personal tax payments.

CONFIRMATION OF HUGHES AS CHIEF JUSTICE ASSURED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4—(AP)—Confirmation by the senate of Charles Evans Hughes as chief justice seems assured, and next week, immediately after that business is transacted, he will take over the new post.

A day of reflection upon the nomination of the former secretary of state and former supreme court jurist developed no sign of opposition to him in the senate. Chairman Norris, of the senate judiciary committee, felt no haste was necessary in consideration of Mr. Hughes, however, and stood by his decision to await the regular meeting of the committee next Monday.

Chicago Submits To The Strawn Proposal

Group, Backed By More Than $50,000,000, Will Advance Money For the City Government.

CHICAGO, Feb. 4—(AP)—Chicago today accepted a virtual dictatorship in an attempt to drive the wolf from its governmental doors.

Without one dissenting vote the city council capitulated to the ultimatum of the Silas H. Strawn citizens' rescue committee and pledged the city to cooperate with the committee.

The cooperation means that the Strawn group, backed by more than $50,000,000, will advance money as it is needed for economic functioning of the city government.

The city council also called upon the school board, the public library directors and the municipal tuberculosis sanitarium board to adopt similar resolutions of cooperation. Cook county commissioners already had signified their willingness to submit their needs and payrolls to the Strawn committee.

Relief is expected to be accomplished through the purchase of tax anticipation warrants by Strawn and his colleagues, the purchases to be made as the money is needed and only when the committee approves proposed expenditures.

Capitulation of the city brought hope to the many thousand city and county employes who have been without pay since Christmas. They looked tonight to the action of the governmental agencies which have not yet pledged cooperation, for on them depends the help from the Strawn group. Before leaving for Washington yesterday Mr. Strawn said relief depended upon cooperation from all officials.

The committee consists of 75 capitalists, the majority of them large taxpayers in the city and county, who have pooled their estimated taxes against the time when tax bills can be sent out next June 1. Delay in the collection of taxes for 1928 and 1929 because of several reassessment orders, caused the present situation.

Control of the money advanced to the city and county by the committee will be in the hands of an executive committee of 15 with Mr. Strawn as chairman.

To pave the way for sale of tax anticipation warrants the city council passed tax levy ordinances totaling more than $71,000,000. The body also adopted ordinances providing for the sale of the warrants at 6 per cent interest if purchased with private money, 2 1-2 per cent interest if purchased with city funds and 4 per cent interest if purchased with school funds.

RINGLING YACHT SANK AFTER STRIKING ROCK

SARASOTA, Fla., Feb. 4—(AP)—Heavy seas pounded tonight at the palatial yacht Salophus, owned by John Ringling, circus magnate, as it lay practically submerged in 12 feet of water, one mile off Ringling Island in the Gulf of Mexico, where it sank early today after striking a rock.

Seafaring folk believed that unless the high winds abated shortly, the $200,000 yacht might be battered to a complete loss. Insurance representatives said nothing could be done about raising the boat until insurance companies had inspected it.

The 125-foot yacht, manned by a crew of 12, and carrying several passengers, set out from here about midnight last night for a cruise to Useppa Island, near Fort Myers. Shortly after entering the gulf through South Pass, the boat struck an uncharted rock and sank.

The passengers and crew immediately put out in motor craft carried aboard the yacht, and reached here about daybreak. None of the passengers was injured, but two members of the crew suffered crushed hands while lowering the lifeboats. They are C. B. Moore and Thomas Thompson.

SENATE VOTES FOR DUTIES ON COAL TAR PRODUCTS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4—(AP)—After two days of debate during which charges of price fixing were hurled against both the American and European chemical and dye interests, the senate today voted to continue the post-war policy of protecting the domestic manufacturers by assessing duties on coal tar products on American valuation. All other ad valorem rates in the tariff law are based on foreign valuation.

Republican independents stood solidly behind Senator Lafollette, of Wisconsin, spokesman for the group, in his attempt to repeal the section in the chemical schedule relating to American valuation, but the odds were too great against them. The vote for continuance of the policy of high protection was 57 to 23.

Twenty democrats voted with 37 republican regulars for American valuation, while 11 republicans and 12 democrats opposed it.

Several hundred amendments are pending, but party leaders expect many will be withdrawn and the bill placed in a position for a final vote by February 15.

Four Indictments For Bristol Murder

Brophy, Schrager, Stango and Stack Charg[illegible] With the Murder of [illegible] man McNamee.

HART[illegible] b. 4.— (AP)— Four youths, [illegible] om are still at large and he[illegible] en publicly connected with [illegible] before, were indicted tod[illegible] Hartford county grand ju[illegible] e murder of Policeman Ja[illegible] Namee, of Bristol, on the nigh[illegible] January 16.

The indicted men are: John Brophy, 19, of Waterbury; Henry Schrager, 22, of New Britain; Amideo Stango, 30, of Waterbury, and John Stack, 19, of Waterbury. Stango and Stack, who have several aliases, have been sought by the police since Brophy and Schrager are reported to have confessed their part in the crime but the police have kept the fact a secret.

Four other youths are held in $25,000 each as material witnesses in the slaying. Branded by State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn as members of a gang of thugs and gunmen, they are Bernhardt Schrager 20, brother of Henry Schrager; Allen Norton, 18; William Slade, 20, all of New Britain and Kenneth Gallagher, 22, of Bristol.

Apparently acting on the theory that secrecy would be the best course, the police of Bristol, New Britain and Waterbury, who handled the preliminary investigation of the murder, kept the names of Stango and Stack to themselves instead of adopting the usual course in a murder hunt and giving them the widest publicity. The police allowed the impression to become widespread that the companions of Brophy and Henry Schrager were among the four others held in connection with the case.

MEXICAN PRESIDENTIAL INAUGURATION TODAY

The trophy will be kept in the British embassy until a new record is set. A small model of the award will be sent to Orlebar for permanent possession.

FINDS GOLDSTEIN SOUNDS JUST AS WELL AS GOLDING

NEW YORK, Feb. 4—(AP)— Louis Goldstein did not like his name. He said it was not euphonious, that it was not American, that it hampered him in his business. He therefore went to Brooklyn city court today to get it changed to Golding.

But the justice of the court refused his petition. The court said, "Goldstein" sounds just as well as Golding. The petitioner says Goldstein is not an authentic American name; the only authentic names are those of the Indians. The court believes the request is a subterfuge for the purpose of concealing the petitioner's religion and racial identity."

The name of the justice was Louis Goldstein.

RECOMMENDS PART TIME FOR TEXTILE INDUSTRY

ATLANTA, Feb. 4—(AP)—Textile owners were advised today by George B. Sloan, president of the Cotton Textile Institute of America, to agree to part-time production instead of the alternative of closing down entirely.

"Mill owners must recognize the existence of a depression in all industry," said Mr. Sloan, who was here attending a conference of more than 100 mill executives of Georgia and Alabama.

"They must put aside the idea of running their mills on a 100 per cent basis while other industries, such as steel, are priding themselves on being able to operate on less than a 70 per cent basis.

"There are not a great many mills shut down at present, but there will be unless operators agree to part-time production and become more market-minded."

CHILDREN WITNESSED GANG SLAYING IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Feb. 4—(AP)—A Gangland weapon accounted for another victim today, the second within 24 hours and the seventh attributed to gangsters and hoodlums in six days.

The shooting occurred just a short while after State's Attorney Swanson made public a fresh ultimatum demanding that Police Commissioner Russell take "most drastic measures to halt the bloodshed."

Philip Marchese, 25 years old, was the latest victim. He was shot down and killed in the late afternoon by a man who approached him from the rear and emptied a revolver into his back and head. Scores of school children playing in the yard of a West Side school witnessed the slaying. They ran to an alley and found the body, lying face downward. One of them pulled a fire alarm box and brought a battalion in answer to the call. A fire chief called police, but the assassin had fled.

CLAIM CHAIN STORE GIRL CLERKS ARE UNDERPAID

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4—(AP)—The "phenomenal" increase in sales of chain stores of the 5-and-10-cent variety, was held today by the women's bureau of the department of labor not to have been paralleled by advances in wages to girl employes.

Many of them were said to receive insufficient pay "to procure the necessities of life," or an average of $13 a week, Mary Elizabeth Pidgeon of the bureau said this average applied in the last quarter of 1928 to slightly more than 6,000 girls in 179 limited-price stores throughout 18 states and five additional cities.

Only 7 per cent of the girls earned as much as $18 a week, while 70 per cent earned less than $15, and the others less than $10.

ONE SENTENCED TO PRISON FOR LOCAL BURGLARY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 4—Upon the opening of the February term of the Windham county superior court here at 10 o'clock this morning with Judge John R. Booth of New Haven on the bench, Alphege Potvin of this city was presented on a charge of breaking and entering the Max Rabinowitz grocery store on lower Main street during the early hours of January 13, last. Potvin, who was jointly accused with Eugene Delude, 19, also of this city, pleaded guilty and was sentenced by Judge Booth to the state's prison for a term of not less than one nor more than three years. Delude was given a suspended sentence to the Cheshire reformatory and was placed on probation for six months, with orders to pay the costs of the case and the probationary fees. State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford reviewed the case, stating that the two men had drank considerable liquor during the evening previous to the burglary. He pointed out that Potvin had led Delude to participate in the crime. A considerable amount of groceries was removed from the store and concealed in the cellar and other parts of the Potvin home on Ash street.

Charles Insalaco of this city, was charged with adultery and pleaded guilty on advice of his counsel, Attorney W. A. King. State's Attorney Bradford, informed the court that the man had six children, that he receives small wages, although regularly employed and that the family needs his earnings. He recommended placing the man on probation. Complying with this recommendation Judge Booth imposed a suspended jail sentence of one year and placed Insalaco on probation for that period, the accused to pay the costs of the case and probationary fees.

Henry Boivin, 26, formerly of Fitchburg, Mass., but more recently of Killingly, pleaded guilty to a charge of theft of $31 from the person of William Jackson of Killingly on December 21, last. Boivin and the Jackson youth had been to a dance together and drank freely, the latter becoming in a helpless condition when Boivin took a wallet containing the money from Jackson's pocket. He removed the currency and then placed a stone in the pocketbook which he threw in the river. An investigation by the state police led to his arrest. Judge Booth sentenced the accused to the Cheshire reformatory.

John Parker, 64, of Killingly, was charged with abuse of a female child, 12 years of age. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced to six months in the county jail at Brooklyn. Parker is a weaver in an Attawaugan factory.

Parker and two other men, David Dailey, 29, and John Lemieux, 17, a cousin, were similarly charged with abuse of Eva Lester. Dailey, who is married and the father of three children was charged on three counts of abuse of the child. He was given a sentence in state's prison of not less than two nor more than four years. John Lemieux, the cousin of the girl, also charged with abuse of a female child, was sentenced to the reformatory at Cheshire. In his case execution of sentence was suspended and he was placed on probation for one year to pay the court and probationary costs. The Lester girl has been committed to the Long Lane Farm.

The only plea of not guilty entered during the forenoon session was that of Peter Urban, charged with theft. Through County Defender Harry E. Back of Danielson he elected trial by jury. A continuance until the next term of court was announced in the case of Ernest Roberge, of this city, charged with issuing fraudulent checks.

Marmaduke K. Greene of Sekonk, Mass., was charged with burglary and statutory burglary and was committed to the Cheshire reformatory. Greene, who is 20 years of age, broke into the home of his uncle, Cleon Greene of Thompson, during the Christmas season. He also forced entrance into an unoccupied summer residence of his uncle's in that town and took about $300 in valuables. It was stated that a bitter hatred for his uncle impelled the youth to travel from Massachusetts to break into his uncle's houses as a form of revenge. The claim was that the boy's mother died when he was a youth and that after attending high school for a year he wanted to transfer to a technical school but this was against the wishes of his uncle and the thwarted desires of the boy led to his feeling against his relative. Greene is also classed as a deserter in the U. S. Army.

As court was about to adjourn for luncheon those attending the court were startled by an effort on the part of Mrs. Dailey, wife of David Dailey to address the court relative to the conviction of her husband for abuse of a female child. Mrs. Dailey said that she did not believe her husband was at fault because the 12-year old Lester girl had come into the bedroom occupied by her husband on one occasion and that on another occasion the girl came to the bed occupied by Mrs. Dailey and her husband and forced her attentions on the man. This admission on the part of the woman did not appear to make a favorable impression on Judge Booth who replied that "the girl is not entirely blameless and "neither are you." Court then recessed for luncheon.

The afternoon was devoted to a short calendar and assignment of cases. Cases assigned for trial this week Friday were: Marian W. Fairbanks vs. Theodore Marrotte, Leonard Bros. Garage Inc., vs. Amelia Weick and Irene Boucher vs. Peter S. Rock. Judge Booth announced that he would convene a short calendar session here next week Tuesday. Cases to be tried on the latter date are: The Willimantic Savings Institute vs. Michael Zenowitz, admr., et al.; and Fred Frieman vs. Matti Mari.

A motion by Attorney S. B. Harvey to open a default in the case of Benjamin Prague vs. Herman Prag et al, was granted during the short calendar. There was no opposition to the motion. The case and another related action were assigned for Tuesday, February 11.

Court then adjourned until next Friday at 10 o'clock. Attorney Arthur G. Bill of Danielson stated that he was unprepared to present the three uncontested divorces scheduled for today and moved that they remain on the list until Tuesday of next week.

LOCAL YOUTH SENTENCED TO 6 MONTHS IN JAIL

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 4—There was considerable interest in the trial of the case of Walter M. Neff of this city in the Tolland county superior court at Rockville Monday. Neff, was charged with negligent operation of a motor vehicle, causing death, and was sentenced to six months at the Tolland county jail by Judge John R. Booth. The local youth, who is 18 years of age, was driving a car which collided with one operated by H. L. Miller of Springfield, Mass., October 12, on the Perkins' Corner road in Mansfield. Miller, wife of the driver, is still a patient at St. Joseph's hospital with a severe fracture of the pelvis.

Neff contended that he was following an automobile that came to a sudden stop. He applied his brakes and skidded toward the center of the road, resulting in the crash with the Miller car which was coming from the opposite direction. State's Attorney Thomas F. Noone claimed that Neff attempted to pass the car ahead of him when it slowed down at the curve. Witnesses for the state included State Police Sergeant Harrison Hulburt and Officers Terrence Griffin and Charles Dailey, H. L. Miller and others who were at the scene of the accident. Neff began his sentence at the jail Monday night.

9 out of 10 Screen Stars use Lux Toilet Soap

It has swept across the world from Hollywood to Europe

"NO beauty is more important to a girl than alluring smooth skin." So says William A. Seiter, prominent First National director, summing up what 45 leading Hollywood directors have found out from their experience with motion pictures.

"A screen star must pass the most merciless test—the great close-up lights find out the slightest flaw in the skin," he goes on to say. "But the owner of a skin which can pass this test has the support of an immense adoring public."

It is because alluringly smooth skin is so vital for success on the screen that of the 521 important actresses in Hollywood, including all stars, 511 are simply devoted to Lux Toilet Soap. And all the great film studios have made it the official soap for their dressing rooms.

The Broadway stage stars are equally enthusiastic about this soap, so daintily fragrant and white. And now, too, the screen stars of the European capitals have adopted Lux Toilet Soap! To keep their skin as faultlessly smooth as the American stars keep theirs.

You will love the way it keeps your skin silken-smooth! And such generous lather as it gives, even in very hard water. Order several cakes of Lux Toilet Soap—today.

CORINNE GRIFFITH, First National's charmingly beautiful star, says: "The thing I like best about Lux Toilet Soap is the wonderful smoothness of my skin after it!"

Has the laxative in your home a family doctor's approval?

MOST of us value our health too much to purposely neglect ourselves when we are warned of constipation by bad breath, feverishness, biliousness, a headache, lack of appetite, or that weak, helpless feeling. The continuation of our trouble is more often due to the things we do rather than the things we leave undone.

Some things people do to help the bowels really weaken these organs. Only a doctor knows what things will cleanse the system without harm. That's why the laxative in your home should have a family doctor's approval.

A wonderful product now known to millions of people as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a family doctor's prescription for sluggish bowels. It never varies from the original prescription which Dr. Caldwell wrote thousands of times in his many years of practice at Monticello, Illinois. He proved it safe and reliable for women and children; thoroughly effective for the most robust men. He showed it actually corrects constipation. It is made from fresh herbs and other pure ingredients.

Since Dr. Caldwell first permitted his prescription to be put up in bottles and sold through drug stores, it has increased steadily in popularity until today it is the largest selling laxative in the world!

DANIELSON

FORMER DANIELSON MAN IN DIFFICULTY AT WINSTED

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Feb. 4—John F. Cody, who was a resident of Danielson in 1917-18, and who has been in the brokerage business in Winsted, is in difficulty following a check of records of the brokerage house that bears his name, at Winsted. The door of the office has been sealed by examiners of the state banking department, following the service of an injunction upon Cody signed by Judge E. C. Dickinson of the superior court, and issued at the request of State Bank Commissioner Lester E. Shippee, whose parental home is in this town. Examiners from the state banking department arrived at Cody's office last Thursday afternoon and continued their investigations until Monday afternoon. Their labors meanwhile had been continuous. The examiners also sealed Mr. Cody's safe deposit box at the Winsted Savings bank.

The injunction restrains Cody or any of his employes from continuing the brokerage business, and the complaint alleges that he is insolvent. The action is returnable to the superior court on the first Tuesday in April, when a permanent injunction will be sought.

Before going to Winsted, Cody was associated with the brokerage firm of Lewis & Co., in Hartford, and sold bank and insurance stocks in that city. He opened his own office in Winsted about a year and a half ago, and has furnished ticker service for the people of that place and surrounding communities. It is said that the auditors have not as yet determined the amount of the shortage.

At the present time Cody is in the Litchfield County hospital suffering from injuries sustained in an automobile accident. His automobile struck a fence and landed, badly wrecked, on the abandoned tracks of the Central New England railroad, 100 feet away. Cody worked as an automobile salesman while in Danielson.

Find Abandoned Car

A Chevrolet coupe, Rhode Island registration 9-278, was being held at the state police barracks on North Main street today. It was found abandoned late last night on the state highway not distant from Abington in the town of Pomfret, and an investigation today established that the machine is a stolen one.

About 11:30 last night a young man who is believed to have been operating the machine aroused a resident of the vicinity near where the car was abandoned and tried to borrow money, which, he represented, he wanted for the purchase of gasoline. The money was not forthcoming, but the suspicious circumstances and the fact that the young man was a stranger and acted rather queerly led to a report on the matter being made to the state barracks. State Officers Elton Nolan and George Martin were despatched to Pomfret to investigate the matter. They found the car abandoned, but were unable to locate the young man, though they searched diligently for him. It is believed that some passing motorist picked him up.

Killingly Incorporated In 1708

It was recalled today that this is the 222d year of Killingly's incorporate existence. The town, one of the oldest in this corner of the state, was incorporated in 1708. What is now Danielson figured in a very small way in the very early history of the town. Development of the area about East Killingly was of an earlier day than the building of Danielson, now the largest of the several communities of the town. The coming of the railroad, and the building of the old stage coach lines were the big factors in easing Danielson along to be the center of the town's affairs. What the years have brought in changes is impressively illustrated to those who may wander through what is known as the Old Kentuck region northeast of East Killingly. That area is forest land today, but in roaming through the woods one comes upon cellar holes, with foundation walls still clearly defined out of which mighty trees have grown and still stand. Every human habitation of the numbers there at one time have disappeared, and that part of the countryside has reverted to such a wilderness as Danielson was when the homes that early settlers of Killingly knew were places of comfort and hospitality.

Storing of the year's ice crop was completed tonight at Quinebaug lake. The four houses there have been filled to capacity, and they hold jointly about 4,000 tons. The ice is all of excellent quality and runs from nine to ten inches in thickness. The ice that was put in today was ten inches. In addition to the ice stored at the lake, the company has harvested 100 additional tons at Hampton, for seasonal delivery in Danielson. This ice is 12 inches in thickness.

Players on the Killingly high school basketball team were investigating a matter today that may lead to a formal protest to the athletic authorities of a Windham county high school, based on what appears to be evidence that a player on the team of that particular school has been playing what is said to be professional basketball. A box score appearing in a late January issue of The Bulletin contains the name of the player said to have been professionally engaged.

The forecast was tonight that Attorney E. L. Darbie of Danielson will be elected grand master of the Grand lodge of Masons in Connecticut at the Grand lodge session in Hartford on Wednesday. For the past year, Attorney Darbie has been the deputy grand master, and has filled various other grand offices during the past several years.

This evening the February meeting of the chamber of commerce was held at the Attawaugan hotel, with President W. H. G. Herklots presiding. The home-building campaign and consideration of plans for the semi-annual Dollar day were among the subjects discussed.

Mrs. Henry Johnson is confined to her home on Main street because of a sprained ankle, an injury sustained when she slipped off a chair while arranging curtains.

Attorney Arthur G. Bill was in Willimantic today attending a session of the superior court.

Chairman Walter Anderson of the joint committee handling the promotion of sales said this morning that about 1,220 shares of the new series of the Danielson Building and Loan association have been subscribed.

J. C. Witter has contracted for the extensive remodeling interiorly and exteriorly of the Dr. O. C. Sharpe property which he purchased recently and which he will occupy in the spring.

Weather vanes respectively on the town hall building and the Westfield Congregational church, only a short distance apart, are in more or less frequent disagreement relative to wind direction. Today, for instance, one showed the wind coming from the northeast, the other from the southeast. Being at different heights, varying air currents are held to account for the manner in which the vanes operate.

Gasoline buyers are getting some experience in the use of fractions in figuring their gas purchases, now that odd tenths of a cent must be taken into consideration in paying.

Mrs. J. W. Powdrell remains as a patient in a New York hospital after undergoing a surgical operation. A floral remembrance has been forwarded to her in the name of the local chamber of commerce.

Dynamite Lou Brouillard of Danielson, who won a slashing victory over Iron Man Reid of Syracuse at the boxing bouts here last Friday night, will appear in another bout on a card to be presented here later in the month.

The adjourned annual town meeting, at which the annual tax rate of Killingly will be fixed, is scheduled for the coming month. No estimates are as yet available as to what the rate will be.

PUTNAM

MISS DIXON OBSERVES HER 94TH BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Feb. 4—Miss Lovan Tiffany Dixon, who makes her home with Miss Elizabeth Child on Grove street, passed her 94th milestone of life today. Despite her advanced years Miss Dixon appeared in her regular pursuits today, was host to friends who called to pay their respects and delighted in the shower of cards and remembrances she received from her wide circle of friends in this state and Massachusetts this morning. Miss Dixon's sight and hearing is somewhat impaired, but aside from these two handicaps she is enjoying excellent health for a woman of her years.

It was believed that Miss Dixon would observe her 95th birthday today, but not until a few days ago was it learned that her birth was improperly recorded in the records of the town of Woodstock where she was born. Miss Dixon was born on February 4, 1836 of Indian parentage, according to a statement from Miss Child, with whom Miss Dixon resides.

Clarence W. Bowen, of Woodstock in his work, "History of Woodstock," speaks of Miss Dixon in his chapter on Indians in the town as follows: "An Indian today aged 91, Lovan Tiffany Dixon, daughter of Hosea Dixon and 'Aunt Hopey' was born in Woodstock, February 4, 1835, lived with and in Luther Leavitts family in the English neighborhood. She remembers Henry T. Child's great-grandfather Captain Willard Child of the Revolutionary war."

Miss Dixon has an unusually retentive memory. She recalls a great many of the historical events of the town of Woodstock and Putnam which occurred during the nineteenth century and takes a deep interest in the activities of her many friends residing in the town of her birth. Miss Dixon is one of the oldest residents of Windham county and to the children of her neighborhood, she is known as "Aunt Lovan." Her keen interest in them was bespoken this morning when numbers of her young friends shared part of her day in showering her with their greetings.

The Putnam lodge of Elks scored a two point victory over their rivals, the Masons in Monday night's round of the winter indoor sports tournament. The score was 8-7 with the Elks on the long end. By clinching this contest the Elks lengthened their seasonal lead which at the present is 66 while the Masonic rating is 59. The summary follows: (Elks names appear first), Dupre and Larose defeated Holden and Miron; Champlain and W. Averill defeated deCoudres and Marcy; Brousseau and Miller defeated Chase and Johnson; Lewis and W. Marcy defeated Hawkins and Seward; Minot and Gagne defeated Potter and Medbury; Cotter and J. Murry defeated Schonover and Shaw; Bourgeois and Wheatley lost to Merriam and Minor; Berth and Cavanaugh lost to Morse and Geissler; Duvert and P. Gagno lost to Dean and Wheaton; Wheelock and Girard lost to Sherman and Stanton; Campbell and Gallant lost to Warren and Dow; Freeman and Chadwick lost to Duffy and Metcalf; Benoit and Auger lost to Mellor and Myers. The above contests were bridge. At cribbage, Berthiaume and Tetreault defeated Loomis and Twigg.

Darbie of Danielson, commanding special troops of the 43rd, will inspect for the state. The federal inspecting officer representing the war department has not as yet been designated, Captain McGarry said last night. The commandant of the local company in behalf of the members of the unit, has extended a cordial invitation to the people of Putnam and vicinity to be present at the armory to witness the events scheduled for federal inspection night.

Officers of the state police barracks at Danielson were engaged in checking up on the tonnage of trucks operating over the Putnam-Worcester and Providence highways today. The commercial vehicles in many cases were weighed and examined by the officers in quest of infractions of the state loading laws. No arrests were reported as having taken place at a late hour this afternoon.

JEWETT CITY

BOROUGH TO COMPENSATE FIRE MARSHAL PRIOR

Warden Edmond J. Jodoin, the choice of both the democrats and republicans, and re-elected for a two-year term of office, held his first meeting with the board of burgesses Monday evening. Jacob Weschler was elected a member of the borough electric light commission. Agreeable to a vote of the meeting, George H. Prior, fire marshal of the borough, is to receive $25 annually. Heretofore, Mr. Prior, who is deeply interested in matters which affect the welfare of the fire company and maintains a careful check-up on the borough's fire risk conditions, has been entirely without remuneration.

cially requested by Mr. Richardson

The board of borough government has received from the chairman of a committee appointed by the Putnam chamber of commerce, a questionnaire which sets forth a statement of facts and conditions, relative to the non-operation of steam trains by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Co, over the Norwich and Worcester branch. This list of 15 questions is printed in The Norwich Bulletin of Tuesday, Feb. 4, 1930.

In furnishing possible answers to these inquiries it is the plan of the warden and burgesses to submit them for consideration to textile establishments, business interests and individuals in a position to compare the present bus and truck service with that received prior to the discontinuance of steam train operation.

It is generally believed here today that from the single point of local passenger bus operation that the service given the hundreds of daily borough patrons is at a higher standard than ever before and that as a means of reaching north and south local points, it is a marked improvement upon the one-time trolleys, which were operated over the steam iron.

The burgesses were assigned to the following commissions: On streets, H. E. Olsen, Felix Guillette; fire, John McDermott, Thomas McBroome; building, Olsen and Guillette; police, McDermott and McBroome. In case of reported nuisances the entire board acts as a committee of the whole.

First Selectman Daniel F. Finn of the town of Griswold was present at the meeting to ask that the borough appropriate $1,000 toward defraying the expense of erecting poles and fixtures for the purpose of lighting the new Quinebaug viaduct. This sum will be one-quarter of the total expense to be assessed the town by the state. A meeting of the freemen of the borough is to be warned to act upon this matter.

Special this forenoon, only, at Arremoney's store: Ladies' Gordon hosiery, $2.50, $2, $1.50, $1.25, $1 and 50c; special price, $1.95, $1.69, $1.19, $1, 85c and 42c.—adv.

with a larger, longer, roomier car ... with even faster speed ... with greater power ... with quicker get-away ... also challenges in good looks —in real values—in reliability and in price ...

The NEW ESSEX Challenger

The common exclamation of everyone when he has ridden in the new Essex Challenger is: "How did you do it! How do you get this greater power and faster get-away! How do you get this speed?

"My Essex the Challenger is a wonder—but, man, this is a revelation."

It is a new Essex Challenger from front end to tail light. It is longer, larger car. The Super-Six motor is made smoother and given a wider performance range. The motor retains every advantage you know in economy and long life. It is so distinctly modern in all things that count that you must want to own it.

The bodies are roomy. Three won't crowd the rear seat. There is room for your hat. You don't have to squeeze into the driver's seat. The clutch and brakes operate at the slightest foot pressure. Proper balance and mechanism make it easy to steer.

This sweeping challenge is for you to know the facts. It is for you to know that a thoroughbred automobile is available at a price all can afford.

OUR DISAPPEARING RAILROAD SERVICE

What the sentiment of the cities, boroughs and towns along the Norwich & Worcester road is regarding the present service of the New Haven road should be revealed in an interesting way by the questionnaire which has been sent out by the special committee of the Putnam chamber of commerce.

This isn't the first effort that has been made by that organization to get a restoration of passenger train service on this division, but it is a move that is calculated to bring about concerted action in case it gets enough support. It is difficult to believe that Putnam is the only community that recognizes the loss that it has experienced by the removal of passenger trains with the mail and express service, but the Putnam chamber of commerce is determined that it will not accept the situation passively. It attaches a real value to the service that has been taken away and it isn't convinced that the service which has been established in its place meets requirements. If it takes the view that it isn't getting much better than rural delivery service there will be no surprise.

The purpose of the Putnam organization is to find out what the attitude of the other communities really is. Instead of taking it for granted and instead of disregarding its own interests and submitting to whatever is handed it, Putnam has taken the lead to secure united action by those who have been adversely affected for restoration of the withdrawn service. Whether anything comes of it depends upon the support that it gets. It is seeking a fair expression, not simply those who are of the same mind as itself, and it is furnishing the opportunity, which other communities will doubtless welcome, to join hands and offer real resistance to the curtailed train service.

It is not believed that eastern Connecticut is getting the train service to which it is entitled. Lack of that is creating other handicaps which react to the disadvantage of communities all along the line and it is quite apparent that if there is going to be any improvement it must be obtained through united action.

The Putnam chamber is to be congratulated on its action. It is alert to its city's best interest, as well as the interest of this end of the state, and there are reasons to believe that its leadership will receive the encouragement to which it is entitled.

FEEDING THE BIRDS

There are other sections of the country where the plea to feed the birds has been much more needed this winter than in southeastern Connecticut. Deep snows which have covered the ground for long periods have deprived the birds of their customary feeding places in many of the states. In those sections the need of doing something for the birds is apparent. Real emergency conditions have existed.

And yet even in this locality there have been times when the birds have found hard sledding to get sufficient food to combat the cold and keep alive. Whether there is snow and ice on the ground or not, there are always those who give a thought and a handout to their feathered friends. To them the appeal to feed the birds is not necessary, and to others who even distribute food at various points in the country, under the trees and along the roadsides, for the game birds as well as the others, the existence of bad feeding conditions is sufficient to get them started on their relief trips.

There are the animals which lay aside a sufficient amount of food to carry them through the winter. They make provision against the cold weather and the day when food cannot be obtained in the usual places. Not so with the birds. They must set forth each day for their rations and it can be appreciated that there are days when they are obliged to work overtime for little or nothing.

Snow and ice deprive the birds of their food. They cut off the places to which they usually turn for those small bits that satisfy their hunger and it is then that the bits of suet, the small pieces of meat, the crumbs and the like which are thrown out by the thoughtful housewife are eagerly devoured. Thus feeding the birds should not of necessity be delayed until it is impossible for them to get anything else. They can make good use of the suet in the resistance of cold even when the ground is bare. They can always be cheered by the crumbs and other bits of food which would probably be burned or thrown away if it were not cast out to them.

Do the birds appreciate this food that is given them? Have you ever watched the way it is devoured and the joy they get from struggling for it?

THE RECKLESS FLIER

Perhaps the report of the inspectors who investigate the crashing of the mail pilot at Hartford will be different, but the impression gained by those who made an early and unofficial examination of the circumstances was that it was entirely needless and that the pilot was taking chances which he should not have done.

Flying conditions were good, there was nothing the matter with the plane so far as known and there was no reason for being reckless. It wasn't a case of bringing a disabled plane to the ground. It wasn't that he was unfamiliar with the grounds and it wasn't that he was crowded away from his proper landing place.

The impression gained by the early investigators was that he was overconfident and was taking chances when he flew too close to a building which he struck with one wing and thereafter he was virtually helpless.

There is no reason why even the most experienced pilot should resort to spectacular stunts or chance-taking under such circumstances. It has meant the end of too many of the skilled aviators. In this instance there was no one involved but himself, and he paid for his lack of care with his life, but every such instance has a detrimental effect upon aviation in general. It is the cause for fear and suspicion on the part of those who would be interested in flying.

One of the great drawbacks to commercial aviation is the feeling that there is inadequate safety. More people would be inclined to patronize the passenger-carrying planes if there were not so many needless accidents. When aviation accidents occur it invariably means death and even though it is maintained that there are less fatalities from flying than from the use of the highways public sentiment nevertheless is influenced by the helplessness of the individual in a flying machine.

The reckless pilot can do more to harm aviation than anyone else when it is perfectly apparent that there is no more reason for taking chances in the carrying of mail than there is in the transportation of passengers. When the aim of fliers is for greater safety valuable progress will be made in that direction.

SAVINGS

At the present time the limit which any depositor can carry in the savings department of the postoffice is $2,500. It has been shown by the figures of the department for the past year that it was possible to make a profit of $1,768,000 in this branch of the business. That is, the postoffice department handled such funds as residents of this country left with it and made a net gain of more than a million and three-quarters. This is more than can be said in connection with certain other services of the postoffice department.

Because of the good showing, and the evident satisfaction on the part of the depositors, it is the desire of the postmaster general that congress should grant the department authority to accept accounts up to a maximum of $5,000 for a depositor, or double the present maximum.

While the depositors in the postal system do not receive as large a rate of interest as those in savings banks there are those who are convinced that that is the place for them to put their money and last year they deposited the sum of $153,000,000, and deposits have grown yearly. The postal bank has been the depository for many aliens, those who send much money out of the country, but figures for the past year show that 58 per cent of the depositors were native-born Americans.

In view of the low rate that is paid in the postal bank, it is apparent that this system is encouraging many to not only engage in saving but to put those savings at interest instead of keeping them in places where they might be easily stolen or destroyed by fire. If it were possible to find out it might be learned that there is more hidden away in places known only to the hider than is deposited each year in the postal savings system, but there is no good reason for such a situation with all the good and sound savings institutions that are available.

DEALING WITH HAITI

Now that the senate has finally acted upon the request of the president for an appropriation to meet the expenses of a commission to ascertain the facts regarding conditions in Haiti, President Hoover proposes to lose no time in naming a commission and getting it started on its work. This might have been done weeks ago but for the resistance encountered in the senate, which voted the appropriation sought but refused to authorize the naming of a commission.

Inasmuch as the president has the authority to name the commission without the senate's action, that refusal imposes no handicap, barring the delay and the impression that the senate's attitude is lukewarm.

There is no one happy over the fact that it was necessary to send marines into Haiti or that they are still there. No one is pleased over the thought that there is no telling how long they will have to remain there. The ambition of the president as well as others is to get out of Haiti as quickly as possible and do so in a manner that will be a credit to all concerned.

To recall the marines now would simply mean to create a condition that would soon call for further attention on our part. The desire is to get out, but to do so after conditions in Haiti have been set right and the object for which the marines were sent there has been attained. The commission, through its study, should be able to set forth the conditions now and to make recommendations as to our future procedure in dealing with them that will be beneficial to Haiti and a relief to the United States. The country has confidence that the president will name a commission that will measure up to the requirements.

JUNE DECIDES

In the office June was one of so many clerks. In the place that she called home she was one of so many roomers. Often life seemed colorless and ugly and June longed for some caprice of fancy which would lend a certain zest and brightness to her days.

Walking home from work one evening she thought of buying a flower box for her window. Surely that would make a gay addition to her room, but just then she passed an art shop and a small water color of a tree beside a brook, on display in the show window, attracted her attention. She paused and retraced a few steps so that she could see the picture to better advantage.

"I can almost hear the water babble and almost feel the shade," she mused. "A pretty picture might be nicer to own than a flower box. Flowers would only be for summer, but a picture would last the whole year round." She hesitated a moment longer and then turned into the shop. "How much is that water color of a brook and a tree?" she asked the man who was waiting on another customer.

But instead of answering her directly the old fellow called through an opening in the rear of the room: "Sanderson, oh, Sanderson," and then a nice-looking young man appeared in the doorway.

"There is such a lovely picture in the window," June explained. "I'd like to know the price."

"Ten dollars, and that's very reasonable," returned the young man graciously.

But it sounded expensive to June, and so she thanked him and left the store. Farther up the avenue she passed a display of green flower boxes. Above them was a sign: "Price, $6.50." June paused. The proprietor saw her and came to the entrance of the novelty shop. June pointed to the price.

"Does that mean filled?" The proprietor told her that to fill a box with flowers added an extra fee of $3.50 to the regular price. "Thank you, but I'll not decide today," she said, and left.

On the following evening she passed the art shop again and paused before the window in which the picture was displayed. Just then the young man who had waited on her came out to tie up the awning. He recognized her, smiled and said "You could hardly make a mistake on that water color. It seems so real, you know."

"But it isn't real," she said, "It's only a picture. I'll not decide this evening." She walked on toward the novelty shop where the flower boxes were displayed. Flowers were real. They would need her to water them and there was something nice about being needed. But as she paused beside the flower boxes she remembered the charm of the picture. "I'll not decide now," she thought, and walked on.

Four evenings that week she passed the two stores on her way home from work. Each time the young man from the art shop came out and tied up the awning and said something pleasant about the picture, and June said something pleasant in return, but went away without deciding. On the fifth evening she paused again before the art shop and then gave a small gasp of dismay. The picture was gone. The young man came out to tie up the awning.

"What's become of the picture?" she cried. "I want it." The young man was very kind and sympathetic.

June tried to explain then why she had thought of buying it, and the young man said that he knew exactly how she felt because he had felt that way so often himself, but that he had never thought that buying a picture would help much because he was around pictures every day and he still felt the same way. Suddenly he glanced at his watch.

"It's closing time," he said. "Would you mind if I walked along with you wherever you are going? I've always thought I'd like to talk to somebody who understood how it felt to be lonely."

June smiled her consent and presently she and the young man walked up the avenue together. They passed the display of flower boxes, but she seemed oblivious of their existence and free from any need of a flower box or a picture, either one, just then. —Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4—A bill popped into the house hopper months ago that ought to interest Vice President Charlie Curtis.

It proposes acquirement "by gift or purchase," at a cost of $500,000, of an official residence for the vice president.

Representative Gibson of Vermont—Kunnel Gibson by his military history—got around to boost the project in the house along in January.

"The second official of the nation is expected to entertain in a manner suitable to the high office he holds," Kunnel Gibson declared.

"The increasing demands of the day make it necessary since the president is not available for many of the social functions."

What Status?

Now that presents an idea. Does it imply that the vice president should add to his titles and dignities that of official government host on occasions when the president is not giving the party?

That certainly would help to fix the vice presidential social status—also that of Mrs. Vice President or a vice presidential official hostess.

President Harding set out to find new jobs for the vice president when he took office. He drafted Mr. Coolidge to a seat at the cabinet table. It seemed by way of becoming an extra-constitutional aspect of the vice presidency.

But aside from that and his almost voteless presidency of the senate, the second-in-command of the ship of state has no very well defined governmental or social orbit.

Kunnel Gibson would like to add the vice presidential house project to the government building program for Washington. He seemed none too confident of success, however.

"The proposal has not yet aroused the interest it deserves," he told the house, somewhat sadly. "Sufficient publicity has not been given it."

Coolidge For It

And to cure that the kunnel put in the record extracts of the autobiographical account of his political adventures in Washington by that favorite son of Massachusetts, nee a Vermonter, Calvin Coolidge.

And incidental to a re-expounding of his well known philosophy that "there is no dignity quite so impressive, no independence quite so important, as living within your means," Mr. Coolidge came out flat-footedly for the vice presidential palace notion.

"My experience has convinced me that an official residence with suitable maintenance should be provided for the vice president," Mr. Coolidge said.

"Under the present system he is not lacking in dignity, but he has no fixed position. The great office should have a settled and permanent habitation and a place, irrespective of the financial ability of its temporary occupant."

To which Charlie Curtis, with a 12-room hotel wikiup as compared to the Coolidge "two bed rooms, a dining room and large reception hall" vice presidential layout, probably would

YOUR HEALTH

Hardening Of Blood Vessels

By Samuel R. Salzman, M. D., Toledo.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

This condition, known by various names, especially arterio sclerosis, is to some extent a normal change of advancing years. Every one shows the earliest signs by the age of 35. However, in the normal individual this process is so gradual that old age is reached before it makes itself manifest and causes disturbance in the health. It is only when it advances more rapidly that we speak of hardening of the blood vessels in the usual sense.

The causes for premature arterio sclerosis are numerous and not entirely understood. Among the important ones, however, are:

1. Hereditary tendencies. We frequently see members of certain families with hardened blood vessels in early life.

2. Certain poisons, especially syphilis; typhoid fever, diabetes, and possibly alcohol all play an important part, as does poisoning by lead and other heavy metals.

3. Intestinal toxins are an important factor, and over-eating may be considered the greatest sin in bringing about this condition.

4. The strain and stress of modern life, especially when added to other forms of over-indulgence.

The result of this hardening of the blood vessels is, of course, a lessening of the amount of blood supplied to the organs of the body, with resultant loss in function of these organs in proportion to this decreased blood supply. The symptoms, therefore, vary according to the organ or organs most affected.

Among the common symptoms are: The skin becomes thin, shining, and glazed like tissue paper. Pain in the legs or a sense of weight in walking, or even a change in color may occur and go on to gangrene or decay of a toe or foot. The brain being badly nourished causes dizziness, headache, loss of memory or irritability, and apoplexy may end the picture. The heart is not able to carry on well and limitation of physical effort may occur due to shortness of breath, or even attacks of pain over the heart, called angina pectoris. Sudden death due to complete closure of one of the main branches of the heart vessels is not infrequent. Kidney function may gradually lessen until the condition known as Bright's disease is recognized.

High blood pressure often follows as the vessels become hardened, although very many individuals with high blood pressure do not have hardening of the arteries, and often the pressure may be nearly normal or even below normal in this condition. High blood pressure, of course, adds considerably to the discomfort and the danger of the condition.

The nature of arterio sclerosis makes it evident that very little can be done after the disease is well advanced. Prevention, or at least delay in the process is our only hope. This calls naturally for avoidance of the things mentioned above as factors in the production of disease of the vessels, and the advice of the family physician who watches carefully over his patients from year to year is of greater value here than in almost any other condition. For "A man is as old as his arteries."

Stories That Recall Others

Warning Signals.

Little Billy was not particularly fond of the animal life on his grandfather's farm, finding it rather overwhelming to a small boy. So when he drove out to the country one day with his mother, he was noticeably reluctant to get out of the car.

"Come on, Billy, get out and see the cute little pigs," invited his mother.

Billy hung back. "No, mamma," he said, "that big pig is honking at me!"

Favorite Vegetable.

Jimmie, age four, is very proud of ability to eat various kinds of food that are placed before him from day to day. The other evening there were several guests at the table, and he was discussing his accomplishment to the discredit of his two brothers, whose tastes are not so easily satisfied.

"I like almost everything," said Jimmie. "I even like liver and fat meat. Franklin and Shirley don't. Liver and fat meat are my favorite vegetables."

No. 3

The personal exemption under the revenue act is $1,500 for a single person or $3,500 for married persons living together. Also a taxpayer may claim $400 for each person dependent upon him for chief support if such person is under 18 years of age or incapable of self support because mentally or physically defective. Such dependent need not be a relative of the taxpayer nor a member of his household. The term "mentally or physically defective" includes not only cripples and those mentally defective but persons in ill health and the aged.

Frequently the question is asked, "Why is a return demanded when the personal exemption and credit for dependents amount to more than the net income and thus reflects a nontaxable return?" The filing of a return that shows no tax liability, however, is not a useless procedure as far as the Bureau of Internal Revenue is concerned. In many cases such returns are found upon examination not to be nontaxable, as claimed by the person filing the return. If the amount of personal exemption and credit for dependents claimed is more than he was entitled to under the law, such amount is properly reduced to the amount allowable, and there is disclosed a tax liability.

This Genius Business

By DeWitt Mackenzie

LONDON—My dictionary says "the genius that has won the largest and most enduring success has been joined with tireless industry and painstaking."

One frequently hears people remark about some great man: "Oh, he's a genius; he's born that way; he can't help doing big things."

I have been checking up on a few of the geniuses I encounter here in England, and I find that without exception they are indefatigable workers who have the knack of utilising all their time to advantage. They are folk who don't know what an eight-hour day is.

Take for example Edgar Wallace, one of the most prolific writers the world has ever known, and one of the most successful. Wallace delves into many things but he is perhaps best known for his detective novels and plays. He has written more than 140 books in recent years.

Wallace divides his working time into "long days" and "short days," alternating between the two. His long days are 21 hours his short days are about 12.

And yet I have heard clever, but not particularly successful, writers says enviously of Wallace: "Oh, it rolls off him like water off a duck." They made that an apology for their own lack of success. The real answer to their failures is not lack of ability but lack of work.

Sir Austen Chamberlain, the noted statesman whose name is written large in history, told me while he was foreign secretary that he worked 18 hours a day six days a week. Incidentally, Sir Austen takes no exercise; he says he doesn't feel the need of it.

Leaders like Premier Ramsey MacDonald, and ex-Premiers Stanley Baldwin and David Lloyd George, are up with the larks in the morning, and don't quit work until late at night. Winston Churchill, statesman, soldier, author and artist, is busy every minute of his long days.

H. G. Wells is tireless, as are Sir Philip Gibbs, outstanding author, and Viscountess Rhondda, among the world's notable business women.

The Prince of Wales is called the most popular prince of his time. His popularity is due, in no small degree, to the fact that he is a hard and willing worker, and is always at the call of his people.

Little Talks on Thrift

Thrift An Antidote For Crime, Straus Contends

A man who has had wide experience in dealing with criminal practices of all types was recently quoted as saying that "one of the rarest specimens in the world is a criminal who is thrifty and I think 99 per cent of the people who are thrifty never become entangled with the criminal law."

This is indeed a timely observation when so much thought is being given to the subject of crime in America.

Opinions may differ as to the cause of the present widespread practice of crime and opinions likewise will differ as to the remedies. It is not the purpose of this article to set forth the assumption that thrift is a cure-all for this great social disease. There is, in fact, no single specific, but thrift surely is among the remedies that might be offered as helpful.

There may be many individual exceptions to the rule but in the vast majority of cases a man who really is thrifty does not indulge in criminal practices. By thrift we do not mean merely getting ahead financially; we mean the thrift of creditable personal progress and honest success. The average man of thrift has learned the lesson that rightful progress comes only through slow, steady accumulation of material resources, the sensible employment of time and energy and a constant effort at self improvement. Into such a plan of progress, criminal practices are not likely to intrude.

It also is to be remembered that many a criminal took his first downward step when driven to desperation through extravagant habits. Any jurist of experience will tell you that a considerable percentage of the criminal cases brought before him may be included in this classification.

It cannot be said that thrift is the only cure for crime. Yet, if every person in this country above the age of childhood were to become habitually thrifty it would seem a safe statement to make that under such conditions there would be far less crimes in the United States than is the case today.—By S. W. Straus, president American Society for Thrift.

OBITUARY

Winslow T. Williams

Winslow Tracy Williams, 67, a former Norwich resident and prominently identified with its industrial life for many years as head of the Yantic Woolen company, died in New York city Tuesday, according to word received here Tuesday evening by telephone. No details concerning his death were learned, but it is known he has been in declining health for some time. The news will come as a distinct shock to his many friends in Norwich and hereabout.

Mr. Williams was born in Norwich, Jan. 29, 1863, the son of E. Winslow and Lydia Marvin McNulty Williams, and was prepared for Yale university at Norwich Free Academy. He was in the junior year at Yale when a brother died and he left college to come home and assist in the mills. He began at the bottom and learned every detail of the business and upon the death of his father succeeded him in the position of secretary and treasurer of the Yantic Woolen company, of which he later became president. He was also president of the Ardmore company, the Yantic's successor.

WINSLOW T. WILLIAMS

In business life Mr. Williams had been one of the prominent men of Norwich, being one of the leading woolen manufacturers in eastern Connecticut, as had been his father and grandfather, Capt. Erastus Williams, before him, the interests of the Yantic mills having been in the hands of the Williams family for three generations. The original mills were constructed in 1822 and destroyed by fire in 1865, but his father rebuilt them the same year.

During his busy career Mr. Williams found time to take part in public affairs and participated in various civic activities. His political relation was with the republicans and in 1900 he was chosen a presidential elector for the convention that nominated William McKinley for the presidency.

Socially Mr. Williams was a member of the Yale club of New York, the Union club of Boston, the Norwich club and the Society of Colonial Wars of Connecticut. His religious membership was with Grace Episcopal church, Yantic, while here, toward which he was a liberal contributor and served as a senior deacon of the same. He was also a director of the Chelsea Savings bank of Norwich. He was an incorporator of Norwich Free Academy.

Mr. Williams was married in New York Jan. 17, 1889, to Florence Prentice of that city.

Mr. Williams and his family resided at "Rockclyffe" at Yantic, one of the most elegant residences in Norwich when it was built over 50 years ago. At the time of the 250th anniversary of the founding of Norwich, which was celebrated in 1909, President William H. Taft was entertained at "Rockclyffe" by Mr. and Mrs. Williams. The mansion was occupied up to about the middle of 1918 as the residence of the family while he was president of the Yantic Woolen company. In March, 1918, Mr. Williams transfered his holdings in Yantic to the Kaplan Bros of New York. After the sale of the property the Williams family moved to New York and has since resided there. He is survived by his wife and a son.

It will be recalled by many that Mr. Williams was one of the first persons in Norwich to purchase and drive an automobile here.

Mrs. Meyer Kashkin.

Mrs. Henna Kashkin, 61, widow of Myer Kashkin, died Tuesday morning at the home of her son, Philip Kashkin, in Colchester, where she had been visiting for the past week. Her home was in Brooklyn, N. Y. Later in the morning the body was taken to Hartford by automobile cortege by Undertaker C. A. Gager, relatives and friends accompanying, and placed aboard the 1.20 o'clock train for Brooklyn, N. Y. Burial is to be in Mt. Carmel cemetery in Brooklyn.

LIQUOR EVIDENCE WOULDN'T BURN SO JURY ACQUITS JEWETT CITY WOMAN

Liquor evidence that wouldn't burn when the jury applied that test to it Tuesday in the superior court criminal session at New London resulted in a verdict of not guilty for Mrs. Nellie Walenda of Jewett City, who was on trial on charges of sale of a pint of liquor on Oct. 21 and of reputation.

Thomas M. Shields, who was counsel for Mrs. Walenda, and Prosecuting Attorney Arthur M. Brown were told after the trial that this was the deciding point with the jury, when a match was applied in the jury room to the liquid from the bottle that was in evidence. The two attorneys, who were interested in the trial, learned of this when it was told to County Investigator William Lewis by Mr. Geer, one of the jurors in the case.

The trial of Mrs. Walenda, against whom there were two counts, was begun about noon. When the principal witness for the state, W. Eustis, employe of a Bridgeport detective agency, was called upon to identify Mrs. Walenda in the court room, it appeared that Attorney Shields had tried to "pull a fast one" on the Bridgeport man, for the woman whom he had sitting with him at the lawyers' table as if she were the defendant in the case was not Mrs. Walenda, but somebody of very similar appearance. The detective, however, did not make the mistake of identifying the wrong woman, but picked out Mrs. Walenda where she sat in another place in the court room.

Testimony for the state was presented first by Operator Eustis, who said he went once to Mrs. Walenda's place in Jewett City with a man named Chartier, where both bought beer and whiskey. A week later, which was on Oct. 21, he went with Gray, he said, when they bought beer and whiskey and paid $1.50 for a pint bottle of whiskey.

The bottle was produced as an exhibit in the case, and County Investigator Lewis testified that it had been given to him on Oct. 22, by Detective Forest, that it showed 50 per cent alcohol by hydrometer test and he had marked this on the label on the bottle.

Judge C. L. Avery, who was presiding at the trial, sustained the contention of Attorney Shields against allowing the bottle to go to the jury with the investigator's figures on it and these were ordered stricken off.

When the case for the accused woman was taken up, Investigator Lewis gave the answer that he had found no liquor at the Walenda place when he made a search there at a later time.

Mrs. Walenda denied that either Eustis or a detective named Gray had been at her place, but said Chartier had been there with a punch board and tried to get her boy to take it. Joseph Walenda, her stepson, her son Peter, and Peter's wife and her husband all denied that the detectives ever had been in the Walenda house.

Recalled to the stand by State Attorney Brown, the detective, Eustis, said that Mrs. Walenda had said to him at the Jewett City court hearing, "You didn't talk so funny when you were up at the house." Investigator Lewis said he heard her say this, but when she was recalled to the stand she denied that she had said any such thing.

This closed the testimony and after the arguments had been made by State Attorney Brown and Attorney Shields, Judge Avery charged the jury which brought in a verdict of "not guilty" after considering the case about half an hour.

When the verdict was pronounced, Mrs. Walenda, who understands little English, went over and sat with the sheriff as if she expected to join the others whom she had seen follow that procedure during the day when they entered pleas of guilty, but her counsel quickly explained to her that she was free to leave the court room.

GAVE HEARINGS TO MOTOR VEHICLE OPERATORS

A half dozen automobile drivers appeared for hearings Tuesday morning before Philip E Devnew, an inspector of the state motor vehicle department, in the rooms of the court of common pleas in this city. Three Danielson residents were summoned for hearings in order to determine which one should furnish owner's insurance, but only two appeared. Decision in the case was reserved by the inspector.

The evidence showed that Elmer Charles Rice, of No. 82 Maple street, Danielson, borrowed a used car from a second-hand automobile dealer, Ray Pellett of Main street, Danielson. The second-hand dealer lent the car with the understanding that Rice was to register it. Rice, it is said, went to Nathan Blumenthal of No. 181 Main street, Danielson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Meyer Blumenthal of this city, and borrowed dealers' markers from Blumenthal.

Rice, driving the borrowed machine, struck and injured a child in Danielson. There is however, controversial evidence as to whether Rice was using Blumenthal's registration numbers on the borrowed machine at the time of the accident. In Danielson town court Blumenthal obtained a nolle on a charge of lending registration numbers.

Blumenthal maintained that Rice struck the child before he placed the borrowed numbers on the borrowed machine. State police evidence showed that dealers' numbers were on the machine at the time of the accident. The hearing was to determine whether Blumenthal or Pellett shall furnish owner's insurance. Both carry insurance at the present time.

Other hearings were disposed of as follows:

Moses Widrowitz, No. 881 West Main street, city; charge, not having an operator's license; allowed to keep his license.

JAIL SENTENCE FOR TWO BOZRAH BURGLARS

Elmer Gallup, 35, was sent to jail for four months, Stanley Martin, 23, for two months when they pleaded guilty in the superior court at New London before Judge C. L. Avery Tuesday morning to the charge of statutory burglary. They are both residents of Bozrah. It was pointed out by State Attorney Arthur M. Brown that the two, living in the same boarding house, planned and robbed the store of Israel Botnick of Bozrah of provisions and tobacco.

It was pointed out by Acting Public Defender E. W. Perkins that Gallup has a wife and three children and that Martin has a wife and one child and that due to unemployment they succumbed to the temptation to secure food for their families by stealing.

Man and Woman Sentenced

Mrs. Loretta Beebe Loper and Vincent G. Navratil, both of New London, were brought into court on bench warrants. The woman was sent to jail for four months and the man for 30 days.

The couple was arrested in Waterford by the Groton state police who found them living together in a cottage. In presenting the cases State Attorney Brown said that Mrs. Loper was born in Providence, lived in Clinton and New Haven and ran away after which she was twice committed to the House of Good Shepherd. He said she married Jerry Loper about four years ago and lived with him only five weeks after which she was arrested in Montville on an adultery charge in 1928 and in New London on a charge of lacivious carriage in 1929.

Her escapades in this section reached a climax a few months ago when Carles Gore, a coast guardsman, committed suicide as the means of ending a love affair with Mrs. Loper. Urging that Mrs. Loper be put away for the protection of society, States Attorney Brown requested that she be given a full year in jail.

Attorney Edward Perkins was appointed public defender in the cases and entered a plea in behalf of his clients. He characterized Mrs. Loper as a victim of circumstances and said that Navrati and Mrs. Loper were in love with one another and would get married if it were possible.

In presenting this case State Attorney Brown stated that the sailors had come to town and filled themselves with liquor, after which they became mischief bent. He said he did not believe they meant to wreck a train and for that reason had simply charged them with breach of the peace. Attorney J. James Floyd represented the accused and asked for leniency, particularly for Angelo, whom he said was acting under the influence of an older and more experienced man.

REPORTED IN COLCHESTER ON WASHINGTON MEETING

Mrs. Joseph Agranovitch of Colchester, who was one of the delegates from the Bozrah section of the National Council of Jewish Women to go to Washington to attend the fifth national council of the cause and cure of war, made a report of the Washington meeting before the Colchester League of Women Voters.

The national council had an attendance of 554 delegates, said Mrs. Agranovitch in her report, these representing eleven of the largest women's organizations in the country, with a membership of 15 million women.

Miss Henrietta Roelof delivered the welcoming address to four distinguished foreign delegates who brought greetings from their respective countries: Miss Marie Louise Puech, France; Frau Dorothea Von Velson, Germany; Miss Kathleen D. Courtney, Great Britain, and Mrs. Taume Gauntlett, Japan, an organizer and director of Japan's Women's Peace association. She brought with her 180,000 signatures of Japanese women which she was going to take to London, begging the naval conference for reduction in armament.

On the following day a splendid banquet was given to the delegates and guests of the convention. The principal speaker of the evening was Gen. Jan Christian Smutts, former prime minister, South African Union, and member of Lloyd George's war cabinet.

The subject was, "Ten Years March toward Peace." He said the Paris pact is the most spectacular advance yet made toward peace. It does not provide the machinery of peace, but symbolizes the mentality of the people. It ostracizes war and binds nations to peaceful means of settling disputes. He hoped that the time is not far distant when the world court will be the tribunal for every civilized nation in the world and that gradually the battlefield is giving way to the conference table and war is yielding to debate as a means of settling differences. "If this country ever changes its attitude on international questions it will not be for selfish interest, but in an attitude of unselfishness," he said, "I trust America." After which there was great applause.

The following day the delegates separated into four groups, which resulted in a nine-point peace program, selected from those submitted by the four discussion groups, which was proposed to the national committee. The program is as follows: Closer relationship between the United States and the league of nations; accession by the United States to the world court; ratification of the Pan-American arbitration treaties; support of the United States senate for any armament reduction agreement reached by the five powers naval conference at London; establishment of machinery to make the Kellogg pact more effective; solution of the economic problems leading to war, problems of minorities, problems of mandates, and the establishment of peace education in schools to counteract military propaganda.

The conference sessions were suspended for three hours while Mrs. Catt and the presidents of the eleven organizations of the national committee and other members carried to President Hoover the resolution in which the women urged the United States accession to the world court. Several thousand similar resolutions passed at meetings all over the country were taken to the United States senate by the delegates.

The national committee officers are as follows: Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, chairman; Mrs. Josephine Shain, administrative chairman; Miss Ruth Morgan, first vice president; Miss Henrietta Roelof, second vice president; Mrs. E. H. Silverthorn, third vice president; Helen Livingston, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Ben Hooper, recording secretary; Mrs. Edgerton Parsons, treasurer. Mrs. Parsons went to London to bring a resolution to the naval conference.

Mrs. Agranowitch finished the report with a plea to all present to muster all their strength, ardor, idealism and all the forces of mankind to abolish war. She also said: "Let us create an atmosphere of international peace and friendship wherever we go, for war is brutal and is a detriment to society and to humanity, mentally, physically and economically. Contribute all you can, you cannot give a better contribution to humanity today."

MUMMIFIED WHEAT GROWTH IS DENIED BY INVESTIGATOR

MANHATTAN, Kas. (AP) — Reports that mummified Egyptian wheat has been made to sprout are refuted by Prof. L. E. Melchers, Kansas State Agricultural college botanist.

Supposedly mumified wheat, Professor Melchers claims, is not genuine. He says fake seed is colored, made to appear as mummified grain and sold as ancient wheat.

He spent two years in the Nile valley investigating plant diseases, and some wheat in his possession was taken from pyramids and is believed to be 5,000 years old. Under slight pressure this grain turns to red dust.

FRANK B. YORK NAMED PRESIDENT OF BROOKLYN CLUB; ROBINSON, MANAGER

By BRIAN BELL

Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Feb. 4—(AP)—The Brooklyn National league baseball club has a new president and keeps its old manager.

Frank B. York was named today as president for a term of two years and Wilbert Robinson, for 16 years manager of the team, was re-engaged in that capacity under a two year contract.

For three years Robinson has been president, manager and a member of the board of directors. Today he resigned as president and as director, York immediately assuming the presidency. The director to take Robinson's place will be named by Joseph A. Gilleaudeau, secretary and a member of the present board of directors, who represents the heirs of the late Charles H. Ebbetts.

York, the new president, is attorney for S. W. McKeever, vice-president and treasurer, who has been opposed to the retention of Robinson as manager. A vacancy on the board of directors which has remained unfilled on account of the failure of the two factions to agree will be filled by a man to be named by John A. Heydler, president of the National league.

When the board is recruited to its full strength, a meeting will be called by Heydler and the other officials of the club will be elected.

"It's all right," was Robinson's comment after the announcement of the settlement. Mr. McKeever and Mr. Gilleaudeau were content to let the statement of the agreement, made by Mr. Heydler, speak for them, declining to amplify it in any particular. Representatives of both warring baseball factions, however, seemed relieved that an agreement had been reached.

For hours the presidents of the other clubs talked behind closed doors, all representatives of Brooklyn having retired for the league to discuss the matter and find an answer. The other club owners stipulated before they undertook the problem that their finding must be binding on McKeever and York on one side and Gilleaudeau and Robinson on the other. Late in the afternoon the sound of applause came from the meeting room and a brief announcement was made that the "Brooklyn situation has been settled." No details were available for another hour.

When Robinson's three year contract as manager expired after the 1929 season, McKeever vigorously opposed its renewal. The Ebbets heirs, representing 50 per cent of the stock of the club, just as emphatically supported the veteran baseball general. There the matter rested for months with "Robby" holding over as president but not recognized by 50 per cent of the club owners as manager. When the Brooklyn club roster was published, no manager's name was listed.

Manager Robinson will return today to his plantation at Dover Hall, Ga., going to Clearwater, Fla., later for the opening of the spring training season, February 22.

The Brooklyn peace agreement was the principal business of the meeting. The approval of the schedule was only a formality and Barney Dreyfuss was re-elected vice president without opposition.

A proposal of Emil E. Fuchs, president of the Boston club, that the rules be changed to permit umpires to eject players from games for a specified number of innings, instead of the duration of the game, something on the order of the penalties inflicted in hockey, was referred to the rules committee.

Three new umpires were named, Mike R. Donohue, St. Louis, Mo., promoted from the Texas league; Robert M. Clarke, Washington, D. C., from the International league; and Ted McGrew, Indianapolis, from the American association. They will succeed Bob Hart, Eddie McLaughlin and Barry McCormick. Nine umpires were renamed, William J. Klem, Charles Rigler, Ernest C. Quigley, Charles B. Moran, Charles Pfirman, John E. Reardon, Louis D. Jorda, Albert D. Stark and George Magerkurth.

HUNTER HAS CLOSE CALL IN INDOOR TENNIS

NEW YORK, Feb. 4—(AP)—The national indoor tennis championship came close to losing its outstanding favorite and drawing card today as Frank Hunter, American second ranking star, was hard pressed by Frank Bonneau, a comparatively obscure New York southpaw.

Hunter finally won by scores of 6-4, 3-6, 7-5, to reach the quarter final round but he needed all his famous fighting fire to pull through.

Using the same weapons with which Jean Borotra, the bounding Basque, turned back Hunter in the final of last year's tourney—the volley and smash—Bonneau located a weakness in the hard-driving Hunter's tennis armor and pounded it throughout the match. Occasionally Hunter's slugging forehand passed him cleanly but fully as often Bonneau laced into the ball for smashing overhead kills.

Hunter's next opponent will be Eugene McCauliff, lanky ex-Fordham stylist.

All of Hunter's leading rivals came through in far easier fashion, winning in straight sets.

ST. GODDARD INCREASES LEAD IN DOG DERBY

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 4—(AP)—Emile St. Goddard, youthful Manitoba musher, increased his lead over six rivals on the second lap of the annual Ottawa International Dog Derby today.

Covering the course of 33 1-3 miles in two hours, 40 minutes, 20 seconds, St. Goddard now leads his closest rival, Earl Brydges, Cranberry Portage, Man., by 20 minutes, 25 seconds in total elapsed time, one minute and eight seconds behind Brydges.

The final lap of 33 1-3 miles will be run tomorrow. First place carries with it a cash award of $1,000 and possession of the Chateau Laurier challenge cup.

AUSTRIAN YOUTH LOOMS AS FIGURE SKATING CHAMPION

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(AP)—A curly black haired Austrian youth dipped, swerved and glided over the glass-like Ice Club rink today to stand on the threshold of his first world's fancy skating championship.

The youth is Karl Shafer, university student and king of Austrian fancy skaters for four years. Pitted against seven of the outstanding figure skaters of four nations, Shafer skimmed over the silvery ice in a manner that augured well for his final standing. The championship will be decided tomorrow night when the aspirants for the title complete their competition in a free skating exhibition on the Madison Square Garden ice.

Shafer was runner-up to Gillis Grafstrom of Sweden at Vienna last year, but with the Swedish star not defending his title the young Austrian skater has been made the favorite. Called upon today to cut some of the most difficult school figures known to the sport, Shafer traced and retraced the patterns almost faultlessly. His execution of the intricate loop change loop and three change three figures brought forth much applause from the skating experts crowded about the rink.

Although no points were announced, skating experts placed Roger Turner, the 28-year-old Boston lawyer, a close second to the Austrian star. Turner, who won the national championship last year, went through the series of six school figures today in a manner that strengthened his title chances. The pair, however, have yet to meet in the free skating—a style in which Shafer is considered at his best.

Switzerland put in its bid for the title with Dr. George Gautschi, holder of the Swiss title for five years, who skated in the unorthodox costume of plus-four knickers and a white sweater.

Carrying the colors of Canada into the contest was the brilliant Montgomery Wilson of Toronto, holder of the Canadian and North American titles. Wilson also won the North American doubles with his sister, Mrs. Constance Wilson Samuel, who is entered in the women's competition.

Paired with Shafer as the chief threat of Europe was Ludwig Wrede, also of Vienna. Wrede placed third in 1929 to Shafer and Grafstrom. Completing the United States delegation was a trio of youths, new to international competition—Lester Madden of Boston and W. Nagle and Gail Borden 2nd of New York.

INDOOR TRACK SEASON IS OVER LOCALLY

The Academy indoor track meets at the state armory have probably ended for this season. Coach Johnny Murphy of the local squad, after giving the sport a firm foundation with two successful meets, is finding it hard to get opponents for the Wildcat runners and Norwich will see no more of their high school athletes until the outdoor season.

The team or parts of it will, however, take part in many of the leading meets of the east, including the Boston A. A. games, Feb. 15, and probably the Millrose games Saturday, in addition to meets at Hartford and New Haven. The mile relay team, considered one of the best in New England scholastic circles and in which event the Red and White did win the New England championship in 1929, has been entered in the Boston games.

Although only two meets have been held, the Academy captain, Sam Berkman, has already qualified for his 1930 track letter, having totaled 22 3-4 points, 14 3-4 against Suffield prep and 8 against Stonington. He was high scorer of the Suffield meet and tied with two other Academy men, Mahoney and Yakabowski, for that honor in last Saturday's tilt with Stonington. Berkman also earns the distinction of being the first N. F. A. student to qualify for his "N" in the present year.

NAT. INDOOR TRACK MEET TO BE HELD AT GARDEN

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(AP)—The National indoor track and field championships awarded to Atlantic City by the annual meeting of the Amateur Athletic union will be held instead in Madison Square Garden here March 18, Dan Ferris, secretary of the union, announced today.

Location of the annual indoor classic, originally scheduled for the huge auditorium in the New Jersey resort city, was changed because of failure of Atlantic City officers to fulfill the terms of agreement. With one or two exceptions the indoor championships have been held in Madison Square Garden annually since 1906.

Ferris said the A. A. U. expects one of the finest entry lists in track history, due to the date of the games, which follow the intercollegiate championships and most of the important meets at the tail end of the indoor season.

Y SENIORS PLAY AT NORWALK THIS EVENING

Faced with the possibility of extinction in the state Y league race, the local Seniors go to Norwalk tonight to tackle the Yers of that place. At present the Seniors are in fourth place but by winning two scheduled games this week, tonight's and one with Greenwich here Saturday, they can climb to second position. Losing both these games, on the other hand, will practically eliminate the Demarest-coached team from the race.

The local team is expected to be composed of Les Pingree at center, Tommy Lynch or Ray Yerrington and Aubrey Brown at forwards and Capt. Roland Harris and Enos Eccleston at guards. Harris and Pingree shifted positions for last Saturday's Sub Base game and the change worked out successfully.

This will be the first game between these teams. A game was scheduled earlier in the season but was postponed.

The Connecticut Stars hit for a total pinfall of 3,082 pins in the five games, for an average of 616.2 per game, while the City Stars had total of 2,912, an average per game of 582.2. The individuals making up the Connecticut All Stars made splendid showings. The scores accumulated by the All Stars in the first three games would have won the recent National duckpin tournament at Richmond, Va.

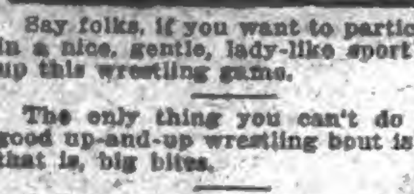
Notre Dame Wins Close Game

MILWAUKEE, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Notre Dame defeated Marquette, 20 to 18, in a closely contested basketball game here tonight. After a listless first half, both teams perked up and the outcome was in doubt until two minutes before the end, when De Cooke made a long shot from the side. The brilliant offense of Notre Dame featured the game.



Say folks, if you want to participate in a nice, gentle, lady-like sport take up this wrestling game.

The only thing you can't do in a good up-and-up wrestling bout is bite, that is, big bites.

To be a good wrestler nowadays you got to be a combination of an eel, an India rubber ball, Houdini and a goat.

In the old days if you had a bull-neck, hands like a bunch of bananas, barrel legs and knotted muscles, you could be a wrestler. But today is different. You've got to be a good half-back and tackler to get by.

Now take this boy, Sonnenberg. If he had come along about 20 years ago he wouldn't have been so hot, football hadn't merged with wrestling in those days.

Today the fashion is to make a flying tackle, throw him for a five-yard loss and repeat. When you see he's weakening a little pretend you're a goat and butt him a coupla times in the tummy.

If this don't get him just grab hold of him, pick him up and hold him over your head and then walk out from under. Of course you can vary this method by tossing him out into the laps of the newspapermen if you feel a bit playful.

The idea is to take all the bounding qualities out of your opponent. When you get him so he don't bound off the floor when you drop him then you can start to wrestle. The wrestling part of the game is just the finishing touches and a matter of tradition of a grand old sport.

Remember the old days when it was called "rassling"; you saw two heaps of human blubber mount into the ring and paw at each other for a while and then one would drop to the floor and the other would try to put him on his back?

Remember how they'd squeal when they got their ears twisted and the faces they'd make? Remember how you used to squirm in your seat when you heard the old bones creak from a toe hold? It was slower than it is today but you got your thrills just the same.

Today it's a lot faster action because they've introduced this tackle and heave 'em stuff. Yes, folks, wrestling is quite a gentle sport—gentle for those who watch it.

Oh wrestling, where is thy wrestle?

MANAGER SULLIVAN THROWS MUCH LIGHT ON CONTROVERSY

Sporting Editor: In regards to the letter concerning the calling-off of a game between the Shyma club and the Army-Navy basketball teams I, as manager of the Shyma five, wish to state that there was no game called off as I did not even know that such a team existed until yesterday morning. He said that on Jan. 21, I begged him to pick up a team to play us on Feb. 4. Well, I wish to state that it was just the opposite, that a certain man came up to me and asked if I had any open dates and I told him yes, we had Feb. 4, but did not promise him a game then or any other time.

He also stated that, by defeating my team he would never get that so-called rep but that is just what we are trying to do, and we would certainly never get it by defeating that team that he proposed to put out on the floor, who were then to be known as the Masked Marvels, although I notice that in yesterday's paper he changed the name of his club. I notice that he claimed that I am only a figure-head or the "goat" of the board of strategy. I wish to state that no matter what they think I am not afraid to sign my name as manager of the Shyma basketball team, a thing which was noted in his letter, he signing only as manager of the Army-Navy basketball team. What was the matter with your name? Are you afraid to make it known to the fans of this section of the state?

He also stated that the players had an attack of cold feet. I would like to say that the players have nothing to say about the teams they are going to play, that they would like nothing better than to play your team or any other team in this section of the state.

In closing I wish to state that if the manager would only sign his name to his letters in the future I might be able to try to work on an arrangement of a game with that team of so-called state champions, who do all their playing on the sporting page, instead of the basketball floor.

Thanking you for the space,

I remain,

PAT SULLIVAN,

Manager Shyma Basketball Team.

NEW LINEUP FOR AGGIE AGAINST HOLY CROSS TONIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Feb. 4—The Connecticut Aggie basketball five may have a new lineup for the game with Holy Cross at Hawley armory, Wednesday night. Although the teamwork of the combination used in the last few contests has been better than any other used, the five has failed to make good on scoring opportunities and may be changed. Darrow may replace Lamoureux and Wilson may be used at center or guard.

The Aggie-Holy Cross game is expected to be fast and flashy and may resemble the contest of a year ago when the Worcester team defeated Connecticut at Storrs by one point, the only quintet to take the Aggie five on the home court in several years.

The Holy Cross five, crippled by the loss of Captain Clancey, is again in smooth form under his leadership. Stokes, one of the outstanding players in the Worcester quintet, was a member of the Naugatuck team which won the national championship, and was also elected a member of the All-American high school quintet at that time. Maffeo, a teammate of Stokes, was a member of the Fitchburg, Mass., high school team which also won the national title.

On the Connecticut team, the play of Captain Ryan and Leo Duffy, of Hartford, has been outstanding to date. Their passing and ball-handling have been as good if not better this season than at any other time in their varsity career. Neither of these two players, however, has scored as many points as in other years, and it is expected that their average will be raised in the remaining games on the Aggie schedule.

Soccer Challenge

The Jewett City Soccer team has been reorganized and is without a game for this coming Sunday.

This challenge is open to any team in the Eastern Connecticut league for a game at the challengers' home grounds.

The Jewett City boys would like to hear from the J. B. Martin's team for that return game at Taftville.

If this challenge is accepted please answer through this paper.

PLAINFIELD PROS FACE FAST QUINTET IN SENECA INDIANS THIS EVENING

Tonight's Lineups

Plainfield		Seneca Indians
Brusso, lf	lf	Jamerson
Kasper, rf	rf	Shindler
Conway, c	c	Kennedy
Williams, lg	lg	Pierce
Bernot, rg	rg	Kenjockety

Shades of Uncas. The Indians invade Eastern Connecticut tonight looking for scalps and especially the scalps of the Plainfield Pros. The scene of this battle between the whites and the redskins will be at the Plainfield Community house and the tribe that comes to give battle will be the Senecas. In place of tomahawks and scalping knifes these sons of the Iroquois measure their skill by their ability to drop a basketball through a hoop.

To say that the Seneca Indians are one of the fastest basketball teams to appear on the Plainfield court this season is putting it very mildly. The fact is that they are one of the fastest basketball combinations in America, having beaten some of the strongest clubs in the basketball leagues of the country. On the Seneca roster appear names well known to basketball followers as players with varsity teams of the various Indian schools in the country. Each player is an Indian chief in his own right, his ancestors having trod the soil of America long before the first white man set foot on it.

The Indians combine with their basketball an entertainment of Indian novelties, including war dances, ceremonials and other native pastimes. The Seneca Indians are on a two weeks' tour of the eastern basketball courts before leaving for a tour of the Pacific coast.

The Plainfield Pros realizing that they are pitted against the strongest team of the season have put in some stiff practice sessions and are all set to defend their scalps in a determined fight. Manager Salisbury is depending on the same team that downed Olson's Swedes and the Boston Whirlwinds in spectacular contests. There will be no increase in the price of admission.

There will be a fast preliminary game between the Buddies and the Wauregan Town team which should provide plenty of interest for the local fans.

The preliminary goes on at 7:45 and the main attraction at 9 after which there will be the usual dancing.

AMERICANS EVEN UP SERIES WITH RANGERS

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(AP)—For the second time in two years the New York Americans ended their season's National Hockey league rivalry with the New York Rangers on even terms, taking the final game tonight 5 to 3. It gave the teams two victories apiece for the year.

A brilliant defense, coupled with quick effective thrusts of their light and fast forwards won the game for the Americans and avenged the disputed 4-3 triumph of the Rangers a week ago. Weakened by the loss of Ching Johnson, the Ranger defense was inferior.

Two penalties in the closing minutes of the final period turned the tide against the Rangers after they had fought their way from behind to a 3-3 tie. With two Blue Coats off the ice, the Americans staged a four-man attack that brought the winning goal from McVeigh's stick in 18:30, then 33 seconds later Simpson passed to Himes for another counter.

The rest of the game was played on even terms, with the Americans gaining a one-goal margin in the first period and holding it until early in the third. It was lightning fast and hard fought from start to finish. Roy Worters, American goalie and one of the most brilliant stars, received a leg injury just before the end of the second period but was able to continue after the intermission.

BRUINS TAKE FURIOUS GAME FROM COUGARS

BOSTON, Feb. 4.—(AP)—The Boston Bruins took a wild and furious hockey game from the Detroit Cougars by a 3 to 1 score, here tonight, and then entertained 12,000 excited spectators with one of the most thrilling fist battles ever staged in the National league.

The players were quitting the ice when Eddie Shore, burly Boston defense player, and aggressive Rusty Hughes of the Cougars exchanged right-handed swings. After the referee separated them, Shore aimed several blows at Ebbie Goodfellow, a Detroit forward, and when Referee George Mallinson interfered, the Boston player punched at him.

This battle was traced back to a skirmish that Shore and Hughes staged in the second period. The officials prevented them from exchanging blows then by giving Hughes a major penalty and Shore a minor.

DEVITO TAKES TWO FALLS FROM GANSON

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Joe DeVito, 207, finished off Jack Ganson, 207, two falls out of three in the main bout on the Arena professional card here tonight.

DeVito secured the first fall in 27 minutes with a wrist lock and the third and winning fall in 11 1-2 minutes with a counter scissors. Ganson took the second fall in 22 minutes.

The match was marked with plenty of real fighting business, and full of action from beginning to end.

Les Canadiens Beat Maroons

MONTREAL, Feb. 4.— (AP) —Les Canadiens of Montreal gained two points tonight in their race with Montreal's Maroons for the top of the international group of the National Hockey league by defeating Toronto 3 to 1.

The game was not exciting as Toronto depended principally on its "kid" front line and the more experienced Canadien regulars outplayed them consistently. The youngsters continued to show promise and made the first goal, but it took the Flying Frenchmen only 80 seconds to tie the count and four more minutes to go ahead.

BABY JOE GANS WINS DECISION OVER DIVODI

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Baby Joe Gans, Los Angeles Negro, won a decision from Andy Divodi of Brooklyn in a dull and uninteresting ten-round bout at the Broadway Arena tonight. Gans floored Divodi for a count of eight in the sixth round for the only spectacular action of an otherwise tame affair. Gans weighed 142 1-2; Divodi 147.

Johnny Indrisano, Boston welterweight, stopped Steve Gotch of Chicago in the seventh round of the ten-round semi-final. Indrisano made a punching bag out of the game midwesterser and the referee stopped the carnage after the end of the seventh round. Indrisano weighed 151; Gotch 153.

Buck Oliva of Brooklyn, 138, was dropped for short counts in the first and third rounds of a six-round bout with Phil Roselle of Baltimore, 137, but got up to carry the fight to his opponent and win the decision.

Fabre Wins 4th Lap

LOUISVILLE, Que., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Edouard Fabre, veteran marathon runner from Montreal, won his fourth straight lap in the 200-mile international snowshoe marathon today and held an apparently safe lead over the field.

Fabre covered the 26 miles from Three Rivers to Louisville in four hours, 30 minutes.

Reiselt Cuts Cochran's Lead

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Otto Reiselt of Philadelphia cut heavily into Welker Cochran's lead in their three-cushion billiard match today but the one-time 18.2 balkline champion from Hollywood still led tonight, 200 to 185.

Cochran won the afternoon block, 50 to 36 in 33 innings, but Reiselt came back with an 80 to 50 victory tonight in 35 innings to shave 30 points of the 45-point lead Cochran had piled up in the first three blocks. Cochran ha da high run of seven this afternoon and five tonight. Reiselt's best clusters were six and seven.

RISKO-CAMPOLO BOUT TO BE MIAMI SEMI-FINAL

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(AP)—The supporting card for Jack Sharkey's heavyweight tussle with Phil Scott, in Miami, Fla., February 27, was announced today at Madison Square Garden.

In accordance with general forecasts, Johnny Risko, the Cleveland baker boy, will meet Victorio Campolo, Argentine, in the 10-round semi-final. This match was ruled out for the Garden here by the New York state athletics commission, which decided that Johnny was "too small" for the South American.

Another 10-round match, previously announced brings together Tommy Loughran, former light heavyweight champion and Pierre Charles, of Belgium. The first 10-rounder pairs Jimmy Maloney, of Boston, and Moise Bouquillon, French heavyweight. George Cook, British veteran, opens the card in a six-round bout with Pam Bianchi of the Argentine.

BARGAIN SALES ATTRACT MODEL PLANE BUILDERS

With thousands of boys and girls turning to model airplane building, the Ryan division of the Detroit Aircraft corporation has inaugurated a policy of furnishing materials from which actual airplanes are constructed.

All odd sized pieces of wood and metal and those which do not pass rigid inspection are passed directly to youthful builders or are sold to companies furnishing construction material for models.

Each Saturday afternoon boys and girls assemble at the plant to drive hard bargains for 25 cents' worth of balsa wood or a square foot of airplane fabric.

In addition, advice is often given in solving some particularly knotty problem in the design of the rubber-band driven planes.

BIG ELECTRICAL OUTPUT SEEN FOR THE NEW YEAR

BOSTON (AP) — The National Electric Light association predicts that the output of electrical power in the United States in 1930 will exceed 100,000,000,000 kilowatt hours.

It states that the output in this country equals that of the rest of the world combined.

In area and population the United States is only about one-twentieth of the totals for the world.

CHICAGO, Feb. 4.— (AP) —Primo Carnera, the huge muscle man from Italy, was just a big bogey man and not a conspirator.

This was the consensus of the Illinois state athletic commission today after it had finished an investigation of Carnera's second knockout of Elzear Rioux, the French Canadian woodsman from Montreal, in the Chicago stadium punch bowl last Friday night. Rioux, the commission decided, was scared into a half faint at first sight of the tremendous bulk of the Italian giant and did not deliberately take a "dive."

Because of Rioux's unsatisfactory showing, however, he was fined $1,000 and suspended indefinitely. No action was taken against Carnera. He was held blameless and his purse of approximately $16,000 was ordered paid. Rioux's fine was deducted from his $3,000 purse.

After questioning all principals or their representatives, the commission concluded there was no evidence of a conspiracy, fraud or collusion. Dave Barry, referee of the abbreviated match, said he was of the impression that Rioux was so badly frightened even before he entered the ring, that he had no heart to fight. He said Rioux appeared to be rigid with fear when called to the center of the ring and that his muscles would not respond when the big Italian made his first furious rush at the clang of the gong.

The two judges, E. L. Cook and W. A. Batty, agreed that Rioux hit the floor five times without being punched hard enough to knock over a bantamweight. The punch that sent him to the floor, flat on his face, for the sixth and final count, was described by them as a well-directed smash to the chin. That final punch, the judges qualified, did not carry sufficient force to knock Rioux out.

Rioux and his manager, Charles Turner, appeared at the commission hearing, but Carnera and his manager, Leon Cie, were absent as the Italian heavyweight had an engagement at Newark, N. J., Thursday night. They left depositions, however, with the commission, each asserting belief that Rioux was merely the victim of fright.

Rioux, in his broken English, explained that he was "very nervous," and that he did not know what it was all about after Carnera landed his first haymaker.

Warren Brown, sports editor of the Chicago Herald and Examiner, who was subpoenaed because of a story criticising the match and the commission for sanctioning it, testified that while he could offer no evidence that Rioux had taken a "dive" that he did not consider Rioux a fit opponent for Carnera. He said Rioux had been knocked out six times in previous engagements and that the commission and Chicago stadium erred in permitting him to meet Carnera. Nate Lewis, matchmaker for the stadium, said that in his knowledge, Rioux had been stopped only twice.

Carnera, through his representative, pleaded he was anxious to make amends for the Rioux match and that he had agreed to appear at the stadium, March 7, and hoped that Otto Von Porat, the hard-hitting Norwegian heavyweight, would be his opponent.

SQUADRON MATES CONTEND FOR HIGH-FLIGHT RECORD

CORONADO, Cal.—(AP)—Two pilots of the 95th pyrsuit squadron at Rockwell field are waging a fight for supremacy of the upper air.

Lieut. Norman H. Ives established an unofficial record in December when he piloted his P-12 plane 30,000 feet above the earth with a full military load.

Less than a month later Lieut. George E. Price attained an altitude of 31,200 feet in the same type of plane with full military load. The temperature encountered at the absolute ceiling of the plane was 10 degrees below zero.

The work of the two pilots is part of intensive training at service and absolute ceilings.

All but nine states have enacted regulatory air legislation, and the majority have accepted federal standards.

MOST RAILROAD DOLLARS BROUGHT IN BY FREIGHT

NEW YORK (AP)—When the railroad companies check over the dollars, quarters and dimes that enter their tills in the course of a year, they find that freight transportation accounts for about two-thirds of the whole amount.

Ordinary motor gasoline may be loaded with Anti-Knock Chemicals, but the heavy non-burning ends remains to retard engine performance...

This combination of high anti-knock properties and volatility (the 400° F. End Point) makes the new Good Gulf Gasoline the equal of many premium gasolines and far superior to all non-premium fuels. There is but one better gas—GULF NO-NOX MOTOR FUEL AVIATION GRADE (374° F. End Point.)

CORONER E. G. McKAY HOLDS FARRELL RESPONSIBLE IN NEW LONDON DEATH

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 4.—Coroner Edward G. McKay of Norwich today rendered his finding in the case of Linwood (Peanuts) Farrell, colored, and but 17, who is at the New London county jail, charged with the murder of Jacob Yaheman, of 23 Shapley street. The coroner holds Farrell criminally responsible for the death of Yaheman and tomorrow the youthful Negro will be presented in the police court on a charge of first degree murder. Farrell, a youth of the type that works but seldom and is about the streets day and night, has admitted beating Yaheman and to robbing him of $16.15. Yaheman died two days after he was beaten by the Negro, death being due to a fractured skull, which injury was revealed by the autopsy. When Farrell was arrested two days after the murder, early the morning of Jan. 11, the Negro declared that Charles Williams, colored barge hand, was the actual slayer of Yaheman, but Farrell said he witnessed Williams attack and beat the Lithuanian. The investigation of the murder by Detective Sergeants Nelson Smith and John J. Cavanaugh finally threw suspicion on Farrell and not Williams as the actual slayer. Farrell broke down and confessed Saturday after a grilling of five hours. William (Rattlesnake Pete) Franklin and Ernest Johnson, both colored, who have been held as material witnesses since their arrest three weeks ago, will also be in court tomorrow so that they will be available when wanted as witnesses, when Farrell is tried for his life.

BASHARA HOLD-UP CLUE LOOKED PROMISING TUES.

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 4.—The police believe that they have obtained a clue in connection with the holding up at the point of pistols, of Joseph Bashara, proprietor of the meat market and grocery store at 133 Jefferson avenue, and his clerk, Michael Shasha, at the store, Saturday night, when checks and money of the aggregate amount of $456 were obtained.

Today, it was ascertained that a young man residing in New Rochelle, N. Y., an Italian, came to New London Saturday. He went to Groton and secured from a friend the use of the latter's automobile, a Chrysler coupe, stating that he desired to go to Albany and visit a sick relative. The New Rochelle man was loaned the car and was supposed to leave for Albany that day, but since the hold-up, it has been discovered that the auto, which carried New York state registration, the same as did the car used by the gunman, did not leave New London before Sunday morning and was seen but a few yards from the Jefferson avenue store a couple of hours prior to the hold-up. The woman who observed the gunmen leave the store was of the opinion that their auto was a Buick, but she could easily have been mistaken in her identification of the make. The gunman's car also carried New York state registration and her description of one of the gunman tallies minutely with that of the New Rochelle man.

It was ascertained today that the borrower of the Groton man's auto was seen in Groton Sunday forenoon, but the auto was not taken to the garage of the owner and where it was stored overnight has not been determined.

Today, Detective Sergeants Nelson Smith and John Cavanaugh had the owner of the Groton car go to police headquarters, where he was queried for possible clues. He furnished the officers with the name of the New Rochelle man. The officers also questioned the wife of the car owner for additional information. Not until 7:30 o'clock this evening did the officers end their work for the day.

COAST GUARDSMEN SEEK TO WIN SYMPATHY

The police are of the opinion that members of the Coast Guard, state pier, are adopting a novel scheme to gain the sympathy of the general public, also to cover up their misdeeds by asserting that injuries they sustain by reason of falling while intoxicated or through physical combat were administered to them by gang fighters. John Jones, colored, a member of the crew of the destroyer Erickson, was taken to Lawrence Memorial hospital yesterday morning following his reporting at the pier with numerous contusions and lacerations of the face and head. He declared that he was beaten by two men on Main street at 3:30 o'clock Tuesday morning and that he wandered about the city until between 8:30 and 9 when he was taken to the pier in a taxicab. When the police were informed of the alleged attack on Jones, Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith went to the hospital and after hearing the Negro's story and checking up on his movements of the night before, came to the conclusion that Jones is a collosal falsifier. Jones informed the sergeant that he went to the home of Mary Hernandes, 11 Pearl street Monday night and obtained liquor there. He said that when he left, about 4 o'clock, he was attacked and beaten by three men, at the corner of Green and Pearl streets, then wandering about the streets until 6 o'clock when he was advised by a police officer to hire a cab and return to the pier. This, he said, he did. The investigation by the officer brought out the fact that Jones did go to the Hernandes house, for he was there when Mrs. Hernandes returned home about 11 o'clock. Jones did not desire to return to the pier, so he was allowed to sleep on a couch. He left the house about 3 o'clock and 20 minutes later returned with a lacerated face and head, stating that he had been beaten up, but it is believed he fell into the street. Jones, who was absent without leave, did not wish to go back to the base, so he rested again on the couch. About 6:30 o'clock, Jessie Wilson, a Negress residing at the Pearl street house, went to State street and hired a cab for which Mrs. Hernandes paid the fare, so that Jones could go back to his boat. This information is also corroborated by Herbert Swan, the taxicab driver.

Edward Leland, also a coast guarder, has given out since the Jones declaration, that Sunday night when he was passing through Main street about 9 o'clock, he was attacked by two men, corner of Douglass street and forced into a lot where he was administered a beating and without cause. Leland's story is also discredited, for where the fight is said to have occurred is brilliantly lighted and many pedestrians pass the location at that hour. Sergeant Patrick Murphy also was in that vicinity between 9 and 10 o'clock and he neither saw one nor heard of any fight.

An automobile driven by Louis Richmann, 177 North Bank street, struck Kenneth Thompson, 6, of 2 Division street late this afternoon on Bank street, south of Division. The child was taken to the office of a physician where an examination revealed that he had sustained only minor injuries.

OLD LIGHTHOUSE USEFUL FOR MORE THAN 200 YEARS

The lighthouse at Morgan Point is over 200 years old and has kept many ships from going on the rocks in the fog at night, by an oil lamp that could be seen a long way off, by the captains of ships and steamers. The government owned it until about ten years ago, when it was sold to a private family from New York who spend their summers in one of the beautiful stone buildings called Noank Light. For over 50 years, the light was operated by Thaddeus Pecor, who filled the lamps every day. During the services of Mr. Pecor only one boat ever went on the rocks and no damage was done to that, for at high tide it was free again.

The reason the light was not lighted was Mr. Pecor was cleaning the cistern and the time went by so fast. After he had put away a fine supper, loading up his Scott pipe that held a half-paper of R. L. tobacco, he was sitting in front of the fireplace reading a paper, when around 10 o'clock he suddenly thought that the light was not lit. In a hurry the lighthouse keeper trimmed the wicks, touched a match to them and the old Noank lighthouse was lighted up for the rest of the night.

During his long services he never spent a night away from the lighthouse. He always was around when the government boat came in with supplies and oil. But even once in over 50 years to miss lighting the lights made the lighthouse keeper feel bad. Tears came to his eyes for the boat that went on the rocks, even though no damage was done.

Capt. Billie O'Day went to see Keeper Pecor and told him to dry the tears, for his boat, the Grey Goose, was all right and Captain O'Day was pleased to make the government man happy. So the coffee pot was put on, with Morgan Point sugar doughnuts.

In all, over 100,000 visitors looked over the Noank lighthouse during the time Mr. Pecor was in charge. The president of the Missouri & Pacific railroad came and saw the finest lighthouse along the coast to Maine, made from rocks 25 inches thick. Green vines run up along the sides and the date of the lighthouse is on the front. About ten acres of land about it belong to Uncle Sam. The young people used to go down to the Point in swimming every day until they tramped on flowers, running races about the lighthouse, so the keeper had to put a lock on the gate to keep them away. He felt sorry for them but orders are orders from the government.

One time a joke was played on the keeper. One night a young man dressed up like Uncle Sam walked in on the happy keeper and wanted to see the books to see if he had missed the lights, and things like that. But wise as an owl seeing in the day time, the keeper knew who it was. He cried out, "All right, Jim Larkin! Take them off! I know you!" So both had a good laugh. The old government man told some sea stories and war stories, for he fought in the Civil war and saw lots of action. It was after 2 o'clock when Jim Larkin, joker, left for home after spending a real evening.

The government officials had it in their minds to sell the lighthouse and put a light on the beacon where it stays lighted for 90 days. The sad news came from Washington, telling the 50-year service man, Pecor, that his services were not needed any more; the old stone lighthouse was sold to a New York party. It almost broke the keeper's heart. For many days he used to go down each day to see his old home, where he had lit the lamps so many times. It was not long after, that old Keeper Pecor passed away. He was faithful as any man in the government service and took pride in keeping the lighthouse neat and trim.

The old light has a record and history of its own; and the old salts today, when coming in from the fishing ground, will look and see if the lights are burning O. K.; also they can picture Thaddeus Pecor standing in the doorway in the summer time, looking over the salt waves to see if any ships are flying a distress sign. He was liked by everyone who knew him and when the Daughters of America gave the Civil war soldiers a time once a year, Mr. Pecor was there in the front row. People came from all over to hear him talk about the boys in blue. More than 500 heard him talk in Mechanics' hall in a way that would make tears roll down the listeners' cheeks.

The lighthouse on Morgan Point has seen about seven keepers since the cornerstone was laid, over 200 years ago. Today the lighthouse is fixed into a swell summer home. The red and white roses can be seen by the fishermen coming in after a hard day on the water and when the sun strikes them the roses sure are beautiful, like a red sunset over Holey's woods, so that you would think the sky was afire, and nowhere along this coast to France could a better spot be got for a lighthouse site. From the window in the second story one can see people walking on Block Island on clear days, with a field glass.

TO MY FRIENDS, THE PUBLIC OF NORWICH,—

I will, in all probability, not have a better opportunity to express myself than through the picture "SALLY" now playing at Warner Brothers' PALACE THEATRE.

Never in all my years as manager of legitimate, musical or cinema productions have I seen a presentation to equal "SALLY".

In every detail it far surpasses the average photo play.

As a vehicle for Miss Marilyn Miller it supplies every advantage to enhance her vivid personality and sparkling unique beauty.

Having played the part in the N. Y. legitimate production for two years, Miss Miller is finished to the finest point!

The coloring, photographic beauty and tuneful airs, to my mind, make as a whole a most attractive combination, and I sincerely hope the public of Norwich will avail itself of the opportunity to see this offering which we are showing all week at the regular Palace Prices.

Cordially and Truly Yours
R. B. HAMILTON

The new Chrysler-built De Soto Straight Eight, offered at a base price of $965 (f.o.b. Detroit), is proving the dominant value in the field of low-priced cars. Neither America nor Europe ever before produced so fine an eight at so low a price. It was the sensation of the New York Automobile Show. In performance that results from serene, smooth power delivered by a superbly-designed engine—in distinction of design, beauty of appointments and riding comfort—the De Soto Straight Eight possesses an even greater margin of superiority than that which made its triumphant companion car, the De Soto Six, the largest-selling first-year car in the history of the industry.

PRICES OF STOCKS GENERALLY AT HIGHEST LEVEL OF THE NEW YEAR

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Bull forces rallied in the stock market today, regained most of the losses of yesterday, and lifted prices generally to the best level of the new year. The reduction in the German reichsbank's rate, possibly foreshadowing lower bank rates at New York and London later in the week, and a stiffening of the commodity markets, caused prompt cessation of bearish operations, which caused considerable unsettlement during the morning. Trading was on a reduced scale, only 3,224,610 shares changing hands, but was most active on the advance.

Credit conditions at this center showed little change, call money holding at 4 1-2 per cent., presumably reflecting the increased demands of the turn of the month, but indications were generally regarded in Wall street as pointing to further cuts in central bank rates. The lower reichsbank rate, following the cut by the Bank of France, appears to have removed the last threat to London's gold supply, and the last obstacle to a reduction in the Bank of England's discount rate. The New York reserve bank is believed to be awaiting action at London before making a further cut in its rate.

Business news was largely pleasing. The United States Steel Corp. was reported to have stepped up production to about 80 per cent. of capacity, bringing the average for the entire industry around [illegible] 1-2 per cent., only about 10 per cent. below the level of a year ago. Preliminary estimates of crude oil production for last week indicated further success in curtailment. A few pleasing earnings statements appeared, Remington Rand reporting a good fourth quarter. A less favorable item was a drastic cut in prices of several models by RCA-Victor.

The utilities displayed the most notable buoyancy. Columbia Gas was rushed up more than 6 points to the best level for 1930. Its sponsors are particularly enthusiastic over its long term natural gas prospects. American Water Works made a similar gain, and Consolidated Gas and Standard Gas mounted about 3 points each. Rails were generally well bought, Chesapeake and Ohio mounting nearly 4 points. Allis Chalmers, Atchison, A. M. Byers, General Electric, Johns Manville, Loews, Simmons, Radio, Warner Bros., and Westinghouse Electric were among issues gaining 2 points or more. Otis Elevator was a buoyant feature, rising nearly 23 points. What appeared to be a bear drive was launched against Gillette, sending it down 6 points, but it regained much of its loss before the close. Macy closed off 5.

In the commodity markets, grains rallied sharply, after further bear pressure around midday, which depressed wheat futures to new low levels. Reports of improved export business, bullish weather forecasts and Kansas crop reports, caused a quick rebound, and closing prices were 1 3-4 cents higher. Corn closed about 2 cents higher, helped by reports of unfavorable rains over the entire belt, and a firmer Buenos Aires market. Cotton was unsettled during much of the day, but closed moderately higher.

Foreign exchanges were inclined to ease, notably the Latin American currencies. European currencies were barely steady, sterling and German marks sagging slightly in reflection of the lower reichsbank rate.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Price movements in today's curb market were rather erratic but final quotations were again irregularly higher. The market appears to have temporarily lost some of its pep, initial blocks of 1,000 to 2,000 shares taking the place of opening transactions of 3,000 to 5,000 shares in some of the speculative favorites last week. New soft spots continue to crop out from time to time but the aggregate borrowing demand for stocks shows little change, covering operations in some issues apparently being offset by fresh sales on rallies in other stocks.

Public utilities continued to lead the list in point of activity, although several waves of selling swept through that group during the day. Electric Bond & Share, which is again being mentioned in expansion projects, dipped to 91 1-4, rallied to 95, and closed just below the top for a net gain of 2 5-8 points. American & Foreign Power, American Gas & Electric, Arizona Power and a few others advanced a point or two. Duke Power broke 9 1-4 points on a few sales and Long Island Lighting and Tampa Electric lost more than a point each. Consolidated Gas of Baltimore also lost ground on the traditional "selling on the good news" following the announcement of valuable stock subscription rights.

Arkansas Natural Gas issues were again active and strong. Southwest Gas utilities advanced 2 3-4 points. Indian Territory Illuminating Oil extended its gain on buying influenced by the announcement that it had acquired large gas and oil holdings in the mid-continent field from Foster Petroleum. Gulf Oil advanced a point and Vacuum declined nearly a point. Born Scyrmser dropped 4 1-4 points.

Radio shares were firm despite reports of extensive price cutting in the industry. Dubilier, after a long period of inactivity, was marked up about 2 points. Pilot Radio crossed 13 to a new high on the current recovery on the announcement that the company had sponsored a proposed commercial good will flight to South America.

Investment trust and trading corporation shares were mixed, with the strength of Electric Shareholders preferred, Goldman Sachs, International Utilities B and Shenandoah preferred being offset by the heaviness of American States A and Lehman Corporation.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

CHICAGO, Feb. 4—(AP)—Facing commencement of the 1930 crop scare season, wheat jumped higher today, although suffering temporary setbacks to below any level since July 1 last. Damage to domestic winter wheat by persistent alternate freezing and thawing weather was reported today from eastern Illinois, western Indiana and from Texas. Under such circumstances, broadened speculative buying of wheat futures deliveries set in, and the upward swing of the market was also given impetus through action of the Farmers' National Grain corporation in making big purchases of rural arrivals of wheat at various leading grain centers.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat were firm at nearly the day's top figures, 1 1-2c to 1 7-8c a bushel higher than yesterday's finish, corn closed 1 3-8@1 1-2c to 2 3-8c advance, oats 7-8c to 1 1-4c up, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 10 cents.

Melting away of snow-covering from wide stretches of domestic winter wheat territory was reported today as disclosing crop damage, and this circumstance did much to outweigh indications that foreigners were active sellers here at times. Another decidedly stimulating influence toward higher prices came from reports showing that the farm co-operative organization backed by government funds had bought about 350 cars of wheat today, and that at variance with earlier advices the organization was taking country run wheat without enforcing quality restrictions which would have apparently excluded large shipments en route to Minneapolis from rural points northwest. Meanwhile, dispatches were also at hand indicating improved call abroad for wheat from Canada and the United States, with Argentine wheat in less request and United States wheat afloat the cheapest wheat available.

Instability of an unexpected upturn in Liverpool wheat quotations today was chiefly responsible for a sudden transient collapse of the Chicago market. Quick reversal of the Liverpool upward trend was apparent in the day's final quotations from that center, and resulted in smashing prices here down more than 2 1-2c within a few moments, but the effect failed to last, on the contrary, leading houses here took the ground that all bearish factors as to wheat had been discounted for at least the time being, and that wheat prices were entitled to an important rally.

Corn values developed independent strength today. Affected by temporary wheat weakness, May and June corn sold at new low-price records for the season, but country offerings were small and decided gains ensued, helped by emphasis given to the fact that the corn visible supply is 11,000,000 bushels less than last year and that there are no burdensome stocks at primary markets. Oats followed corn.

Provisions were responsive to an increase of only 5,400,000 pounds in western lard stocks in the last month, compared with 44,300,000 pounds increase last year.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 4—(AP)—Continued inquiry for French government bonds brought out substantial rallies in these obligations today, carrying both the 7 1-2s and the 7s to new highs. The former touched 123, closing at 122 1-4 for a net advance of a point, while the lower coupon obligation sold up to 116 before easing back to yesterday's final quotation, 115. Turnover in each was substantial.

The entire foreign list was generally higher. Belgian listings were active and rose 1-4 to 3-4. Colombia 6s and Colombia Agricultural Bank 6s of 1947 improved 1 1-4 to 1 1-2 points. Buenos Aires 6s, April, soared 2 5-8 and the same city's 6s of 1961 were up 3-4. Canada 5s, Norway 5s, Rome 6 1-2s and Japan 4s gained fractionally. Australian bonds turned heavy, with both issues of 5s losing a point while New South Wales 5s of 1957 sagged 3-8. Brazil 6 1-2s, 1927-57, Chile 6s (September), and Denmark 6 1-2s eased.

The average showed a small decline in domestic corporation bonds, but the understone was considerably firmer, especially in the rails which were rather active. Santa Fe General 4s, Baltimore & Ohio Gold 4s, Rock Island Refunding 4s, Missouri Kansas Texas prior lien 5s, Missouri Pacific General 4s, Nickel Plate 4 1-2s, New Haven 4 1-2s, and Southern Railway General 4s brought higher prices. Gains of a point or more developed in Chicago & Alton 3 1-2s, Erie Consolidated 4s, Florida East Coast 5s, Southern Railway Consolidated 5s, Delaware and Hudson Refining 4s and Central of Georgia 5s.

Numerous low priced industrials, especially the foreign sugars, made a rather broad upward move. Certainteed 5 1-2s and Pressed Steel Car 5s gained about a point, the latter reflecting the company's 1929 earnings report. North American Cement 6 1-2s advanced 2 3-4 and Warner Sugar Refining 7s 3 1-2. Remington Arms 6s rallied nearly 2 points to 96. There was active buying in Standard Oil of New Jersey 5s, which were marked up 5-8. Armour Real Estate 4 1-2s, and Central Steel 8s also moved higher. Cuba Cane Sugar bonds rallied 3 points.

Utilities were somewhat slow. The most active issue was the new American Telephone 5, which held firm, as did the International Telephone debenture of the same coupon, trading when issued.

United States government Liberties and Treasuries attracted little attention but managed to hold most of yesterday's advance. The Treasury 4s rose 10:32.

The state of Massachusetts awarded $4,750,000 in three issues of 4 per cent serial bonds to a syndicate which bid 100.67.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4—(AP)—Further increases in the operations of steel plants were reported today, with the entire industry now averaging nearly 75 1-2 per cent. of rated capacity, compared with 13 1-2 per cent. a week ago, and 85 per cent. a year ago. Plants of the United States Steel Corp. were reported as averaging about 80 per cent., a gain of 3 per cent. during the week, and a total increase of 13 per cent. in the last three weeks. The rate of the independent operators increased from 70 to 73 per cent. Operations of the Bethlehem Steel Corp. are about 79 per cent., as against 75 last week.

Officials of the New York Central railroad have estimated that less than one-half of one per cent. of the recent $85,669,990 stock issue will remain unsubscribed for when final figures are compiled. Construction contracts awarded for new building and engineering work in the 37 states east of the Rocky Mountains from Jan. 25, to Jan. 31, reached a total of $57,446,000, according to the F. W. Dodge Corp. This figure was $155,000 more than the amount of the preceding week, and brought the total for the month to $323,975,200, a daily average rate of 2 per cent above that of December, 1929.

Charles H. Sabin, chairman of the Guaranty Trust Co., and David Dwight Douglas, president of the First National Bank of Detroit, have been elected directors of the United States Rubber Co. Mr. Sabin also was elected a member of the finance committee.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut,

The American Hardware Corporation New Britain

The American Hardware corporation was formed in 1902 by a merger of two old, established companies, making a similar product and with a very large proportion of the stock owned by the same people. The Russell and Erwin Manufacturing company, one of the two companies, was established in 1835, and P. & F. Corbin in 1866. Both companies made—and now make—as divisions of the American Hardware corporation—a very complete assortment of locks and builders' hardware.

In 1903, the Corbin Screw corporation division was formed, taking over the manufacture of screws and screw machine products as conducted by the other two divisions, and extending its facilities for caring for the demand for material of this nature.

In 1905, The Corbin Cabinet Lock company was made a division of the American Hardware corporation, its line consisting of cabinet, trunk and suit case locks, keys, part office equipment and small miscellaneous hardware. It had operated as a separate company since 1882, with a very close association with P. & F. Corbin.

In its first formation, the American Hardware corporation was a holding company, each division retaining its corporate identity and its full official body of directors and officers. In 1911, it became an operating company. The manufacture and sale of its products are condroted through the four divisions each operated with a vice president as its general manager.

The present officers are: George T. Kimball, president; Charles B. Parsons, first vice president (in charge P. & F. Corbin division); George Hildebrandt, secretary; Joseph C. Andrews, assistant secretary; Isaac D. Russell, treasurer; W. H. Booth, assistant treasurer. Also C. H. Baldwin, vice president (in charge of Corbin Cabinet Lock division); George P. Spear, vice president (in charge of Corbin Screw corporation division); Isaac Black, vice presidcat (in charge of Russell & Erwin division).

Miss Larsen Food Expert

"One out of every four children does not obtain proper food," said Margaret Larsen upon her arrival in town Monday. "This condition is not dependent upon the family income. The children of the wealthy just as frequently as those from families with restricted means—suffer from lack of proper body-building elements in their food."

Miss Larsen will conduct a Better Baking school on February 6, 7, and 8 in the Buckingham Memorial hall. She will stress in her lectures the importance of balanced diet—as well as the most economical and most appetizing way of producing balanced diet.

Demonstration on the platform will include suggestions for short cuts in kitchen operation, new recipes for luncheon and party dishes, and pointers on how to save money through economy in cooking methods.

Miss Larsen is a graduate of the University of Minnesota and has been prominent in national 4-H club work. She is well versed in every phase of domestic science and will demonstrate many new and interesting recipes.

Classes in Miss Larsen's school open daily at 2:00 p. m. Each session will last two hours. Samples of Miss Larsen's baking will be distributed among the audience.

There will be no admission charge for the school.

Palace Theatre.

One of the funniest men on the screen is Joe E. Brown, the comical, yet semi-serious duke of the film, "Sally," which is now attracting great crowds at the Palace theatre. Along with Alexander Gray and Marilyn Miller, Brown gives a performance worthy of the magnificent play itself, and his work is so uncontrolably funny that it is almost impossible to describe how he does it.

To begin with he has a face that provokes mirth, even when it looks natural. Then his voice and manners and the humor of his position as a waiter-duke lends plenty of merriment to the situation. It is impossible to resist Brown when he struts around in his uniform, and he is even more delightful as the friend of poor forlorn "Sally" who has been caught masquerading under a title which does not belong to her.

When a circus comes to his home city, Toledo, Joe Brown joined it. That saved him the trouble of running away to join it. He was nine years old then and very ambitious. After hooking up with the big top, Brown became a member of the "Five Marvelous Ashtons," for which he received $1.50 a week. His duties were simple. All he had to do was allow the other members of the troupe to toss him around and had nothing to worry about as long as they didn't let him drop. Maybe they did and that's what's the matter with him now, but at any rate he stayed with the circus only five years, because the San Francisco earthquake of 1906 sort of ruined it.

After a stretch in vaudeville, Joe got fed up on the stage and decided to play professional baseball, serving three years with the New York Yankees. Eventually he drifted back to the circus, went into vaudeville for a while and then hit Broadway where he starred for a full ten years. It was not until 1928 that he landed in Hollywood, but during the past two years he has been going great guns, with parts in a number of the great hits. It should be remarked, by the way, that he served two years with the A. E. F. in France, so that he comes by his military bearing naturally and wears his duke's uniform well.

Good Gulf Gasoline.

The Gulf Refining company is announcing a new gasoline 400 degrees F End Point—Anti-Knock Quality—at no extra cost. One of the local officials of this company explains the end point of gasoline in a very simple and convincing manner. He says: "That ordinary gasolines have an end point of 437 degrees F—that such gasolines do not vaporize quickly enough to allow perfect and complete combustion—consequently there are some wet ends or raw gasoline left in the combustion chamber which must find a way out." "This raw gasoline passes down the cylinder walls taking with it more or less of the film from the sides of cylinders and pistons—dropping into the crank case. It dilutes or thins down the lubricating oil which reduces its lubricating value."

"At 400 degrees end point that Good Gulf Gasoline vaporizes to the last drop. This cuts down choking and gives quicker starting."

"Every motorist knows the value of Anti-Knock gasoline—stopping the knocks on hills and in traffic with greater efficiency, generates maximum power and gives added mileage."

He further says that there is but one better gasoline on the market—Gulf No-nox motor fuel—aviation grade.

"We take this opportunity to offer our congratulations to your company for a job well done, when you placed your new Socony Special plus Ethyl gasoline on the market. Y.*

"May I take the liberty of reporting my experience with your new Socony Special plus Ethyl gasoline. I own a 1923 Dodge car, which I use every day in business, and which has gone about 30,000 miles. It is quite evident that with this mileage behind it, the car is in need of new piston rings and a general overhauling, for it has knocked and labored on any grade, probably because of carbon deposits and general fouling because of the oil working up in the combustion chamber due to the wear of the rings.

"I have had an estimate of the work necessary, which is about $70.00. As the car only has a market valuation of about $100.00, I have not figured it worth the expenditure.

"I had just about decided to get along with the knocking, poor performing car, when very skeptically I chanced to fill the tank with the new Socony Special. Believe me, I found a difference, all that you have claimed for it and more. I find that I can press the gas down hard to the floor board at any time or condition, and there is not a sign of a knock or labor.

"It is almost unbelievable in this case, where the trouble is due to mechanical wear, and heavy carbon deposits, that any gas could produce a smooth quiet motor. I shall certainly be a rooter for the new Socony Special from now on."—Malden, Mass.

"When selling a new car I have always made it a practice to advise the use of Special Gasoline and Aircraft Oil. By so doing I feel my customers will be well satisfied."—Clinton, Mass.

"I have been using Socony Special gasoline for several months past and am now continuing with Socony Special plus Ethyl. There are five trucks and five automobiles (Cadillacs) in use at the present time and although none of them have high-compression motors there is a noticeable difference in power and smoothness."—Salem, Mass.

"Results from using Socony Special plus Ethyl gasoline in my Stutz are so amazing that I can't resist bringing your attention to the fact that I am using this wonderful gas."—Burlington, Vt.

"While in Manchester, Vermont, I heard a talk over the radio telling of the new Socony Special gasoline plus Ethyl and I made the remark to my son that I thought it was a lot of 'hooey' but that I was going to fill my car with this new gasoline when I went home to see if there was any truth in the statement that the motor would not knock.

"I did not believe in the proposition and experimented to see for myself and I found that I could put on full power on hills without a sign of a knock in my engine. This ride is over what is known as Peru Mountain and there are certainly plenty of hills on the route."—Providence, R. I.

Physicians and Surgeons Exchange

The physicians and surgeon exchange has just been established in Norwich, providing a way by which doctors can be reached by telephone when they do not answer calls at their own telephones. The exchange is at the Sunshine Maternity home, telephone 1441, and by calling there the doctor can be reached. Those in the exchange are Drs. C. C. and Harold Gildersleeve, Drs. Rabinovitch, Callahan, George Thompson, Driscoll, Brophy, Higgins, Freeman, Sussler, Arnaud and Leon LaPierre, Agnew and Marcotte.

Breed Theatre

To this day, "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney," is the most brilliant talking picture that has been filmed. The dialogue is a feast to the mind. Norma Shearer poses as a wealthy widow from Australia, and mixes with British nobility in London. She does credit to her part. Her acting is superb, and her voice fits with the acting. Basil Rathbone, too, is an outstanding figure; as Lord Arthur Dilling, he cannot be surpassed.

The lines have been recorded well and are intelligible in the reproduction. George Barraud, Herbert Bunston, Hedda Hopper, Cyril Chadwick, George K. Arthur and others are in the cast. The plot has been founded on the play by Frederick Lonsdale. Sidney Franklin directed it.

"The Last of Mrs. Cheyney" will be shown at the Breed theatre for three days beginning today.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

THE TRAIL OF THE SCOUT IN [illegible]

"Doing is learning." That is the basic principle of scouting. The instruction given rests on that, and in every possible case the lesson is a demonstrated one. Youngsters are naturally "motor-minded." They want to see the wheels go round. That is the way to teach them so that the very first lesson will stick in their minds. In learning scouting this rule is followed, and the boys remember because they have in learning followed the line of their own mental fascination.

For the "blind alley" occupations scouting substitutes the light of day and the way of progress that always has larger things beyond no matter how far you follow it.

The Boy Scout never fears the coming of a policeman. He has no furtive glances lest some one shall see what he is doing.

Learning by doing, he also escapes the other meaning of those "blind alley" occupations. He does not later go out as a young man to join the army of the unemployed because he has no purpose or desire keen enough to push him on. Learning by doing has been called the "help-yourself" training. The scout will be more apt to help push others than to need pushing himself.

The boy is taught resourcefulness and loyalty and self-respect, all of which tend to make him later a success in whatever he undertakes. His business in life when he becomes a man will reflect these same sturdy characteristics which he has learned in the "motor-minded" way.

But he is also taught another thing that many older men would have been benefitted by if they had learned it as boys. That thing is service to others. No matter how busy a man may be he can find time for personal service to his neighbors and to the public interest. That is the moral and spiritual climax of scout teaching.

The scout is taught this as he is taught other things by actual practice and demonstration. He is taught to do a good turn to somebody every day.

That does not sound so big when you read it quick. But stop a moment and think of what it means. Not a day to pass without having done a good turn to somebody. How much richer would life be if everybody had learned to do that!

Broadway Theatre

Beyond doubt, the greatest show value ever offered anywhere for one admission is the program opening at the Broadway today, the second or "Program B" in the Broadway's greater entertainment month. Here are two talking pictures, either of which would be featured alone on an ordinary program. "Behind the Make-Up" despite its stagy title, is not "another revue," for revues have no part in this intensely dramatic story of the laugh-makers of the stage. Hal Skelly, beloved "Sid" of "The Dance of Life," is a cheap vaudeville clown on the kerosene circuit, with plenty of ability, but lacking the punch to put it across. Big-hearted, like all performers, he befriends a down-and-outer, who turns out to be one Gardoni of a talented European family of clowns. In this role, William Powell is superb, presenting a marvelous portrayal of the high strung but impoverished artist, too proud to descend to low comedy to sell his talent. The combination of the two is inevitable, and being perfect foils for one another they quickly reach the top and prosperity.

The companion picture, "Hell's Heroes," filmed from Peter B. Kyne's famous story "The Three Godfathers," swings abruptly to the other side of life, telling in this fashion the story of three cold-blooded killers who raid a city bank on the outskirts of Death Valley, killing the cashier and attempting a getaway across the terrible desert. Typical "desert rats," cunning and merciless, the three maintain an armed truce, each suspicious of the others. With water running low and the grim vultures swooping ever lower, scenting death, their straits are more desperate, with the crisis complete when their horses stampede and are lost in a blinding sand-storm. Heat, sand and starvation seem likely to take their toll, and one of the three suffers from an infected gunshot. Their troubles are multiplied when in searching a deserted "covered wagon," they discover a dying woman and her new born babe. Men after all, even though "tough hombres," the trio swear strange oaths to the dying woman to take her baby back to safety. To their horror, they find they have pledged themselves to certain death for the nearest town is the one they have raided, and the woman's husband was the cashier. Charles Bickford, recently starred in "Dynamite," with Fred Kohler and Raymond Hatton, are the "Hell's Heroes," and the story they unfold on the screen is both intensely human and startlingly real.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

What Have We Done Today?

We shall do so much in the years to come;
But what have we done today?
We shall give our gold in a princely sum;
But what did we give today?
We shall lift the heart and dry the tear;
We shall plant a hope in the place of fear;
We shall speak the words of love and cheer;
But what did we speak today?

We shall be so kind the afterwhile
But what have we been today?
We shall bring each lonely life a smile;
But what have we brought today?
We shall give to truth a grander birth,
And to steadfast faith a deeper worth,
We shall feed the hungering souls of earth;
But whom have we fed today?

We shall reap such joys in the by and by;
But what have we sown today?
We shall build us mansions in the sky;
But what have we built today?
'Tis sweet in idle dreams to bask,
But here and now do we do our task?
Yes, this is the thing our souls must ask;
What have we done today?

The Bulb's Secret

We're planting jars of daffodils,
And bowlies of tulips, white and red,
They'll come to lovely coloured blooms
By spring-time, mother said.
Those little, ugly funny things
Like onions, rather dry,
Will turn to golden daffodils
And scarlet tulips by and by!

I'm going to watch, and watch, and watch,
The whole long winter through,
To find out how they manage it,
And what it is they do.
'Cos if I learn their secret, then
I'll know the way, maybe,
To grow a lovely lady from
A grubby girl like me.

Never Put Off

Whenever a duty awaits for thee
With sober judgment view it
And never idly wish it done
Begin at once and do it.

For sloth says falsely, "Bye and bye
Is just as well to do it."
But present strength is surest strength.
Begin at once and do it.

And find not lions in the way,
Nor faint if thorns bestrew it;
But bravely try, and strength will come
For God will help thee do it.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

Each week there will appear on the Wide Awake page the picture of a curious creature, with a description of the creature pictured. Curious creatures: Do you know what they are? Do you know what makes them "curious"?

The author of these fascinating drawings is Richard A. Addison, who has spent most of his life doing scientific research work and in zoos.

One of America's most eminent zoologists, Mr. Addison was for some time assistant director and curator of mammals at the San Diego Zoological Garden. He is a member of the American Institute of Park executives, the National Association of Zoological Parks and Aquariums executives, the American Museum of Natural History society of New York, the American Association for the Advancement of Society, and many other organizations of that type.

RICHARD A. ADDISON

Now he is devoting part of his time to drawing "Curious Creatures," so that hundreds of thousands of people may learn, without long hours of study, about animals, birds and fish in which they are interested.

School children are finding Mr. Addison's feature of untold value in studying the animal life of various countries. They love it, too, because it entertains them while they learn.

All birds and beasts possessing unusual habits come under the class of "Curious Creatures," Mr. Addison says. He pictures them and tells you why they are curious.

For instance, there is the spitting cobra of Africa, which he calls "The Fountain of Death." This cobra spits its venom, sometimes a distance of fifteen feet, usually aiming at the eyes of its victim. Should the venom enter the eyes or an open cut on their body it means almost certain death, Mr. Addison declares.

You will learn hundreds of fascinating things about animal life if you follow "Curious Creatures" which will appear each week on the Wide Awake page.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

How We Were Saved

Uncle Jed: One morning I was playing with a friend in the sand on the beach. Not very far I spied a boat lying on the beach. We thought it would be fun to play in it so we got in it and we were rocking and trying to make it sail on sand. Finally a big wave came up and lifted the boat a little.

We were delighted with this, and rocked it some more. Soon a bigger wave came and this time it lifted the boat off the sand and carried it off. When I saw this I screamed for help. My mother's friend was sitting on the beach and when she saw us going she screamed too.

A life saver happened to be passing with a boat nearby. He dropped everything and rushed after our boat which was going quickly out into the deep water.

We were terribly frightened when we saw the big waves almost on top of us, and I do not know what would have happened if he had not caught our boat just when he did.

He watched his chance and when the next wave came it rushed us with it to the shore. In a few moments we were safe and sound on the beach. I tell you I was never so glad to get back to the land in my life.

My Favorite Story

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the very first time I have written to you and I thought I would tell you my favorite story. The name is "A Beautiful Year." A girl was tacking up a new wall calendar bearing the unfamiliar figures of the new year just about to open. "It is going to be a beautiful year," she said, with a prophetic tone of assurance.

Some one who heard the girl's prediction, curious to know what was in her mind asked, "How do you know it is going to be a beautiful year? A year is a long time."

"Well," she answered, "a day isn't a long time, and I know because I am going to take a day at a time and make it so. Years are only days when you come right down to it, and I'm going to see that every single one of these 365 days gets some one beautiful thing into it."

"Then it will be a beautiful year," the friend answered. "You've got hold of a wonderful secret." The promise is "as thy day so shall thy strength be." A day at a time. "Be not anxious for the morrow." One day is enough to beautify at a time and it can be done, then all the days will be beautiful days. "So teach us to number our days that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom. And let the beauty of the Lord, our God, be upon us."

The Story of Wool

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you of the story of wool. We first go to some large ranch out west where hundreds of sheep are kept. As we enter the reserve of Uncle Sam we are inspected to see if we have a permit to visit the ranch as many thieves enter and carry off sheep yearly. As we come in sight of the ranch we see dogs and sheep on every side. The "boss" comes out and greets us. He leads us in to supper and then, as we are very tired after the journey, shows us the bed. How hard and lumpy the bunks are! We are excited and anxious for dawn to come! The "boss" (as the head rancher is called) said they were to dip the sheep next day. At about 4 o'clock in the morning we are called to breakfast. Why! How many men there are, we said as we saw herders sitting around the crude plank table. We ate a hearty breakfast and then followed the herders. We watched them dip the sheep in a solution of oil and sulpher. They do this to keep the ticks off the sheep. We then followed one herder all day. How well he had his dogs trained. A herder is a man who takes care of another man's sheep. A shepherd is a man who owns and takes care of his own sheep.

In the spring the herders go up in the hills. As it grows warmer they go higher as sheep must live in a cool atmosphere as ticks can thrive well in warm climates. As it grows cooler they come down the hill with the flocks.

They then cut the wool in May or June and send it to the packing house where it is graded. The fine wool is put in big sacks and shipped to the freight house where it is put aboard trains to come to eastern cities to be woven into other valuable uses. Let us stop and think of all the time that has been put into a piece of woolen cloth. Hoping you and the Wide Awakes are well. I am

Our Pet Collie

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about the dog we lost. It happened last summer, but we can't forget about it. We had a collie named Peggy. She was five years old and the best pet we ever had. I have two sisters and one brother and wherever we went mother knew we were safe as long as Peggy was with us. She would even bark at us and walk between us if we quarreled. One day she acted queerly and my parents kept watching her. She bit two cats that she was always friendly with, then we knew something was surely wrong. Dad talked with the veterinary and he said that she would have to be killed as she had the rabies. None of us could eat any dinner that day. Dad had the dog warden come and kill her and we stayed at a neighbor's house until it was over. Now we haven't any dog at all. We don't feel like having another after that. We didn't see the dog that bit her, but he bit a calf at the same time. The calf had the rabies, too. We also had to kill the cats. We are thankful that she didn't bite us. I hope the rest of the Wide Awakes do not have anything like that happen to their pets.

Joined Girl Scouts

Dear Uncle Jed: How time does fly! I wrote you last in the summer. I have been very busy since school began. I go to junior high school in New London this year and I hope to graduate in June and start W. M. I. in the fall.

I play first violin in the school orchestra and in the New London symphony orchestra which is to give a concert in March at Bulkeley school.

I still spend my week ends with my aunt here in Groton. The girls say that I am fortunate to have two such good homes when so many haven't even one.

I joined the girl scouts Thursday afternoon after school and I'm sure I shall like it. There is a nice crowd of girls in the troop I joined and the leader is lovely. She is very patient and kind.

I haven't worked all of the time thought. It wouldn't be me if I didn't play some.

The Perry ice ponds are near my home and I go skating when the skating is good.

I hope my letter isn't too long but I tried to make up for lost time.

An Exciting Adventure

Dear Uncle Jed: Two of my friends and I had a very exciting adventure. Some of my friend's brothers' friends were over to his house. They were playing, when my two friends and I skipped out by a side window. They did not notice our absence until entering the room we had just vacated. A search was then started. As they approached the window we were outside of we ran. A pursuit was started. In the end we were caught. I was the last to be caught. While the boys had surprised us by coming up in the rear I had just jumped down off a wall. It was in this way I managed to escape. Later I entered the house and gave myself up. But our little adventure was exciting if nothing else.

Eskimo People

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you. I am writing about Eskimos.

The Eskimo people live in Alaska where it is very cold. They live in igloos made of ice and snow. They can't live in houses like we have because it is so cold that trees do not grow there. So they live in igloos. The Eskimos ride in sleds pulled by dogs. The Eskimo people dress very warm. They wear furs from the animals. I hope all the Wide Awakes enjoy my story.

A Winter Picnic

Dear Uncle Jed: I have written to you before and have enjoyed writing. The name of my story today is, "A Winter Picnic." Last Wednesday we had the fourth snow fall of the winter. We decided to go on a picnic. That morning it was very warm and the snow was still on the ground. We were to take lunch along and my father was going to take us down to the picnic place with the car.

As soon as we had our lunch packed we all got into the car and my father took us to the place where we were to have our picnic. It was a very nice place in the woods.

At first we all went to look for wood to start a fire. Then we started the fire and got ourselves warmed up. After awhile we played games such as hide-and-go-seek and kick the can. We finished up with a snowball fight. Then we put up our table and we all seated ourselves around it. We ate with hearty appetites and then cleaned away. Afterwards we sat around the fire while my brother and sister popped corn and baked apples. About eight o'clock my father came to take us home. We were sorry to leave the woods.

I hope all the Wide Awakes will sometimes go for a winter picnic in the woods. I know they will enjoy it very much.

Boys Made Four Chairs

Dear Uncle Jed: The big boys made four chairs for the little children from orange crates. Then we painted them and the girls put cretonne ruffles on them.

We have made notebooks and posters of health and wild animals. The animal posters are to help teach us to be kind to dumb animals and the health posters teach us habits of cleanliness, also things we should eat.

Our Race Track

Dear Uncle Jed: We have made a track around the school house for our sleds and at recess and noon we pull the little children around on it.

Now it is all ice and snow and we tip over on the curves and run into each other all the time. We go fast but the children say, "go faster," and we call it a race track.

At Christmas Time

Dear Uncle Jed: At Christmas we all had a very good time with our toys. We had a funny candy doll that had a lollipop head and arms made of round orange things. In the paper legs were lemon drops with paper around them.

At school we have great fun pulling each other around the track. We go around and fall off the sled when we come to a sharp curve and there are many rocks in the way.

My Trip To Germany

Uncle Jed: As I was lying in bed thinking over the geography lesson we had had concerning Germany, I was aware of hearing many voices; I listened and this is what I heard:

"Yes, we have passed through the plain of North Germany and the "Central Highland region; and are now entering the middle Rhine Plain."

That unusual statement aroused my curiosity and I tried to listen to other things that were being said.

The next conversation of interest that reached my ears was: "Now we are getting off."

"What is the name of the city?" "Breslau; this is a manufacturing and coal mining city."

I sat up and looked around. To my surprise I was on a train that had come to a standstill. But it soon started again.

There were two men sitting directly opposite me, who were engaged in conversation. One said, "Our next stop will be at Hamburg;" and then they drifted into a silence, which was broken by the stopping of the car.

After we had started again one of the men said: "Our next stop will be at Berlin, won't it?" "Yes," replied the other. "And where is the next one?" continued the first man. "At Bremen, and after that Stettin, and the next and last stop is Hall."

This was all very puzzling to me, and just as I was going to ask the conductor where I was, and where I was going, etc., the car gave a sudden jerk and came to a standstill.

When I awoke, I was in my own room in Moosup, Conn. "My Trip to Germany," had been a dream.

What We Make

Dear Uncle Jed: We have made note books for spelling, arithmetic, penmanship and language. We have a picture of a mother deer and her baby drinking by a pond. The mother deer is pricking up her ears; there are some pond lilies in the pond near her and her baby.

We have been making a race track round the school house and the big boys have been pulling the little ones ones. Sometimes they fall off but don't get hurt badly.

We are doing denominate numbers in arithmetic and I like to do them.

Today we made hot cocoa to have with our lunch and it tasted fine.

Likes To Read Stories

Dear Uncle Jed: I thought I would write and let you know what I am reading now I am reading the Little Maid series. The lady in the library helps me pick them out. I love her, she is so nice and kind to me. For Christmas I received The Child's Book of American History, Boys and Girls of the Alps, and Mary Jane's Winter Sports. I have seven of the Twin Series, and other favorites I have are, Heidi, Alice in Wonderland and the poems of Fields and Stevenson. I am going to have my own bookcase soon. I also got new skates and a camera for Christmas, which I enjoy very much.

Went To Party

Dear Uncle Jed: I am a new member or rather I'd like to be a Wide Awake so I am writing you a story about a birthday party I went to on December the sixth.

It was given in the honor of one of my little girl friends.

There were sixteen girls and boys present. Their names were Annie, Hilda and Bertha Gager, Ethel Neff, Irene Lytla, Helen, Katherine and Nellie Dobrosky, Alice Homan, Lawrence Lytla, Ethel, James and John Murtha, Johnnie and Nicholas Dobrosky, Charles and Joseph McElaney. We had a lovely time. Played games and also played the piano. The color scheme was red and green. I guess this is all Uncle Jed, so I will say goodbye to you and all the Wide Awakes. A little friend.

The Pets I Have

Dear Uncle Jed: I am a little member of the Wide Awakes and am sending you some letters from friends of mine who attended my ninth birthday party. Mother thought it would be nice if each one wrote to you but some were too young, so am sending you three anyway.

How are all my little friends in and around Norwich? I never miss reading the different letters you get from the members and enjoy it very much. I like to read about all the different animal pets. I will tell you what I have, two young cows, their names are Jennie and Babe, two black puppies, Steve and Gus, two big dogs, Lady and Uno, two cats, Muffins and Rags, about 35 fancy pigeons and a few chickens. Quite an animal family.

I would like very much Uncle Jed if some of my little Wide Awake friends would write to me, my address is

Another New Member

Dear Uncle Jed: I am a little girl of thirteen, would like to become a member of the Wide Awake circle. I am going to tell you of a birthday party I went to on a Friday afternoon from one till four given in the honor of Ethel Murtha's ninth birthday at her home on Gilead Road, Waterford, Conn. There were about sixteen of her little boy and girl friends there. We had lots of fun playing games, playing the piano and singing. We had lots of good things to eat and also had soda. There were a number of prizes given to the winners. Each one of us got a little red and green basket filled with candy, a red and green favor and a chocolate Santa Claus in a box. The color scheme was red and green on account of it being the month of Christmas I will be waiting to hear from you soon. I hope to be a Wide Awake.

A Birthday Party

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about a party I went to in honor of Ethel Murtha's birthday at her home, Dec. 6, 1929. She was nine years old.

There were about sixteen present. We had two birthday cakes, popcorn, several kinds of cookies, two kinds of soda, peanut butter and meat sandwiches, jello, candy and fruit. The most surprising thing to the little ones was a chocolate Santa Claus in a box for each one.

The home was prettily decorated in red and green. There were several prizes awarded to the winners of different games.

We all had a very nice time. There were several who enjoyed singing at the piano which was played by myself. I guess this is all Uncle Jed, so I will close hoping you will make me a member of your Wide Awake circle.

A Lively Dream

Dear Uncle Jed: One night this fall my brother happened to go to a window. Suddenly he exclaimed, "There's something near the house!" He ran and got his flashlight and turned it on where he thought he had seen something. That "something" was certainly there. It was a skunk! He was quite a pretty looking animal with white sides and a black stripe running across his back and the whole length of his tail.

He must have been frightened by the glare of the light for he turned around and ran behind an out-building and we did not see him again.

Things that happen in the day-time, or just before you go to bed, have a habit of reappearing at night in the strangest manner possible. And that "skunk experience" was no exception.

That night, I really don't know how it happened, I was walking along a road (I don't know which road) and who should I meet but Jimmy Skunk. I rather respect him but I was so stunned by our sudden meeting that I didn't have the good grace to step out of the way and let Sir James Skunk pass. We remained so, face to face, for about two minutes, and then Sir James took matters into his own hands, (or paws). Suddenly there was a swish! and I was alone, not quite alone, for I was in company with the strongest perfume that nature ever manufactured.

What happened next, I don't know, for time has no respect for dreams, and neither have relatives when it's time to get up.

An Entertainment

Dear Uncle Jed: I want to tell the Wide Awakes about the entertainment we planned. Our dancing teacher is planning an entertainment for our parents, to show them what we are earning. The entertainment will take place February 13th. All the children are going to be dressed in gymnasium bloomers and black stockings, red ties and oxfords. The first thing we are going to do will be the Connecticut March and the Minuet. Then the Girl's club are going to serve tea and other refreshments. We are going to do other dances but we have not planned them yet. I was very glad to see my letter in the paper.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

The Crows Make a Brave Showing

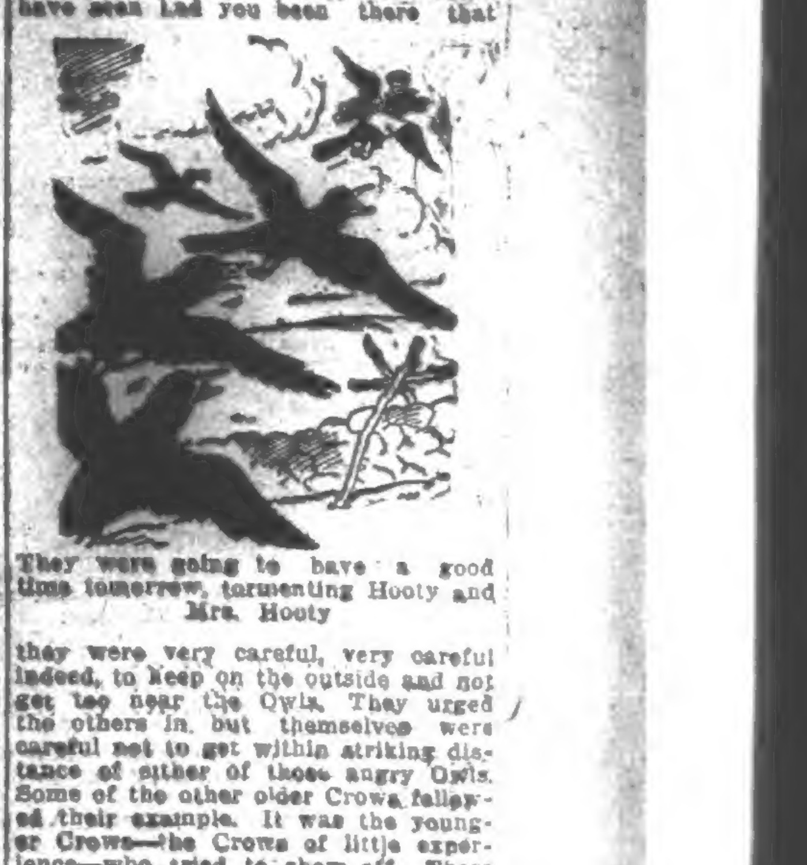
Not often doth success attend
The ones who foolishly pretend.
—Old Mother Nature.

All talking at once, with Blacky at their head, the Crows of the Green Forest headed for Blacky's nest. It was Blacky's old nest—the one he and Mrs. Blacky had used in the spring. They were very much excited, were those Crows. They were just like a lot of boys starting out for a good time. They expected to have a good time. You see, Blacky had told them he had found Hooty the Owl and Mrs. Hooty in possession of that old nest. They were going to have a good time tormenting Hooty and Mrs. Hooty. At least, that is what they expected.

As they drew near the tree in the Green Forest where that nest was hidden, Mrs. Blacky flew ahead. She wanted to be the first one there. As soon as she came in sight of that nest she began to caw at the top of her lungs, and it was a very angry caw; and all the other Crows knew that the Owls were still there. They spread out so as to form a circle around the tree and the nest; and every single Crow seemed to be trying to outscream every other Crow. Such a noise as they made! It didn't seem possible that they could saw any louder. Yet, when they got near enough to actually see Hooty and Mrs. Hooty the noise was doubled. Yes sir, it was doubled!

Now, Crows dearly love to pretend to be very brave. They like to show off in the presence of other Crows. Not one of those Crows alone would have gone anywhere near Hooty, but with so many together they felt very brave and they crowded right around that nest. Mrs. Hooty was sitting just back of it. Hooty was just at one side of it. Both were sitting very straight and glaring angrily at their tormentors. Their big, yellow eyes were very angry looking and very fierce looking. Every time a Crow looked straight at those eyes, he lost his courage. He didn't caw quite so loudly and he hurriedly got a little farther away. Hooty was hissing and snapping his bill and Mrs. Hooty was hissing and snapping her bill.

Now, although that was the nest of Blacky and Mrs. Blacky, you would have seen had you been there that they were very careful, very careful indeed, to keep on the outside and not get too near the Owls. They urged the others in, but themselves were careful not to get within striking distance of either of those angry Owls. Some of the other older Crows followed their example. It was the younger Crows—the Crows of little experience—who tried to show off. These were the ones who darted in and threatened to pull out some of the feathers of Hooty and Mrs. Hooty, and boasted that they would peck their eyes out. Oh, they made a brave showing, did those young Crows!



They were going to have a good time tomorrow, tormenting Hooty and Mrs. Hooty

Now, all the time Hooty and Mrs. Hooty were growing more and more angry. They were not in the least afraid of those Crows. They were annoyed, but not afraid. All the boasting of those young Crows had no effect excepting to make them angry. It was astonishing to see them turn their heads. No Crow had a chance to steal up behind either one. Some of those young Crows tried it and were startled to find themselves looking straight into those fierce, yellow eyes. A lot of them drew themselves together and flew straight at Hooty in a black cloud. Hooty merely hissed more angrily than ever. And when the Crows reached him they merely separated, some going one side and some the other. They didn't have the courage to really attack.

Some of the older Crows who were watching sharply saw that Hooty was losing his temper very fast. Those Crows were wise old Crows. They had teased Owls before. They understood the signs. Very soon it would be safer to be somewhere else.

SUBSOIL IS VITAL FACTOR IN WEARING OF PAVEMENT

Influence of the subgrade soil is so great that a pavement properly based and selected may last up to 20 years longer than the same road improperly based.

Detailed knowledge indicating that highway improvement most often starts with the ground has been gained in a survey of roads in half the states of the country by James S. Burch, Jr., engineer for the American Road Builders' association.

Treatment of unfavorable soils includes drainage, mixing of soils to obtain more suitable combinations, use of sand and gravel "cushion blankets," bituminous applications, and tar paper coatings.

U. S. Leads in Roads

WASHINGTON— (AP) —The United States has 38.7 per cent of the world's roads, according to a survey by Frank B. Curran and B. P. Root, highway specialist of the department of commerce. This country has the greatest mileage of both improved and unimproved roads.

Is Mother of Eight

"The first year after I got married I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I was so weak that the minute I would start to do something I would feel badly. It did me a lot of good. Since then I have taken the Vegetable Compound off and on whenever I needed it. I am now the mother of eight children and I still recommend this medicine for it makes me feel younger and stronger."—Mrs. Oreance Godfrey, 103 Cumberland Street, Woonsocket, Rhode Island.

After an illness of about two weeks the life of Frank Gruszazynski came to an end at the home of his brother, Walter Gruszazynski, at 430 Main street Tuesday morning at 9:30 o'clock. The deceased was born in Poland 49 years ago, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ignay Gruszazynski, and came from Poland only a few years ago to settle in Greeneville. In this country Mr. Gruszazynski is survived by three brothers, Walter of Norwich, and Peter and Anthony Gruszazynski, both of New York city. He also leaves a wife, Mrs. Victoria Gruszazynski. The deceased was a very active member of St. Joseph's church.

Finish Ice Cutting

The Bates Ice company finished cutting ice on their North street pond Monday. They succeeded in filling the ice-house to within two tiers of capacity. In order to accomplish this, crews of men worked day and night Friday and Saturday, to harvest before the warm spell.

On Monday, the services at St. Mary's Memorial church commemorated the feast of Saint Blais, bishop of Sebaste, Armenia, who suffered martyrdom by having his flesh torn off by wool combs in the days of the early church. Following the morning masses and in the evening the throats of the parishioners were blessed, in accordance with an old rite of the church.

Withdrawal without costs from the docket of the superior court has been filed with Clerk John H. Walker in the $10,000 damage suit brought by William Mileski of this city against the Yale Tire & Rubber Co. of New Haven. HIGHEST BOY SCOUT RANK TO BE AWARDED AT COURT TO NORWICH BOY

Scout Nick Tarrant of Troop Five of St. Patrick's church is to receive this (Wednesday) evening at the Court of Honor the highest award given to a Boy Scout, the rank of Eagle Scout, which signifies unusual achievement. The scouts who were with Commander Byrd at the South Pole were Eagle Scouts. The scouts who have written books about their explorations in Africa are Eagle Scouts. It is the ambition of every scout as he starts up the scout ladder to be some day in a dim future an Eagle Scout. Few ever realize this goal.

The court of honor programme which is to be held at the town hall promises to be highly entertaining. The three Jamboree scouts from New London who were present at the World Jamboree of 50,000 scouts in England last summer will relate their experiences. The classes are unusually large. Among those applying for the rank of Tenderfoot will be: James Pina, William Smith, James Abruzzo, Frank Amodeo. Among those coming up for their 2nd. class badge will be Thomas Foley, Henry Buthkiewic, Melvin Cook, Malcolm Counihan, A. Feraco, William Galligan, John Golembrewski, John Lavidone, Raymond Pearson, Lewis Sussman, Paul Smith, Walter Crandall, James O. Armstrong, Theodore R. Pike, James Dennis, Malcolm McKeag, James Chester, Albert Demicco, Herman Liebermann. Awards will be made to a large class of scouts from the Baltic troop in both the second and first class ranks. Merit badges will be presented to Russell Yerrington, James Dennis, Malcolm McKeag, James Chester, William Galligan, Henry Buthkiewicy, James Coughlin, in firemanship; to Nick Tarrant in bird study and camping and to Russell Yerrington in leathercraft. The 15 year veteran badge will be presented to Rev. Marden T. Prentiss, scoutmaster of Troop 15, for 15 years of service; merit badges in carpentry to William Galligan and in firemanship to Malcolm Counihan will be presented.

Scoutleaders' Certificates

Certificates for having completed the national requirements of the minimum course in Scoutmastership will be presented to Arthur I. Peale, Jean Keiffer, William Wyman, Walter Weidman, John W. Hill, John Boldrigihini, Lloyd Rathbun, Robert Burke, Carl Brend, Cecil Wetherbee, Will Collins. Several other scout leaders will be eligible for the certificates upon making up attendance. These certificates apply on the scoutmaster's gold key which some of the scoutmasters in Norwich are working for.

Streamers for the efficiency contest will be awarded to all troops having an average for the month of over 75 per cent. These streamers will be presented at the court and tied on to the troop flag at the moment of presentation.

All scouts will meet at 7:00 o'clock at the courthouse, where led by the drum and bugle corps of Troop Five, they will parade the streets of Norwich, then return to the court. All candidates for the rank of tenderfoot, second class and first class will remain at the court to appear before the board of review. The board will meet in the town hall between 7:00 and 8:00 o'clock.

Letters have been sent to all parents of scouts. The court is open to the public and the officials invite everyone to attend. To hear the Jamboree boys tell of their experiences alone is well worth the evening. To encourage the scouts it is hoped that about 500 adults will be present to witness the ceremony.

AUXILIARY VOTES PAYMENT OF PLEDGE TO Y. M. C. A.

The monthly meeting of the auxiliary to the Y. M. C. A. was held at the Y building Tuesday. After a delicious luncheon with Mrs. Hugh B. Campbell and Miss Miriam Campbell as hostesses, the president, Mrs. William H. Dawley, opened the meeting with prayer after which the regular reports were given. In the absence of the secretary, Mrs. John B. Oat, secretary pro tem, read the report of the last board meeting, which was accepted. The report of the treasurer showed a good balance in the bank. The membership committee reported 219 members to date. The next open meeting will be in April.

Mrs. Charles T. Bard, chairman of the committee for the supper, held in January, reported the total amount cleared at the supper was $145.37.

The open meeting of the auxiliary was held in the afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. E. Higgins with a large attendance. The meeting was opened by General Secretary Edwin Hill who read a poem and followed with the prayer.

A fine report was given by Mr. Hill of the state Y. M. C. A. convention held in New Haven last month. The secretary's report of the December meeting was read, followed by the statement to date of the treasurer. Other reports were given.

On recommendation of the board it was voted to pay the pledge of $300 to the Y. After the business meeting there were solos by Mrs. Bard and several readings by Miss Amy Coggswell, which were very much enjoyed. The usual silver collection was taken. A social time followed, tea being served, Mrs. Dawley and Miss Coggswell pouring, assisted by several young women.

The suit was a scire facias action to determine if Twomey owed John B. Leary of New London $500 as alleged by the plaintiff.

Some time ago the lumber company obtained a judgment of $700 against Leary and complications in the case resulted in the suit heard Monday in the common pleas court at New London.

REGULATIONS TO PROTECT WATER SUPPLY SOURCES

Many people undoubtedly do not realize that the traveler's health is guarded by the steps taken by the United States public health service to insure safe water supplies on trains and vessels engaged in interstate traffic. In Connecticut, as in other states where state supervisory bodies such as the state department of health exist, the public health service requests that each state certify to the quality of the public water supplies from which water is taken aboard interstate carriers. The Connecticut state department of health each year furnishes such certificates on the basis of its periodic analyses and inspections of public water supplies. The following communication has just been received from the surgeon general of the United States public health service regarding cross connections between public water supply systems and impure auxiliary water supplies for industrial or other use, through which polluted water may flow into a public water supply:

To all state health officers:

Hereafter water supplies used by interstate carriers for drinking and culinary purposes will not be given a full certification if cross connections exist between that supply and any other supply; except, when such cross connection is with another potable public supply or a potable supply regularly examined by those in charge of the supply to which cross connected; and except, further, when such cross connections are equipped with modern protective devices approved by the state department of health and installed and operated under the direct control of that department. Auxiliary intakes and by-passes are considered as cross connections.

In making recommendations relative to certification of water supplies used by interstate carriers you should be guided by the above outlined policy.

H. S. CUMMING, Surgeon General.

State sanitary code regulations prohibiting dangerous cross connections were adopted in Connecticut in 1926. Definite steps were taken at that time to eliminate all such connections unless guarded by proper protective devices which are regularly inspected by the state department of health.

JUSTICE WHEELER HITS DIVORCE COURT PROCEEDINGS

Chief Justice Wheeler of the supreme court of errors is in accord with the majority of the court on the doctrine of the invalidity of a foreign divorce obtained despite the failure of the plaintiff to establish a bona fide residence in the jurisdiction granting the decree, but in the dissenting opinion he has filed in the case of the state of Connecticut against Alfred E. Cooke of Hartford, involving the latter's Reno, Nevada, divorce the chief justice attacks the method adopted by the trial court in permitting the state to obtain the information which led to Cooke's conviction on the charge of neglect and refusal to support his wife and son.

The chief justice makes what he considers the violation of the constitutional rights of the accused the chief issue in his opinion. Much more important than Cooke's punishment for the charge on which he was convicted, the opinion states, is "the maintenance of the conduct of our trials in accordance with our rules of procedure which are based on fairness and the preservation of constitutional rights which are essential to the union of our states and the individual rights of our citizens."

He states that the facts tending to show that Cooke's residence in Reno was a colorable one, were elicited almost entirely by the state or the court in the preliminary examination of Cooke before the court decided to admit into evidence the divorce decree and that, although the burden of proof is on the state, Cooke was required to give testimony tending to prove the divorce was a colorable one and thus was made to incriminate himself, in violation of the fifth amendment of the constitution.

A hearing by Referee Isaac Wolfe of New Haven, retired judge of the superior court, on the civil case brought by James K. Shaughnessy, now of Pomfret, against the Griswold Co., Eastern Point, for $15,000 for breach of contract, was in progress Tuesday at the county courthouse in New London.

The hearing was resumed at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning after having been continued from Jan. 13, at which time some of the witnesses in the case were not available.

The case was referred to Referee Wolfe some time ago after it had been subjected to several continuances in the superior court. A criminal complaint against Shaughnessy by the Griswold company for embezzlement is also still pending in the courts.

NEW PRESIDENT OF MEXICO WAS SHOT IN THE JAW BY A WOULD-BE ASSASSIN A FEW HOURS AFTER HIS INAUGURATION

Bullet Has Been Extracted—Condition of President Rubio Is Not Serious—Assailant Fired Six Shots as Presidential Party in an Automobile Passed Out at the Gate of the Imperial Palace in Mexico City—One Bullet Grazed the Face of Senora Ortiz Rubio—Another Bullet Slightly Wounded a Niece—The Would-Be Assassin is Under Arrest—Gave His Name as Miguel Flores, 22 — Was a Follower of the Defeated Candidate For the Presidency.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 5—(AP)—Pascual Ortiz Rubio, new president of Mexico, was wounded today in an unsuccessful attempt on his life. Only two hours after he had been sworn in as chief executive of the republic. The would-be assassin was arrested.

The president was shot in the jaw by one of six bullets fired by a youthful assailant who lay in wait for him at the honor gate of the national palace. Rushed first to his home, and then to the Red Cross hospital, the president was given immediate treatment for the injury.

It was found that the bullet penetrated the left jaw and lodged in the mouth. It was readily extracted. Hospital authorities said that the condition of the president was not serious.

Three of the other bullets fired at the presidential automobile found marks. One grazed the face of Senora Ortiz Rubio, wife of the president. Another slightly wounded Ofelia Ortega, small niece of the new chief executive.

The third wounded was a bystander whose identity had not been established.

The other missiles shattered the windshield of the car in which the president an dhis party were riding. His secretary, Hernandes Chazaro; his sister-in-law, Senora Ortega, whose daughter was wounded, and the chauffeur were all cut by flying glass. None of them was seriously hurt.

A small daughter of the president, who sat in the back seat with her parents, aunt and cousin, was not injured. The chauffeur and secretary were in the front seat of the vehicle.

Senor Portes Gil, who gave up the executive duties today and became minister of the interior in his successor's cabinet, confirmed the report that the president's jaw was broken but that his condition was not such as to cause any immediate anxiety. He added that all the others who were hurt were out of danger.

The bullet which grazed the president's wife cut her ear and made a slight wound in her scalp. She left the hospital for her home several minutes before her husband. Ofelia Ortega, the young niece, sustained a slight wound in the ear.

The shots rang out while an immense crowd was cheering the new president who was en route to his home after witnessing the installation of his cabinet. This ceremony took place at the national palace immediately following gala inauguration rites at the stadium where nearly 50,000 persons had assembled to see Senor Ortiz Rubio take the oath of office and to listen to his inaugural address.

From the stadium the new president had quickly made his way to the palace. The ceremonies were comparatively brief and were followed by a short cabinet meeting. It was just 3:30 p. m. when the presidential car came through the honor gate.

The roar of shooting prompted a rush by motorcycle policemen who grabbed the assailant and hurried him into the presidential palace. The crowd surged forward but the foot police and troops on duty were alert and held the populace in check.

The presidential chauffeur, with great presence of mind, kept his car going and shot between the lines of guards, disappearing toward the Ortiz Rubio home before many of the witnesses of the near tragedy could comprehend what had occurred.

The would-be assassin was questioned at once by Joaquin Amaro, who had just been sworn in as secretary of war, and by Jose Puig-Cassurano, chief of the federal district.

For a time the authorities refused to make any announcement respecting the identity or motives of the prisoner. Then they gave out his name as Daniel Flores, but later corrected this to Miguel Flores. His age was given as 22 and it was stated by the police that he had acknowledged himself a follower of Jose Vasconcelos, defeated candidate for the presidency of the anti-reelectionist party.

The significance of this latter act lay in the recent announcement by the police that they had checked a Vasconcelista plot which had for its object the assassination not only of Senor Ortiz Rubio, but also of Emilio Portes Gil, the retiring provisional president, and other officials.

The police said the plotters, like the conspirators who killed Abraham Lincoln and tried to wipe out the American Civil war cabinet, had hoped to create a condition of confusion which would permit them to seize the reins of government.

After the initial excitement over the shooting had subsided, the capital became quiet. Tonight it was almost normal, except for anxiety as to possible complications in the case of the wounded president.

One eye-witness of the shooting reported that Flores was accompanied by companions who waited near him in an automobile. But the presidential guard rushed the assailant so vigorously that the others had no opportunity to rescue him, although they took advantage of the temporary confusion to speed away in their car. There was no official confirmation of this report.

RUBIO INAUGURATED AS PRESIDENT OF MEXICO

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 5—(AP)—The second civilian in the recent history of Mexico to take over the government, Pascual Ortiz Rubio, today was inaugurated president amidst most favorable prospects for the republic's peace and prosperity in a simple, brief ceremony in the national stadium crowded with at least 50,000 spectators. As many more were massed outside listening to the new president's inaugural address which came to them through loud speakers.

President Ortiz Rubio, who took the oath at 12:26 p. m., delivered the brief inaugural speech in which he pledged his government to adhere to the principles of his revolutionary party and above all to labor for the betterment of the working classes.

As the new president and his predecessor, Provisional President Portes Gil, entered the stadium, a presidential salute of 21 guns boomed through the valley. Within a minute after Ortiz Rubio had mounted the platform in the center of the field he took the oath of office administered by Melchor Ortega, president of the joint session of congress which had convened in the stadium for the ceremony.

Former President Calles was not on the presidential platform and it was said he had not attended the inaugural because of his desire to completely retire from public life.

Reuben Clark, President Hoover's personal ambassador for the inauguration, occupied the diplomatic box nearest the presidential stand while a score or more of the new president's official guests from the United States occupied positions in the forefront. The rest fo the American visitors occupied chairs on the inaugural stand.

There was a note of friendship for the United States throughout the proceedings.

MEXICAN AUTHORITIES FEAR WIDESPREAD PLOT

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 5.—(AP)—Mexican authorities tonight gave evidence that they believed today's attempt on the life of President Ortiz Rubio was part of a widespread plot instead of being an individual attempt by Miguel Flores. By dusk, seven other persons had been arrested on orders given by the department of the interior. Their identity was not at first revealed.

WIFE BUILT UP BUSINESS WHILE HUSBAND WAS IN JAIL

NEW YORK, Feb 5.—(AP)—The wife who during the eight years that her husband was jail built up his $25,000 surgical instrument business until it brought $2,496,020 on the open market, today received $770,000 as her share from the sale of the firm under an order signed in Brooklyn supreme court.

Aside from $265,000 for attorneys and a relative, the remainder of the nearly two and a half million dollars goes to the husband, Charles G. Davis, who is now serving a 10 to 20 year manslaughter sentence in Sing Sing prison.

Arrested in 1921 on a charge of killing a detective, Davis was adjudged insane. His condition, his attorney said, was due mainly to worry over the poor condition of his business, the Davis and Beck Surgical Instrument company.

Mrs. Davis took over her husband's company after he was imprisoned. She was an excellent business woman. The firm prospered and grew.

The final chapter in the firm's history was written in the order today which approved the distribution of the proceeds.

Davis, with at least five more years of his sentence to serve, will receive a life income from $100,000 set aside for this purpose. He also receives $1,861,020 in stock from the American Cynamid company, which bought the Davis and Beck Surgical business.

The bystander, Vera Bauer, 21, has a slight bullet wound in the thigh and also is at Bellevue.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—(AP)— The first of President Hoover's recommendations to strengthen dry enforcement will be brought before the house tomorrow when consideration of the Williamson bill to transfer the prohibition bureau from the treasury to the justice department begins.

Republican leaders expect passage not later than Saturday. The chief opposition to the bill has been on the provision which makes the attorney general and the secretary of the treasury jointly responsible for the regulations governing industrial alcohol permits. Seven members of the house expenditures committee, headed by Representative Gasque, democrat, dry, of South Carolina, disapprove the provision on the ground that it would result in failure to enforce the dry laws effectively.

Missing N. Haven Man Found In Bridgeport

Max Price Was Said to Have Been Held By Band of Kidnapers For Ransom.

BRIDGEPORT, Feb. 5.—(AP)—A man who said he was Max Price, missing New Haven real estate dealer, and who police said looked like Price and "told a likely story," was being held at headquarters here tonight. He was found at the railroad station.

Shortly after midnight Train Caller Palmer at the local railroad station notified police that a man who said he was Max Price, and who had walked several miles to get to the depot, was in his custody. Palmer told police the man said he had been thrown out of an automobile some place outside this city, he did not know where.

Detectives and patrolmen were sent to the railroad station and brought the man to headquarters.

Police say the man answers every detail in the broadcast description of Max Price and that they are convinced he is the missing New Haven real estate dealer.

The man told police he had been released by his captors only on promise that he would pay them $25,000 on his return home. He said that he had been held captive in a darkened room, how long he could not tell, and that tonight he had been blindfolded, put into a car and driven for about an hour and a half. Then on his promise to pay the sum demanded, he had been thrown out of the car. He said he found himself out in the country, and from his description of the terrain and the time it took him to walk to this city, police believe he had been tossed out in Fairfield, five miles from here.

REPORT PRICE WAS BEING HELD FOR $25,000 RANSOM

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 5.—(AP)—Somewhere along the Atlantic seaboard Max Price, 62-year-old real estate dealer, tonight was believed to be in the hands of a dangerous band of kidnapers.

For the first time since his mysterious disappearance, January 28, positive information came today that he was being held for a ransom with the arrest of eight persons in New Haven, Bridgeport and New York.

The arrests followed a visit to New York last night of Abraham B. Price, a brother, with a small satchel containing a sum said to be about $20,000 with the intention of paying for the man's release. For several days, it was revealed, Price's family has received demands by letter and by telephone for money ranging as high as $75,000.

The connection of the eight under arrest, one of them a fortune teller, has not been made clear by police who refuse to discuss the case. Two are Detroit gunmen, members of the "Purple gang" alleged kidnapers.

The men, Samuel Hendel and Henry Fleisch, were arrested in a drug store in New York last night by a detective who said he overheard a telephone conversation between Hendel and someone in New Haven, concerning the kidnaping.

In New Haven, Jacob Prober, Hyman Orchowsky and Solomon Bodek were taken into custody. Shifting the scene to Bridgeport, police picked up Madame Emma Delmater, who in 1921 figured prominently in the Nott murder case, as a close friend of Mrs. George Nott, now serving a life term for her husband's murder; Isaac L. Katzman and Morton Lessner.

Price's brother, Abraham, it was understood, went to New York last night to meet representatives of the gang. He was accompanied by Assistant City Attorney Nelson R. Durant.

The meeting, however, fell through when a "plant" in a New Haven station saw Durant in company with Price.

Hendel and Fleisch admitted that they had been promised $2,000 to do a "job," but were non-commital on the Price kidnaping.

The New Haven Register, in a copyrighted story today, said that Orchowsky suggested to Abraham Price that he consult a fortune teller to solve the disappearance of his brother who was last seen near his home. Price, the paper said, called on Madame Delmater, who told him that Max was being held near Hackensack, N. J. by a dangerous gang who would kill the man if their demands for a ransom were not met.

Price, it was said then visited the "dive" described by the woman, but failed to find his brother.

Those arrested here were held under technical charges of idleness for investigation. It is believed that they are actively connected with the abduction, or have knowledge of the band which has flooded the Price home with threatening letters and telephone calls.

Wife Involved In Slaying Of Husband

Los Angeles Authorities Have Ordered Search For Missing Mrs. Hazel Glab.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 5.—(AP)—Deputy District Attorney Wayne Jordan, acting on information given him by a prisoner, ordered an intensive search today for Mrs. Hazel Glab, and an unnamed man for questioning about the recent slaying of her husband, John Glab, a wealthy druggist, formerly of Chicago.

Jordan said he had been told Mrs. Glad offered money "to have her husband killed."

Jordan said the prisoner, George A. Davis, told him he knew Mrs. Glad paid W. R. McIntyre, former policeman who is in jail on a hit and run driving charge, $500 "to keep his mouth shut" and made another offer of $500 to have her husband "bumped off."

SEVEN SLAYINGS IN WEEK BY GUNMEN IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Feb. 5—(AP)—The mad symphony of gunmen killers played on today with deadly staccato notes. One man was wounded, another died of yesterday's wounds. Score for one week: Seven dead, two hovering on the brink of death.

Phillip Meagher, 35, superintendent for a construction company, stood watching men work on a South Side building. Two men in a small coupe drove near him. Meagher fell with a fusilade of shots in his back. The motive was unknown tonight, but terrorists were suspected.

William Healy, seventh target of gunmen in the week's terror, died in a hospital after naming his assailants—three racketeers. He quarreled with them in a beer flat early yesterday, he said. There were two of them shot him.

Officials and police adopted extraordinary patrol measures.

The state's attorney ordered his assistants to obtain indictments for guntoting against any gangsters that could be picked up. Chief Municipal Court Justice Olson urged insanity proceedings to isolate racketeers and gunmen for life.

First to feel the wrath of the state's attorney in his attempt to drive gangsters from the metropolis will be Jack McGurn (once accused in the Valentine day massacre), Danny Stanton, Tony Accardo and Frank Diamond.

The prosecutor said indictments charging them with carrying concealed weapons will be returned as soon as possible.

The only actual murder charges to grow out of the present flare, it appeared, will be lodged against Jack Neville, George "Monk" Campion and Jerry Cotter, the men named by the dying Healy.

DOLORES SALAZAR CLAIMS FAKE "MARRIAGE CEREMONY"

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 5.—(AP)—Dolores Salazar, Spanish dancer and actress, testified today in her suit for $30,000 damages against Ferdinand Pinney "Affinity" Earle for alleged breach of contract that the artist took her to a church in the outskirts of Mexico City in 1927 where a "fake marriage ceremony" was performed.

"I thought it was a real marriage," the dancer said, "but it was a fake ceremony. There was a priest there—apparently part Mexican and part Indian—dressed in a black robe and wearing the usual clerical collar. He read the ceremony and I signed what I thought was a marriage certificate. Later I learned it was simply a worthless piece of paper. I also signed a book in which were recorded the names of persons married there."

The suit alleged that Earle promised Miss Salazar work in a motion picture he was producing and a $15,000 bank account as a pledge of good faith. The actress said she waited at a bank while Earle was inside supposedly depositing the money in her name. She said later she found he had made no deposit.

Earle, who was married two years ago, now lives in Paris with his fifth wife. He will testify by deposition. Pending the result of the suit Miss Salazar's attorneys have attached Earle's Hollywood property.

Detective Mahoney and Detective James Kane had been given a warrant for Achinelli's arrest on order of Commissioner of Correction Kieb. The two detectives trailed him to the home of relatives in South Ozone park, near Jamaica.

Police records showed Achinelli was sentenced to Sing Sing for burglary and a series of payroll holdups.

PRESIDENT HOOVER FINDS W. H. TAFT VERY CHEERFUL

The President and Mrs. Hoover Chatted Several Minutes With Former Chief Justice, Who Was Sitting Up—Physicians Report That Mr. Taft Has Rested Quietly, Has Taken Nourishment and Is "Maintaining Improvement."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—(AP)—Displaying recuperative powers which surprise even his doctors, William Howard Taft, who is dangerously ill at his home here, was able today to receive a visit from his friend, President Hoover.

The chief executive and the sick man who once held the presidency and only a few days ago relinquished the office of chief justice of the United States, were together only a few minutes. There was a lingering handclasp as they parted.

Mr. Taft, for whose ultimate recovery physicians have little hope, was sitting up and cheerful when the president called. Mr. Hoover took his hand and greeted him with a smile and an expression of gratification that he was feeling better.

The former president smiled and feebly expressed his pleasure at the visit, the first the two had had since before Mr. Taft entered a hospital here early last month for treatment and later left for Asheville, North Carolina, for three weeks of rest.

The president remained in the room only a short time, exchanging a few words with the sick man. As he took his departure, he again clasped Mr. Taft's right hand, holding it a little longer than would be customary in the case of an ordinary hand shake.

Accompanied only by Mrs. Hoover and secret service men, Mr. Hoover drove to the Taft home on Wyoming avenue late in the afternoon. He remained for about a quarter of an hour. The visit was at the invitation of Mrs. Taft, extended during the forenoon after the physicians had found their patient to be in better condition than they had hoped for.

Mrs. Taft greeted the President and Mrs. Hoover and introduced them to the doctors, Francis R. Hagner and Thomas A. Claytor, who had arrived earlier.

The doctors and Mr. Taft's secretary accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Hoover to the sick room. Mrs. Hoover soon joined Mrs. Taft in a room nearby. The president met them there later and expressed to Mrs. Taft his hope that the former chief justice would continue to show improvement.

A small police detail was at the Taft home, a three story red brick structure located in a large plot on a corner. Only a few persons, besides photographers and newspapermen, were gathered nearby during the visit, and the photographers were instructed that there would be no pictures of the visit.

Long intimate friends of Mr. and Mrs. Taft, the President and Mrs. Hoover frequently had visited the Taft home in the days before they took up their residence in the white house. The president has valued the friendship of Mr. Taft and at times leaned upon the former chief justice for advice and counsel.

Several hours after the departure of the president, physicians attending Mr. Taft said he had "maintained the improvement noted this morning, has rested quietly and has taken more nourishment."

The bulletin was made public at the white house.

After an unusually restful night—the first under his own roof in weeks—Mr. Taft awoke today feeling much better than on yesterday when he arrived from Asheville in a state almost bordering on collapse. During some of the day he was able to sit up in an easy chair.

While Mr. Taft's condition showed some improvement over night, physicians had given up all hope of curing the complication of diseases from which he is suffering. The two sons of 72-year-old former president, Charles P., and Robert A. Taft, are preparing to come to Washington.

EIGHTH ANNIVERSARY TODAY OF POPE PIUS XI

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 5—(AP)—Eight years ago this afternoon, a thin column of black smoke was wafted upward from one of the chimneys in the Vatican palace to a waiting throng outside. It signified that the College of Cardinals, assembled in secret conclave to elect a successor to the late Pope Benedict XV, had not yet been able to make a choice.

Eight years ago tomorrow, however, a wisp of white smoke arose from the same chimney. Shortly thereafter Cardinal Vanutelli, dean of the "senate of the Catholic church," appeared on the balcony above St. Peter's central gates and said, in Latin:

"I announce to you a great joy; we have a pope; His Eminence Achille Ratti—upon whom the name has been imposed of Pius XI." the rest of his history-making declaration was lost in the cheers.

Thus it was that Pope Pius XI, "dark horse" during the conclave, having been a cardinal and archbishop of Milan for only eight months, was raised to the throne of St. Peter. Immediately after the cardinal-dean's pronouncement, the new pope appeared in person on the balcony, and there gave his first benediction "Urbi et Orbi" (to the city and the world).

BRITAIN AND U. S. WOULD ABOLISH SUBMARINES

LONDON, Feb. 5—(AP)—Whipped into action by the heads of the American, British and French delegations, the naval conference tonight decided to hold a public plenary session Tuesday morning that will challenge the very right to existence of submarines.

With navy tonnage systems, battleships and cruisers already under discussion its conference thus by next week will extend its work over the whole range of war craft.

Great Britain, supported by the United States, will seek total abolition of submarines. Ranged against these powers will be France, and Japan, champions of undersea craft as "the poor man's battleship."

France will likely counter the Anglo-American stand, with new texts for a treaty humanizing submarine warfare, the essence of which is the proposed banning of their use against merchantmen, food ships and other non-combatants.

MILITARY OFFICER TO ENFORCE DRY LAW IN D. OF C.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5. — (AP) — Presiednt Hoover today selected from the nation's military service its chief of cavalry to undertake enforcement of law in the District of Columbia.

In choosing Major General Herbert B. Crosby for appointment as district commissioner in charge of the police and fire departments, the chief executive said it would be a guarantee "to the nation at large that the capital of the nation shall be free of organized crime."

The new commissioner will take office next month after his retirement from the army. Although only 58 years old, he has been in the army 37 years and served in the Philippines, on the Mexican border and in the World war. For nearly four years he has been chief of cavalry and enjoys a wide reputation as a disciplinarian.

TO ENDEAVOR SELL $54,000,000 CHICAGO TAX WARRANTS

CHICAGO, Feb. 5.—(AP)—Just as it appeared that Chicago's impoverished governments would have to turn to the citizens' rescue committee to bring the community out of its financial tangle, H Wallace Caldwell, president of the school board, left on a hurried trip to New York bent on selling $54,000,000 worth of tax warrants to eastern capitalists.

Mr. Caldwell already had a representative in New York negotiating for the sale and had said he would not go east unless assured it would not be a futile trip. His hurried departure, therefore, was taken as an indication that he would make a deal.

INDIAN CHIEF SENTENCES SELF FOR DRUNKENNESS

BONNERS, Idaho, Feb. 5.—(AP) — Charlie Isador today resumed the feathered coronet of chief of the Kootenai Indians. Having lost the respect of his people, he won it again by sentencing himself to the cat-o-nine-tails.

Charlie, descendant of a long line of chieftains, was deposed last fall by tribesmen who charged him with drunkenness and debauchery. David was made chief.

Last week, Charlie with two others was engaged in a drinking and stabbing bout when Antone Vales, Indian policeman arrested them. They were brought before Chief David.

At the bar of judgment Charlie hazily remembered that his forefathers dispensed justice, instead of receiving punishment, then he drew himself up, folded his arms and stood beside David.

"It is I, Chief Isador," he announced, "who will name the penalty for these offenders. I sentence thee, Louis White and Alec Pierre, to seven days work on the wood pile and digging trenches."

Then he threw back his head and shouted:

"And Charlie Isador, I sentence thee to 35 lashes of the whip."

David had stepped aside. Charlie bared his swarthy back and did not flinch from the 35 bloody lashes. Then he said:

"Charlie Isador sentences himself to twice 35 lashes should he ever again drink the white man's fire water."

SUCCEEDED IN SLASHING DUTIES ON CHEMICALS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—(AP)—The democrats and republican independents who, with few exceptions, have held the whip hand in the senate revision of industrial tariffs, succeeded today in slashing six chemical duties below the level of existing law, restoring five levies to their present status, and cutting one proposed increase in half.

The coalition suffered three reverses, however, as the republican old guard, strengthened by half a dozen bolting democrats, came back to stem the tide of downward revision.

The day proved one of the most dramatic and busiest of the five months the senate has wrestled with the house tariff bill. Finished with more than 400 committee amendments, the first of the fifteen rate sections of the measure was opened to individual changes and they came fast.

Nine roll calls were required to settle as many disputes that would not down via the viva voce route.

Although assured by democratic leaders that the minority party did not propose to "run wild" with reduction proposals but would confine its rate cutting to articles where importations were negligible, Senator Watson, of Indiana, the republican leader, arranged for a conference tomorrow to map out a program for future action with respect to coalition proposals and to determine the attitude toward final passage of the measure.

LINDBERGH PREDICTS SUCCESS OF GLIDERS

LINDBERGH CAMP, Tehachapi Mountains, Calif., Feb. 5.—(AP)— The popular use of motorless airplanes because of their safety features was foreseen here today by Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, who with Hawley Bowlus of San Diego, Calif., champion American glider pilot has established a camp in this mountain range to experiment with them.

In testing this flight theory, Colonel Lindbergh explained that he and Bowlus had chosen this spot for their experiments because it presented the greatest difficulties for successful flight. He said he believed that if gliders could fly safely under the conditions extent here, then they can fly anywhere."

Colonel Lindbergh said he hoped to demonstrate the ease of piloting a glider and prove that this type of ship is far less hazardous than flying powered airplanes.

Improvements to library conditions in the city are many and urgent, it was indicated in a talk given by Mrs. Belle Holcomb Johnson of the state public library committee of Hartford at the regular meeting of the Woman's club Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Johnson took as her subject, Willimantic's Library Needs. Outstanding requirements of a good library situation included its location as near the business center as possible, adequate space for books, reading rooms and for reference work and a financial support of $1 per capita, minimum, and five volumes per capita. A report on local conditions showed that Willimantic failed in practically all of these library needs and facilities. Mrs. Johnson's talk before the Woman's club is in line with a strong movement of the chamber of commerce and other organizations to better library conditions in the city. One of the proposals under consideration is for the transfer of the public library from its present small quarters in the town building to the large hall now occupied by the G. A. R. and other patriotic organizations. A number of city officials are said to favor this plan. The library has been located in its present quarters for some 30 years.

The offense with which McGuinnes was charged was committed about three years ago. It was his third conviction in the courts on the charge of driving while drunk. McGuinnes, while driving his car through West Stafford Dec. 26, 1926, ran into another car and without ascertaining the nature of the injuries to the car made his escape. A petition has been circulated among the property owners in Stafford and presented to the selectmen for a special town meeting, that the recent increase in property values may be discussed. The dissatisfaction with the values as fixed by the revaluation board continues to grow. The board of relief is swamped with applications for reductions and each day seems to bring forth more complaints about the revised lists. A committee representing the manufacturers met with the board of relief Monday afternoon and presented arguments which they believe should result in greatly reduced values being placed on their property, as well as on the goods which they have on hand. This Nurse Just Couldn't Stop Coughing

Specialists Didn't Help

It takes more than ordinary sweet, syrupy cough mixtures to stop a stubborn cough that persists in hanging on.

For slight ordinary coughs almost any decent cough syrup will do, but if you have one of those tough ones that won't yield to common remedies and often keeps you awake at night then your one best bet is Bronchuline Emulsion.

Often one half bottle forces the most stubborn cough to yield and you are better almost before you know it.

There is no sugar, chloroform or dope in Bronchuline Emulsion; it's a wonderful medicine for people who are getting over a heavy cold or an attack of Flu.

A New York nurse just couldn't stop coughing even after consulting specialists yet one half bottle of Bronchuline Emulsion did stop it—completely.

Ask Lee and Osgood or any good dealer for a bottle—often three or four doses will stotp an ordinary cough.

DANIELSON

TWO FINED FOR SELLING INSURANCE WITHOUT LICENSE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Feb. 5—Henry J. Devlin and Fred J. Kemplin, both of Providence, were fined $150 each and costs when presented before Judge W. Fenner Woodward in the town court this morning to answer in each instance to soliciting insurance without a license.

The arrest of Devlin and Kemplin followed an investigation of their activities in this town and a conference between Joseph Marise of the state insurance commissioner's office and Lieut. Ross V. Urquhart and Sergeant George L. Gardner of the Danielson state police.

This morning Devlin and Kemplin pleaded nolle contendere. They were represented by Attorney Archibald Macdonald of Putnam.

It appears that the pair had sold 41 policies hereabouts, and numbers of those who bought them were under the impression that the policies protected them with liability insurance in case of accident. As a matter of fact, the policies afforded no such protection. What the buyers received was a sort of a certificate, far from being a standard liability insurance policy. Devlin and Kemplin operated under the name of the Motorists' Protective association, but Prosecuting Attorney Arthur G. Bill said today that their arrangement was in effect a partnership.

Devlin and Kemplin have been selling their proposition for $13, of which amount $4 usually was collected as a first payment. Examination of the bond-like certificate they issued shows that it provides for the assured to be entitled to road service, towing, presumably, to an amount not exceeding $5 yearly, and bail bond. It so happens that bail bonds are not required in motor vehicle cases in Connecticut, except in such instances as a driver is found operating a car while under the influence of an intoxicant, and the form that Devlin and Kemplin issued to their subscribers specifically exempts their concern in such cases.

Devlin and Kemplin were practically without funds when arrested and spent last night in custody here. They do not even own the car with which they have been operating. They could not pay their fines this morning, and were being held here today while trying to raise money in Providence to bring about their release.

It appears that there is little chance that anyone who purchased what may be called a policy from them will get any money back. In official circles it was pointed out today that the state frowns particularly on the sort of activity for which Devlin and Kemplin were fined, and the inference is that insurance of any sort for cars should be bought through recognized agents of standard and established companies.

Commissioner Robert T. Hurley, head of the Connecticut state police department, will come here Sunday evening to address a mass meeting to be held at the Westfield Congregational church under the auspices of the evangelical churches of Danielson. It is understood that he will discuss law enforcement, a subject now very much in the public mind throughout the nation. Building of a better Danielson will be the general topic of the meeting.

Ann Elizabeth Boller, 81, a native of this town, died during the early hours of this morning at the home of her nephew, Grover Miller, in Moosup. Before her marriage Mrs. Boller was Miss Ann E. Adams, and she was a resident in the Ballouville section of the town.

At a session of the town court this morning Fred J. Billodeau of Stearns street was fined, after pleading guilty, $2, for operating a car with defective brakes. With the costs the assessment against him amounted to $12.50. Billodeau was the operator of the car that ran down George Leeanna in Main street Sunday afternoon shortly after 2 o'clock. John Gartland, one time a resident here, was sent to jail for 30 days on an intoxication charge.

Reports indicate that there is a seasonal amount of unemployment in Danielson, though Killingly is more fortunate than many towns as to the activities of its manufacturing plants. As is the case every winter, there are some homes in outlying sections of the town in which there is want, but these, after proper investigation, receive the necessary assistance.

Constable Louis S. Barstow is gradually whittling down the list of delinquent personal taxpayers. While firmness is now the rule in dealing with those who have not paid this tax, care also is being exercised to check carefully all claims that might, for one reason or another, exempt a person from paying.

An interesting feature of last evening's meeting of the chamber of commerce was the address by Charles F. Charon dealing with a finance board in town government. Mr. Charon told his auditors of how such a board functioned with great success while he was a resident of Baltic and a selectman, and how the debt was very materially reduced without increasing the tax rate. The members decided to hold the usually semi-annual Dollar day, relative to which announcements will be made in the near future.

GRAND MASTER DARBIE HAS BEEN LONG LOCAL RESIDENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Feb. 5—Attorney Elbert L. Darbie, who this afternoon was elected Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Connecticut, A. F. and A. M., is a native of Danielson and a life long resident here. He was raised in Moriah lodge, No. 15, of Danielson, June 6, 1906, and was made master of the lodge in 1914. He was appointed a district deputy in 1922 and grand junior steward in 1923, and in the succeeding years has filled various grand offices, having been deputy grand master in 1929.

After six years of studying law in the office of Attorney Harry E. Back, Mr. Darbie was admitted to the bar in 1913. In 1915 he was elected a burgess of the borough of Danielson and was twice re-elected. As a member of the legislature in 1923, from Killingly, he served on the judiciary committee. During the 1925 session he was speaker of the house and in 1927 was the senator from this district.

In addition to being well known in legal, legislative and Masonic circles Attorney Darbie has a wide-spread acquaintance among the military men of the state. He has been a member of the national guard for many years, at the present time having the rank of major and being in command of the special troops of the 43d division. Attorney Darbie is counsel for both the town of Killingly and the borough of Danielson.

It could not be recalled by members of the Masonic fraternity here today whether Attorney Darbie is the first member of Moriah lodge to be elevated to the Grand Mastership of the Grand Lodge of Connecticut, but the impression was that he is the first.

Pupils in the schools of Killingly are going to lose out on one regular winter holiday this year because Washington's birthday comes on Saturday.

The annual inspection of the Headquarters detachment stationed at the state armory is scheduled for Friday evening.

Local members of the Order of Amaranth will take part in a social event to be held at Moosup at an early date in the interest of the organization.

At nightfall today there was no longer need of worry over an ample supply of ice for Danielson for the remainder of the year. Splendid ice has been stored at the Hygeia reservoir near East Killingly.

Over 1600 telephones are listed in the new directories now in use in the Danielson division, this being a considerable increase over the number in the last directory.

Members of the board of relief for the town were again in session today and have seven more sessions scheduled for the present and the coming two weeks.

Workmen have been engaged during the present week in making repairs in the belfry of the Westfield Congregational church.

MAYOR RICHARD SERIOUSLY ILL WITH PNEUMONIA

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Feb. 5.—Mayor Charles A. Richard is seriously ill at his home on Main street, suffering from what is believed to be pneumonia, according to a report received this evening from the chief executive's sick room. Mayor Richard, it was learned today, has been suffering from a slight cold for more than a week. While officiating at the monthly session of the common council last evening Mayor Richard showed no sign of illness.

He remained in the council chamber until the adjournment of the meeting at 10:30 o'clock. Shortly after leaving the city hall the mayor was taken with chills and had to be assisted to his home. A doctor who is attending the mayor visited his patient three times today but tonight was unable to state the exact cause of the mayor's illness, he expecting to have a diagnosis of the case Thursday.

When asked the condition of her husband, Mrs. Richard said, "He is a very sick man."

PARKING SITUATION TO BE AIRED AT PUBLIC MEETING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Feb. 5.—Alderman Robert T. Chadwick's assertion that the council will not enact traffic and parking ordinances that will reflect adverse public criticism on the city council, made at Tuesday evening's session of the city governing body resulted in the calling of a public meeting to be held next Tuesday evening at the chamber of commerce rooms, Union block, at which time members of the council, city merchants and all others interested will be given an opportunity to express their views on the many times debated parking situation in the business section streets.

Alderman Chadwick's report to the council regarding the progress made to date was one of the major subjects discussed. The ordinance committee, after making a survey of the present conditions, recommends the institution of one-hour parking between the hours of 8 a. m. and 7 p. m., inclusive, on practically all of the thoroughfares in the trading center. It was also suggested that Canal street be made a one-way street with entrance on Pomfret street. Mr. Chadwick stated that in the opinion of the committee this method is about the only solution of the situation, although candidly, the committee feels their version will encounter stiff opposition. In a somewhat heated expression Mr. Chadwick who has borne a large share of the criticism for his part in regulating of traffic, said, "It's getting to be a case of, damned if you do and damned if you don't and I'm getting sick of it."

Verbally, the republican and democratic factions of the council came to blows last evening when the matter of letting the municipal contract for transporting prisoners to the county jail came up. The democrats, who are in the minority, opposed the proposition of the Providence Street 20 Cent Taxi Co., low bidders, whose bid received the endorsement of the police committee in a motion by Alderman John Dean. The four democratic members expressed a "nay" vote. When asked why they opposed the committee's recommendation, Alderman Edward Duffy voiced several reasons, one of which was that in his opinion, the low bidding organization was not equipped in man power to adequately discharge the duties of a taxi-driving constable, in whose care prisoners are committed, during their ride to the jail. Alderman Frank Vadnais, democrat, moved that the matter be voted on by a secret ballot. In this way the democrats, it was said, intended to enlist the support of a republican member of the council, thereby gaining a majority. The motion of Mr. Vadnais was denied, the republicans winning by the oral vote. The bid of the Providence street taxi concern was $2.50 per trip for one, two or three passengers, and 50 cents for each additional prisoner. Charles A. Ryan of the independent service was second lowest with a bid of $3 per trip for one to six prisoners. Alphonse Dumas, who has discharged the duties for the past two years, was high bidder with a figure of $4 for one to six prisoners.

Reports of activities of the municipal departments for the year ending Dec. 31, 1929, were read, approved and ordered printed in the municipal register. The report of the water department, submitted by Ralph E. Thurston, chairman of the board of water commissioners, showed the net earnings of the department to be $15,000, with allowances for depreciation being $8,000.

With approving of bills for the current month a motion was in order for adjournment until Tuesday evening, Feb. 18, when the council will convene to compile the annual budget.

City to Illuminate Clock

The electrically illuminated clock at St. Mary's church in the future is to be lighted at the expense of the city, according to a motion passed at the February meeting of the council Tuesday evening. Alderman J. M. Dean of the street lighting committee stated that Rev. U. O. Bellerose, pastor of the church, has been interviewed and was agreeable to the proposition that the city assume the expense of lighting the clock. The church, the councilman said, will install a special cable running from the street outlet to the spire. The approximate cost entailed in this project will be about $100 yearly, it was said.

St. Mary's church is the only building in the city to possess an electrically illuminated time piece. The council seemed interested in a similar clock for the tower of the Second Congregational church on Main street, being agreeable to provide the electricity in the event the church officers decided upon electrifying the dials of the well known "town clock." Ray C. Bosworth, an official of the church, informed the council that no action has been taken on the matter as yet.

In the Danielson column of The Bulletin, there appears a news item telling in detail the activities of a group of insurance agents who have been operating in this territory without state licenses. Two men, Henry Devlin and Fred Kemplin, both of Providence, R. I., were arrested in this city yesterday afternoon by Patrolman Joseph Page of the local police. They were detained at the police station and later turned over to Sergeant George L. Gardner of the state police barracks at Danielson, for arraignment in town court in Danielson this morning.

The Putnam fire alarm system, maintained under the supervision of Superintendent of Fire Alarms Charles T. Thayer, is in the "pink" of condition, according to a report submitted to Warren S. Ames, chairman of the fire committee, by Edward L. Pinkerton, an inspector of the Gamewell Fire Alarm system, who caused a rigid inspection of the fire alarm equipment to be made last month. The report of Mr. Pinkerton classed the Putnam system in the group of high rated fire alarm systems of New England. It is indeed gratifying for property owners to know that the most important faculty of the fire department is in such an excellent condition. Superintendent Thayer was complimented by Mayor Richard Tuesday evening for his diligent efforts.

The west side of the city, including the business section, was in darkness for several minutes Tuesday evening between 10:15 and 11 o'clock when an open circuit in the network of power lines occurred. Only the wires furnishing power for the street fixtures were grounded. Linemen of the Connecticut Light & Power Co. worked diligently through a heavy rain to restore light to that section of the city affected. The trouble was remedied before 11 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Nikoloff of Pomfret street will leave the latter part of this week for a few weeks' stay in Florida.

The Athletic association of Putnam high school, following a trail blazed by the students of Killingly high school, Danielson, today protested to Principal Chapman of Plainfield high school, Thomas Lang's participation in the basketball activities of a semi-professional Plainfield court team known as the "Buddies." Lang is a member of the Plainfield high school quintet and, according to rules of the Eastern Connecticut Basketball league, of which both schools are members, cannot represent his school in any league games. Coach Lauriston F. Noyes said this afternoon that while the local association disapproves of the Plainfield player's association with the professional team, Putnam will play off its remaining games with Plainfield high, but will do so under protest.

C. C. "Chan" Talbot, proprietor of the Putnam News Co., is confined to his home on Mechanics street, suffering from a slight illness.

Chief R. E. Thurston of the fire department has returned from a four days' visit to New York city, where he attended a conference of managers and salesmen of the electric refrigeration division of the General Motors Co. Mr. Thurston is superintendent of the local division of the Connecticut Light & Power Co.

REV. WM. A. KEEFE DEATH SOURCE OF SORROW TO MANY

It was with sincere regret that the many local friends of Rev. William A. Keefe read of his death in the Wednesday Evening Record. Both in the Catholic parish and out of it, the distinguished clergyman had a long list of friends in Jewett City, who will feel genuine sorrow that he has been taken away. Within his fine personality there seemed to be included all the attributes that go to make up, not only a Christian gentleman, but a true and sincere friend. As a pulpit orator and representative of the Catholic clergy, few there are who have attained his high place of excellence.

Ear Tubal Deafness Successfully Treated by Simple Home Method

The Results of Over 40 Years' Experience of a Specialist

Phenomenal success has attended this home treatment. More than 500,000 cases of deafness, head noises due to ear tubal catarrh and ordinary nasal catarrh have used this method in all sections of the country and out of this number a huge number have reported complete satisfaction.

Most of these sufferers have been people whose hearing was bad in one ear and was rapidly getting bad in the other. With every cold, the hearing grew worse. This condition was relieved for many; relieved not only for the time, but their catarrhal condition was bettered and in many cases all traces of the disease disappeared.

Deafness strikes at all—old and young—and this home treatment has been used by people of all ages. By this method many who were apparently destined to go through life with the handicap of impaired hearing were made normal once more.

Tells of Development

Years ago the late Dr. Coffee himself began to suffer with head noises, dullness of hearing and with catarrh. He was rapidly losing his hearing. It was bad in one ear and with every cold it would get bad in the other. Slowly but surely his hearing appeared to be leaving him. He naturally tried every treatment that he knew of, as deafness in his profession would have been fatal to his success. After a great loss of time and when two operations had failed to give permanent relief he calmed his fears and began to analyze the cause and effect of the trouble.

Basing his treatment on the results of this study he evolved a system which he believed would remove the handicap of deafness if anything would. There was nothing magical about it. It was a logical scientific treatment and within a short time he began to improve. After some time, he was practically normal again.

Treatment Sent to Thousands

Acquaintances and friends of the doctor's inquired as to the treatment and soon he was overwhelmed with requests for the method. To treat this number of people in time allotted to office hours would have been impossible; and so he started to develop a home treatment. After careful consideration he effected a course which he believed to be effective. He allowed a number to try it at home, without the assistance of a physician, and found that they could do the work with almost the efficiency and the good results that a doctor could.

To prove that this treatment is effective—that deafness, dullness of hearing and head noises from ear tubal catarrh, and nasal catarrh can be treated and relieved at home, free trial home treatments will be sent to sufferers on request.

Thousands Recommend Dr. Coffee's Treatment

Don't miss this chance to make the acquaintance of this logical and purely medical treatment. A treatment, the worth of which is attested by so many who have written of their relief.

Slowly and carefully it was developed — until at last, after many thorough, painstaking tests, Dr. Coffee was convinced that he had the best treatment, the most effective course he had ever found. Its success in the past proves that it accomplishes its purpose.

Deaf Since Childhood; Hearing Greatly Benefited This Way

Chronic and Acute Deafness Ends

Mrs. Mona McBride, of Illinois, says: "This is to certify that since having scarlet fever when a little girl, I have been hard of hearing, and for the past four or five years I have been almost entirely deaf. A few months ago my left ear began to discharge. I found it to be abscessed and discharging a foul fluid. Nothing seemed to stop it and finally I tried Dr. Coffee's treatment. To my surprise and delight the hearing in the ear which was partially deaf for nearly 20 years has returned and the abscess has healed. Now I can hear a conversation six feet away. I didn't believe it possible, and I certainly advise anyone suffering with deafness to try this treatment. I obtained relief in a short time."

Mrs. A. A. R. of Middlebranch, Ohio: Just a few lines to let you know that your free trial treatment has done me lots of good. I can hear with my ears and the head noises are all gone now and I feel better. I want to thank you for the benefits I have received. I will tell it to people I know of with head noises and nasal catarrh. Your medicine is very good.

THIS PHOTOGRAPH ILLUSTRATES HOW YOU WILL FEEL WHEN RELIEVED OF DEAFNESS AND CATARRH

Yours very truly,
D. H. Carpenter,

Head Noises Gone.

"I was remarkably benefited by your treatments. I have been troubled for years with violent head noises and finally a friend advised me to try your method; he sent for the treatment himself. I noticed improvement at once, and now I am well."

Mr. C. McGinnes,
Pennsylvania.

"I am writing this letter in reply to the one that I received from you. Your treatment has certainly done wonders for me. I can't find words to express my thanks. I will recommend your treatment wherever I go. If you wish to publish this letter you have my permission to do so."

Mamie A. Chapman.

"I had been suffering with catarrh for seven years and tried a great many remedies, but did not find anything that helped me until I got hold of Dr. Coffee's. Can say after taking the treatment I noticed a change for the better inside of a week. I will recommend your treatment to anyone who has catarrh."

Deafness Due to Catarrh Of The Air Passages

According to authorities who base their assertions on years of research and actual medical observation and practice, a very large percentage of the deafness in the world today is due to catarrh—ear tubal catarrh.

Not only is ear tubal catarrh, which is really a development of nasal catarrh, blamed for deafness, but at its door are laid many other diseases, such as stomach catarrh, poisoned conditions of the body, and a generally diseased condition.

This May Be Relieved

This condition may be relieved. Dr. W. O. Coffee, a specialist in the Middle West for many years, developed a home treatment for deafness, head noises from ear tubal catarrh, and catarrh itself. Through this method, it is possible to remedy the catarrhal condition in many cases and make hearing practically normal once more. It has been proved that in many cases this is true.

Improvement General

Physicians state, authoritatively, too, that in these cases doubtless other diseased conditions were combated and relieved by the defeat of catarrh; for it no longer poured its daily portion of poison into the human system and the body was no longer required to use a great portion of its strength in throwing off this poison. As a result it was better able to combat new disease and the general physical condition was bettered in addition to the relief given for deafness.

Dr. Coffee's Home Treatment for Deafness has been used by over 500,000 persons. It should benefit you likewise provided you are not totally deaf from disease or from shock, or from any cause where the hearing apparatus has been broken down.

Some Case Reports

Mr. M. L. J., of Detroit, Mich.: Dear Sirs: For fifteen years I suffered from catarrh of the nose, head and throat. Suffered with head noises and deafness. I used your treatment and I am cured. I highly recommend it to every one who suffers with catarrh.

Mr. and Mrs. L. A. T. of Cootes Store, Va.: Dear Sir: We should have written you sooner. Your medicine certainly has proved to do as you said. Our son is cured entirely of his head and ear trouble. It isn't necessary for another treatment.

Mr. D. L. S. of Saint Michaels, Md.: Dear Sir: Have used practically all the medicine with a great result. Do not think it necessary to use more as my catarrhal trouble is about vanished and can hear almost normal. Do not know how to thank you for such a kind deed.

Offensive Catarrhal Conditions Relieved By Home Remedy!

Young and Old Have Received Some Remarkable Benefits from This Treatment

An Effective Means of Combating a Loathesome Condition

Without doubt, nasal catarrh is the most offensive of all diseases; it disgusts and nauseates all who may be within hearing. The constant hacking, sniffling and stifled mouth breathing — the mucous discharge, which can only be eliminated by blowing the nose or by continual spitting, is sickening to all who are near.

Surely anyone can recognize catarrh by the constant discharge of that filthy, disease-laden mucous. And realizing what frightful impurities are carried by this germ-filled catarrhal fluid, no one should permit such a condition to continue—especially when so simple and effective a means of combating it may be tried without cost or obligation.

Over 500,000 Cases Treated

This remedy has been tried by sufferers from catarrh, deafness and head noises in practically all of the English-speaking countries of the world. In fact, the demand has been so great that it has been necessary for the Dr. W. O. Coffee Co. to open a branch office in Canada in order to take care of deaf and catarrh sufferers in the Canadian Provinces. If this treatment can produce splendid results for these people, why don't you try it? Just sent coupon which appears on this page.

Now, don't lay this aside with the intentions of sending the coupon tomorrow. It may slip your mind and with it will go an opportunity to test absolutely free of cost a catarrh treatment declared by many to be the most effective and gratifying they have ever used.

No matter how long you have suffered or how many so-called "remedies" you have tried in desperation, you are urged to try this treatment originated by a physician of more than 45 years' experience. You will be glad you did so.

Treated Successfully at 80 Years

"I used the medicine you sent me and have been completely cured. I am 80 years of age and you can use my name and this letter as you see fit, but I am very thankful for your medicine as it has cured me and I think Dr. Coffee's treatment is great."

GET THE RIGHT MEN

Under its new city manager, Cleveland and its city government is going to remain in the eyes of the people of that city and those of others who happen to be interested in such experiments. The change in the managership has not been accompanied by any change in the form of government. It is a case of seeing what will be accomplished with a new man at the helm, whether it will be possible to get along with less politics and whether many of those conditions which have been held to be objectionable will disappear.

It is the contention of those who are backing the manager form of government that it is not the form but the administration that has been at fault. That is, of course, the excuse offered under any form of government. It is insisted that it makes little difference what the form of government is, provided it is of a reasonably recent vintage, so long as the right men are placed in office.

That, in the case of Cleveland, puts plenty of responsibility upon the voters in the choice of men for the council. Then the responsibility rests upon the council to get the right kind of a man for manager and then comes the struggle to get the proper cooperation between the council and the manager, with politics whittled to the vanishing point by both and the welfare of the city kept prominently to the front.

If we can judge by the votes which have been cast in the efforts to return to the old form of party government, the people of Cleveland continue to favor the manager-council form, though the majority is not an impressive one. The attempts to upset have failed but they have demonstrated that there is a strong opposition. They show that Cleveland is not of one mind as to the merits of its government under the new form and that the failure of the administration in the future may be good and sufficient reason for insisting upon a return to the former plan.

All this simply supports the contention that it is more the men than the form of government to which a city must look for the best results. It is an old story in party government and it is tending that way in the Cleveland experiment.

HOW THE BRITISH STAND

That the United States is not the only country that is opposed to the termination of the extraterritoriality treaty is disclosed by the issuance of the British attitude. When London set forth the notification from the Chinese government that the agreement would end with the opening of this year, it accompanied it with the reply that was made to the Chinese government.

The British directed attention to the fact that negotiations were underway between the two countries and expressed the hope that there would be no interruption until such a time as there has been an agreement reached between the countries. This conveys to the Chinese, if it conveys anything, that the British do not accept such a mandate as the Chinese issued, that they do not expect the Chinese will enforce it, but that they do expect that the Chinese officials will be directed to respect the extraterritoriality agreement until modified or terminated by agreement.

The United States takes virtually the same stand. It is sympathetic with the Chinese desire for the ending of this privilege but it isn't convinced that China is prepared to take care of the rights of American citizens in Chinese courts. It is desirous that China should put the matter to a test over a number of years in order to demonstrate that it is capable of dealing properly with such a situation as would result from the ending of such rights.

That seems to be asking no more of China than it should be willing to grant. It gives it an opportunity which it should be eager to improve. If China is prepared to deal justly with representatives of other countries when brought into court nothing would operate more to its credit than to prove it.

Naturally the countries which are alert for the protection of their subjects are reluctant to accede to the Chinese plan. They are unwilling to sacrifice the protection that has been granted them, but if and when China can demonstrate to them over a period of years, with a gradual removal of the rights, that extraterritoriality is no longer required then it can expect that there will be a willingness to abandon it. China wants to make too much of a short cut.

GETTING GOVERNMENT AID

Much is asked in the way of legislation from the federal government so that just because certain bills are introduced does not necessarily mean that they will be adopted. It is only natural, however, that those who have long since recognized the handicaps that are being suffered as the result of the denuded forest lands should be eager for the passage of those measures which call for substantial appropriations for the purchase of national forest land and for encouraging forest planting programmes.

One of the bills calls for the appropriation of $50,000,000 to be used for buying national forest land at the rate of $5,000,000 a year, while another bill would deal solely with the tree planting activities, providing for the first year $150,000, for the second $300,000 and for the third and each of the remaining seven $400,000 a year. It can be expected that states which would especially benefit by these appropriations are going to be much interested in the efforts leading up to their adoption.

It has been some years since experts declared that the time was rapidly approaching when our supply of timber would be exhausted unless something was done to encourage new growth that would be ready for use by the time the point of exhaustion was reached. Some attention has been given to this warning, states have established nurseries to provide trees and they have voiced the same sentiment as the experts, even to the extent of setting aside forest lands and operating demonstration plots. They have also gotten the towns interested so that there are town as well as state and national forests, and by these endeavors much interest has been created among individuals who are in a position to make better use of their land by planting trees for protective and commercial purposes.

From the reports of forestry experts it doesn't appear that the rush to meet the situation and build up the resources in standing and growing timber has succeeded to the point where there can be any let up. On the other hand, it appears that more reforestation is badly needed and it is quite natural that government help should be sought in any such endeavor. And yet, much that is worthy is sought from congress which never receives a favorable response.

REV. WILLIAM A. KEEFE

Rev. William A. Keefe, whose death has come with a suddenness to shock the community, has for the past quarter century been prominently identified with Catholic church activities in Norwich and vicinity. Serving curateships at Taftville and of St. Mary's church in this city, it was apparent that he was destined for greater responsibilities and they soon came through his appointment as pastor at Voluntown and Plainfield. In both of those parishes his work was so constructive that when the vacancy in the pastorate of St. Mary's church occurred he was chosen to direct what is the oldest Catholic parish in Norwich and the development which has taken place therein during his 11 years as pastor is the outcome of his indefatigable labors. He was a worker for bigger and better things and he got results. The present modern edifice of the parish was his ambition and accomplishment and will stand as a monument to the devoted service which he has given to the various activities of his parish.

While his duties occupied all his time, as he had occasion to set forth in the last of his public addresses only the night before he was stricken, he was, nevertheless, a public-spirited citizen who gave much time to other than parish work. He was tireless in his efforts for whatever cause he supported, he was an inspiring speaker whose ability was recognized and freely sought throughout the state and those who experienced the benefit of his ministrations and came in close touch with his efforts as priest and citizen can attest the loss that has been suffered in his untimely death by St. Mary's parish and the city. He made contact with people in all walks of life, without as well as within his parish, was a wise counselor and a valued friend and one whose passing will be the cause for sincere and widespread regret. It was inevitable that such a man should be beloved and admired.

WIDENING ROADS

In the building of motor highways traffic lanes are invariably constructed in multiples of two. This means that when additions are made to the width of the road provision is made for a lane of traffic in each direction so that those going opposite ways are equally aided.

It is conceivable, and in some instances it has been tried, that a third or a fifth lane might be added to relieve traffic, but it fails to accomplish the things that might be expected, while the necessary division between the traffic going in opposite directions operates to create more or less of a hazard.

It can be seen how a three-lane highway would work out theoretically, but it is a different proposition in actual operation. That center lane, which would be anybody's lane, would be the cause of constant dispute by those pushing into it from either side to pass the car ahead. The detrimental features of it and the fact that there would not be a compensating use for it in view of the cost has caused the Rhode Island board of public roads to not only declare it impractical but unsafe.

This board made a study of the three-lane road in other states and came to the conclusion that it would be unwise for much used highways, considering that the accidents it would be responsible for would more than offset the relief to traffic and that if road widening is to be done it should be accomplished by the addition of two lanes each time. Those who do much driving on roads where there is heavy traffic can easily appreciate the reasons which actuated the board in reaching its decision. Three-lane roads are few but they must, of necessity, invite disputes as to the right of way in the center section.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: With the resumption of wet and dry contests, will that mean a new flood of prohibition jokes?

That will mean a lot of business for the railroads if all the United States marshals are called to Washington before their appointments are approved.

The great problem these days is to find the community which has had revaluation of its property and equalization of its tax assessments and is satisfied.

MARGERY TAKES A VACATION

"My family," said Margery, slipping out of her chic white coat and gloves and settling herself at the luncheon table, "is impossible! My dear, you never saw so many varied opinions. Everybody has a different idea of where to spend our vacation and I'm having the most terrible time trying to impress upon them the fact that I've as much right to see them go where I want to go as have any of the rest. Up until now my wishes have been absolutely ignored and my advice spurned and I've been suffering untold agonies trying to express my ego."

"Well," reflected Margery after giving an astonished waitress an order little concerned with calory limitations, "I really haven't made up my mind definitely. But I've heard of the cunningest dude ranches out west—Florence Cox got her family to go to Wyoming or some other uncivilized place last summer and, my dear, she had the most heavenly time.

"Then Alice Peters is going to Newport, where she says it's simply divine. My dear, I can just picture myself in those new silk beach things they're showing and I know I'd have a perfectly splendiferous time at the seashore.

"Then here's another idea: Phyllis Chambers has a cabin up at Lake Louise in Canada and she wrote me about the stunning sports clothes she got and how she met the most hightoned people. I should adore it up there, I know, because of the long moonlit mountain climbs and the walks by the lake.

"But, my dear, when I broached the subject of Newport to my family they simply went all to pieces. My father said what did I take him for, a millionaire? And he insisted that we all go up to some quiet spot in Minnesota where his family lives—they've invited us and it's cheap, he says—of all impossible places!

"And my mother said: 'We've always been satisfied with an inexpensive vacation,' and she was anxious to get a cottage up in the woods where she could have a good rest. Can you imagine? Not seeing a soul all summer by ourselves?

"And my brother had his mind all made up to have us drive down in the country somewhere near the place where one of his college cronies spends the summer. So you can see what chances I have for a pleasant vacation. You'll probably hear of me either sweltering in Minnesota with dad's folks or hibernating in the country with Bob's friends or else stifling in some cottage in the woods, completely isolated from the rest of the world. People are so inconsiderate of your feelings, don't you think?"

"My dear," breathed Margery two days later as she slipped into her place behind the luncheon table and prepared for a renewed attack upon her friend's attention, "I've the most ravishing news."

"Then," commented her friend, "you aren't a martyr after all to the caprices of a selfish and stubborn family?"

"They were dears, all of them," said Margery sweetly. "You know, I begged and teased and implored and showed them just how wrong they all were in insisting upon those horrid places for our vacation and all at once they capitulated. Actually, I mean.

"We had it all out night before last. My dad said, well, if I were so opposed to going to see his people in Minnesota he'd give up the idea—that he never intended to spoil my summer and he'd be glad to spend the money to go to Newport if I wanted to.

"My mother was a peach. She gave up the cottage idea completely, said she could stand the western trip if I could and would willingly consider the dude ranch in Wyoming.

"And Bob was a perfect dear. He gave up insisting that we go down in the country and agreed to spend the summer at Lake Louise if I'd have the best time there."

"So where," inquired her friend, "have you decided to go—Newport or Wyoming or Lake Louise?"

"To none of those places," said Margery sweetly. "You see, last night Frank came over and I discussed the matter with him and he had the most splendid idea. He wants to move our wedding date ahead and go on our vacation-honeymoon at the same time. So I've completely changed my mind. I've decided to marry him and drive in his little old flivver down to Peoria and spend two weeks with his mother. My dear, isn't it just too funny how things turn out?"—Exchange

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5—It may seem odd that with senate and house chuck full of former soldiers, one of the most ardent champions of government responsibility for adequate care of ailing veterans should be a chap who was too young to fight in 1917-18.

Yet that's the case. Witness the remarks of Rep. Fred A. Hartley, Jr., of New Jersey. He is the kid congressman of all time. He was 25 when he managed to squeeze in by a nose.

Hartley's maiden speech was quite an affair. He started off modestly, almost humbly, about the presumption of a new member, "with the added handicap of being the youngest member," in taking the floor.

He had, however, he added, "adopted the policy to listen and learn."

"I have listened, and I believe I have learned," Hartley said.

He Learned

There is no doubt of it. He had learned, at least, how to get a speech on veterans into a debate on the post office treasury supply bill, which does not touch that subject. Without that little trick house members might be woefully short in personal campaign material to distribute at home when they mail out their copies of each Congressional Record.

When you look back to young Hartley's official autobiographical sketch of himself, you conclude that far from being humble because of his age juniority, so to speak, he's mighty proud of it.

Why not? Here's a lad who was a father before he was old enough to vote; who battled his way to various political preferments over the obstacle of extreme youth—or perhaps by virtue of that asset.

He glories in the fighting closeness of each victory, culminating in a 344-vote recount margin which made him about the youngest political representative a quarter of a million folks ever had.

Attacks Regulations

But getting back to his speech; young Hartley was engaged in shooting up the gantlet of restrictions of law or bureau regulations which every applicant for government aid must run to obtain succor.

Speaking of his campaign, Hartley said he had promised veterans of his district "a square deal."

"But I am frank to confess that I did not know then what it was all about," he added. "It was only after presenting their cases in Washington that I came to a realization of the fact that technicalities are preventing thousands from getting what they have a right to expect."

It was a good speech and was applauded. Also, it was darned good politics for a youngster.

Judge Kenyon of the law enforcement commission got a vivid review of both sides of the prohibition picture during the Christmas holidays. He dined with Andrew Volstead of Minnesota one day and with ex-Senator Jim Reed in Kansas City a day later.

YOUR HEALTH

A Gilt Edged Investment

By Dudley B. Reed, M. D., Chicago.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Recent events in the stock market have made many college professors glad that they have no money to invest, and have made others who are more fortunate financially interested in safe investments. You are hereby reminded of an investment, safe as to principal and interest; a security which can be bought below par and offers a large return. It is none other than wholesome recreation which is available for all who have a little time to invest.

Recreation is a pleasurable change of occupation. Proper sorts of recreation give rich returns in health, physical, mental and spiritual; in happiness and efficiency. The very best recreation is one which is thoroughly enjoyable, which in itself makes a positive contribution to health, which involves no unhealthful surroundings or associations, which is widely available, which can be continued without danger into middle life or beyond, and which does not require many people, much time, equipment or expense for its enjoyment. These somewhat extensive specifications are met by many of the physical recreations which are not too vigorous, such as hiking, swimming, tennis, fishing, skating and fencing. Golf requires a good deal of time and equipment and often some expense, but is so highly desirable in other regards that it must be classed as one of the best recreational stocks.

There are non-physical issues, also, which are very good even though they do not make much contribution to physical health as those just mentioned. Music, either performed or heard, is a grand stock. Universally available, it involves no danger to health, can be continued until it merges into the sound of Gabriel's trump, and requires little time and expense. The best of these music stocks are those which have been listed for some time and are thoroughly tried. Bach, Beethoven and Brahms have never passed a dividend while saxophone and saw, which have recently been paying well, are less sure over a long period.

It may be that you who read this are not too far advanced in years to make an investment in the habitual enjoyment of one or more of the best of these recreations. We do not have space to try to mention them all but we have indicated standards of value which anyone may apply to individual recreations. And finally, you may be investing in children. If so, help to protect that investment by aiding your children to develop a liking for some of the best of these pleasurable changes of occupation which may do so much toward maintaining their health, their mental perspective, and their social talents, and toward bringing them with youthful spirits to the "last of life for which the first was made." You and the kids will invest in some recreation; why not the best?

When husband and wife, living together, file separate returns, either may claim the exemption of $3,500 or they may divide it between them, the husband, for example, claiming $1,000 and the wife $2,500.

Many errors have occurred in the returns of couples married during the taxable year. The revenue act provides that if the marital status of a taxpayer changes during the year, his personal exemption shall be determined by apportionment in accordance with the number of months he was single or married. For example, a couple married on October 14 may file a joint return and claim an exemption of $2,125, which is 9-12 of $1,500, or $1,125 for the husband, while single, plus 9-12 of $1,500 for the wife while single, plus 3-12 of $3,500 for the period during which they were married. Should they file separate returns, each is entitled to an exemption of $1,562.50, which is 9-12 of $1,500, plus 1-2 of 3-12 of $3,500.

A similar provision applies to the head of a family. A taxpayer who on October 14 ceased to be the head of family—the support in one household of a relative or relatives being discontinued—is entitled to an exemption of $3,000, which is 9-12 of $3,500, plus 3-12 of $1,500.

With respect to the $400 credit for a dependent, the taxpayer's status as of the last day of the taxable year determines this credit. If his support of such dependent ceases before the end of the year, he is not entitled to his credit.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

The Flight of the Black Rascals

Wise is he who knows he's beaten,
Ere he's killed and mayhap eaten.
—Blacky the Crow.

Hooty the Owl was fast losing his temper. Mrs. Hooty was losing hers even faster. More and more angry sounded their hisses. Louder and louder they snapped their bills. But the young Crows who were tormenting them by screaming at them and pretending to attack them took no heed of this. Only Blacky and Mrs. Blacky and a few of the older Crows heeded the signs and gradually drew farther and farther away.

Now, there is a general idea abroad in the land that Hooty the Owl and Mrs. Hooty cannot see well in the daylight. It appeared that the young Crows had heard this and believed it. Nothing could be farther from the truth. No, indeed, nothing could be farther from the truth. It is true that Hooty and Mrs. Hooty do not like to fly about in daylight. They do not like the sun. Besides, it is their time for sleep, for they have been out all night. But they can see, and see well.

The younger Crows were growing bolder and bolder. They were showing off and having a wonderful time doing it. They were daring each other to tweak a few feathers from those Owls. My, how impudent they were! And then, without any warning, Hooty suddenly darted at one of those Crows. With a frightened shriek, that Crow ducked and dodged and it was only by the merest good luck that he escaped Hooty's great claws.

But one of his companions was not so fortunate. Mrs. Hooty was also taking part in putting the Crows to flight and she had been quick enough to seize one of the young Crows. It was all over in an instant. He didn't have time to even scream. Meanwhile, all the Crows had taken to their black wings. They were getting away from there just as fast as they could. And Hooty and Mrs. Hooty were after them. Instead of being driven away by the Crows, they were themselves driving the Crows away. Such a ducking and dodging in, around and between trees! Such a scattering in all directions! Such a sudden silence after all that noise! Those Crows held their tongues now. All they wanted was to get away as quickly and as far as possible. In a surprisingly short time not a Crow was to be seen in that part of the Green Forest. Meanwhile, Hooty had caught another young Crow. He brought it back with him to the tree where the nest was. Mrs. Hooty joined him there.

The younger Crows were growing bolder and bolder

They each had a Crow. That meant that they would have a Crow dinner.

"To-whoo!" said Hooty. "Those Crows are a nuisance."

"To-whoo, to-whoo!" replied Mrs. Hooty. "They furnished us a dinner anyway. We'll keep this nest. I don't think they'll visit us again."

That night, as Blacky and Mrs. Blacky sought their usual perch, Blacky said: "I'm afraid we shall have to give up that nest, my dear. I'm afraid we shall have to go to the trouble of building a new nest."

"There isn't any doubt about it," replied Mrs. Blacky. "I wouldn't go back to that nest now if I never had another home. What under the sun made you think you could drive those Owls away?"

"We've done it before," replied Blacky.

Mrs. Blacky shook her head. "Not from a nest," said she. "We have driven them away when they have just been roosting; but this is different. I don't believe all the Crows that ever gathered in the Green Forest could drive those Owls away from that nest. Listen!"

Blacky listened. From another part of the Green Forest came the hunting call of Hooty the Owl. Blacky shivered a little. So did Mrs. Blacky. Every Crow in the Green Forest shivered a little.

IN DAY'S NEWS

Asia's Newest Republic

The telegraph and cable may lose the last of the three terms, so that in newspaper date lines the city is likely to make its infrequent appearances as "Ulan Bator." A recent dispatch from this little-known city related that the estates of former princes and noblemen of the "People's Republic of Mongolia" had been confiscated by the government and apportioned among collective farms operated by peasants. A bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society tells of this remote capital and the country of which it is the seat of government.

"Ulan Bator Hoto—'City of the Red Heroes'—is merely a new name for Urga, which the geography textbooks of a few years ago identified as the administrative seat of a Chinese state," says the bulletin. "The new name was adopted in 1924, when the republic was consolidating its independence, declared in 1921.

"Few countries have ever had such a tangled political situation as Mongolia has had since 1911 when the Chinese empire collapsed," the bulletin continues. "Urga was the residence of one of the three most important 'Living Buddhas' of the Lamaistic world, and the government was in effect a theocracy under Chinese control. When the Chinese emperor lost his throne in 1911, the Mongol princes and Lamas expelled the Chinese officials, declared their country to be autonomous, and set up an arrangement by which the 'Living Buddha' became both king and national 'god.'

"The influences of the Russian empire increased in semi-independent Mongolia for a time, but with the progress of the World war Mongolia was left without this source of assistance, and in 1919 China again took possession. Refugee 'White' Russians assembled in Siberia following the Bolshevik revolution, and in 1920 and 1921 drove the Chinese from Mongolia and set up a state under Russian influence. By the end of 1921 Soviet armies had driven both White Russians and Chinese Mongolia and the 'Living Buddha' was again the nominal ruler. In 1924, the 'Living Buddha' died, and the 'Mongolian People's Republic, was proclaimed.

"It is a republic without a president, the supreme authority resting in a parliament of 100 elected members. This parliament, or Great Huruldan, chooses 30 of its members to form the Small Huruldan which normally acts while the larger body is in recess. The Small Huruldan in turn selects five of its members to form a permanent Presidium. This government concerns itself not with the whole of the territory of the old Mongolian state, but only with that part of it that was formerly called Outer Mongolia, lying north of the middle of the Gobi desert. Inner Mongolia, the strip about 300 miles wide, lying next to China proper, is recognized as an integral part of China.

"Little comes to the outside world in regard to the operations of the Mongolian government, but it is believed to be coming more and more under the influence of Soviet Russia and to be shaping its activities in increasing accordance with Soviet principles. One recent indication of such a trend was the report that the estates of nobles, valued at approximately $4,000,000, had been confiscated for the benefit of collectively operated peasant farms.

"The trade of the country was in the past chiefly with China by means of horse-drawn carts and camel caravans from Urga. But Ulan Bator Hoto looks more to the north, and both exports and imports move increasingly between Mongolia and Trans-Siberian railway towns.

"The republic of Mongolia has an area of more than a million and a quarter square miles. Its population is estimated to be less than one million, made up roughly of three-quarters of a million Mongols and 100,000 foreigners, mostly Russians. There are said to be fewer than 10,000 Chinese in the republic now.

"The people have never engaged in agriculture or industry, but have devoted themselves to stock raising. But for primitive methods Mongolia might become the world's greatest source of livestock products. The animals have never been protected in winter or fed from hay and grain laid up during the mild half of the year. They must shift for themselves the year round. So severe are the winters that some years as many as a third of the animals perish. In spite of these heavy losses, however, there are in Mongolia more than a quarter million camels, a million and a third horses, a million and a half cattle, and between ten and eleven million sheep and goats. The principal exports are live animals, wool, camel's hair, milk products, and hides and furs.

"North of the Gobi are vast plains covered in summer with succulent grasses. It is there that the great herds of domestic and wild animals roam—wild horses, wild donkeys, and antelope. Farther to the northwest are tree-covered mountains which give Mongolia a potential timber supply. Mineral deposits exist but have never been developed.

"The Lamaistic religion, a modified and somewhat degraded Buddhism, has had deep effects on Mongolia. Nearly one-third of the male population are monks who have been living without productive effort. These members of religious orders dominated the country while the 'Living Buddha' existed, but since the rise of the republic their influence is waning. The state religion of passiveness also tended to discourage initiative.

"The new regime is attempting to bring progress to the republic by beginning an educational system, by encouraging steps toward agriculture, and by improving stock raising methods. In some sections hay is being stored, winter shelters constructed for the animals, and wolves destroyed. A postal system has been started, a currency adopted and automobile lines opened. With Soviet assistance steamboats have been put into operation on two of the few navigable rivers: the Selenga and the Orkhen. These streams flow from north central Mongolia across the border into Siberia and enter Lake Baikal. Not a mile of railway exists in Mongolia. Soviet Russia has, however, recently built a branch line from the Trans-Siberian railway to Kyakhta, on the northern border of the republic. A very large percentage of Mongolian commerce now moves through this railroad. The government has plans for the building of the first railway on Mongolian soil, extending from Ulan Bator Hoto northeastward to the Trans-Siberian line at Chita.

"Cities are few in Mongolia. Ulan Bator Hoto, the capital, has a population of about 100,000 and is thus an enormous city for a land of semi-nomadism. In the last fifteen years it has taken on many aspects of modernism. It has an electric lighting and power plant; theaters; telegraph facilities, both wire and wireless; telephones; motor busses; and newspapers.

"The official status of the Mongolian republic internationally is literally a Chinese—and Russian—puzzle. In a treaty with China, the Soviet government says that it 'recognizes Outer Mongolia as an independent part of the republic of China and respects there the sovereignty of China.' But there is this pointed addition: 'However, Russia so widely recognizes the autonomy of Mongolia that not only will she not permit any interference by China in the interior affairs of Mongolia, but even the foreign policy of Mongolia is to be independent.'"

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

American Hosiery Company, New Britain.

The American Hosiery company was organized in 1868 by John B. Talcott and first started business in New Britain, renting space of the Union Manufacturing company. It inception really started as the "New Britain Lace company," but a strike of the employees caused the lace making to be abandoned and the knit industry to be started. The company manufactures fine knit underwear for men, women and children, from all silk to all cotton and mixtures of the same. Originally the company was organized with $100,000 capital, but very early found it inadequate, and was compelled to increase it to $300,000, at which figure it has since remained. For more than 60 years it has held its sway supreme as the leader in the manufacture of the finest knit wear. The product is sold direct to retailers throughout the entire United States. In conjunction with the knitting, a yarn mill is also operated, to control the manipulation of the cotton from the time it leaves the field, and the wool from the clip.

James Stanley was its first president, holding office till his death in 1884, when John B. Talcott succeeded him and remained as president until his death in 1905. Edward H. Davison then became president, retiring from the presidency in 1923. M. K. Pasco served as president from 1923 to 1924, when he resigned, and I. Robert Hyatt, a graduate of Yale university, was elected to that office and is still the active head in charge of its affairs.

Early in its history the company invented and took out a patent on an improvement of the Paget knitting frame for the making of full fashioned garments, and though the invention was contested, the company was successful in winning the suit. Other lines have been added until now they also manufacture sweaters, bathing suits, golf hose and wool half hose, as well as various kindred lines.

The plant is located in the heart of the city of New Britain on the branch line of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad to Berlin. It consists of three large buildings, with floor space of approximately 100,000 square feet.

On the property is an ever-flowing spring of pure water, the supply of which is more than equal to all demands made upon it.

The present officers are: President and treasurer, I. Robert Hyatt; vice president, E. Chase Coale; secretary and assistant treasurer, Lucius H. Taylor; assistant secretary, Emil H. R. Vogel.

SAYS! TANLAC WITHOUT EQUAL FOR STOMACH AND LIVER TROUBLES

Nurse Gives Remarkable Endorsement

Tanlac may seem miraculous in its action to millions who ended stomach, liver and kidney troubles as well as rheumatism, pains in the back, sides, joints and muscles from its use—but the truth is every drop of Tanlac is a strong potent medicine while most other remedies are weak and ineffective. Mrs. B. Picoord, a nurse with many years' experience, is one who ought to know. She says, "In 10 years active nursing have found Tanlac without an equal as a remedy for stomach and liver troubles, and I can certainly promise people wonderful results in view of my long experience with this medicine. I had stomach troubles for years, could eat scarcely anything without suffering, never any appetite, always nervous and rundown. But as soon as I began Tanlac it started to build me right up. All stomach troubles were routed and never any pain, distress or gases since. Now I eat everything with perfect safety." Many "patent medicines" make glowing promises that may tempt you to buy them but remember Tanlac is a REAL medicine that backs its claims with a guarantee. Do not accept a substitute. This Man Puzzled--Lost 19 Pounds of Fat In 22 Days

Wants to Know Where the Fat Went to

This man was fat—40 pounds overweight—wanted to stay home every night and nurse the old arm chair—getting in and out of his auto was all the exercise he cared for—his desire for any form of activity had died years ago.

Then one night as he read the evening paper cheering news broke for him—he read the story of Kruschen Salts—what it was doing for the fat folks of America—tens of thousands of them—they were losing fat—and plenty of it.

The next morning he started—one generous half teaspoon of Kruschen in a glass of hot water before breakfast—every morning the same—in a week he wanted to walk to business—he didn't know why—but the urge for activity seemed to flood his whole being and he followed the urge.

His wife was astonished—delighted—and when one evening he said with eagerness—"Let's go to a show tonight, dear,"—her joy was unbounded.

That virile Kruschen feeling that means more energy—more vigor—more ambition took possession of him—he took long walks every day—and enjoyed them.

He got on the scales one evening and came home with sprightly step—"eleven pounds of fat gone" he almost hollered—he danced a few steps with the activeness of youth—and his wife danced with him.

In 22 days 19 pounds of unneeded and unwanted fat had left him and he marveled—and his friends marveled with him.

"Where did it all go to?" he asked and no-one could answer.

Kruschen Salts drives poisonous waste from the system—it acts on liver, kidneys and stomach and keeps them in tip-top condition—it keeps you feeling fit and fine all the time. Lee and Osgood and leading druggists America over sell Kruschen Salts for 85c a bottle which lasts 4 weeks.

PALACE THEATER GIVES SALLY PINNACLE PLACE

Manager R. B. Hamilton of the Palace theater still shows that he is ever ready to put something novel over in the way of showmanship and this time he has placed a life-size cut-out of the star in "Sally," Miss Marilyn Miller, on the pinnacle of the Palace theatre over the front entrance.

This unique pose of Miss Miller shows her doing her toe dance in the great picture now playing at the Palace. This is made more attractive with a spotlight that plays on the figure of the dancer, bringing it out in bold relief against the dark background of the sky. There is no question but that Miss Miller has reached the peak of her career in the all-color show "Sally" and Manager Hamilton has seen to it that she is placed on that peak at the theater. To the critics that is where she belongs.

EAGLE SCOUT RANK CONFERRED UPON NICHOLAS TARRANT AT COURT OF HONOR

With the town hall throbbing with the vib and enthusiasm generated by such happy, healthy boys as scouting produces, the Court of Honor of Norwich council of Boy Scouts was held Wednesday evening. An audience of several hundred was present, including parents and friends of the Scouts, as well as the large attendance from the different troops and the exercises were carried out in an especially interesting way, with the climax coming when Scout Nicholas Tarrant of Troop Five of St. Patrick's church was invested with the highest rank in scouting, that of Eagle Scout.

The Scouts applauded vigorously all through the evening when the badges of different ranks were bestowed, but when Scout Tarrant was called to the front they re-doubled their efforts and fairly rattled the windows with the volume of their hand-clapping, and the boys of his troop gave him their yell.

Principal H. A. Tirrell, chairman of the court of honor, bestowed the Eagle badge upon Scout Tarrant, congratulating him upon his achievement in attaining this high rank. Then Chairman Tirrell called to the front John Hill, leader of Troop Five, and Mrs. John R. Tarrant, the Eagle Scout's mother, to whom was given the honor of pinning the Eagle badge on her boy's coat, while again the room rang with applause.

The court of honor was opened at 8 o'clock when the troops of Scouts marched in led by the drum and bugle corps of Troop Five, with John Dennis swinging the drum major's baton.

Scout Executive John L. Sellman led in the repetition of the Scout oath and this was followed by the welcome extended by H. D. Larrabee, president of the council.

Allan Nibbs and Paul Tubbs of New London, two boys who attended the Scout Jamboree in London, England last summer, gave an interesting recital of that big meeting when Scouts from all over the world were present.

Those officiating in the Scout ceremonies that followed were Executive Sellman in investiture of tenderfoot, Charles Colt, national delegate, in awarding second class badges, President Larrabee in awarding first class badges, Scout Commissioner A. L. Peale in awarding merit badges and troop streamers for efficiency contests, and C. B. Gilbert, chairman of training, in awarding scoutmaster certificates.

Fire Chief Henry R. Taft awarded the merit badges in firemanship and spoke a word of warning to the boys to be watchful against grass and brush fires in the early spring season.

James Pina, William Smith, James Abruzzo, Frank Amodeo were in the tenderfoot investiture class.

First class badge was awarded to: Scout Walter Goring.

NICHOLAS TARRANT
Eagle Scout

Merit badges were awarded to Malcolm Counihan, James Chester, Malcolm McKeag, James Dennis, Russell Yerrington, Edward Brodeur, Henry Buthiewiez, James Coughlin, William Galligan, in firemanship.

Merit badges were awarded to Anthony Kocker in automobiling, cycling, first aid, painting, music, first aid to animals; to Edward Jordan in photography, William Galligan in carpentry; Russell Yerrington in leathercraft, Donald Waterman, poultry; Cecil Wetherbee in cooking and civics; to Nicholas Tarrant in camping and bird study.

A fifteen year veteran badge was awarded to Rev. Marden T. Prentiss, of Plainfield, Scoutmaster of Troop 15.

Standard achievement streamers to be attached to troop flags were awarded to Troops 1, 5, 7, 12, 21, and Baltic. Several other troops will receive streamers upon sending in scribes reports. One point a day is removed from total for every day report is late.

President Larrabee presented to Lawrence Deauville of Troop 5 the beautiful bugle which he won at the contest at the Community house last spring, thus becoming the council bugler. Scout Deauville sounded a ringing call on the bugle before he took his seat.

The court of honor came to a close with a stirring march played by the drum and bugle corps, which had led them in a parade in the streets before the opening of the court.

LESLIE CONKLIN KILLED IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 5—Philip Leslie Conklin, 24, of Norwich, Conn., is dead at Memorial hospital today after being found unconscious in his wrecked automobile near East Greenbush, near here, about 5 o'clock this morning.

Conklin was unconscious when he was discovered by John Reill, a milk dealer of East Schodack, who noticed the wrecked car against a tree as he was making his rounds. The young man never regained consciousness.

Corporal W. H. Flubacher of the state police, who investigated, believes Conklin fell asleep at the wheel. The car, a new small sedan, according to the trooper, was traveling at a high rate of speed when it left the road and crashed into the tree.

Conklin was wedged in between the seat and the front of the automobile in such a manner it was necessary to chop him out. How long he had been in the wreckage before being found is not known.

His identification was established through his license. He was the son of Rev. A. H. Conklin of Jacksonville, Fla., who has been notified of the accident.

Conklin is believed to have been going to a position in some other city, for his personal belongings were packed in suit cases. He had been living at the Y. M. C. A. at Norwich, Conn.

Coroner Ernest Hein has not yet completed his investigation. Conklin died from a fractured skull, shock and exposure.

At the time of the accident Mr. Conklin was en route to Syracuse, N. Y., where he was to have assumed the duties of assistant boys' secretary at the Y. M. C. A. in that city. He has been for several years assistant secretary of the local Y. M. C. A., and terminated his duties there Tuesday evening. He left shortly before midnight for Syracuse intending to make the 260 mile trip in about nine hours. Among his friends and acquaintances he had the reputation of being a fast driver, having once driven from Florida to this city in two days and from Ohio to Baltic in one day.

Word of the accident was received in Norwich during the early morning by telegram to the local Y. M. C. A., the telegram requesting information regarding the address of the young man's parents. Later in the morning Secretary Edwin Hill of the Y. M. C. A. learned by telephone that Mr. Conklin had died as the result of the injuries.

The young man's parents, Rev. and Mrs. H. H. Conklin of South Jacksonville, Fla., were notified of his death.

Mr. Conklin resigned the local position so that he could study at Syracuse university for a B. A. degree. He intended to work part time as assistant to the boy's secretary at the Syracuse Y. M. C. A. He was graduated from Killingly high school in 1926, and since that time had been connected with the local Y. M. C. A., where he was extremely popular.

During the last two summers he had studied for several weeks at the University of Illinois. His father, Rev. H. H. Conklin, was formerly pastor of the Baltic M. E. church and now holds a pastorate in Jacksonville, Fla. Surviving are his parents and two brothers.

STAFFORD SPRINGS PASTOR INSPIRES FINE STORY

"The Studebaker Wheel" for February devotes a page to a former Norwich clergyman, under the title, "Cleric, Poet, Savant and Sportsman." It is an illustrated story of Rev. Father Felix J. O'Neill, pastor of St. Edward's church, Stafford Springs, and the President eight Victoria in which he gives the members of the graduating class of his parish school an annual outing, over the 400 square miles covered by his parish. The "poet-priest" is also depicted while hunting with his favorite dog.

Father O'Neill was born in Willimantic, Oct. 20th, 1860. He has written hymns and set them to music and his poems have been copied far and wide. The majority of his writings deal with outdoor subjects, according to Ralph E. Jones, who has written the interesting story about his busy and helpful life at Stafford Springs.

Rev. William A. Keefe, 53, rector of St. Mary's Memorial church died at the rectory at about 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon as the result of a shock suffered about 7.30 o'clock Tuesday morning. Father Keefe, widely known throughout the eastern section of the state was seized with the shock shortly after rising for the day on Tuesday. He lapsed into unconsciousness immediately and remained in that state until claimed by death.

Rev William A. Keefe was born at Terryville, this state, February 17, 1877, the son of Martin and Catherine Ryan Keefe. The family lived at Terryville but a short period, moving to Waterbury where Father Keefe spent the greater portion of his boyhood.

His early education was obtained in the grammar schools in Waterbury after which he was graduated from Waterbury high school. He entered Holy Cross college, Worcester, Mass., conducted by the Jesuits, and it was while attending that college that his plans were formed to choose the Catholic priesthood as his life work.

Father Keefe was graduated at Holy Cross with honors in the class of 1899 and then went to the Grand seminary at Montreal, Canada, for his courses in philosophy and theology for one year, after which he was sent abroad for a three-year course at the College of Louvain, Belgium. At the end of this period, in company with seven other young American students, he was raised to the priesthood by Bishop Van der Stappen, bishop of the diocese of Malines, July 12, 1903.

REV. WILLIAM A. KEEFE

On his return to this country, Father Keefe was given his first assignment by the late Bishop Michael Tierney, as curate to Rev. U. O. Bellerose, at the Sacred Heart church, Taftville. Father Keefe remained there about two years after which he was transferred as curate to St. Anne's church, Waterbury.

Remaining in the city of his boyhood for six months, Father Keefe was further advanced to St. Augustine's church, Bridgeport, one of the largest parishes in that city. There he served under Fathers Crimmins and McElroy as pastors. In 1905, Father Keefe was sent to Norwich as curate at St. Mary's church, of which the late Rev. James J. Smith was then pastor.

The lines of a pastorate, due to his zeal and ability, were now commencing to be drawn and in the fall of 1910, Bishop John J. Nilan gave him his first pastorate at St. Thomas' church, Voluntown. Following a period spent there he was advanced to St. John's church, Plainfield. The World war found him located in Plainfield, where he did noteworthy work, preparing his parish boys for war service, and his people in general for the work of the Red Cross chapter by those who were to remain at home.

Father Keefe's voice and zeal for the uplift of men attracted the attention of Bishop Nilan, who made him diocesan director of Holy Name societies, also state lecturer of the Knights of Columbus. He was also friar of Rev. Daniel Mullen assembly, fourth degree, K. of C. of this city. In August, 1919, Bishop Nilan appointed Father Keefe pastor of St. Mary's parish, this city, as successor to Rev. John H. Fitzmaurice who was at that time transferred to Waterbury.

Father Keefe was intensely interested in his parish and in the welfare of the city and town. He did excellent work among his parishioners in keeping them well grounded as to the principles of their faith and his preaching was ever forceful, practical, and to the point. At various periods, Father Keefe arranged for missions and retreats for his numerous parishioners.

The culminating event of his priestly career was the erection of the handsome St. Mary's Memorial church on Central avenue, Norwich. Primarily, this magnificent and artistic granite edifice was designed as a memorial to the parish young men who gave their lives or their service in the World war, although it memorialized all the faithful departed who for eighty years or over had been members of St. Mary's, the original Catholic parish of not only of the town of Norwich, but of eastern Connecticut.

With this serious purpose in view, Rev. Father Keefe, who had the loving and devoted and generous co-operation of his people, spared neither effort nor time nor expense in making this a temple erected to the glory and service of God and an everlasting tribute to those memorialized. In all its details the church is a marvel, from the point of view of solidity, suitability and religious art.

Co-existent with his devotion to the church was his labor for the parish school, over which he ever exercised the most watchful care. He did constant follow-up work also among the school's graduates, proving his interest in the careers and progress of the girls and boys who went out from the school-rooms to higher institutions of learning, or to enter upon practical lines of endeavor and industry. To all the pupils he remained the helpful and inspiring friend and exemplar, revered and beloved.

The completeness of the parish property, especially the ornate and commanding church edifice, is his most striking monument.

Father Keefe was broad and scholarly, had the additional culture which comes from travel and observations in other lands, and spoke a half dozen languages fluently.

Father Keefe did not work wholly for the betterment of his own parish but was ever intensely interested in any movement for the welfare of the community. He was in constant demand as a speaker at public and private gatherings and only Monday night addressed the Contact club at the Wauregan hotel. His friends were legion and included not only those of the Catholic faith but many hundreds of those of the Protestant and Jewish belief. His passing from earthly life removes one who served his church and country to the best of his ability, who was prominently identified with the civic affairs in many lines. His death is deeply mourned by all who knew him and is a distinct loss to the community.

An outstanding feature of his marvellously successful career while in Norwich was the cordial and helpful fellowship manifested in his relations with the clergymen of the other denominations. His gentleness, charity, kindly humor and generous impulses made him the friend of all, in the brotherhood of that Master in Whose steps he followed so consistently and so unfailingly. He received many scholastic honors through his connection with the celebrated University of Louvain and for other works of merit; but he was ever the humble, unspoiled and simple parish priest, father, friend and guide of his people, who were overwhelmed with sorrow, when the news of his illness and death became known.

After a brief illness with pneumonia the life of John R. Dunderdale of 5 Harland road, manager of the A. & P. store on Franklin street, came to a peaceful close Wednesday evening.

Mr. Dunderdale was the son of Alice and the late Robert Dunderdale and most of his life had been spent in this city. He was a graduate of St. Patrick's parochial school and a member of St. Patrick's church and White Cross council, No. 13, K. of C. He is survived by his mother and two sisters, Mrs. John R. Walsh and Miss Elizabeth Dunderdale, all of this city.

Charles E. Dudley

Charles E. Dudley, about 55, died Tuesday at his home, No. 30 Chestnut street, after an illness of several weeks. Mr. Dudley was born in Norwich and was the son of the late Edwin and Elizabeth Howard Dudley. He was a lifelong resident of this city and 12 years ago was united in marriage with Catherine L. Clarke. Mr Dudley was a member of Norwich lodge, No. 950, L. O. O. M.

Surviving are his widow and two sisters, Mrs. Charles Champlin and Mrs. Fred Sanford, both residents of Stafford Springs, and several nieces.

Old Lyme residents, Mr. and Mrs. George Weidler, accompanied by their son-in-law, Paul Zimmerman and family, have been making a week's stay at Atlantic City.

EX-BARBER OF WESTERLY JAILED FOR BOOTLEGGING

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 5—Luigi Muolo, 8 Elizabeth street, was in the police court today charged with violation of the liquor law. He was fined $200 and costs and as he could not pay, Muolo was committed to jail, where he will remain about 3 months. Muolo, a barber, formerly employed at Westerly, recently moved to New London and started bootlegging. Sunday he was at the union station where he negotiated with sailors for the sale of his liquid product. After Muolo's acts had been observed by the police, the man obtained the services of a youth, who was sent to Muolo's home after a pint of liquor. When the boy returned with the booze he was observed by Patrolman Dennis Murphy and Patrolman Louis Tooker to hand it to Muolo. Muolo was seen to tender the liquor to a sailor and the latter handed the bootlegger money. The officers then arrested Muolo.

Roderick V. James, 36 Cleveland street, was charged with non-support by his wife, Lila May James. The charge was nolled for James and his wife who had been estranged for a long time, agreed to resume their domestic relations and James agreed to properly provide for the woman.

MRS. SAWYER ARRESTED— MORRIS SOCOL TAGGED ALSO

Mrs. Julia Sawyer, 56 Huntington street, was arrested by Patrolman William Manice charged with blocking a drive-way on Huntington street. Several drivers have been arrested on Mrs. Sawyer's complaint during the past year. The other driver arrested was Morris Socol, 109 Montauk avenue. He is charged with parking in restricted area on Huntington street. He, also was arrested by Patrolman Manice.

FRIEND DOES HIS BEST BUT HART STILL IN TROUBLE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 5—The case of Roy Hart, 41 Montauk avenue, employed by the city as driver of the Nameaug Engine company's fire apparatus, charged with theft of an automobile, was ended in the police court today when the charge was nolled. Hart, however, does not escape court prosecution, for he was re-arrested charged with driving while under the influence of liquor. Hart was arrested in the vicinity of North Stonington last Friday night by State Police Officer James Dygert following the automobile Hart was driving colliding with a telephone pole. The auto was wrecked and Hart was intoxicated, but the second charge was not made against him until today when the court ordered a nolle. Hart will be tried in the Stonington town court next Tuesday.

The nolle of Hart's case was the result of the owner of the automobile that was stolen going to the rescue of the fire apparatus driver. Hart took the car owned by Olaf Hanson, 26 Masonic street, from its place of parking and drove to North Stonington where he became intoxicated. It was while he was endeavoring to make the return trip to New London that the accident occurred that resulted in his arrest. Hanson last Friday night attempted to withdraw the charge he made of his car being stolen when he ascertained that Hart had stolen it, but was not permitted to do so. The next day when the case was presented in court, Hart was not there, so his bond of $2,500 was declared forfeited. So that the bondsman would not be compelled to lose the amount of the bond he furnished for Hart, the case was reopened today and then Hanson's story brought about the nolle. Hanson told the court that he had given Hart permission to use his Oldsmobile, but since then he purchased a Studebaker coupe, but did not realize that Hart was aware that the purchase had been been, which fact accounted for Hanson making a complaint that his car had been stolen.

Sheriff Sidney A. Brown, who has been confined to his residence on Williams street because of a severe cold, is able to be out daily.

Lucky Mother

"My success with Jean isn't just luck," says Mrs. V. Lund, 336 Loretto St., Tottenville, L. I. "It is due to a plan.

"She has escaped the ill-effects of colds and upsets because, at the first sign of a cold, of bad breath, coated tongue or feverishness, I open her bowels with California Fig Syrup. She loves its taste and I like its gentle, thorough action."

Mothers by thousands praise California Fig Syrup. For fifty years physicians have endorsed this pure vegetable product. It tones and strengthens stomach and bowels; stimulates appetite; encourages digestion and assimilation. Its use helps make sallow, listless children rosy and energetic.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Men of Tomorrow

The boys, of the generation from which all Boy Scouts enlist, are the men of tomorrow.

They are the ones on whom the burdens will rest very soon.

"How time flies!" How often do you say that?

Well, this is what it means in the terms of boys. All that America is to be, the sacred heritage wrought in blood and tears, the future of democracy, will be in their hands almost before we know it. That is why the Boy Scout movement assumes its present importance to all American citizens of today.

The motto of the scout is "Be Prepared." This has always been his motto. Over a decade ago the Boy Scout first took up as his motto: "Be Prepared."

"Be Prepared," for the chosen task of life—whether it be in professional, industrial, political, or religious lines —the boy trained to honestly and patiently prepare himself for prospective duties will be more likely to succeed than the boy who happens to connect with some job.

"Be Prepared." For civic duties and problems such as are too frequently neglected now, such as in these days are sometimes treated with unintelligent action, the boy who has been "Prepared" by study of community life will be much more likely to provide a sane solution than the boy who takes those things for granted like the generation that preceded him.

Palace Theatre.

A melody romance that will dance and sing its way into the heart of any audience is at the Palace theatre today, and, after one of the most successful weeks in the history of the playhouse, will close its Norwich engagement tomorrow night. Already the whole community is talking about this splendid film, "Sally," in which a host of stars flash and scintillate through the twists and turns of an uproarious story.

First and foremost in the cast is beautiful Marilyn Miller. Perhaps beautiful is not the correct word because that word sometimes implies a sort of classic stateliness. Miss Miller is anything but stately. She dances vivaciously and sings with plenty of zest, and her appearance is always dynamic as her charming smile and voice.

Her leading man, Alexander Gray, a talented and handsome singer, is another star. Together with Miss Miller he gives a performance that takes you out of your seat into a dreamy, happy land where the sorrows of reality do not exist and life is an tremulously beautiful as the moon-drenched roses under which the lovers sing.

Joe E. Brown supplies the comedy, although he is not one who strains after effects. Just his natural self, he succeeds none the less in keeping the customers in a continual uproar. With his trick uniform, monocle and aristocratic squint, he looks the part of the Duke which he really is in this picture, and many are the laughs he wins before the film is over, and many also are the tears he is likely to draw when, in occasional tender passages, he proves his friendship to a lonesome slip of a girl.

Nobody should fail to see "Sally." Here is a picture that is not simply a revue, but a wonderful story of love an dromance. Even if it had no singing, no dancing, no music, no technicolor, it would be well-worth seeing. With these things, it is well-neigh perfect entertainment.

Beginning Saturday the Palace for four days will show that sensational murder mystery from the pen of S. S. Van Dyne, "The Bishop Murder Case," starring William Powell as the famous Philo Vance.

Broadway Theatre.

A stifling day in New Jerusalem, a little town on the edge of terrible Death Valley—the only signs of life in the town the noisy bar and the few hangers-on, and the clerks in the local bank just closing up—a sudden demand, "Come on, fork over!" two spiteful shots and the cashier crossed the Great Divide! A flurry of galloping hoofs and the three murderers were off across the desert with their loot. Death Valley exacts full value from its travellers, however, and in this case the toll was terrible. As a grim reminder Fate gave back to the three bad-men, a life for the one they had so ruthlessly taken—for they discovered a newborn baby in the very heart of that awful valley, and vowed to take it back, even though they faced the noose! Peter B. Kyne wrote the story, "The Three Godfathers," and Charles Bickford, of "Dynamite" fame with Fred Kohler and Raymond Hatton are the three tough hombres" who suddenly develop a conscience!

On the same bill at the Broadway, offering unbelieveable show value is the remarkable drama of stage life, "Behind the Makeup," with William Powell, Hal Skelley, Fay Wray and Kay Johnson. If you can imagine a stage story without a revue, but one that runs the scale of emotion from hearty laughs to downright tragedy, you have it here. Powell reaches the highest point of his career in the character of Gardoni, the clever but penniless European artist, who is befriended by Skelley, a successful small-time vaudeville performer, and who rewards the big-hearted clown by first stealing his first and only sweetheart, and then his "routine," finishing up by squandering every cent of his pal's savings. This amazing program which is "Program B" in the Broadway's Greater Entertainment Month schedule wil continue through Friday, and it is expected to rate highly in the gold-award contest by the patrons.

MYSTERY FIVE COMING TO PLAY WHIRLWINDS

Basket ball fans in the village and towns about have not heard of the big game that will be played soon in Noank between the Mystery Five and the fast-going Whirlwinds' snappy five for the championship of Noank. Both teams are from the fishing town. The Mystery Five is in charge of Stretch Moran, who helped win many championships for the old Nuggets of 1912-13. In those two years the White and Blue suit boys, weighing about 120 pounds each, won 16 games and never knew the taste of a lost battle. In many newspapers the old Nuggets were written up for a record, never defeated by any team around this section. It has stood for 18 years. But no Noank team has matched it—to go the season without getting beaten. Like the Yale football team in 1910, which won every game and never let their rivals score a single point during the season.

Manager Stretch Moran has gotten together a fast bunch of ball-tossers. They have an eagle eye, shoot clean and every morning they are in training, running out to Hadley farm for their milk for the good morning coffee. Before the birds rub their eyes they are out in row boats. Cannonball Jake MacMahon, the star guard, trains by himself. Putting a rope around his body, so an auto can tow him about the town and up the hills, Jake will say, "Step on it! That puts plenty of wind into a fellow I could stay one hour with Gus Sonnenberg and dodge them flying tackles!"

Well, the big game is the 13th of this month. That means hard luck for the Whirlwinds. The Mystery men fixed that date for good luck. The old Nuggets started on the 13th and ended the season on the 13th in 1912 and 1913. The Whirlwind players lie on their beds with a heavy blanket over them, trying to guess who the Mystery team is losing a few hours of good sleep; but they have not guessed the men, who are going to wear a mask that night. Coach George Longboat has offered a $2.50 gold piece to any Whirlwind sharp shooter who can name the nine players of the Mystery Five who have the town guessing. The Mr. Who and Mr. Y might be like a crossword puzzle to the team, which has sent many good teams back home on the short end of the score.

Coach George Longboat is to have one night of practice under the heavy electric lights; but the players are wearing masks so the Whirlwinds cannot see who they are! They will do long shooting and pass work for two hours. During the half-time, Sam MacCann, an old-time basketball player, will show the fans how he can pick up two basketballs with his Scott leaves, I mean hands from the floor, also will do a few tricks with the ball.

A report came that Noank Houdini John Crane will get out of a straightjacket in 30 minutes or sooner, so it will be an evening full of thrills and fun, with plenty of action in the old town that night. So, ladies, let your husbands' socks go for that big game and, men, keep the date book closed; bring your sweetheart or wife to the biggest game of the season.

Let the cat out early and enjoy a full evening. Coach Longboat will give our line-up and will use nicknames that the players have been going by all their life. That night help out the guessers of the nine masked wonders. Ike Jones, a guard, is going to hold Lanker Chesebro of the Whirlwinds to two baskets. This long boy has been going like a ball of fire, getting 12 to 14 points a game. Light Foot Jones is the best guard, ever, and his friends are betting a lot of money that Chesebro will not be the hero and Side Speed Hank Jackson is a guard who is going to hold Midget Robertson to about five points. Bingo B. Marv will be a guard who is an ex-college player and can cover more ground than Al Simmons. George Swanson is a small boy, but oh, baby! he has a strong pair of arms, so bring on them sharp shooters and watch them fall. Cannonball Jack MacMahon is the best guard in the fishing village. Watch his foot work and keen eye at center. Big Boy Harry Gray, who is 6 feet and 3 inches can jump about four feet off the floor. So Lefty Clark will have to get a spring in his feet if he wants to get the tap, and then comes Rubber Ball P. Murphy, a forward who can shoot them over his head without looking. So the guard of the Whirlwinds will have his hands full. Dash Al Patty, another forward who has won many games while in college by dropping them from the center of the floor, will be a hard man to stop. People have been waiting a long while for this big game.

The Mystery Five will wear red and black suits with Mr. Who on the jerseys, wearing no socks, and Rubber Ball Murphy wears no basketball shoes, playing in his bare feet the Lord gave him 19 years ago.

Manager Eugene Butson claims his team, the Whirlwinds, will beat the Mystery Five by six points, but the big butter-and-egg men backing the Mystery Five team anywhere from a steamboat to a doughnut say, "We won't let the Blue and White squad pass us! We will keep our score sheet clean. We've only lost two games in two years and have played some of the best teams in the state!"

"SHADOWS HUGER than the shapes that cast them"
(Alfred, Lord Tennyson, 1809-1892)

"Coming events cast their shadows before"

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*
By refraining from over-indulgence

Men who would keep that trim, proper figure, women who prize the modern figure with its subtle, seductive curves—eat healthfully but not immoderately. Banish excessiveness—eliminate abuses. Be moderate—Be moderate in all things, even in smoking. When tempted to excess, when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, reach for a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain that lithe, youthful figure.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette a man ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

*Be Moderate! : : : Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Feb. 5—(AP)—Russia reappeared as a bugbear in the wheat market today, and so also did Argentina. With 10,000 tons of wheat from Russia reported as arriving at Hamburg, Germany, unsold, and with prices for Argentine wheat at Buenos Aires undergoing a sharp setback, the wheat market here not only failed to hold early gains scored today, but almost altogether lost backbone in the final dealings. Weakness of wheat values at Winnipeg, together with dearth of European demand today for wheat from North America, had a notable disturbing influence.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat were heavy at the day's bottom level, 5-8c to 1 1-4c a bushel under yesterday's latest figures. Corn closed 5-8 a 3-4c to 1c down, oats unchanged to 1-4 a 3-8c off, and provisions varying from a decline to a rise of 10c.

Wiping out of early gains in the Chicago wheat market today came in the last half hour of trading, and was quickly followed by rapid further setbacks. Special notice was taken at this stage that the Winnipeg wheat pit, for at least the moment, appeared to be disregarding assurances that financial support from Canadian provincial authorities would prevent any large volume of Canadian wheat from being thrown on the market. Moreover, fizzling out of export business in North American wheat today, the total being but 300,000 bu, was a big disappointment to friends of higher prices, especially as Russia was announced as having disposed of more wheat to Great Britain and Argentine wheat values [illegible] showing a pronounced downward trend.

Late reactions in wheat prices at Liverpool today did a good deal to unsettle confidence of wheat traders here, more or less of new buying in Chicago having been based on advices that European continental reserve stocks of wheat were diminishing. Furthermore, wheat future delivery contracts at Liverpool were described as below the cost of laying down actual wheat there, and it was contended that European home-grown crops had been consumed beyond the average rate. However, efforts to realize profits for traders here who yesterday and early today had been active buyers put the market under increasing pressure. In the end, assertions of Chicago trade authorities that European demand for North American wheat is likely to be much increased during the remainder of the year, and that any change in domestic winter wheat crop conditions must be for the worse, seemed to be wholly ignored.

Corn and oats prices were responsive to wheat market weakness. Iowa advices said some increase of movement of the corn crop is expected.

Provisions averaged higher as a result of commission house buying of lard.

POETRY

When It's Winter in Old New England

When the sun sets early and gets up late,
When you shake and shiver from toes to pate;
When the gale goes "wooooo!" in the branches stark
And the nights are endlessly long and dark;
When the pump is "friz," and the sink won't drain,
And the starter jams on your old machine,
And you crank and crank till your tendons crack,
And the air grows blue, while your thoughts grow black,
And you cuss as rarely you've ever cussed,
When you find the radiator has bust——
It's Winter in Old New England!

When the lake is iced like the frigid pole,
And for water you chop at a frozen hole;
When you saw huge logs, and you split 'em, too,
And crouch and cowel as Esquimaux do;
When you lug in wood for the fireplace,
And the woodbox, too, with a frosted face;
And one side cooks while the other freezes,
And the air is loud with your wheezes and sneezes,
And, shrinking away from the biting breezes
You're numb from your heels to your shivering kneeses;
And no matter how often you heave in sticks,
There's always a fire somewhere to fix—
It's Winter in Old New England.

When in knitted "mittins" your fingers ache;
When you muffle your neck, for dear life's sake;
Wear woolens and sweaters and mackinaws,
Two pairs of "footins," and arctics, because
If you don't you'll die; when you bulk immense,
As you shovel a pathway along the fence;
When you pull your cap o'er your stiffened ears,
And your lashes whiten with icy tears;
When you breath makes steam; and the panes are lost
'Neath flower-gardens of crystal frost,
And the shrunk balls crack in the frozen beams,
And warmth and comfort are distant dreams——
It's Winter in Old New England!

When you sleep in blankets, and curl up small,
And hurry upstairs through a freezing hall;
When you dress in haste as you shake and shiver,
When you dream of the Tropics, and long to fly;
When you ponder Havana, with groan and sigh;
When the hours are bleak, and the clouds drift gray
From sullen dawning till fall of day;
And the birds are gone, and the squirrels sleeping,
And Nature, diminuedo, is creeping,
Though Summer is heaven, you know that—well—
This season now is a first class—discomfort!
It's Winter in Old New England!

—George Allan England, in Boston Globe.

A Song For Churning

Churning is music;
Come, child, and learn
Old dance steps
From a rhythmic churn.

Come, child, and hear
What the dasher is saying
Of wind in clover,
Of grasses swaying.

Come, make your body,
A slim green steam,
Make your arms, flowers
With rain on them.

Make leaves of your fingers—
Young leaves a-flutter;
Come, child, and dance
To the splashing of butter.

—Ethel Romig Fuller, in Christian Science Monitor.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

William—A penny for your thoughts.

James—What do you think I am—a slot machine.

Ella—Your suit looks rusty.

Bert—Well, the salesman said it would wear like iron.—Royal Arcanum Bulletin.

He (meekly)—You know, dear, I've been thinking over our argument and I've decided to agree with you.

She (tartly)—Well, it won't do you any good, I've changed my mind.—Pathfinder.

The Bailiff—How you gonna prove that guy's insane? What evidence you got?

Counselor Cubicle—What evidence have I got? Remember, Jimmy, he has chosen me as his lawyer.

One morning when the children were eating breakfast, Milford put two heaping spoonfuls of sugar in his cocoa.

"I should think one spoonful would be enough," objected his sister.

"I should think so too," he replied, "but it ain't."—Montreal Gazette.

Laura—Was Harry much cast down after he spoke to your father.

Nora—Yes, three flights of stairs.

"Dad, what part of speech is 'woman'?"

"Woman isn't a part of speech, son; she's all of it."—Chicago Tribune.

"On my first appearance here, the people stormed the box office."

"And did they get their money back?"—Hummel, Hamburg.

Customer (modestly)—I'm afraid she has.

"Waiter! Waiter!" shouted the diner, "this steak is burned black."

"Mark of respect sir," said the waiter, solemnly, "our manager died yesterday."—Montreal Star.

Lady—I must go. I have to meet my husband at five o'clock.

Hostess (sitting down again)—Ah, then I still have half an hour.—Die Lustige Kiste Leipzig.

"No," said the shopkeeper, "I don't want any slot machines that involve gambling."

"These," replied the salesman earnestly, "are not gambling devices. The customer hasn't a chance."—"Birmingham Gazette."

The street car already was well filled when a very stout gentleman pushed in and sat down, part of his ample proportions falling on a very thin and rather sour-looking gentleman on his right.

The latter glared at him. "They ought to charge by weight in these cars," he said.

"In which case," was the genial response, "it wouldn't be worth while stopping to pick you up."

End Bunion Pain Forever

No Need to Suffer Another Day These Agonizing Torturing Pains

There is one simple yet inexpensive way to reduce inflamed, swollen toe joints and get them down to normal, and that is to apply Moone's Emerald Oil night and morning, and people who suffer from such enlargements would be wise to reduce them before they reach a more or less chronic stage.

Ask any first class druggist for an original two-ounce bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full-strength) and refuse to accept anything in its place. It is such a highly concentrated preparation that two ounces last a long time, and furthermore if this wonderful discovery does not give you complete satisfaction you can have your money refunded.

Special note. People who want to reduce swollen or varicose veins should get a bottle of Emerald Oil at once. By applying night and morning as directed they will quickly notice an improvement which will continue until the veins and bunches are reduced to normal.

For COLDS

We all catch colds and they can make us miserable; but yours needn't last long if you will do this: Take two or three tablets of Bayer Aspirin just as soon as possible after a cold starts. Stay in the house if you can—keep warm. Repeat with another tablet or two of Bayer Aspirin every three or four hours, if those symptoms of cold persist. Take a good laxative when you retire, and keep bowels open. If throat is sore, dissolve three tablets in a quarter-glassful of water and gargle. This soothes inflammation and reduces infection. There is nothing like Bayer Aspirin for a cold, or sore throat. And it relieves aches and pains almost instantly. The genuine tablets, marked Bayer, are absolutely harmless to the heart.

BULLS GIVE DEMONSTRATION OF OLD TIME STRENGTH IN THE STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 5—(AP)—Display of bull pyrotechnics mildly reminiscent of old times gave the stock market its first 4,000,000 share day during 1930 today. Stocks were taken in blocks of 5,000 to 16,000 shares, and ticker delays of quarter of an hour were common. Important shares generally rose 1 to 5 points, but the bull crowd was hampered by profit-taking, and upward progress was rather strenuous work.

Favorable trade reports and the prospect of reductions in the New York and London bank rates tomorrow gave the advantages to speculators for the rise. Commission house advices, however, were divergent and contradictory. Several advised their customers to use the advances to lighten accounts, while others saw the beginnings of an important advance. In some quarters it was reported that pools were making bullish displays in efforts to distribute their holdings, while in others the buying was described as of an encouraging character.

Advices from London indicated that a reduction in the British bank rate tomorrow was highly probable. Wall street banking circles, however, were less confident that the New York Reserve bank would immediately follow London, and while a cut in the New York rate tomorrow remains a possibility, there is a growing belief that it may be delayed several weeks. The cheap money policy of the reserve system in early 1927 has caused so much censure from certain quarters that a more cautious policy may now be followed. Credit conditions eased a little today, call money getting down to 4 per cent, after renewals at 4 1-2.

The weekly steel trade reviews reported brisk picking up of activity, which Iron Age described as "a snapping back of demand to a level in keeping with actual consumption." Mill bookings in January were placed at 18 per cent above December, but 18 1-4 per cent below 1929. Freight car loadings as reported for the week ended Jan. 25 showed a moderate gain over the previous week, due to a larger movement of coal. The first chain store sales reports for January were fairly satisfactory. Woolworth reported a gain over January of 1929 of 4.2 per cent. The old stores showed a gain of less than 1-2 of one per cent, but this contrasted with a loss in the previous January. A few automobile executives issued optimistic forecasts.

Utilities were again pronouncedly buoyant. American and Foreign Power, American Power and Light, American Telephone, United Corp., Detroit Edison, and Standard Gas rose 2 to 5 points. Industrials making similar progress included Allied Chemical, American Tobacco B, American Can, Chicago Pneumatic, Fox Film, General Electric, Marshall & Co., Newton Steel, and Westinghouse Electric. American Locomotive sagged below 95 to a new 1930 low on rumors of a reduction of the dividend, but closed at 100, up 3, on official denial. Gillette was depressed on rumors of delays in bringing out its new model, which were also officially denied, but the stock closed off 2 3-4. Celotex rose about 3 points to a new high above 56, a gain of more than 20 points in the past few weeks, on reports of a large order from a leading refrigerator manufacturer for its composition board. Simmons was again under pressure, closing about 3 points lower, reflecting reports that its business has suffered through readjustments incident to expansion in the furniture field.

Commodities failed to hold their gains of yesterday. Wheat futures closed about 1 cent lower, reflecting a bearish government weather report, and reports of export sales by Russia. Corn futures sagged nearly as much. Cotton was firm for a time, but eased later in sympathy with the Liverpool market.

Foreign exchanges were quiet, with European currencies steady to firm. Sterling Cables closed at $4.86 7-16, up 1-16. The Latin Americans were again heavy.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 5—(AP)—Heavy buying of the public utilities, several of which advanced to new high levels for the year, featured the resumption of a broad upward movement in today's curb market. Oil and aviation shares were the only important groups which failed to make much progress. The splendid resistance shown to selling pressure yesterday attracted fresh buying on the theory that recent gains had been well consolidated, and that the technical position of the market was sufficiently strong to indicate an extension of the rise in many stocks.

Electric Bond & Share was again the leader of the utility group, touching 99, or nearly double the price established in the break last fall, and then easing to 98 for a net gain of 3 1-4 points. Southeastern Power & Light soared 11 1-4 points on a few sales, and American Light & Traction jumped 6 1-2. American Gas & Electric advanced nearly 4 points, American & Foreign Power warrants 3 and a long list of others, including Cities Service, moved up a point or more.

Natural gas stocks were again bought in large volume on rumors of ambitious expansion plans designed to bring the product to several of the large eastern cities to supplement the manufactured variety. Southwest Gas utilities crossed 15 to a new high for a gain of more than 4 points, but lost part of its gain. Arkansas issues also were turned over in large volume at advancing prices.

A further rise in the investment trust and trading corporation issues, led by Lehman corporation, Transamerica and International Utilities issues, reflected the recent appreciation of the market value of their securities holdings. Anchor Post Fence duplicated the year's high of 14 on buying influenced by the high current yield, and reports that 1929 earnings were well above dividend requirements. Ford Motors Limited advanced 1 point on a fairly heavy turnover, Noranda Mines and Newmont led a moderate advance in the mining shares.

Spiegel May preferred and A. & P. each dropped about 5 points on small transactions. General Baking preferred was again heavy. Gulf Oil of Pennsylvania lost 1 1-4 points, reflecting cuts in Pennsylvania crude prices, while the other active petroleum shares showed little change.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 5—(AP)—All sections of the bond market closed higher today, the averages showing the largest gain in a month. Volume of trading was not particularly imposing, but the list responded readily to buying orders and it was apparent that the effect of the enormous amount of new financing done in January was wearing off.

French Republic 7 1-2s and 7s again traded with unusual activity. Both issues duplicated the record highs made yesterday, but the former was pulled down a point from the peak level and closed at 122 for a small net loss. The 7s finished at the top, 116.

There was noticeable improvement elsewhere in the foreign group, with German 7s, Japan 6 1-2s, Hamburg 6s, Norway 6s, Tokio Electric 6s, Paris-Lyons-Mediterranean 7s and Australian 4 1-2s making fractional gains on lively inquiry.

Domestic rails were exceptionally firm and small upturns appeared in most of the leading issues. Pennsylvania Gold 5s rose a full point. St. Louis & San Francisco 4 1-2s moved up 3-4 on a large turnover, and Wabash 5s, Series B, advanced 1 1-2.

Utilities were generally higher. American Telephone 5s of 1965 held most of a gain of 3-8, while Columbia Gas & Electric 5s (May), Consolidated Gas of New York 5 1-2s, Portland Electric Power 6s, International Telephone 4 1-2s, Western Union 6 1-2s and the Detroit Edison 5s were well bought.

Numerous industrials of good grade rallied about half a point. These included Wilson First 6s, Liggett & Myers 5s, American Smelting 5s and American Sugar 6s. United States Rubber 5s, Goodyear 5s and numerous others were firm. Standard Oil of New York 4 1-2s moved briskly, rising a full point on a substantial volume.

As was natural from the tone of the stock market, convertible bonds were strong. American Telephone 4 1-2s gained 1 3-4 net, closing at 150 on total sales of more than $1,000,000 principal amount. Gains of a point and more appeared in American International 5 1-2s, Atchison 4 1-2s, and Missouri Pacific 5 1-2s, while New Haven 6s, International Telephone 4 1-2s and Chicago & Northwestern 4 3-4s rose about half a point each. American I. G. Chemical 5 1-2s sagged back to par for a net loss of 3-4.

Obligations of the United States were quiet, but net changes were irregularly higher. Liberty 3 1-2s, First 4 1-4s and the Treasury 3 3-4s of 1946-56 improved from three to six thirty-seconds.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5—(AP)—Stockholders of the New York Central railroad have approved the proposed increase in the capital stock from $500,000,000 to $700,000,000.

Locomotives ordered last month from American manufacturers amounted to 163, compared with 167 in December, and 28 in January, 1929, according to Railway Age. Freight car orders totaled 6,632 last month, as against 9,755 a month ago, and 12,422 a year ago. Fifty-eight passenger cars were ordered in January, contrasting with 77 in the preceding month and 228 in the corresponding month a year ago.

It was reported in financial circles today that Aeronautical Industries, Inc., an investment company specializing in the securities of aviation companies, is to be acquired by the National Aviation Corp., which was formed to finance and advise new companies in the aviation industry.

Wall street hears that the recent advance in Celotex has been passed in part, on expectations of a huge order from Frigidaire for insulating equipment. The company already supplies such material to 60 manufacturers of refrigerating equipment.

The federal reserve bank's daily gold movement statement showed imports of $250,000 from Argentina and $130,000 from Brazil, no exports and no net change in the amount of gold earmarked for foreign account.

DISSINGER'S BASKET IN LAST MINUTE WINS FOR PLAINFIELD

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, Feb. 5.—Roy Dissinger's basket in the fast waning seconds of the Seneca Indians—Plainfield Pros game here tonight gave the Pros a 23 to 22 victory over the redskins. The basket climaxed one of the best games ever seen on the local floor, a game that was hard fought from start to finish and one that kept the capacity crowd on their toes all the way. The game was marked by brilliant passwork and defensive playing by both teams. The Pros matched every bit of strategy in the Indians' book with a smarter bit of their own.

The Indians started their clever passing game early in the fray and although the scoring was light they were on the long end of a 13 to nine score at the half. This lead they increased five points when there were but three and a half minutes to go and the score 22 to 17 in their favor. The game looked hopelessly lost but Plainfield rallied, displayed a bewildering grand of passing and Bernot dropped in two baskets in rapid succession to make the count 17-21, with less than a minute to play. At the tap-off Conway tapped to Kasper and passed to Dissinger and the ball sailed through the netting a second before the whistle blew.

In the preliminary game the Buddies swamped the Wauregan Town team 54 to 25. The summaries:

SHAMROCKS NOSE OUT FAST WATERBURY Y. M. H. A.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

COLCHESTER, Feb. 5.—One of the fastest and most exciting basketball games of the season was played in New Park hall here tonight when the Colchester Shamrocks defeated the strong Y. M. H. A. quintet of Waterbury by a 35 to 32 score. Up to the last quarter the Waterbury outfit held the lead but in the last quarter the Shamrocks rallied and easily overcame their opponents' eight-point lead. Both teams were playing at top form. The Shamrocks made an unusually good showing in spite of the fact that one of their star men, Sol Cohen, was unable to play. Fedus and Gyome starred for the Colchester outfit with 14 and 10 points, respectively, while M. Levine and Koservsky featured for Waterbury with 12 and 8 points, respectively. The local team feels elated over its victory as the Waterbury outfit is said to be one of the strongest teams in the western part of the state and it is understood they have a record of nine victories out of 12 games played so far this season. Susie Says

That a certain member of a certain police force in a certain eastern Conn. town is on his job is evidenced by the following story.

It seems that this officer was patrolling his beat in an isolated section of the said certain city when he heard noises issuing from a certain building.

He stopped, looked and listened. Yes sir, somebody was in that building. He saw a light and several moving shadows and above all, heard the low muttering of voices. Something was not all right.

And something must be done quick. The police station being only a short distance away he went for reinforcements in high gear. He literally burst into the station house and up to the desk.

"Sarge, Sarge, the bottling works, the bottling works," he gasps between breaths. And then he turns and starts for the door again. The sergeant at the desk, thinking that the bottling works may be afire, starts for the alarm box.

Thinking he better make sure before calling the department he shouts after the fast retreating officer, "Hey, what about the bottling works." One word is the officer's reply, "Burglars."

Well, that's a different matter. The sergeant grabs his hat, coat and trusty revolver and is soon at the heels of the officer who is headed back to the bottling works. They arrive in nothing flat and plenty out of wind.

Caution is their watchword. Sure enough the burglars are still there, lights and shadows attest to this. The officer goes stealthily to the door and opens it ready for any dirty work.

He throws it open and there stands revealed the prowlers of the night—the proprietor of the works and his helper. The officer is speechless and the sarge is far from it.

"Why, why, you—you——" and words fail him, "don't you know they're working overtime?" asks the sergeant.

The officer, having regained his powers of speech, looks and mumbles, "Yes, so they are."

Of course, he's stood a lot of ragging and it was funny but just the same he was on his job and had it been burglars he would have got them.

It was a whole lot better to be safe than sorry and the next time it may be burglars.

She went out in 37 strokes and came back in 36, her card being only four strokes above the men's par. The previous record in competition on the course was held by Miss Glenna Collett, national champion, with a score of 75.

PESEK BEATS EVKO IN STRAIGHT FALLS

It was probably Pesek's last match before meeting Jim Londos for recognition by the National Boxing association for the heavyweight wrestling championship of the world.

Tin Whistle Tourney

PINEHURST, N. C., Feb. 5.—(AP)—John J. Fitzgerald of Osterville, Mass., with the gross score of 78, which gave him a net of 67, won the class A trophy in a tournament of the tin whistles today in which 70 players, the largest line-up of the season, participated. The card of 74 of R. G. Morrison of Pittsburgh, was the low gross. The competition was medal play with handicaps.

Y SENIORS STAY IN STATE LEAGUE RACE BY BEATING NORWALK FIVE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NORWALK, Feb. 5.—With Les Pingree and Aubrey Brown, center and right forward, respectively, scoring more than enough points between them for the victory, the Norwich Y Seniors swept aside the Norwalk Y quintet tonight in a state league game and thereby remained very much a contender in the torrid race that is being staged. The score was 53 to 35.

Pingree scored 21 points and Brown one less, the former getting ten field goals and a foul and the latter nine field goals and two fouls.

Norwich displayed superior passwork throughout the game and at half time were in front by a score of 30 to 25.

The Seniors now are in fourth place but only a short distance behind Middletown in third. Norwich meets Greenwich, the league-leader Saturday night in Norwich and by winning that game, the affairs of the league will be so twisted that the Seniors would be in second place, which Bridgeport now occupies. When Bridgeport beat Middletown Monday night, 30 to 25, it was a big help to the Rose City team.

REDS TRADE LUQUE TO DODGERS FOR McWEENY

(By Brian Bell, Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Feb. 5—(AP)—Cincinnati's Reds of the National league today drew on clubs of Greater New York for two players, surrendered one, and promised to deliver another later. The transfer of Durocher, flashy fielding shortstop but light hitter, was effected by the Yankees to the Reds for an unannounced sum of money and an unidentified player. The Cincinnati player, however, is not expected to join the Yankees but will be used to pay an obligation the club owes in the Pacific coast league.

Cincinnati gave Adolfo Luque, to Brooklyn in an even trade for Douglas McWeeny.

If Durocher becomes a regular for the Reds the far-famed double play combination of Ford and Critz will be broken up. The Cincinnati shortstop and second baseman in 1928 assisted the Reds in making a record of 194 double plays.

The trade between Cincinnati and Brooklyn involves two pitchers who were ineffective last year. Luque, the only Cuban player in the majors, is nearing 40 years of age. McWeeny, who is only 31 years old, had a good year in 1928, but never could get started in 1929.

Dan Howley, manager of the Reds, has moved to the National from the American league and the addition of Durocher marks the third American league player to go with him. The others, Bob Meusel of the Yankees and Harry Heilmann, of Detroit, are expected to strengthen the Red's outfield.

The New York Giants announced that Lou Allen, Harvey Ballew and Eddie Marshall, young outfielders, and Sam Leslie, who is to be converted from a first baseman into an outfielder, will go to the San Antonio training camp with the pitchers and catchers who are to report February 17.

TOURTELLOTTE HIGH WINS FROM TRADE SCHOOL

(Special to The Bulletin)

NORTH GROSVENORDALE, Feb. 5.—The Tourtellotte high school basketball team played the State trade school five at the T. M. H. S. gym this afternoon. The T. M. H. S. team had the ball in their possession most of the time. The score at the end of the first quarter was 6-4 in Trade School's favor. The score at the end of the first half was 15-18 in favor of Trade School.

At the end of the third quarter Tourtellotte was leading by the score of 25-21. The final score was 32-25 in Tourtellotte's favor.

FABRE WINS ANOTHER LAP IN SNOWSHOE RACE

L'ASSOMPTION, Que., Feb. 5.—(AP)—Edouard Fabre, veteran Montreal runner, won his fourth consecutive lap in the International Snowshoe race from Quebec to Montreal, covering 50 miles from Louiseville to L'Assomption in 9 hours and 48 minutes. His total elapsed time is 29 hours, 20 minutes and 30 seconds.

Phil Granville of Hamilton, Ont., came in two minutes behind Fabre for a total time of 32:48:47. Cussom of Montreal, was in third place with times of ten hours and 35:19:32 for the lap and race respectively.

QUINN FIGHTS AT PROVIDENCE FRIDAY NIGHT

Jimmy Quinn, local amateur featherweight, will fight again on the amateur card at Providence Friday night. His opponent, who will remain unnamed until fight-time, may be Tony Catalено, who holds a decision over the Greeneville boxer.

The Jimmy Quinn who fights Eddie Reed on the card at Hartford tonight is not the local boy, as many are believing. Jimmy has not yet made his pro debut but as he has had several tempting offers, it may not be many weeks before he does.

EAGLES HAND REDS FIRST DEFEAT IN NINE GAMES

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Feb. 5.—(AP)—The New Haven Eagles handed the Rhode Island Reds a 5 to 2 defeat here tonight, the first defeat for Providence on its own ice in nine starts. Hitherto they had not even been tied since Sprague Cleghorn took charge.

The Reds failed to check the New Haven offense, giving the visitors many scoring chances, while Jakie Forbes played a great game in goal for the visitors to turn away the Reds.

George Himes, big defense man, received two bad cuts in the last period. Several stitches were taken for one in his scalp. The other was on the nose between the eyes.

BARBUTTI FAILS TO SHOW IN THE SPRINTS

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 5.—(AP)—Ray Barbutti, running his first competitive race since he won the Olympic 400 meter championship finished fifth in a field of five in a 50 yard dash at the Newark A. C. games tonight.

Barbutti, who is at his best at the quarter mile and not the sprints, was last from the start and crossed the line eased up and grinning, hopelessly out of it.

In the 50, Bill Bruder, of the Newark A. C., was first in 5 3-5 seconds; Bob Talbot, Newark A. C., second; Bob Wiese, New York A. C., third; John McDonald, Yale, fourth; and Barbutti, running unattached, fifth.

The big ex-Syracuse football star and Olympic hero, who was recently reinstated after talking himself into the bad graces of the amateur athletic union, took too long to get under way.

At his first taste of springing speed in the 50 yard event, Barbutti was distanced before they had traveled a dozen yards and he finished up, grinning at his own discomfiture.

He then proceeded to take his medicine in the other dashes and things got worse instead of better.

Barbutti selected the short distance as the best at which to start a comeback as he is short on training for the longer events. Even in the dashes, however, he found his lack of recent competitive opportunities far too big a handicap to be overcome.

The big competitive thrill of the evening came when Ray Conger, the slender Iowan, who holds the national 10000 yard championship, was beaten at the distance by Dr. Paul Martin of Switzerland in 2 minutes, 15 seconds, speedy time for the flat 113th Regiment armory track.

Phil Edwards, young Negro internationalist who starred for New York university and the Canadian Olympic team, bowed to both Martin and Conger in an exciting finish. Edwards set the early pace but could not gain enough of a lead to withstand the closing sprints of Martin and Conger.

It was the first winning race of the season for Martin, a veteran of three Olympic games as a representative of Switzerland.

Eddie Roll, former Colgate flier, now representing the Newark A. C., showed the way to Pete Bowen, of the University of Pittsburgh, national quarter mile champion; Johnny Gibson, of Bloomfield, N. J., speedster and Eddie Blake of the Boston A. A., in a 500 yard special. The time of 60 seconds was fast for the flat track.

Roll took the lead at the start, fought off a challenge by Gibson and then one by Blake and beat Bowen to the tape by five yards with Gibson third and Blake fourth.

ST. GODDARD WINS HIS NINTH BIG DOG DERBY

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 5.—(AP)—Emile St. Goddard, 24-year-old musher from The Pas, Man., won his ninth important victory in dog sled racing today, capturing the first annual Ottawa International og Derby with an elapsed time margin of 20 minutes and 20 seconds over Earl Brydges of Cranberry Portage, Man., second of the four finishers.

St. Goddard won both of the first two laps to gain a lead that was good enough to win although he finished third on the final 33-mile lap today. Starting with a margin of 20 minutes and 35 seconds, St. Goddard ran over the course today in two hours, 56 minutes and 56 seconds, more than 19 minutes slower th n his record trip of the first day. Then he set a mark of two hours 37 minutes.

The victory brought St. Goddard a $1,000 cash prize and the Chateau Laurier challenge cup.

The duel betwen Brydges and Leonhard Seppala of Nome, Alaska, for second place, furnished the thrill of the final dash; Seppala won the lap in the two hours, 55 minutes and 20 seconds, but he could only cut five seconds from the 43 second lead Brydges had gained in the first two laps and had to be content with third place. The two staged a thrilling dash to the finish line, hampered by the thousands of spectators who lined the route.

Brydges had an elapsed time of eight hours, 33 minutes and 35 seconds. Seppala was just 38 seconds behind in elapsed time. Brydges got a $400 prize.

Georges Chervette of Quebec finished fourth and last in the race, covering today's lap in 3:33:40 for a total elapsed time of 9:36:57.

FOUR ATHLETICS OFF FOR SPRING TRAINING

Bill Gleason, veteran coach, was in charge of the quartet which was made up of Rube Walberg, pitcher; Bing Miller, outfielder; Jimmy Dykes, third baseman, and Jack Boley, shortstop. Arriving Friday they will be met by Al Simmons, Jack Quinn and Bill Shores. Mickey Cochrane, the Mackmen's peppery catcher, is making the trip by automobile.

MISS HENIE WINS FIGURE SKATING CROWN AGAIN

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(AP)—For the fourth straight time, Miss Sonja Henie, 17-year-old Norwegian girl, won the women's world figure skating championships here tonight before a crowd of 10,000, the first time the title competition has been staged in the United States. Karl Shafer of Vienna, Austria, succeeded to the men's singles throne which Gillis Grafstrom of Sweden failed to defend. ELDER DOES 50 YARDS IN FAST TIME

CINCINNATI, Feb. 5.—(AP)—Jack Elder, Notre Dame track and football star, ran the 50-yard dash in five and two-fifths seconds here tonight on the indoor track at St. Xavier college. Robert Brand, St. Xavier, was second; Jack Mahoney, St. Xavier, third, and Dick Mahoney, Notre Dame, fourth. Elder's time tied the national intercollegiate indoor record for the distance.

Tigers Beat Arrows

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 5.—(AP)—The Boston Tigers, last year's champions, scored three goals in the ten-minute extra period tonight and defeated the Philadelphia Arrows, 4 to 1, in a Canadian-American hockey game.

The match was one of the roughest of the season and many penalties were inflicted. The Tigers had too much stamina for the Arrows and, going into the extra period with the score 1 to 1, took advantage of the faltering Quakers and scored three goals.

Holding a precarious one-point lead in the last minute with Bill McCall, Dartmouth forward, on a scoring rampage, the Lions took to stalling and the game ended in a general melee under the Green basket.

TWO SPRINGFIELD BANKS VICTIMS OF SWINDLER

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Feb. 5—(AP)—A swindler with a new line of approach got away with $93.75 at each of two banks and one in Palmer today. Entering the Third National and the Springfield Chapin National, the young man presented checks drawn on the City National Bank and Trust company, of Hartford, Conn., representing himself to be an employe of some concern in the same building with the banks. Communication with the Hartford bank revealed that the checks were worthless.

The annual report of the secretary of labor says that from 1908 to 1929, 4,000,000 resident aliens left the United States with the stated intent of living in another country. During the same period, 12,000,000 immigrant aliens were admitted to the country.

Resident aliens, however, are not the only ones who take a final look at the statue of Liberty. In the last 12 years more than 485,000 native born and 63,000 naturalized citizens left the United States to take up permanent or at least extended residence abroad.

SUIT FOR MAINTENANCE AGAINST LESLIE ARNOLD

Leslie P. Arnold, formerly of New London, was served papers in a separate maintenance suit filed last October, by Mrs. Mildred Avery Arnold as he stepped from his automobile at the home of his present wife, Priscilla Dean, at Los Angeles, Tuesday.

Lieutenant Arnold also was served with an order to show cause why he should not pay for the support of his first wife pending trial of the maintenance action. The order set the date of his appearance in the Long Beach superior court for Feb. 24.

The flier married Miss Dean in August, 1928, and at that time considered himself divorced from Mrs. Mildred Avery Arnold, having obtained a decree in Atlanta, Ga., in 1925. Last summer, however, the first Mrs. Arnold succeeded in having the Georgia court set aside the decree on the ground that she had not been notified of the bringing of the divorce action. Arnold is appealing the action in an effort to uphold the divorce.

NORWICH TELEPHONES NOW ON FOUR-PARTY SERVICE

While the new four party line telephone service which went into effect in the Norwich district, Feb. 5th, is working as smoothly as expected until the new telephone directories are delivered, there seems to be some confusion as to answering the proper ring associated with the letters W-J-R and M, regardless of the publicity covering the change.

The co-operation on the part of those subscribers affected by the change will help materially by answering the ring associated with the letter assigned their telephone number in the new directory as follows: Letters W and J answer to 1 long ring; letters R and M answer to 2 short rings.

POWER GAIN BIG IN CONNECTICUT IN 1929

Electric power generated by public utilities in Connecticut during 1929 exceeded the total production of 1928 by 14.7 per cent, according to the monthly reports issued by the United States geological survey.

During the year, Connecticut's combined total of hydro and steam generation was 1,457,242,00 kilowatt hours, an increase of 187,070,000 kilowatt hours over the figure for 1928.

This increase came entirely from steam plant generation, the state's electrical output from this source being 1,254,774,000 kilowatt hours which is a gain of 274,293,000 kilowatt hours or 27.9 per cent over the steam production of the previous year.

Hydro or water power production, because of the long drought of the summer and fall which put rivers and particularly the Housatonic river at the lowest ebb in many years, fell considerably below not only the 1928 hydro total but also that of 1927. The state's water power generation was 87,228,000 kilowatt hours short of the 1928 figure, a decrease of 30.1 per cent.

The total electrical production for every month in 1929, due to the continuous gain in steam generation, exceeded that of every corresponding month in 1928. It is interesting to note that Connecticut's greatest gains in generation and therefore in electrical consumption came in the final three months of the year, immediately following the sudden collapse of the stock market and its accompanying fear of industrial depression.

Water power production showed gains in only four months, March, April, May and December. The total for April was the largest in the state's history. Hydro generation dropped sharply at the start of the drouth in June and continued at low ebb throughout the summer and fall, coming back slowly in November and finally showing an actual increase in December over the corresponding month of 1928.

Connecticut's previously existing high monthly record for electrical production, which was created in October, 1928, was exceeded in seven of the twelve months in 1929. The month of October, 1929, established a new high record with a total production of 143,113,000 kilowatt hours. The October, 1928, mark was 116,556,000 kilowatt hours.

In addition to creating a new high monthly figure for total generation, October also established a new high for steam production, the month's figure for the steam operated stations being 135,871,000 kilowatt hours.

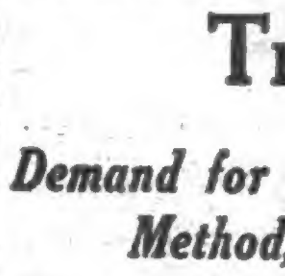
More and More Colds Treated Externally

Demand for Vicks, Pioneer of "No Dosing" Method, Grows at Amazing Rate



A generation ago, when Vicks VapoRub was originated, the idea of treating colds without "dosing" was almost unheard of. Today, more and more colds are treated externally, and the whole trend of medical practice is away from needless "dosing"

Best For Children

Mothers especially appreciate Vicks, because it checks colds without risk of upsetting children's delicate stomachs. Just rubbed on, Vicks acts through the skin like a poultice or plaster, "drawing out" tightness and soreness; and, at the same time, it gives off medicated vapors which are inhaled direct to the inflamed air-passages, loosening the phlegm and easing the difficult breathing.

Equally G[illegible]d for Adults

Year after year the demand for Vicks has grown until it is now the family standby for colds in more than 60 countries. Used largely at first for children's colds, actual use in millions of homes has proved it equally effective for adults.

Now "26" Million!

To keep pace with this ever-growing demand, the famous Vick slogan—"17 million Jars Used Yearly", was raised to "21 Million" a short time ago. This figure, too, has been outgrown, as there are now "over 26 Million Jars Used Yearly"—a jar for every family in the United States.

TELEPHONE CALLS TO BULLETIN OVER SHOOTING

"Is there any truth in the report that President Hoover was shot," was the gist of numerous telephone inquiries received at the editorial rooms of The Bulletin Wednesday evening. The calls came in soon after a news item on the attempted assassination of Preesident Rubio of Mexico was broadcast over the radio. It is presumed that the local listeners-in got the names of the two presidents confused and as a result the incorrect news spread like wildfire throughout the city. Upon receipt of the correct information a number of them remarked that "they were glad that President Hoover was not shot and sorry that it had happened to the Mexican president."

WITH the introduction of the sixteen-cylinder Cadillac, the Cadillac Motor Car Company has in the strictest sense provided for the three distinct price classifications in the fine car market.

The eight-cylinder Cadillac, with its luxurious Fisher and Fleetwood bodies, more than meets the needs of the major price classification and is established as the world's finest motor car—with the single exception of the new and more highly personalized Cadillac V-16.

As for the La Salle, the public's appreciation of its unequalled value and brilliant performance has impressively demonstrated Cadillac's ability to respond to the very real demand for a moderately priced quality car.

Since the building of the first eight-cylinder Cadillacs and La Salles almost half a million of these splendid motor cars have eminently served the most exclusive homes in America and abroad.

Really, no man or woman seeking the best possible investment in a fine automobile need look further. The eight-cylinder Cadillac and the eight-cylinder La Salle have attained such a degree of perfection that an understanding of their superiorities literally sets them apart from all other cars.

TROUBLE LOOMS IN HOUSE OVER INDUSTRIAL ALCOHOL

Both Wets and Drys Are Opposed to Giving the Attorney General and Secretary of the Treasury Joint Responsibility For Regulation of Permits—Otherwise the Wets Are Agreed to Give the Drys Everything They Desire to Enforce the Law, So That There Will Be No Alibi If They Fail in Enforcement.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6—(AP)—The Williamson bill to carry out the first of President Hoover's proposals to strengthen dry enforcement by transferring the prohibition unit from the treasury to the justice department today received its first consideration in the house, where its passage by Saturday virtually was assured.

Although there is little opposition to the transfer there, an attack was launched immediately by wets and drys against a provision to make the attorney general and secretary of the treasury jointly responsible for regulation of industrial alcohol permits.

The wets are agreed they want to give the drys everything they desire to enforce the law under the bill, so that there will be no alibi when, as they contend, enforcement will have failed in the justice department.

Some want the attorney general to make regulations under which the secretary of the treasury may issue permits. Others believe the dual responsibility will result in a spying by justice department agents on legitimate industrial alcohol consuming concerns, and that the treasury alone should regulate the 100,000 permits.

The law enforcement commission's recommendations for legislation to relieve federal court congestion by empowering United States commissioners to try casual or slight offenders of the dry laws was defended today before a house judiciary subcommittee by Chairman Wickersham and Roscoe Pound, of the commission. The latter contended that the definition of slight or casual cases to permit the imposition of fines up to $500 and imprisonment up to six months would make the proceedings in cases before United States commissioners constitutional.

The accused, he said, could demand trial by jury and it would be within the province of the district attorney as to whether the case should be submitted to a grand jury under the Jones law, as now is the case. District judges would be authorized to overrule either acquittals or convictions recommended by the commissioners.

The commission's recommendations were assailed in the senate by Senator Wagner, democrat, New York, who declared that its report to congress was disappointing and that the proposal to broaden the commissioner's power was unconstitutional.

"If you enact this proposal into law," he said, "you erect a new class of crimes, undefined, inchoate, of uncertain gravity of unknown penalty until such good time in each individual case as the attorney general decides."

Chairman Wickersham set aside March 5 for the commission to hear Representative Dyer, republican, Missouri, plead for the group to study the feasibility of legislation to authorize manufacture of 2.75 beer, which he says is non-intoxicating. The commission as yet has not considered the letter which Dyer addressed to it urging his beer proposal.

CLASHES IN SENATE OVER TARIFF RATES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6—(AP)—Despite a clash in their own ranks and an agreement among republican regulars to make a determined stand against further slashes in existing rates, senate democrats—aided by republican independents—succeeded today in making further inroads on the republican tariff bill.

Of eight amendments adopted to the chemical schedule after another hectic day of roll calls, six were to cut duties below present levels and the other two were to eliminate increases and restore existing levies.

Perturbed over the success of the coalition forces yesterday, old guard republicans held a conference before the senate met and agreed to keep a full force on the floor at all times in an effort to defeat opposition amendments. As a result the republican seats were well filled during the day and all record votes were close.

Senator Watson of Indiana, the republican leader, announced after the party conference that enough votes were in sight to pass the bill, despite an undercurrent of dissatisfaction expressed recently by a dozen or more of the newer republican senators. With the bill in conference with the house, the republicans feel they stand a better chance of getting a measure more to their liking.

Figures made public today by the internal revenue bureau showed that the 119,049,105,104 taken from bond last year were 18,122,399,453 more than during 1928.

At an average cost of 12 cents for each package of 20, the 1929 cigarette bill would have taken $750,000,000 out of the pockets of the smokers.

In contrast, however, the amount of snuff taken out of bond last year dropped 619,000 pounds as compared with the previous year, the total production amounting to 40,036,914 pounds. Manufactured tobacco also decreased about 6,000,000 pounds to a total of 337,716,425 and the production of playing cards dropped approximately 400,000 packs to a total of 51,878,382.

816 DIVORCES GRANTED IN CANADA LAST YEAR

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 6—(AP)—A record for the number of divorces granted was set in Canada during 1929, when a total of 816 marital bonds were dissolved. This was an increase of 31 over 1928.

An almost steady increase was shown from 1912 when decrees totaled 60.

Probability that 816 does not represent the total of Canadian divorces is indicated in the marriage and divorce bulletin of the U. S. census bureau, which notes a large number of Canadian people divorced in the United States.

NO HURRY TO CONSOLIDATE NEW ENGLAND RAILROADS

BOSTON, Feb. 6—(AP)—A disposition to go slowly in connection with any proposal to consolidate New England railroads, was indicated by executives who met with the New England railroad committee today to discuss a consolidation plan recently proposed by the interstate commerce commission.

The railroad committee, appointed by the governors of the six New England states, brought up the interstate commerce commission's plan. This would, if adopted, result in two main railroad systems for New England, one of which would bring together the Boston and Maine and other lines northeast, north and northwest of Boston. The second would unite the New York, New Haven and Hartford with subsidiary lines.

Lines under the control of the Boston and Albany railroad, now under lease to the New York Central and other lines controlled by Canadian railroads, or subsidiaries, would continue independent.

KU KLUX KLAN SUIT SETTLED OUT OF COURT

DETROIT, Feb. 6—(AP)—Settlement out of court of suits against the Wayne county (Detroit) Ku Klux Klan and its predecessor, the Shymwa club, was announced today.

One of the suits was that of C. C. Gilliland, who asked $175,000 damages for false arrest, while another was a petition for receivership and accounting. Gilliland recently was awarded $9,000 by a jury in a suit for compensation for his services in recovering property for the klan from former officers.

The amount involved in the settlement was not announced but William N. Nelson, attorney for Gilliland, indicated that his client's compromise figure was accepted. One of the individuals named as defendants indicated that the payment will be made by the national organization of the klan.

Gilliland alleged in his damage suit that the klan caused him to be arrested on a conversion charge to discredit him and force him to leave the city. The charge subsequently was dropped.

These things, I say sir, are things simply that are not done in official life,—except by the secretary of the treasury of the United States."

Woman Shoplifter Gets Life Sentence

Mrs. Ruth St. Clair Was Co[illegible]victed in New York [illegible] Fourth Offender.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6—(AP)—[illegible] Ruth St. Clair, 38, who plead[illegible] last week to a charge of [illegible], was convicted as a fourth o[illegible] in general sessions court today and sentenced to life imprisonment, the jury return the verdict after only 15 minutes deliberation.

The woman waived her rights as to motions for a new trial, fainted and had to be carried out of the courtroom.

A detective and a private detective testified at the trial today that Mrs. St. Clair, under the name of Ruth Davis, had pleaded guilty on Feb. 4, 1920, and in October 1924, respectively, to charges of grand larceny in the theft of merchandise from stores.

A police sergeant testified that as Stella Rose she pleaded guilty on Feb. 5, 1926, to a similar charge.

Mrs. St. Clair, with Mrs. Mary Fox, was arrested in Brooklyn last October on a shoplifting charge which Magistrate Mark Rubich later dismissed. Chief Magistrate William McAdoo criticized Magistrate Rubich's action and ordered the women rearrested. Mrs. Fox later was convicted and given a six-month sentence in the workhouse.

Mrs. St. Clair was the first woman in New York county to be sentenced for life as a fourth offender under the Baumes law. The four thefts of merchandise, for which she pleaded guilty to grand larceny in each case, netted her a total of three dresses and four coats in the past ten years.

INVESTIGATION OF RADIO CORPORATION OF AMERICA

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6—(AP)—Intensive investigation of the Radio Corporation of America, is being pushed by the department of justice to determine whether the corporation's control of 4,400 patents involved violation of anti-trust laws.

At a point in the Couzens' bill hearing, Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, contended that the R. C. A. "for a few paltry dollars" had refused police protection to cities by declining to co-operate in setting up equipment for use in reducing crime except at their own prices.

He declared that if the situation were what Senator Wheeler interpreted it to be, the R. C. A.'s position in the matter would be altered. Harbord later instructed Manton Davis, vice president of the R. C. A., to begin the investigation in New York tomorrow.

NO MATERIAL CHANGE IN CONDITION OF W. H. TAFT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6—(AP)—To reenforce William Howard Taft's resistance to the illness which has enfeebled him, his physicians resorted today to medicine that encouraged sleep.

The former president has slept at night since his arrival from the south on Tuesday; but the doctors wanted him to obtain even more rest. They believe this to be an important ally to medical science in their attempt to restore the 72 year old patient to health.

This afternoon they had found no material change in his weakened condition, and repeated in their bulletin that there was no fever and his pulse was satisfactory. While they apparently still felt the sick man was in no immediate danger, they gave no assurances of confidence that any crisis had been passed.

American Proposal For Naval Agreement

LONDON, Feb. 6—(AP)—The naval conference achieved significant program tonight with an important American statement that outlined definitely the nature of the naval agreement which can be reached at London.

The statement was given out by Colonel Henry L. Stimson, head of the American delegation, who, dressed in evening clothes for a dinner engagement, stopped off at St. James's palace to issue it to the press.

Briefly the situation is as follows:

First, Anglo-American naval parity will immediately be a reality and both fleets will be materially reduced, saving each country millions of dollars.

Second, a five-power agreement has been tentatively realized for "humanizing" submarine warfare.

Third, a provisional agreement has been reached on a new "yard stick" for fleet strength whereby conflicting French global and British category plans for limiting tonnage are reconciled.

Fourth, the conference work is progressing at such a pace that the Americans hope the work of writing the London treaty can be started within two weeks. Premier Andre Tardieu of France says the main work of the conference could be completed in ten days.

Colonel Stimson's important summary of the American position was made to newspaper men with Prime Minister MacDonald's knowledge. It is understood to carry with it British agreement. The Japanese delegation was informed of its contents.

Today's meeting of the conference, lasting two hours, contributed further material progress to the work, even in the perplexing task of adapting the French and the British tonnage limitation plans.

WASHINGTON INTERPRETATION OF THE STIMSON STATEMENT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—(AP)—President Hoover and acting Secretary of State Cotton carefully perused today the statement made in London by Henry L. Stimson, American secretary of state, proposing immediate naval parity with Great Britain.

As some naval observers here interpreted the statement, the United States proposes that it have 20 cruisers of the Omaha-Memphis class and eighteen 8-inch gun ships of the Salt Lake City class, giving it 38 cruisers in all. Great Britain would have fifteen 8-inch gun cruisers and a bigger number of smaller cruisers than the United States.

Should this agreement be entered into, the United States would build only ten of the fifteen 10,000-ton cruisers recently authorized by congress, but it would lay down an additional ten 6-inch gunships of approximately 7,000 standard tons.

In the matter of battleships, it was believed that the American proposal was for both Great Britain and the United States to scrap down to the fifteen ships each would be entitled to by 1932 under the terms of the Washington treaty. This would mean that Great Britain would scrap five of its older battleships and the United States three. That would bring about approximately tonnage parity as between the two main fleets.

Although the Stimson statement was not clear on this point, it was assumed here this agreement would contemplate some scrapping of capital ships by Japan so as to retain the 5-5-3 ratio of such craft provided for in the Washington naval limitation treaty.

The Stimson statement also was believed to indicate that the United States was prepared to accede to Japan in cruisers and other auxiliaries a greater ratio than that agreed upon in battleships in 1922.

LOVES HUSBAND SHE IS SUING FOR $30,000 DAMAGES

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 6—(AP)—Under cross examination today, Dolores Salazar, 24 year old Spanish dancer, testified that she associated with Ferdinand Pinney Earle, noted artist from whom she seeks $30,000 damages for alleged breach of pre-nuptial contract, because "I love him—all the time," and not for his money.

Pounding the witness chair with her fists, the dancer denied her principal reason for entering an alleged agreement to marry Earle was to obtain $15,000, which she claims the artist promised to place in trust for her but which she never received.

"I didn't think about his money—I didn't care whether he had any or not," the witness replied to defense questions.

BANKS REDUCE REDISCOUNT RATES TO HELP TRADE AND BUSINESS EXPANSION

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Two of the world's important banks today took steps to ease credit, thereby facilitating trade and business expansion.

The New York federal reserve bank reduced its rediscount rate to 4 per cent from 4 1-2, taking action several hours after the Bank of England's rate had been cut to 4 1-2 from 5 per cent. The German Central bank reduced its rate from 6 1-2 to 6 on Tuesday of this week, while the Bank of France cut to 3 from 3 1-2 last Thursday. Since January 1, several other central banks on the continent have taken similar action, including those of Belgium, Hungary, Poland, Austria, Sweden and the Netherlands.

These readjustments represent the completion of another credit cycle of about a 3 3-4's duration. Early in 1929, after several previous increases had failed to stem the flow of credit into speculative channels, the federal reserve board issue its first warning against the excessive use of credit by the securities markets to the detriment of general business. Meanwhile, stock speculation continued at a brisk pace and the warning was renewed in August when the New York bank rate was marked up to 6 per cent.

The peak of stock speculation was reached in the following month, followed by several weeks of backing and filling and then the complete collapse in prices in October and November. Immediately after this thorough deflation had taken place, the rate was reduced a full per cent to 5 and shortly after cut to 4 1-2.

While England was not directly confronted with securities inflation in its own markets, except in the so-called Hatry issues, the country was nevertheless faced with a serious drain on its gold supply because of the tremendous absorption of credit by the speculative markets of the United States. Although a lower bank rate was badly needed in England to stimulate business, the heavy loss of gold to France in recent months delayed a reduction until a lower bank of France rate minimized the possibility of any further drain from that source.

Wall street always had understood that a gentlemen's agreement existed between the heads of the central banks in London and New York whereby they would keep each other informed of prospective rate changes and endeavor to act in unison to maintain a fair relationship between the two money markets.

SCORE OF PERSONS UNDER ARREST IN MEXICO CITY

Apprehended After a Joint Investigation of Attack On the Life of President Rubio—Assailant Maintains a Defiant Attitude and Insists That He Alone Planned Assassination Attempt—Authorities Are Endeavoring to Uncover What They Believe Was a Well Prepared Plot.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 6—(AP)—Police and military authorities tonight held approximately a score of persons under arrest after a joint investigation of the attempted assassination of President Ortiz Rubio shortly after the inaugural ceremonies yesterday.

Daniel Flores, the well dressed, quiet young man who fired six shots from a 38 calibre pistol into the presidential limousine, wounding the president in the cheek and jaw, was constantly questioned during the day at the military prison. The military authorities endeavored to get to the bottom of what they believed to have been a well prepared plot against Ortiz Rubio.

Flores maintained a defiant attitude and insisted that he alone had planned and executed the assassination attempt.

The exact number of persons detained, and their names, was not divulged. But one young woman and a young man connected with the headquarters staff of the "Vasconcelista," or antireelectionist party, during the presidential campaign were said to be among them. The Vasconcelistas were the opponents of Ortiz Rubio's party at the November election.

General Mijares Palacios, chief of police, this afternoon made public part of the scant information that has been obtained from Flores by constant questioning.

General Palacios said that Flores, when asked if he had a father, had evaded giving any clue to his identity or his past.

"Every one is supposed to have a father, isn't he?" Flores said.

"What is your father's name?" he was then asked.

"I don't know."

After blocking the progress of this kind of cross-examination for a while, Palacios said, Flores remarked:

"To show you how clever your detectives are I want to make you a little present."

Thereupon he extracted from his sleeve six revolver cartridges the detectives had not found.

The authorities believe that Flores was born and raised in the state of San Luis Potosi and that his family still lives there. Detectives are conducting a complete investigation in that state.

The name of the young woman arrested is said to be Rivera. She is reported to have been head of a women's committee supporting the candidacy of Vasconcelos.

Military commanders throughout the country tonight telegraphed that conditions were tranquil, and Mexico City itself was calm.

The president, under the constant watch of doctors at his home, was reported tonight to be resting comfortably. It is hoped that he will be able to resume work within a week.

His home is guarded by police and by troops. Only the most prominent people and his closest friends have been allowed to see him.

General Augustin Mora, chief of the presidential military staff, gave out a statement expressing Ortiz Rubio's gratitude for the messages pouring in from friends and sympathizers throughout the world. One of the messages was from President Hoover.

The program of functions and festivities in connection with the inauguration, which was suspended on account of the shooting yesterday, began again today, except for those in which the president's presence was indispensable.

PRESIDENT RUBIO OF MEXICO IN GOOD SHAPE

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 6, (7:00 p. m.)—President Ortiz Rubio of Mexico underwent a second operation this morning to remove a piece of splintered bone from his jaw, but came out of the anesthetic in good shape, it was learned tonight.

His doctors insisted that his condition was good.

KIDNAPED NEW HAVEN MAN NOW IN PRIVATE SANITARIUM

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 6—(AP)—His face bruised and his body exhausted, Max Price, 62, dealer in real estate and mortgages, tonight was recovering his strength in a private sanitarium, 10 miles from here after eight days in the rough hands of kidnapers.

The victim of one of the most sensational plots ever uncovered in this state, the elderly money lender staggered into a railroad station at Bridgeport soon after midnight this morning, and, trembling and unnerved, made known his identity.

Meanwhile, police sought to unravel the intricate threads of the daring abduction, and bring to justice the master minds of the band which spirited the man away from his door step, January 28.

Nine persons are under arrest, here and in New York. Their connection with the case, however, has not been made clear by authorities.

They include a New Haven butcher, grocer, dry goods peddler; a general contractor, an insurance broker and a woman fortune teller of Bridgeport. Another is a resident of Milford, while in New York are two Detroit gangsters.

Price, who says he believes he was held a captive near Springfield, Mass., was placed in an automobile and driven for three hours before he was released near Bridgeport upon a promise to pay $25,000 ransom.

ANNUAL BANQUET OF THE M'KINLEY ASSOCIATION

WATERBURY, Feb. 6—(AP)—Faith in the republican party was reaffirmed tonight at the 26th annual banquet of the McKinley Association of Connecticut, by more than 500 leaders and workers of the organization in this state.

The principal issues of the day, state and national, and the manner in which the republican party has met them, were touched upon by speakers who included Representative Franklin W. Fort, of New Jersey, Gov. John H. Trumbull and State Chairman J. Henry Roraback.

The McKinley dinner is one of the fixed events in republican politics in the state and largely a social gathering. From every city, town and ward representatives came tonight informally to weld the party into a cohesive machine for the important election of next November.

Samuel C. Spencer, of Suffield, was elected president of the association for the next year and will preside over the 1931 banquet which will be held in Hartford. He succeeds former Senator Edward W. Goss, who was toastmaster tonight.

NEW HAVEN DETECTIVE HELD FOR MANSLAUGHTER

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 6—(AP)—Detective Joseph P. Sullivan, of the local police department, was arrested tonight on a charge of manslaughter in the fatal shooting of Herbert Messner, December 17.

Detective Sullivan today was held criminally responsible for Messner's death in a finding issued by Deputy Coroner James J. Corrigan. The shooting occurred when Messner, sought as a violator of parole from the Cheshire reformatory, attempted to escape from Detectives Sullivan and Charles Gill. Messner died at a local hospital December 20.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6—(AP)—The committee representing the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union which will confer in Albany tomorrow with employers and Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt regarding a possible settlement of the strike now on will be headed by Benjamin Schlesinger, president of the union, it was announced at strike headquarters today.

BUSINESS MEN OF CHICAGO AROUSED BY REIGN OF CRIME

CHICAGO, Feb. 6—(AP)—Today was a day without a shooting of any consequence in Chicago.

In the relative quiet after a succession of seven killings and two other shootings by gunmen in seven days, legitimate business served notice that it might demand drastic and definite action by the law enforcement authorities to end the reign of crime.

The Landis Award Employers association offered $1,000 reward for the arrest and conviction of the assailants of Philip H. Meagher, construction superintendent on the new Lying-In hospital, who was shot twice and seriously wounded yesterday. Police expressed conviction that he was shot by racketeers.

Colonel Robert Isham Randolph, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, announced that the series of shooting would come before a meeting of the association's executive committee tomorrow. What line of attack the business men would adopt was not indicated.

James B. Forgan, Jr., a member of the committee, expressed the opinion that business should bring pressure on the police.

"Something should be done to break the alliance that now exists between the gangland element," he said. "If necessary I think we should establish a sort of Scotland Yard, not as a part of the police department but to work in connection with them."

William F. Russell police commissioner, said the "real cause" of the situation was that "we haven't nearly enough police, and those we have are entirely underpaid. We have 6,500 police. We need 20,000."

CRIPPLED CHILDREN TAKEN FROM SCHOOLHOUSE AFIRE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6—(AP)—Forty crippled children, attending classes at the Weightman school for cripples, were carried bodily or aided to safety today after a fire was discovered in the hot air heating system of the building.

Flames shot three feet into the air in the central corridor of the school. No children were hurt, although half of the youngsters, terrified at sight of the flames within a dozen feet of their class room doors, became hysterical and were not quieted for nearly an hour after they returned safely to their rooms.

The flames, caused by the ignition of accumulated sweepings which had settled in the pipe vent under the floor were discovered by Fred J. Courtney, janitor, and while he fought them with a hand extinguisher, the four women teachers bundled the cripples into the wheel chairs and rushed them to safety.

Some of the children, unable to walk themselves, were picked up by the teachers who worked furiously to get the handicapped youngsters to the safety of the out-of-doors. Others were able to toddle along themselves and with eyes wildly upon the fire, attempted to quit the building alone. These were gathered into the teachers' arms and half led and half pushed to the open doors.

WARNING OF ICEBERGS OFF NEW FOUNDLAND

NORFOLK, Va., Feb. 6—(AP)—A warning was broadcast by the hydrographic office today notifying shipmasters that an iceberg had been sighted off New Foundland in latitude [illegible] north, and longitude 48.02 west.

The warning describes the iceberg as of gigantic proportions and ship masters were warned to be on the lookout when entering the waters adjacent to the Grand Banks.

It is said that this is the first time since 1912 that bergs have been sighted so early in the year. Most of them are seen from March to June and July. It was in 1912 that the trans-Atlantic liner Titanic was sunk after colliding with an iceberg.

MERCHANTS ANTICIPATE BIG BUSINESS ON DOLLAR DAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 6.— General announcements will be made Friday by Willimantic merchants of a big Dollar day event that will be staged throughout the city this Saturday. Saturday's Dollar day, which is the first co-operative sales effort here in 1930 promises to be a great boon to the integrity and progressiveness of the merchants of the city. Plans for the Dollar day have been under consideration for many weeks and have progressed with the unswerving aim to give the people of this part of Connecticut a real bargain feast.

Shoppers in the city Saturday will find the stores brimming with unusual values represented in various forms of money-saving offers. These offers will be found in the customary one dollar bargains as well as opportune inducements to purchase more expensive articles at notable discounts or on time plans such as one dollar down with corresponding terms. The effort of the merchants has been to defeat the suspicion of many that only questionable stock is offered the public on Dollar day, and to this end customers will find the highest grade articles of known value available at attractive reductions. A study of the Dollar day announcements appearing today (Friday) should prove interesting as well as profitable.

Announcement was made by Miss Annie Smith department chaplain at the regular meeting of Francis S. Long Woman's Relief corps, No. 28, held Wednesday evening in the G. A. R. rooms in regard to the state convention of the organization to be held in this city on May 8th and 9th. The local members were gratified to learn that their invitation had been accepted. Definite plans will be made as soon as Mrs. Gregory, department president, makes her official visit here on February 19th. The entertainment committee is planning for something special in the way of a program and refreshments on that evening.

As the need for raising funds is urgent at this particular time several suggestions were made and a decision was arrived at to hold a public whist on February 26th. Miss Sabra Stoughton was appointed chairman of a committee to make arrangements. A rummage sale and food sale are also to be given under the respective chairmanships of Mrs. Eleanor Ford and Mrs. Kate Woodward. Whist was played after the meeting and a lunch served by the entertainment committee.

Business at first and second class postoffices will be suspended on Saturday, February 22nd. (Washington's birthday), when three conventions of postal employes will be held in as many cities in the state. Delegates from the local force of clerks and carriers will attend. The ninth annual convention of the National Federation of Post Office clerks will be held at the Hotel Mohican in New London. Willimantic Local, No. 332, will be represented by Joseph R. Morrison, Edward J. Eagan and Maurice King. The 36th annual convention of the National Association of Post Office Letter carriers will be held at the Garde hotel in Hartford, and local branch No. 337 will be represented by Norman Pultz, delegate with Clarence O. Barrows as alternate. The convention of the National Association of Rural Delivery carriers will be held in Torrington. Windham county will be represented by Michael White of Putnam and George H. Arnold of this city, county president and vice president, respectively. The county membership at present is twenty-eight. The Windham County auxiliary to the state department of the N. A. R. D. C. will also meet at Torrington. Mrs. George H. Arnold of this city is the delegate from Windham county.

This locality was well represented at the McKinley dinner Thursday evening at the Hotel Elton in Waterbury. The local delegation included Sheriff Charles A. Gates, Judge Frank H. Foss, Attorney Harry S. Gaucher, Dr. C. E. Simonds, Wilfred A. Gagnon, Gerard E. Loiselle, Attorney John H. King, A. Linn Weatherhead, William V. Palmer, Senator Walter Brown of Ashford, William E. Lutton, Alderman Cyril A. Lamoureux, Alderman Robert A. Hanna, Attorney John B. Harvey, Deputy Sheriff Lester H. Blish, County Detective Rowe H. Wheeler, Earl Capron and Ernest A. Holland.

According to an announcement from the state motor vehicle department received by Chief of Police Thomas F. Grady on Thursday, reports of accidents occurring on private property will not be required in the future and

SWIFTEST, EASIEST WAY TO END BILIOUS SPELL

When you neglect those first symptoms of constipation—bad breath, coated tongue, listlessness, the whole system soon suffers. Appetite lags. Digestion slows up. You become headachy, dizzy, bilious.

It's easy to correct sluggish bowel action! Take a candy Cascaret tonight. See how quickly—and pleasantly—the bowels are activated. All the souring waste is gently propelled from the system. Regular and complete bowel action is restored.

Cascarets are made from pure cascara, a substance which doctors agree actually strengthens bowel muscles. All drug stores have Cascarets. 10c.

the ruling issued on November 24, 1925, in that regard is accordingly cancelled. The department, however, rules that accidents beginning on a public highway and terminating on private property or vice versa must be reported.

Willimantic lodge, No. 1082, Independent Order of B'nai B'rith, held its regular semi-monthly meeting Wednesday evening at "The Rridges" Barbecue as the regular meeting place was otherwise occupied. Thirty members were in attendance with President Harry Kaufman in charge. The principal business transacted was the making of preliminary plans for the balance of the year, which will be announced later. There were short addresses by several of the members and it was announced that at the next session on Wednesday evening, February 19th, the speaker would be Dr. Nathan Spector. A buffet luncheon was served after the meeting with a social hour including a smoker.

Business continues good at the plant of the Willimantic Silk, Inc. This concern occupies one of the mills of the old Quidnick-Windham Manufacturing company and employs 230 operatives on day and night shifts. Since the firm started here on November 11, 1928, the fifteen months' business has been excellent, with the future continuing bright. For the two weeks ending Thursday the payroll was $12,500. On this basis the yearly payroll at the plant would be $325,000. The Kobe Silk company, which also occupies a portion of the old plant, has been in operation less than a year. The working force at the present time numbers 65 operatives, who secure wages totaling $4,000 every two weeks.

Carl E. Rice, field captain of the Willimantic Rod and Gun club, has announced that the usual Saturday and Sunday afternoon skeet shoots would be held this week at the range in Mansfield. An informal shoot will be held Sunday afternoon at which marksmen from the Windham Center Fish and Game club and the Danielson Gun club wil' take part.

Work on the interior of the remodeled Willimantic Savings institute building at the corner of Main and Bank streets, is being rushed by Contractor Charles L. Crane. The banking quarters on the ground floor are in the hands of carpenters preparing the partitions for plastering. The plastering on the second floor where there will be ten office suites and in the lodge quarters on the third floor is also underway.

Plans have been made for staging a musical comedy, "Happy Days," by the choir boys of St. Mary's Roman Catholic church at a date in mid-lent. Rehearsals have been started under the direction of Joseph F. Gaudreau. Forty boys are in the cast and chorus.

Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock, pastor of the First Congregational church, has received a handsomely illustrated manuscript of Miss Emeline A. Dunn with her original water colors, published after her death by her sister, Miss Mary S. Dunn, one volume of which is presented to the library of the church. Miss Dunn was formerly art instructor at the local State Normal school.

Noble Grand Nettie A. Reynolds was in charge of a regular meeting of Violet Rebekah lodge, No. 57, I. O. O. F. held last evening in the Republican club rooms. After the session whist was played and prizes awarded to Miss Sadie E. Curley and Frederick N. Flagg, first, and Florence Eisenberg and George Reynolds, second. Refreshments were served at the close of play.

At a short conference of the board of relief Wednesday morning the members decided to hold two meetings next week to hear further complaints from property owners on the matter of increased tax lists as turned over to them by the board of assessors after the recent revaluation. The sessions will be held on Monday and Tuesday from 9 a. m. to 12 o'clock noon and 1:30 to 4 p. m. The board was in session Wednesday but there were few callers. A number of written appeals have been filed with the members which will be acted on at the final meeting later in the month.

Thirty-five members of the women's Bible class of the First Baptist church attended a business session and social held at the home of Miss Janice Southward, 280 Pleasant street, Wed-

CALL RAILROAD CONFERENCE SOON

The prompt manner in which the Norwich chamber of commerce has responded to the request of the Putnam chamber of commerce for information concerning the New Haven road service on the Norwich & Worcester branch of that system should be encouraging.

The largest community served by the branch is much concerned in the rail service which the New Haven affords even though it is also served by the Central Vermont, which operates passenger as well as freight trains. Norwich is, therefore, desirous of cooperating with Putnam and other communities along the line in whatever move may be deemed advisable after the hard and fast facts in the matter have been established.

It is, therefore, believed that it is a wise suggestion that has been made by the local chamber to the effect that a conference of representatives of Eastern Connecticut cities, boroughs and towns, or those of their civic organizations, be called as soon as possible. There is nothing like a warm trail to work on. There is nothing to be gained by unwarranted delay.

From time to time there has been much said about the cooperative effort of the civic organizations of this part of the state. It has made an excellent subject on which to get together. Not many opportunities have isted for actually putting the idea to test. In this matter of railroad serv- e on the Norwich & Worcester ranch there is a real opportunity for tting together and sending home the cts through united action.

It is a time for the various communities to look well to their inter- sts. Changes have to come, but the e of swallowing everything that is nded out and submitting passively, if the hands were tied, to every stallment made soon becomes a bit which can easily render a com- nity, or a section of a state, help-

When a railroad removes all mail and express service, and all passenger service except that of midnight expresses, operated over the line because it is the shortest run for the company, the time for expression of feeling is as soon after it happens as possible. If the Central Vermont can give mail, express and passenger service over its line before, while and since it was in the hands of a receiver, it is time to learn why the money-making New Haven can't.

LIMITING SUBMARINES

While no papers have been signed and there is many a slip between the cup and the lip, reports from London indicate that progress is being made at the conference on naval limitations.

It is, at least, good news when it is possible to say that the powers will curb the use of submarines. That is quite different from abolition but it is evident from the determined stand which two of the nations have taken that the banning of the underwater boats cannot be anticipated at this time, however much it may be desired by others. As long as France and Japan are unwilling to give them up, Italy is going to insist upon having its quota, and it is certain that with three nations clinging to this type of warship the United States and Great Britain will not go in for abandonment.

It is to be remembered that limitation is the object of this conference, limitation not only for submarines but for all types of warships, and if restrictions can be obtained for the submarines that will be gratifying and an indication of progress. This was the accomplishment at the Washington conference. Battleships at that time were not abandoned. They had restrictions thrown about them as to size and number and it has been the experience of all countries involved that it was a good thing. Thus there are reasons to expect that this will be the outcome of any limitations placed on the subs. It is a move in the right direction with the hope that time will bring sufficient light to make further steps possible. Through progressive limitation we can hope for abandonment some day in the future.

Such a move would be a compromise, but it is by compromises that progress is possible. Just what the restrictions will be is not revealed beyond the indicated probability that they will have to do with the use to which subs can be put during time of war. Whether that would amount to any more than a scrap of paper would remain for a test to disclose, and yet, if nations can agree not to use them against merchantmen unless heavily armed, and then only by giving every possible protection to the crew, and live up to it, it would be a decided improvement over the ruthless warfare of the last conflict.

THE RUBIO ATTACK

It is greatly to be deplored that the opening of President Rubio's term of office in Mexico should be marked by an attempted assassination, but it is gratifying that the would-be assassin was unsuccessful and that there will be no such result as he had planned.

It is a sad situation in any country where political opponents cannot accept defeat without resorting to the murder of the successful candidate, or without stirring up others to the point where they will consider it obligatory for them to do so. It means a reversion to conditions which prevailed in other days, to the times when heads of nations were chosen by bullets instead of ballots.

The one good bit of fortune in the whole affair surrounds the capture of the young man who fired the shots. It seems probable that he was not alone in the effort to deprive Mexico of its new president but investigation can be depended upon to clear up such a situation.

The new president of Mexico takes office at a time when the policies which he supports give promise of doing much for his country. It comes at a time when the relations between the United States and Mexico were never better. Much was accomplished during the previous two presidencies looking to such an improvement and full credit must be given to Ambassador Morrow for the invaluable service which he has rendered in that direction. Two such countries are once more displaying that relationship which ought to be expected of such near neighbors. Certain bothersome clouds have been cleared away which had an external angle, but it would appear that certain other ones of an internal character have bobbed up to cause trouble.

Warned that his opponents, if this attempt on his life is laid at the feet of his political enemies, are desperate, President Rubio will be better prepared henceforth to deal with them in an effective manner. He has been placed on his guard in a telling manner. He knows that the threat on his life was not an empty one and it makes it possible for him to so shape his course as to properly safeguard himself and others against further demonstrations.

BOY SCOUT CAMPAIGN

Today marks the opening of the campaign in behalf of the Boy Scouts for the coming year. For years excellent work has been done among the various troops in this city and for the past ten days clear and convincing statements have been made concerning the purposes and accomplishments of the organization.

Whatever is done in the way of a contribution to future citizenship must be looked upon as a community asset. That has been recognized more and more as the movement has gone forward. As long as there are boys who are not receiving the benefit of such organization training and who should be included there is opportunity for Scouting to do greater work.

In the 20 years of Scouting great strides have been made and with Scouting standing for character, patriotism, public service and outdoor life, there is an appeal to every youngster and parents cannot fail to give recognition to the desirability of having their sons brought into close contact with such worthy influences.

It is at this time of year that efforts are made for new members and pledges sought for the maintenance of the work during the next 12 months. It is the time for giving the boy the opportunity to satisfy that craving which Scouting does in manifold ways. Under the right leadership, trained in matters which have a special appeal to growing youngsters and taught those things which are bound to be of everlasting value to them through life, the wonder is that there is not a long waiting list among those who desire to join Boy Scout troops.

When Scouting does so much for those upon whom so much responsibility is going to rest in the future, it is of importance that it should be permitted to do its greatest work while that is possible, while boys are boys. In view of what it has done and what it can do, the campaign in behalf of Scouting during the next week should be a pronounced success. Norwich should be anxious to do its part and do it well.

CONNECTICUT CORN

According to Dr. D. F. Jones of the Connecticut experiment station, he has produced a crossed corn which produces heavily and yet matures in "100 to 110 days and often it may be cut and shocked before then."

There is something more for Connecticut agriculture to think about. It has long been contended that Connecticut has failed to grow as much corn as it should. It does not make use of all its tillable acres and yet it imports great quantities of corn from other states. It has, for the most part, given way to the corn belt. It has been content to let others do the work and pay the bill.

Will the production of this new corn arouse the farmers of Connecticut to the point where they will recognize its possibilities, go in for much greater production, production which might possibly approach the consumption requirements and provide enough to feed the hogs, the poultry, the cattle and, through the various channels, aid in supplying more of Connecticut's needs and at the same time getting more from the soil?

The answer rests with the farmers. Possibly they will have to be shown, but when it is set forth that this new corn not only matures quickly but "has also the faculties of pushing up a tall, broad stalk, eight to nine feet high, and of producing a heavy grain yield," there is at least something to do some serious thinking about. And this is the season of the year when the farmers are supposed to be thinking about what they are going to do this summer.

WHEN WOOFS WERE WOOFS

Gloria paused, frowning, and waved her pencil.

"If five-sevenths of a glass of milk make a hundred calories, how much is a glass?"

"What kind of glass?" inquired her husband.

"Just an ordinary tumbler, I suppose."

"I think they're 75 cents a dozen."

"Gregory! I mean how many calories?"

"Oh. Two hundred and thirty-seven."

"Thank you, dear. I'm sorry to bother you when you're reading, but you know you're much better at figures than—than— Did you say 23? Gregory! I can see that isn't right. Have you just been guessing?"

"I'm supposed to be a pretty good guesser."

"I think you're hateful. Now the whole menu's out of whack. How could you?"

"Dear one, I'll eat your calories, but I will not think about them. When I recall the carbohydrates and iodides and protein and dog biscuits I've been fed lately! And look at you! We're eating scientifically and you've lost three pounds worrying over menus. Why on earth a woman who can't balance a checkbook will try to balance a meal—"

"But you'll never be healthy if you eat like a gourmand."

"And I'll never be happy if I eat like a problem in geometry. Answer me one thing. If I walked back 24,-000 years and met your remote ancestor, Stone Ax, what would happen?"

"You're being silly."

"Grandpa Stone Ax would tear me limb from limb. Men were men in those days; they were so healthy it hurt. And had calories been invented? They had not. Did Grandpa Stone Ax creep off into the primeval forest and kill 3 1-3 per cent of his own weight, consisting of thirty parts protein, forty parts hydrochlorides and the balance carbo-phosphates? He did not. He ate saber-toothed tiger and pine cones and caterpillars. And he was healthy."

"How do you know?"

"It's a matter of record that he used to drag his wife around by the hair. If he hadn't been a pretty husky specimen she would have killed him."

"Maybe she did; I know how she felt."

"If she did, that proves she was healthy, and she'd never heard of a calorie either."

"But, Gregory, that isn't the point. It's just—"

"The point is this: they didn't think about what they ate."

"Very well. You be thinking of something nice and unscientific to have for dinner tomorrow while I feed the dog."

"That's the spirit. But don't bother with Satan. I've already fed him."

"I know. But there are some bones in the icebox he might as well eat."

"Fine. But I thought I looked in the icebox. Are you sure we have bones available?"

"There's that chicken we had Sunday."

"Are you crazy? You know better than to give a dog chicken bones. I can't say how many thousands of dollars worth of dogs have been killed by chicken bones. They splinter up into sharp slivers that either choke them or tear the stomach."

"But that's all superstition, Gregory!"

"It's statistics. The last thing the trainer said was 'don't give him chicken or fish bones.'"

"How silly. Trot back a few million years and meet Satan's ancient ancestor, the saber-toothed wolf. When he caught a dodo was there anybody to tell him not to eat the bones? There was not. And he was healthy."

"But every veterinary knows—"

"It's my theory that if there were no veterinaries a dog could thrive on barbed wire and ten penny nails. Shall I give him the chicken bones or go on with this menu?"

"Please sit down."

"Very well. If it takes four strips of bacon, 3 1-4 by 3 1-2 by 1-8 to make a hundred calories, how much are the two ordinary size strips you eat worth?"

"Wait till I get a pencil. Now—you were saying—"—Exchange.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6—Tariff debate served to keep prohibition off the senate floor to a large extent after the Christmas holiday revival of the subject; but not altogether.

Now and then somebody touched on it a bit, sort of incidentally, and always the Congressional Record was under bombardment with documentary matter of all kinds which had prohibition slants.

Among these was a volume presented by Tydings of Maryland about "the number of persons who have been killed in the course of enforcing the prohibition amendment."

Alas, Poor Record

It was a newspaper compilation and when he saw its bulk as offered for reprinting in the Record, Senator Smoot of Utah, watch dog of the senate's printing bills, shook his head gloomily.

"Poor old Congressional Record," he said, but nobody objected and in the matter went to make up about the longest newspaper item the Bystander has ever seen in the Record. It took almost twenty pages to reprint it.

On the house side, Representative Underhill's spasmodic efforts to cut down the size of the Record and Appendix on the floor may have curbed the swelling proportions of that ponderous publication, but not much. "Extension of remarks" and "leave to print" are valued perquisites in both house and senate. Smoot's is almost the only voice ever raised in protest on the senate side except when some senator has a special reason for attempting to block a colleague's effort to fatten the Record. Senatorial courtesy precedents make it difficult to do that, and Smoot's hopeless "Poor old Congressional Record" about sums the matter up.

Socrates On Tariff

Shortridge (California): "Just to continue this Socratic discussion—"

Shortridge: "My recollection is that Socrates was a fairly thoughtful man."

Smith: "Yes; according to history."

Shortridge: "Of course, he had to commit suicide."

Smith: "If he lived now he would, too."

Shortridge: "Perhaps he would. If he looked in certain directions for thoughtful men, he would look in vain."

Norris (Nebraska): "Does that mean that all of us who do not commit suicide are not thoughtful?"

Shortridge: "Perhaps many should, but hesitate."

Smith: "If only those who are thoughtful committed suicide, we would not miss them."

YOUR INCOME TAX

Recognizing that single persons by reason of the care and support of others are entitled to consideration, the law provides that the "head of a family" shall be allowed the same personal exemption granted a married person, $3,500. The head of a family is defined by regulations relating to the income tax as "an individual who actually supports and maintains in one household one or more individuals who are closely connected with him by blood relationship, relationship by marriage, or by adoption, and whose right to exercise family control and provide for these dependent individuals is based upon some moral or legal obligation."

Several factors are involved in determining whether a taxpayer is to be thus classified. In maintaining the home and providing for the dependent individual or individuals, the taxpayer's right to exercise family control must be based on some moral or legal obligation. The element of either legal or financial dependency must exist. A taxpayer who has minor children is legally liable for their support. If he supports and exercises family control over them, even though they have an income of their own sufficient for their support and maintainance, he is classified as the head of a family. If he does not support them, however, but does exercise family control, the common home being maintained, he can not be classified as the head of a family.

If by reason of illness or absence on account of business the taxpayer and dependents are separated, the common home being maintained and the taxpayer furnishing the support, the exemption as head of a family is allowed. Moreover, if a taxpayer does not maintain a common home but the dependents are at school or supported with relatives, or in a boarding house, while he lives elsewhere, the exemption is still allowed. If, however, without necessity, the dependent continuously makes his home elsewhere, his benefactor is not the head of a family.

For income-tax purposes, there can be only one head of a family. The exemption can not be divided.

YOUR HEALTH

The Care of Adolescent Girls

By George Bolling Lee, M. D., New York

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

After more than twenty years of active service in many clinics and hospitals of New York city, I am convinced that a large number of young girls sacrifice their health and physical development by overstudy and lack of hygiene during the age of puberty.

In my opinion a girl's physical training and care should be put above her schooling or mental development at this time. I have often recommended taking them out of school during this period, in cases where they have been neglecting the simple rules of hygiene, either own eagerness or that of their parents or teachers to have them excel in their studies, and are doing so at the expense of their physical well being. These girls return later considerably improved after thorough rest from the school-room and "home-work." Proper hygiene, diet and exercise are most essential in these cases.

The care of a girl's physical development is the most important duty and obligation a parent owes to the future health and happiness of the girl herself as well as the nation. It is these young girls who are to become the future mothers of the country, and it is on their strength, both physical and mental, that the next generation is dependent. A "sound mind in a sound body" is all-important, and is as essential in the girl as in the boy, if not more so, for various reasons.

Many young girls by over-study in the class-room actually render themselves incapable of becoming mothers later in life, or develop abnormally and so require medical and often surgical care. If properly cared for during the critical period of adolescence a great number of these girls would never need to resort to such treatment. At the time of motherhood they would be able to perform that most important function in life, child-bearing, in better condition to endure its trying requirements. They would also be better fitted to nurse their babies and to give them the blessed heritage of a strong body.

Never be too anxious to overwork a young girl in her studies, should she show any signs of physical weakness or mental lassitude. A famous professor of medicine when asked: "What can I do to insure good health?" replied "Select your parents." The best way to accomplish this is to have a health audit by the family physician at stated intervals. He will, of course, look into the important parts of health and hygiene, such as the condition of the tonsils, teeth, gastro-intestinal tract, blood, proper elimination, diet, and exercise.

These are the golden rules of health, which insure healthier and happier mothers, as well as stronger and better offspring.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Exorbitant Hunting and Fishing Licenses

Mr. Editor: From the report which seems to have come from the town clerk it would appear that there is only about one-third of the usual number of hunters and fishermen taking out licenses this season in comparison with a year ago—for the reason that the hunting and fishing license fee is practically extortion at the present time. I think the hunters and fishermen show good judgment in not taking out licenses. Why should they take out a license for the sole purpose of perpetuating an autocrat like "Kaiser" Titcomb in his office?

I am wondering whether or not he got that extra thousand dollars which he has been looking for and for which he sought this raise of fees. Think of the town clerk taking 35 cents for doing about three minutes work issuing these licenses. It is the worst outrage in the state of Connecticut.

While it is generally understood that our present town clerk was thoroughly satisfied with what he was getting, still "Tsar" Titcomb was willing to agree to raise their fee to 35 cents, with the hope that he might get his extra thousand dollars from the fees which are extorted from the poor farmers and workers who might want to go into the woods or fields for probably one or two days during the entire hunting season.

There is less and poorer fishing and hunting today than there was before licenses were issued—but think of the colossal gall of that man Titcomb, who spent most of his time in the legislative halls instead of tending to his duties as fish and game commissioner! The fishing and hunting fees in the state of Connecticut are the highest fees in New England and in a state where there is the poorest fishing and hunting—and will be.

Senator Walcott seems to be a man of high grade and a very fine sportsman. As a friend of Titcomb, I think he should be acquainted with his activities—because it is generally understood that this senator was instrumental in getting Titcomb to Connecticut.

Now it is a well-recognized fact that Titcomb is making no friends for himself nor for anyone else interested in him. The sportsmen and farmers should go in a body to Hartford and attend the hearings at the next session of the legislature—and see that there are men on the fish and game committee who are worthy of the name of sportsmen and not men who are ready to subscribe to any program of extortion laid out by a commissioner who is only interested in himself and a bunch of game wardens who serve no other purpose than to annoy the sportsmen when they go into the woods or on the streams.

There is no call in the state of Connecticut for ever raising that license fee from $1.25—which it originally was and which is the fee in other New England states. Think of giving the town clerk 35 cents of this license fee when it is a work which is worth about ten cents and any man should be glad to do it for that. If the town clerks are not willing, why not turn the work over to the secretaries of the fish and game associations—who would be glad to do it for that sum?

The sportsmen have had the biggest lot of bunk handed to them from Hartford in the way of propaganda telling them of what has been done in the way of fish and game propagation of any state in the union.

Sportsmen! Keep our eyes open. You evidently have when you have not taken out a license for this year. There should be an absolute boycott on taking out licenses and let Titcomb see how he and his gun-toting wardens will get along without the finances received by taxation of unfortunate sportsmen who might like to fish or hunt.

Sportsmen! Watch the next session of the legislature! Go en masse and demand your rights and stop this extortion with its propaganda!

SPORTSMAN.

Groton's Revaluation

Mr. Editor: Here are some questions for the consideration of the officials and taxpayers of the town of Groton.

Question 1: Why do certain people escape being taxed on bath room equipment and cement cellars when the assessors visit their premises on several occasions, by personally knowing the assessors?

Question 2: Why should the farm property of aged people be doubled in value when their home, which is very old, is decreasing in value every year for lack of repairs, and has no modern improvements? Also their land decreasing in value for lack of tillage?

Question 3: Why should we be taxed for foundation, when some of our farm homes are built upon a few stones laid upon the ground, with only a rough cellar under the houses, no cement, and perhaps none at all under some homes? Some of the homes in this little farming community are simply set upon a few miscellaneous stones placed upon the ground, (no cement). Do you think we need a valuation of nearly $100 or more on such a "foundation?" If we are thus to be taxed for every little improvement we make, like a few electric lights (and by the way, don't you think we are sufficiently taxed for these each month when we have to pay the companies for the juice we consume?) bath room equipment, heating, etc., in our old homes we won't be able to live in a comfortable manner.

Question 4: Why should we be taxed thus unjustly by a few men without a voice in the matter? "Taxation without representation is tyranny." Before this tax levy is collectible, we should have a "get together" meeting (a special town meeting) to talk over these land and property values. The people should have a chance to come to some central place and have a chance to have their "say" in this matter.

Question 5: Would some of these "solid men" of Groton like to buy some of these unjustly and abominably assessed acres of swamps, etc., some of these run-down farms, etc.?

Question 6: Why should the working class of people and the farmer be over burdened by this unjust valuation of his property, to pay this $7,000 assessment fund and high salaries of a few officials? We had better tear down our houses and go back to dugouts and cave dwelling. It is a radical discouragement to the farmer, who is a much overtaxed and otherwise overburdened man, to try to improve his home to bring it up to easier and more comfortable living conditions, if he is to be heavily taxed for every little improvement he is able to make.

Question 7: Why enter our private homes and tax us for every little improvement we have been able to make? Is there any state law requiring such an act on the part of our town officials? This has taken the people of the town by surprise. It is unjust, unfair. Why wasn't this done in Stonington and other nearby towns?

Question 8: Why are we not allowed to quote upon the valuation of our own properties? We know the land conditions and values better than you do in our own communities (especially farming lands, wood land, etc.) We are not allowed "our say" at all, in this "land of freedom."

This new assessment plan is a great detriment to building operations in the town of Groton. Ordinary working people will be unable to stand such additional expenditure.

It will be a detriment to the remodeling of old homes in the town, and especially so among the farmers. People won't want to own their own homes, or farms, in Groton, if we are to have them assessed for a higher valuation than what we could ever possibly sell them for should we desire to dispose of them for any reason. This present valuation in this community and in other places too is excessive, preposterous, abominable. The farmer is now overburdened with the present taxation, increased cost of production, combined with the loss and the cost of the control of insect pests and diseases among his crops and livestock. Can he bear anymore? Now he isn't given a chance to better his home living conditions without being burdened with a heavy tax for it.

Groton people! Arise! "To Arms, To Arms!"

Stories That Recall Others

Not Yet

Mother had called Billy, age six, to come in and have his face washed.

This was a process that Billy didn't like, so he protested, "It shouldn't be dirty yet, mother, I haven't used it hardly yet."

What Language?

"Did you get up to hear King George the other morning?" a woman was asked.

"No, I didn't," was her reply. "I told John there was no use getting up, for we couldn't understand a thing he said if we could hear him."

"Why?" the questioner asked, a bit surprised.

"Because he would talk in his own language," she answered.

SPEED RECORDS SMASHED AS AVIATORS WHISK MAIL

CHICAGO—(AP)—Pilots of the National Air Transport began the new year by smashing many air mail speed records.

On the night of January 5 the mail was flown from Dallas to Chicago, 995 miles, in 5 hours 20 minutes, an average of 187 miles an hour. The 541 miles from Dallas to Kansas City, by way of Fort Worth and Oklahoma City was covered in 3 hours 10 minutes. The previous record for this trip was 4 hours.

A record of 38 miles an hour, average speed, was made over the 627-mile route from Wichita to Chicago. A new record between Chicago and New York was hung up when the distance was covered in 4 hours 45 minutes to the Hadley field terminus near New York.

Cleveland to New York in 2 hours 10 minutes, and the day run from Dallas to Chicago in 5 hours 25 minutes, were two more new records torn out by the pilots.

NAVAL CONFERENCE PALACE SCENE OF JOKE ON A KING

LONDON—(AP)—St. James' palace where the delegates of five great sea powers are trying to reach an understanding on naval armaments, was once the scene of a practical joke at the expense of a king.

In 1736, during one of George II's visits to the continent, the following notice was discovered fastened to the gate of the palace:

LOST or strayed out of this house, a man who has left a wife and six children on the parish. Whoever will give any tidings of him to the churchwardens of St. James' parish, so as he may be got again, shall receive four shillings and sixpence reward.

N. B.—This reward will not be increased, nobody judging him to be worth a crown (five shillings).

The perpetrator of the deed was never discovered, although many widely known persons were suspected at the time.

Air Line Flies High

MOSCOW—(AP)—The 30-mile Soviet air line from Tashkent, capital of the Uzbekistan Soviet republic, and Kabul the metropolis of Afghanistan, is said to be the highest daily air line in the world. The planes soar 18,000 feet over the snowcapped Hindu-Kush mountains.

The Very Fine Art of Forgetting

Oh, is it worth while to remember too long
The grievance that caused one small sorrow?
It darkened our day and it stopped our song—
Why carry it into tomorrow?
Strange that we should choose to hold fast to our heart
The thing that produces our fretting;
'Twould surely be better to take up the art,
The very fine art of forgetting.

Forget the unkindness that rankled a bit,
Forget the quick words that were spoken—
Shall we let the friendships we've valued so long
In one hapless moment be broken?
And why do we take precious time to lament
Our blunders that proved so upsetting?
If there is no mending, let's try for a while
The very fine art of forgetting.

Our yesterday's losses, our yesterday's fears,
Mistakes—we have some way lived through them—
Our keen disappointments, our heartaches, our tears,
What profits us now to hold to them?
This world would be for us a happier place
And there would be less of regretting
If we would remember to practise with grace
The very fine art of forgetting.

WILL JOIN WITH OTHER COMMUNITIES TOWARDS BETTER RAILROAD SERVICE

Cooperation with the Putnam chamber of commerce and with other communities in this section in regard to an attempt to secure better railroad service on the Norwich and Worcester branch of the New Haven road was voted at a meeting of the transportation committee of the Norwich chamber of commerce, which was held Thursday morning.

Secretary John Richardson was authorized to answer the questionnaire of the Putnam chamber of commerce and to attend any meetings which might be called of the communities along the line of the railroad.

In the Norwich response on the questionnaire, no answer is made to the first five questions, which are as follows:

1. What is the sentiment in your community regarding the service of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Co., on the Norwich and Worcester branch?

2. What criticism can you make of present operation of this road, that is, from the standpoint of how the railroad company could increase patronage?

3. Will the attorney for your community (town counsel, corporation counsel) join in presenting before the proper tribunals petitions for the purpose of securing adequate railroad facilities along this line?

4. Would you or someone whom you know assist in a financial way in employing an expert to present the matter to the proper tribunals, assuming that the expense would be divided among a number of communities and that the answer "yes" is not in any sense an obligation to eventually pay?

5. Would you assist in presenting the facts to the public in your community? (Meaning securing newspaper publicity and support, bringing the matter before the municipal body, before the selectmen or any other body interested, and joining in petitions to proper tribunals.)

Questions Answered

Secretary Richardson has answered the following questions:

6. Do you feel that if passenger trains were operated on this line that they would be patronized and if so to what extent?

Answer: This is a very hard question to answer in view of the ever increasing sale of the low priced car.

7. Do you feel a conference of a group representing the various communities along the railroad line would do any good in this matter?

Answer: Yes. The transportation committee of the Norwich chamber of commerce believe this conference should be the basis upon which any action is started. Such a meeting would bring out the facts from a regional standpoint and also just how the lack of passenger service is affecting the important items of mail and express. Considered separately, the communities in question will find a lack of facts and figures, but from a regional point of view the railroad service in question reaches its true light. A regional conference would afford a basis for publicity and more quickly attract the attention of the railroad officials.

8. What course would you recommend adopting, assuming that you are dissatisfied with the present service?

Answer: This is a very hard question, would depend upon the facts developed at the conference covered by 7.

9. Has your body or any body to your knowledge taken this matter up with the railroad or any tribunal and if so, with what result (the committee would be very glad to secure such information and if you have and would allow copies to be made, it would be greatly appreciated)?

Answer: No.

10. Do you believe that busses and trucks can satisfy the needs of your community to the same extent that a railroad can?

Answer: In some cases yes—in others no. Whether this service is local, state or inter-state would give its influence upon a direct answer.

11. Have you any criticism of present freight conditions on this road?

Answer: None has been brought to the attention of the chamber of commerce.

12. Have you any criticism of present mail facilities which are affected by the lack of trains on this line?

Answer: We have had complaint of the lateness of mail and of express under the trucking system.

13. Do you wish your answers to these questions held confidential?

Answer: No.

14. Do you know of any individual or corporation who is particularly interested in this particular proposition, and if so, would you care to give the name?

Answer: Since railroad service or the lack of it has a direct bearing on the business and manufacturing interest of a community, this community and its various interests are concerned in this particular proposition even though it may not be expressed. No individual or corporation has made vigorous protest but this does not lessen the interest in the vital question of railroad service.

15. Is there anything further connected with this matter that you feel should become a part of it?

Answer: That a conference be called without delay—the outcome of which should bring to light an array of facts upon which the next step can be based.

JEWETT CITY CONCERN PROTESTS POOR MAIL SERVICE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Feb. 6.—Matters of major importance to the borough of Jewett City, with all its varied interests, are to be found in the questionnaire which was received by the board of borough government from the committee on railroad service of the Putnam chamber of commerce. In this connection, Warden Edmond J. Jodoin is transmitting today the following letter from one of the leading industries of the borough:

Jewett City, Feb. 4, 1930.

Dear Sir:

We have your letter of Feb. 1, 1930, relative to the withdrawal of local passenger service on the New London to Worcester branch of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Co. We cannot see the justice of expecting the railroad company to maintain an expensive passenger service which is not patronized and will not be patronized, by virtue of the free and easy movement between towns through privately owned automobiles or publicly owned buses.

As far as we know, the local freight service has not been affected. If it had, we should certainly register the most strenuous protest of which we are capable, as the industrial life of the communities in this part of the state depends upon satisfactory freight service.

We are far from satisfied with the mail service which has been rendered since the trains were withdrawn.

We do not say that the railroad should be forced to put back a passenger train just to handle the mail up and down this valley, but we do feel that whoever is responsible for transporting these mails should be made to realize that the present service is not in the least satisfactory. It seems to us that this is due to lack of adequate facilities.

We cannot see why three trucks should not be operated to cover this route, the one going further north perhaps being a fast express type of truck, so that the mail can promptly reach the communities served.

We can report that our mail has been consistently an hour to an hour and a half late since the trucking service went into effect, and this is a source not only of inconvenience, but a distinct business handicap to us.

We shall be glad to go into that phase of the matter more fully with any representative or committee who is seeking to improve this condition. We have thought some of bringing it to the attention of our senator and representative in Washington, and would be glad to consider joining in a group action to this end if relief cannot be obtained in any other way. We believe you are performing a public service in endeavoring to crystallize opinion in this matter, and thank you for the opportunity of defining our position.

BOY SCOUT CAMPAIGN OPENING WITH DINNER

The opening dinner launching the Boy Scout campaign will be held this (Friday) evening at the Arcanum club. According to H. D. Larrabee, campaign manager and president of the local council, the meeting has been carefully planned to the smallest detail. An excellent dinner has been provided. Approximately one dozen cards will be distributed to each worker in an envelope together with instructions which will be explained verbally by the scout executive. Following the distribution of cards, Ray Wyland, director of education of the Boy Scouts of America, and the organization's most virile and refreshing speaker, will give an address. Mr. Wyland comes from New York city as a special favor to Scout Executive Sellman, whose fraternal brother Mr. Wyland is. Ray Wyland is well known nationally for his work with religious organizations. For several years he has served the Boy Scouts of America as director of religious relations, and so successfully that today literally tens of thousands of boys of every faith subscribe to the Boy Scout oath and law and participate in the Boy Scout program in happy comradeship. He is thoroughly versed in the school, church and home programme of Boy Scouting and his talk should prove inspiring for all who have the privilege of hearing him.

A surprise feature of the dinner will be the gathering of all the Scouts of the city with the Boy Scout Drum and Bugle corps on the steps of the Arcanum club at 6:45 where the Scouts hope to serenade and cheer the workers and give Mr. Wyland a suitable greeting. The Scouts will disperse soon after the supper begins.

As special guests of the council will be Scout Executive Fred Burdick and several council officers of the New London Boy Scout organization. Every effort is being made to have 100 per cent attendance at the dinner. Several men who had previous engagements have declared the Boy Scout need was paramount and that they would be present. Five teams had reported by 5:00 o'clock last night that every man would be in his place at 6:00 p. m.

According to Mr. Larrabee, the Boy Scout work in Norwich is on a surer footing than ever before. Good work is being done and the outlook for the year is very bright. The campaign must be a success if the work is to continue. The goal set is $8,000 and must be raised. Of that amount $1,600 is for a deficit from the campaign of a year ago. The budget for the year is $6,400, less than that of last year. The enrollment of Scouts has increased from 86 to 473, with several new troops now forming. Calls are coming in from many centers for information about troops and about the cub program for boys from 9-12.

The song leader for the evening will be Wm. G. Park. The Boy Scouts will serve as waiters and Rev. A. H. Abbott will give the invocation. The meeting will be pointed, peppy, and highly interesting.

A seat has been reserved for every worker with his name on a place card. Men will be seated by divisions and teams, and according to Earl Taggart, chairman of all arrangements for the dinner, each team will have a Boy Scout patrol name such as "Hyena," "Cuckoo," "Owl," etc.

The campaign will last from February 7 to February 14, but the workers hope to complete their solicitation within four days. Simultaneously with the solicitation campaign will be a mail campaign and newspaper advertisement campaign for those who would like to contribute something but who for some reason or other cannot be seen in person. The slogan for the campaign that has been suggested is, "Everybody in this council give something or do something for the Boy Scouts!"

ROCKY NECK LAND FOR POSSIBLE STATE PARK

A second effort to have the state purchase property on and adjoining Rocky Neck, East Lyme, for park purposes, will be made during the 1931 session of the legislature. Deeds have passed recently transferring a portion of the property to a group of men including several prominent citizens, and options on the remainder have been secured with the announced intention of offering the tract to the state once more. The land was offered to the state during the 1929 session of the legislature, but the house of representatives refused to vote an appropriation for its purchase after some debate.

The property includes Rocky Neck, a small promontory near Giant's Neck, East Lyme, and land between the state highway and the shore from the Giant's Neck road on the east to Four Mile river on the west. The tract was inspected by the state park and forest commission during the past legislative session and pronounced fit for park purposes. A shallow sandy beach included in the property is already a popular bathing beach.

FRANK KRUG MISSING SINCE WEDNESDAY MORNING

Frank Krug, 55, has been missing from his home at 21 Starr street since Wednesday morning when he left the house at 8 o'clock and has not been seen since. He lived there with his daughter, Mrs. Florence Yasombek.

There is said to be no known reason why he should want to absent himself from home, although he has done so once before about two months ago and was found at Quaker Hill after he had been away for a day.

Krug is not able to speak a word in English. He is lame in his right leg and weighs about 150 pounds. When he went away he was wearing a black coat with brown fur, brown cap, brown shoes, and blue serge trousers.

MADE ASSOCIATIONAL REPORT AT LEFFINGWELL MEETING

A report of the New London Associational meeting was given by Mrs. Silas Leffingwell at the home of Mrs. John Rathbone, when the Woman's union of the Leffingwell church met for all day Wednesday. Twenty-eight dozen compresses were made. At noon, the hostess served the following tempting menu: Escalloped potatoes, meat loaf, rolls, lettuce salad, pie, doughnuts and tea. At 2 o'clock the meeting was opened by singing, "More About Jesus" followed by prayer. Mrs. Rathbun read Psalm 104, 17 to 19 verses. She told the story of a Chinese preacher's faith in prayer and read a fleet of ships. Mrs. C. E. Ellis led in prayer. The minutes of the previous month were read by the secretary. It was voted to hold a food sale each month, and Mrs. E. W. Leffingwell was appointed chairman of the February food sale. It was voted to purchase 100 dime holiday calendars for distribution. Ten were present and the offering was $2.28. The meeting closed with Scripture selections, each containing the word heart.

NEW SOPRANO FOR CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH

Miss Jessie D. Guthrie, of New London, has been engaged as soprano soloist at the Central Baptist church, to succeed Mrs. William Crowe, Jr., who resigned to go to Chester, Pa.

She has had exceptional opportunities for study and culture, having taken the four year course at the Toronto conservatory, Toronto, Canada, from which institute she secured her degrees. Following this she continued her vocal studies and coaching under the tutoring of William Shakespeare, famous teacher and composer of London, England.

Miss Guthrie comes well equipped by both natural endowment and training to fill with distinction the position of soprano in this quartette which has an enviable reputation. Miss Guthrie will sing at the Sunday evening service "Now the Day is Over", (Speaks); "I Sought the Lord," (David), after which there will be a reception in the assembly room for the congregation to meet and welcome Miss Guthrie.

After the business meeting, the members enjoyed a social hour and refreshments.

EINSTEIN EQUATIONS USED FOR PHOTOS OF LIGHTNING

NEW YORK—(P)—Einstein's relativity mathematics have been turned to practical use in making a camera operate in millionths of a split second.

This camera is described to the American Institute of Electrical Engineers by O. Ackerman, electrical engineer of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing company. It is an oscillograph, which records lightning striking power lines.

Instead of using light, it employs a beam of electrons of much the same kind as produced by radio tubes. This beam is as speedy as lightning and is set in action whenever lightning strikes.

The electrons fall upon a photographic plate, becoming in effect a pencil wherewith lightning writes on a photo the record of its visit. The Einstein equations are used to adjust this electron pencil more accurately.

STUDENTS MANUFACTURE SUBSTITUTE FOR RADIUM

From $5,000 to $15,000 worth of mesothorium, which has virtually the same properties and radiations as radium, is produced annually at the miniature factory here under direction of Dr. Herman Schlundt and Dr. G. E. Breckenridge, chemistry professors.

It was Dr. Schlundt who, working with the United States bureau of mines, perfected the process by which mesothorium is recovered from the ore monazite. Refineries send concentrated ore to this factory, and the finished product is sent to federal laboratories for certification.

Like radium, mesothorium may be used for medical treatment and for illumination of watch dials. It sells for about $20 a milligram.

OYSTERS FOOT BROAD GROWN IN NORTHWEST

SEATTLE—(P)—Transplanted Japanese oysters in beds at Oyster Bay near Olympia, Wash., have reached a size of 12 to 14 inches across, Prof. Trevor Kincaid, head of the Zoology department of the University of Washington, has revealed.

The mollusks were planted about seven years ago to determine whether the Oriental bivalve would thrive and spawn in Puget Sound waters. They have never been marketed and now are valuable only as curiosities.

Following the experiment at Oyster Bay, the Japanese bivalves have been planted, for commercial purposes in several places along the south tip of the sound.

ATLANTIC CITY HOST TO RADIO TRADE SHOW

ATLANTIC CITY—(P)—The year's new offerings in radio will have their first showing at Atlantic City this season.

It is there that the sixth annual convention and trade show of R. M. A. will be held. Heretofore Chicago has been the center of activities at the initial introduction to the trade of the material radio had prepared to attract listeners. Other radio trade associations will hold their conventions at the same time.

The convention and annual banquet, as well as the show, will be held in the new civic auditorium.

CARNERA FLATTENS OWENS IN SECOND AFTER PLAYING WITH HIM IN FIRST

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Primo Carnera, the Ambling Alp, from Italy, experimented for a round tonight with Cowboy Billy Owens for the entertainment of a crowd that jammed the armory here, and then proceeded to roll over the Cherokee Indian from Guthrie, Okla., with all the venom and co-operation that marked the sudden finishes of Big Boy Peterson and Elzear Rioux.

For a round Primo, the good natured, gigantic gondola man of Venice, actually boxed with the shaking 236 pounder, chosen as his third opponent in America and the medium for his debut before the New Jersey faithful.

To prove that he was trying his hardest, exerting all the slow freight power that blasted Peterson from his path in one minute, ten seconds, and Rioux in 47 seconds, Carnera turned from clinches apologetically at times, and shook his head to the howling, laughing audience. Toward the end of the round, when Owens stood up surprisingly well under several of Primo's heaves to the head and body, Carnera sparred at long range, his white teeth and broad red gums gleaming through a half smile, the muscles of his 274 pound body rippling under the lights.

Apparently satisfied that the display had gone far enough, with the closing gong for the first round, Primo galloped out of his corner for the second, threw both hands in piston fashion into Owen's head. Immediately the dark-skinned cowboy's knees began to buckle, he wobbled, clutched desperately and then landed full on his shoulders as a ponderous right smote him full on the chin. Referee Gene Roman, of Paterson, the sole official, tolled a majestic ten over the writhing red man and the battle was over. The round lasted 25 seconds.

HALL HAS CLOSE CALL IN THE QUARTER FINALS

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Twice within a single point of defeat, Gilbert Hall of South Orange, N. J., co-favorite with Frank Hunter for the National Indoor tennis championship, gained a hard-won place in the semi-final round of the title tournament at the Seventh Regiment armory today.

Ed. Jenkins, a comparatively inexperienced New York youth with no national reputation but a whale of a forehand drive, caught the former Canadian indoor champion off guard and had him tottering on the brink of defeat before Hall finally took control and pulled out the match at 9-11, 13-11, 6-0.

Qualifying to meet Hall in the semi-finals tomorrow, Julius Seligson, the stocky and steady Lehigh student who once held the National Intercollegiate crown, eliminated the lone middle western standard bearer, Harris Coggeshall of Des Moines, Iowa, by the convincing scores of 6-1, 6-2. A one-weapon player, Seligson prevailed principally because of the power and steadiness of his deep court driving game.

In the other half, the heavy-set New Rochelle publisher, Hunter, who holds the rank of America's second best player, largely through force of will and dogged grit, came through along with Perrine Rockafellow, one-time Colgate star.

Hunter's victory over Eugene McCauliff, ex-Fordham player, at 6-0, 8-6, produced some good tennis with the younger man fighting back bravely but with the issue never seriously in doubt. Paired against Herbert Bowman, seeded fourth, Rockafellow, who is seventh in the seeded list, produced something of a surprise by winning in clean-cut fashion by scores of 6-4, 6-4. The match was a well-played series of cautious rallies usually punctuated by a forcing spot from Rockafellow's racquet.

In the doubles quarter-finals, Hall and Kenneth Appel, South Orange, beat Irving Raymond and Raymond Stone, Columbia university, 6-2, 6-2, and tomorrow will meet Coggeshall and Dick Murphy, Utica, N. Y., who won from E. W. Burns and Reg Tailake, New York, 6-4, 9-7.

Hunter and Harold Throckmorton, New York top seeded pair, surprisingly lost to Walter Swaybill and Stanley Harris, New York, 13-11, 4-6, 6-4, while Rockafellow and Cutler defeated Bob Considine, Washington, and Ernest Suhn, New York, 7-5, 6-3, 7-5. The winners meet in the upper half semi-final tomorrow.

TWO DARTMOUTH RECORDS SMASHED IN TRIALS

HANOVER, N. H., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Two of Dartmouth's indoor track records were broken here today in a series of trials for the Boston A. A. games on Feb. 15. Al Noyes reached a new height of 13 feet, 11 3-4 inches in the pole vault and Roger Donnor leaped 23 feet, 4 inches for a new mark in the running broad jump.

The first appearance of the Green track men as a team will be made in the B. A. A. games, but on Saturday a one-mile relay team of Noyes, Langley, Pratt and Andrews, will run against Yale and Washington and Lee in the Millrose games at New York. Al Moody will compete in the high jump against some of the best competitors in the east. Dartmouth will meet Harvard and Cornell at Boston on Feb. 24 in their annual triangular meet.

A-N Manager Replies

Sports Editor: Concerning a letter in this paper by the manager of the Shyma club I wish to say that Manager Sullivan knows only too well that I have ample proof that he promised to give me a game on the night of Feb. 4; he also knows and would admit it if it came to a showdown, that he and his players discussed the probability of such a game and two of his players protested very strongly on the ground that the opposition which they anticipated would be too strong (although I did not divulge my line-up) and an almost certain defeat would hurt their chances as a drawing power in Taftville for the rest of this season.

Manager Sullivan claims I changed the name of the club. I'll admit I did, for no good reason. But what does it matter? If Manager Sullivan insists on playing my team under the name of the Masked Marvels, I'll be agreeable. He also asserts that I'm afraid to sign my name, which is not so; he signed his, but perhaps that is the only consolation he gets out of being manager in name only, the board of strategy runs the works.

However, I have issued a challenge to the Shyma club, so there is nothing left for them to do but to accept or reject it and in the event that they do accept, arrangements can be made to get in touch with me through this paper.

KOZIOL KNOCKS OUT BURGESS IN SECOND

Al Koziol, Norwich Cyclone, knocked out Manuel Burgess, hard hitting Providence lightweight in the second round of a scheduled six round bout at Providence last night. Burgess, depending on his punch to carry him to victory, made the mistake of trying to swat blows with the local dispenser of haymakers. Burgess was floored twice in the first round but managed to last through the session although very uncertain on his feet. At the opening of the second round Koziol swarmed over the Providence boy and soon had him down and out for the count.

COACHES OF OXFORD CREW RESIGN EN MASSE

LONDON, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Trouble has settled down in large quantities upon the Oxford crew, just at a critical point in the preparations for the annual race with the Light Blues of Cambridge.

Because of a disagreement with President Alastair Graham of the Oxford Boat club, the entire coaching staff, consisting of Dr. Mallam, Major Wiggins and A. D. Garton, has resigned. The trouble arose over Graham's insistence that he retain his place in the shell for the duel on April 12, while the coaches favored J. Tinne, a brother of the famous Oxford Blue of 1912, for his seat in the bow or at number seven.

The incident has caused considerable unfavorable comment and is surprising in that the president of the club, corresponding to the captain of an American crew, is in absolute charge of the crew, its training and appoints the coaches, who are famous Blues of the past and serve without pay. Graham insists that he shall row and is conceded to be within his rights as president of the club.

The London Evening Star, reviewing the six straight defeats suffered by Oxford in crew competition with Cambridge, declared that Graham is the "best man" for the seat.

The president of the Oxford Boat club is elected each year by members of the crew. He has supreme command in all rowing matters at the university and is subject neither to the control of coaches or faculty. The position is considered in England one of great privilege and social distinction.

KILLINGLY CLASHES WITH TOURTELLOTTE THIS EVENING

Tonight Killingly high school's basketball team will finish the first half of their schedule when they play Tourtellotte Memorial high at North Grosvenordale. Killingly has won six and lost three games during the first half of their schedule and will try to make it seven in the win column.

In Killingly's second game of the season, Tourtellotte fell an easy victim to the sharp shooting of the Killingly team. This time they intend to make a different story out of it. The game that they won over Plainfield, and this game being played on their own floor will serve as encouragement to them.

Killingly is as determined to win this game as Tourtellotte is, however, and they are not over confident, knowing that Tourtellotte knows their own floor like a book.

The starting line-up for Killingly will probably be: Slowik and Szafranski, forwards; F. Dascoli, center; Young and Wood, guards. Young may be shifted to forward and Szafranski to guard, however. Playing third period at forward in the Plainfield game, Young scored nine points. Szafranski, who replaced Young at guard, also put up a good defensive game in that quarter.

For Tourtellotte the following are expected to start: Guarila, Eddy, Taft or Sney; center, Chubbuck; forwards, Demetry, Blanchette or Johnson.

Tuesday afternoon at 2:30, Killingly plays State Trade in Putnam.

BOXERS ESTABLISH THEIR CAMPS IN FLORIDA

Campolo's party was made up of his brother Filipe; Carolis Oldina, former amateur heavyweight champion of Argentina, who will be Vittorio's chief sparring partner; Jimmy Hennessey, trainer; Alexander Guessi, secretary; an interpreter, Hannibal Deval of the University of Argentina, and a Spanish chef.

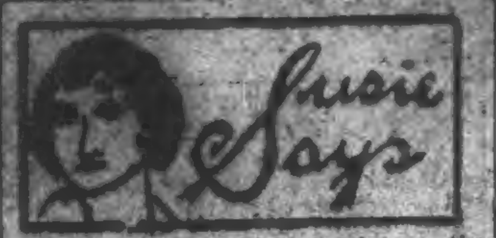
National Hockey League Final

At Chicago: Blackhawks 3; Montreal Maroons, 2.



If you see in the near future the policeman on the beat diligently reading a little red book, don't think he is perusing Shakespeare, Tolstoi or Elinor Glynn, or doing cross word puzzles.

He won't be. He'll be studying up the city ordinances, rules and regulations governing the police department, the fire alarm boxes and the best way to revive a drowned or an intoxicated man.

Yes, Norwich's finest are going to put in some heavy hours as soon as they get these books which the police commissioners are to give out. And let me tell you they're going to get a laugh out of it as well as being perplexed.

I saw one the other day and through idle curiosity looked it through. And what I saw gave me a quiet laugh now and then so I'll pass it on. Let me say in passing that the idea of the book is all right but some of the text seems to have become more or less obsolete.

The first one that attracted our attention was: "No intoxicating drink shall on any pretext, be carried into the station house or headquarters, except for medicinal purposes, and upon the order of the chief or captain."

Well, well, that would make it seem as though all liquor seized in liquor raids must be left outside on the sidewalk. According to the ruling the only way to get it inside would be to have the entire force suddenly taken ill and claim it was for medicinal purposes.

Then, a little further on, I read that "The chief and captain shall wear blue cloth caps and the sergeants and patrolmen shall wear helmets." I thought police helmets went out of style along with hoop-skirts. But according to the rules helmets are the only correct head covering for the policemen.

In telling the duties of the police chief it says, "He shall divide, as equally as possible among the several policemen, the duty of lighting and extinguishing the street lamps, and shall direct at what time and by whom they shall be lighted and extinguished."

Now, somebody has been neglecting their duty. I have not seen a single policeman extinguish one of the city lamps since I've been in Norwich. Somebody ought to look into the matter.

Can you imagine how it would look seeing a policeman climbing the poles along the White Way and extinguishing the lamps, one by one? But that's what the new book says they are supposed to do. So, if you see a policeman coming down the street carrying a ladder and wearing climbers you may know he's the official lamp extinguisher.

Then, it tells what the sergeants' duties shall be. It tells just what the first and second sergeants are expected to do, but not a word is said about the third sergeant. Seems like he's just completely left out of the picture.

One section says, "Policemen must not walk together, or talk with each other or any other person on their beats." Then in another section it says, "He shall, if practicable, make the acquaintance of all persons on his beat, so as to be able to recognize them." Done that one out.

Then, there's a section devoted to restoring persons who are apparently dead from drowning, hanging, intoxication, etc. The same methods are used in restoring a hanged man as in the case of one who has been drowned. The only exception is that a hanged man should be bled as early as possible. Boy, that's a new way, hang 'em and then cut their throat, that ought to revive 'em.

There's a lotta of other good ones but the space is getting short.

The big laugh is that the new book is a reprint of a book of instructions printed about 30 or more years ago and only one change in the wording, as far as I can find out, is in the first paragraph where the third sergeant is mentioned.

COUGARS PLAY TO TIE WITH RANGERS

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—(AP)—The Detroit Cougars ended a four-game losing streak tonight by playing their second tie game of the National Hockey league season with the New York Rangers. The score, after 70 minutes of close and sometimes exciting hockey, was 1 to 1. They outplayed the Rangers when they hit their best stride but they could not hold it. The New Yorkers displayed the same weaknesses. The result was a spotty game, fast at times and slow at others.

Billy Beveridge, young Detroit goalie, was mainly responsible for stopping the Ranger attack. In the four periods he made 51 saves. Noble Goodfellow and Herberts also shone for Detroit. Frank Boucher led most of the Ranger attacks while Leo Reise, bought from the New York Americans today, strengthened the Ranger defense considerably.

The second period brought all the scoring with two fine plays doing the work. Bun Cook started it for the Rangers, buzzing a long shot past Beveridge early in the period, Boucher passed to him. Shortly before the end George Hay eluded the Ranger defense and beat Roach all alone to tie the score. Only three penalties were called in the game.

MISS HICKS REACHES THE SEMI-FINALS AT PINEHURST

PINEHURST, N. C., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Miss Helen Hicks of Hewlitt, L. I., advanced to the semi-finals in the championship division of the 25th annual women's St. Valentine's tournament of the Pinehurst Country club today, when she overwhelmed Mrs. C. F. Uebelacher of Arcola, N. J., by an 8 and 2 score.

Mrs. Emmett French of Youngstown, Ohio, will be the opponent of Miss Hicks tomorrow. She won a hard fought victory over Miss Dean Van Landingham of Charlotte, N. C., today by 2 and 1.

Stafford High in Third

In the Twin-State basketball conference, Stafford high school stands third. They have played six league games winning three and losing three. Agawam is still in the lead winning six games. In the individual standing Giacomini of Stafford high school is second with 46 points. Wilson of Agawam holds the lead with 51 points to his credit.

When a man believes that he is the least bit unhappy, it always makes him more so.

SHYMA CLUB CARD FOR NEXT SHOW HAS BEEN FILLED BY PROMOTERS

Matchmaker Lee F. Flynn of the Shyma Boxing club announced last night that he has completed his card for the boxing show for next Friday night Feb. 14th at Parish hall. He has three eight rounders as star bouts supplemented with a six rounder and an opening four round go.

Yesterday Dynamite Lou Brouillard of Danielson was signed with Jimmy Rossi of Westerly in the third star bout, the other star attractions as previously announced are the Koziol-Machado bout and the "Shiek" Leonard-Joe Russo go. With three bouts of this calibre topping the card it would be hard to find a more promising evening's entertainment than right up in Parish hall. Any one of these three bouts is a headliner and if fans are craving action then it's promised that they will get their fill.

Real old-fashioned slugging matches is just about the only way to describe these bouts. Each and every one of the principals in the bouts is a dyed-in-the-wool slugger with perhaps the exception of Machado, who is something of a boxer.

For the six-rounder Rene Peloquin of Danielson is slated to take on Romeo Dubois of New Haven. This bout is in the junior featherweight class and is the only lightweight bout of the evening.

The opener brings together Young Guoli of Taftville, a newcomer to the ring, against Young Westphal of New London. These boys will clash at 142 pounds and like the three star bouts it should be a hard punching bout while it lasts.

One would go far to find a card that promises more action for the money than this card right in Norwich's own backyard. The matchmaker has shown good judgment in matching the boys.

NORWICH GIRLS LOSE TO WHALING CITY TEAM

Last night at New London the Norwich Girls' basketball team lost a hard-fought game to the New London Y. W. C. A. sextet 34 to 30. While Miss Kziazek and Miss Leonard played brilliant basketball in the forward positions the absence of Miss O'Hart was keenly felt by the team. Miss Kziazek was the high scorer of the evening with 24 points to her credit. The score:

KILE WINS INTERNATIONAL SKI JUMPING COMPETITION

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 6—(AP)—Soaring through the air for two good leaps of 115 and 119 feet, Jan Kile of the Norseman's Ski club, New York, captured the international ski jumping competition of the Ottawa Ski club here today with a total point score of 143.90.

The longest jump of the day was made by Jack Landry of Ottawa university who broke the existing hill record by one foot when he leaped 133 feet on his second attempt. This effort gave him second place in the final standings with a total of 141.40 points. He had covered 121 feet on his first attempt. Although Landry's distance was much further than the New Yorkers' Kile won out on form and style.

Third place went to Gerald Dupuis, Canadian champion, with leaps of 128 and 123 feet for 133.00 points.

T. Langemyr, another entrant from the United States, leaped 112 feet on his first attempt but fell on his second. Axel Anderson and John Thern of the Nansen Ski club, Berlin Mills, N. H., fell on each of their attempts.

CANADIENS PLAY SPECTACULAR TIE GAME WITH LEAFS

TORONTO, Feb. 6.—(AP)—The Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs put on a spectacular National Hockey league game here tonight and emerged with a 3-3 deadlock for their trouble.

Individual honors of the game went to Charlie Conacher, "kid" forward, who scored all three goals for the Leafs and engaged Howie Morenz in a great struggle of speed with honors about even. Morenz got the first goal in the first period but Conacher tied it soon afterwards, Joliat again put the Canadiens ahead in the second period only to see Conacher tie it again. In the third period Conacher shot his third goal to give the Leafs the lead but the Canadiens tied it up with less than half a minute to go on a goal by Larochelle. Neither team could score in the overtime.

GRAHAM KAYOES RACKOW IN THE THIRD ROUND

After the bout had started it was plain to see that Rackow was no match for the former champion, who played and pawed around his opponent like a cat with a mouse. Graham would dance around with both arms down and poke and paw lefts to Rackow's face repeatedly and sending him down for a nine count in the second round and also early in the third when the towel was thrown into the ring from Rackow's corner and the bout stopped.

In the semi-final bout scheduled for eight rounds Al Schell, 144½, New York, won a technical knockout in the fourth round over Johnny Walker, 143¾, Boston. This was a return bout, both boys having met here before on the Battalino-Routis championship fight at the Velodrome late last summer when Walker lost on a foul in the seventh round. Walker was almost sent to the canvas late in the third round when Schell sent a hard right to the jaw. Walker managing to get in close and maul and hold on to the finish of the round. The referee stopped the bout in the fourth round when Walker seemed to call it quits after receiving another terrific right which cut him badly in the mouth.

Eddie Reed, Hartford, won a six round decision over Johnny Pena, 121¼, New York, who had substituted for Jimmy Quinn, of New York. This bout turned out to be a good club fight.

In another sizzling six round bout while it had lasted, Ralph Lenny 133¾, Union City, N. J., knocked out Frank Kolba, 133¾, Utica, N. Y., stablemate of Bushy Graham, in the fourth round with a snappy short right to the jaw.

In the opening four rounder Jimmy Paternostra, 115, Newington, lost on a foul in the third round to Tim O'Connor, 118¾, New Haven.

Local Baseball Views

The time is creeping around when the fans will begin to talk about the Industrial league teams and their prospects for the season that starts in some four months. As yet, nothing definite has taken form, but it is known that sentiment is strong for an earlier start than was made in other years. The league has opened about June 15, but several of the fans want things to get under way before the month of May is through. They point out that some of the longest days of the year are wasted by not starting earlier.

Hank Morin, the popular umpire, is glad that he came back from the north woods and didn't have to freeze during the recent cold weather. He had enough of it during the month of December, says Hank.

Frankie Stapleton, who was one of the first players the old Kaceys had, he coming from a Bridgeport semi-pro outfit to the locals and then going into the Eastern league for a successful career, is mentioned as a candidate for the managership of the Hartford Senators.

Johnny Michaels, the old Warren Harding high pitcher, who played against the Academy here three years ago, is listed among those to make the spring training trip with the Bridgeport Bears of the Eastern league in March.

Lefty Dugas will leave next month to join the Wichita Falls team of the Texas league, where he has been sent by the Pittsburgh Pirates, who bought the Taftville boy last fall after he had turned in a great year with East Douglas of the Blackstone Valley league. Incidentally, Wichita is to have a brand new park and everything this season.

The Academy season will open two months from yesterday or, in weeks, nine from Saturday.

How many of you old-timers remember this game, which was played as the second half of a double-header between Norwich and New London in the old State league, July 4, 1906. The scene of action was Cannonball park, New London, with 1,500 fans looking on, 300 of them from Norwich. Here it is:

LATZO TO BOX JOHNSON ON GARDEN PROGRAM

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Pete Latzo, former welterweight champion who ate his way into the light-heavyweight division, signed today to meet Larry Johnson, heavy-hitting Chicago Negro, in the main ten-round bout at Madison Square Garden, Feb. 21. The match replaces a bout scheduled for that date between Al Ridgeway of Jersey City and Kid Chocolate, Cuban star, which has been postponed indefinitely.

Genaro Loses on Foul

BERLIN, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Frankie Genaro, New York fly weight, was disqualified on a foul in the eighth round of his ten-round bout with Harry Stein of Germany, here tonight. The referee disqualified the American after he had been warned several times for low punches.

The Dudley A. C. of Webster, Mass., will furnish the opposition for the Shyma basketball team at Parish hall on next Tuesday evening. A fast game is expected as the Webster team is rated high in the Bay State.

ELECTRICITY IN MILK EXPERIMENTERS CLAIM

MADISON, Wis.—(AP)—Suggested ad for milk dealers.

"Charge your battery each day with a quart of milk!"

H. H. Sommer and G. C. North, dairy specialists at the University of Wisconsin college of agriculture, say there is electricity in milk. Fat globules are negatively charged, they say experiments showed.

Adding lime salts and lime chloride reduce the potency of the charge; addition of sodium citrate and di-sodium phosphate strengthen it. The thickening of the cream line is due to the clustering of fat globules, the electrical charges of which have been weakened, Sommer and North said.

'BOY, MAKE MINE ELASTIC,' IS NEW ICE CREAM ORDER

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Some day we may order ice cream having a ductility of two, elasticity of 11 and hardness of a dozen.

But we won't use these words in talking to the soda squirt. Instead we are likely to say:

"Gimme some of that new flavor."

Ductility, elasticity and hardness are among the properties of ice cream proposed for research in finding out methods of making the product still more pleasing to the public.

There is opportunity for research to this end, says a report of Dr. Alan Leighton of the bureau of dairy chemistry to the American Chemical society. Ice cream, he says, is so complex that there is not yet a complete theory of its manufacture. Ductility and so on are important properties.

They may be measured to advantage in ice cream, says Dr. Leighton, in much the same manner as they are measured in examination of metal alloys.

Children Keep Coin

DANIELSON

THOUGHT TO BE POLICE INFORMER GIVEN BEATING

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Feb. 6—Charles Barnard, about whom very little is known here, was a battered specimen of humanity this morning as a result, it would appear from all the data available this afternoon, of being taken for a "ride" last evening, and William Bouillard, who pleaded guilty in court this morning to assaulting Barnard is over in Brooklyn to do a six months' stretch imposed upon him by Judge W. Fenner Woodward.

Barnard denied to officials this morning that he has been operating here as a stool-pigeon, an under-cover man or a spotter or anything resembling such, but it appears to be quite clearly established that the reason Barnard got such a beating is that some of his erstwhile companions thought otherwise.

For ten days past it has been common talk about town that spotters were at work here. It has not been an unusual experience to have two certain strangers pointed out as being the persons engaged in the undercover work. Further, these strangers had been so conducting themselves, telling one story to one person, and various other stories to other persons, as to how they happened to be here, and invariably offering to buy liquor if someone would take them out that they fell under suspicion. In a word, they were too utterly crude.

Then along comes Barnard, another unknown. There was plenty of reticence today in circles presumed to know all about what happened, as to how Barnard came to get a beating that left him with a bruised and swollen face, a black eye and other souvenirs of his outing, but the veiled admissions are that he was trimmed because his assailants believed him to be a stool-pigeon, and he emphatically denies that he is.

It appears that Barnard and his companions had been drinking, suspicious though his companions, local young men, were of him. Then a car was procured and a little journey out in the country started to visit a booze joint. That trip appears to have been framed to get Barnard out where he could be beaten. It is said that the car was stopped in a lonely place, that some of the occupants of the car got out, including Barnard, and that an argument was purposely started. Barnard soon was engaged in a fight, was severely thrashed, and then left to walk the several miles back to Danielson over country roads and through the cold and darkness. His face bandaged and bearing the marks of conflict, he was something of a sight when he appeared in court this morning.

Four other cases were disposed of in the town court this morning. Armand Genest pleaded guilty to a sale of liquor and was fined $100 and costs. He is a resident of Danielson. He was given until Saturday to raise the money in default of which he will go to jail.

Curtis L. Mitchell, John Graham, Jr., and George Adams, all of Fort Wright were before the court, the direct result of the car which Mitchell was operating and which was owned by Graham skidding off the highway and hitting a pole just north of Dayville Four Corners last night. They were ordered into court by State Officer Theodore Strand, who investigated the matter. Fines were imposed this morning on the trio—on Mitchell for driving a car without having an operator's license, and on Graham and Adams for intoxication.

President W. H. G Herkotz of the chamber of commerce announced this morning a unique arrangement for giving away $25 in gold when the merchants of Danielson have their Dollar day later in the month. A secret committee of two, members of the chamber of commerce, will determine who is to get this money. At a time to be determined by drawing lots and at a store to be designated in the same manner, these two men will enter, like casual buyers. They will observe the transactions underway, and the first person who makes a purchase after their entrance will be awarded the gold.

A service of remembrance for the late Rev. John R. Pratt, who died Feb. 7, 1929, will be held at the Brooklyn Congregational church on Sunday evening at 7:30. The following is the program:

Organ prelude; opening sentences, "Precious in the sight of the Lord, etc.," "Comfort ye, comfort ye my people, etc.," the 23rd Psalm of the Lord's Prayer; responsive reading, Selection 48, hymn, "Jerusalem the Golden," No. 394; addresses, "Our Minister," Mrs. Sherman Russell; "Mr. Pratt as a Community Man," Judge Oscar F. Atwood; hymn, "No Shadows Yonder," No. 395; addresses, "Mr. Pratt as a Churchman," Rev. William Williams, Wauregan; "My Regard for Mr. Pratt," Rev. George H. Reese, Central Village; hymn, "For all the Saints who from their labors rest," No. 270; prayer and benediction; organ postlude. The Rev. George B. Hawkes, of Abington, will assist the Rev. Carlos C. Rowlison, pastor of the Brooklyn church, in conducting the service.

Coroner Arthur G. Bill announced this afternoon that he had received the resignation of Dr. George M. Burroughs of Broad street as medical examiner for the town of Killingly, on account of the physician's state of health. Dr. Burroughs has served several terms as medical examiner, having been appointed to fill a vacancy created by the death of Dr. Rienzi Robinson. Coroner Bill said that he would name Dr. Burroughs' successor within a few days.

Danielson has a bay rum evil, though not much is said about it. Bay rum as a beverage is one of the evils that prohibition has developed. It was not classed as delectable until the restrictive era came into being. Now it is a cause of drunkenness. Chief John McFarland pointed out to newspaper men yesterday morning two men that were ambling up through the business section. "They are going"—and he told where—"to buy bay rum." They entered the store designated by the chief. One of the pair is now in jail serving 30 days for intoxication.

Just what is to be done about the bay rum racket is a problem. Dealers have a perfect right to sell it despite its high alcoholic content. Dealers are not expected to question a purchaser as to what he is going to do with it.

And it may be set down in passing that this situation is not to be blamed on the drug stores. There are other places of business where bay rum can be purchased in small quantities, and that is the way that most of it is purchased here when intended for drinking, and not legitimate, purposes.

With everyone agreed that this was one of the coldest mornings of the winter, there was some doubt as to just how cold it was, for thermometers registered variously from six above to six below zero.

Friday evening members of the Westfield Men's club are to hold a meeting at the Congregational church, and will welcome in attendance a number of newcomers to Danielson.

The death of Rev. William A. Keefe at Norwich yesterday recalled to the minds of many who regret his passing the great patriotic work he accomplished all through this section during the World war, while he was pastor of St. John's church at Plainfield.

The subscription record for shares of the new issue of the Danielson Building and Loan issue climbs slowly upward. It is not moving as rapidly as had been anticipated, but the sales are encouraging.

Philip Leslie Conklin, who so unfortunately met death in an automobile accident near Albany, is well remembered here, especially as a basketball player. His untimely death causes deep regret among his many Danielson friends.

Friday afternoon members of the Civic federation are to hold a meeting, at 3:30, in the community room of the Brooklyn Savings bank.

The Young People's Discussion class of the Westfield Congregational church have two one-act plays in rehearsal for presentation at the church. The effort is being sponsored by the missionary committee of the church.

Purchasers of Motorists' Protective association "policies" here are more or less upset by the arrest and fining in the town court of the agents of the concern and worried now as to the value of the certificates they hold.

Mrs. William Vett of Danielson is a maternity patient at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam.

The present term of the public schools in Killingly will close two weeks from Friday, Feb. 21. On March 3 the schools will reopen for the third term of the present school year. The present term includes eight weeks of study. The only special holidays remaining during the present school year are Good Friday and Memorial day.

In the schools of Killingly next Wednesday—Lincoln's birthday—will be observed with appropriate exercises, and about town there will be a general display of national colors in honor of the event.

Residents who may be interested in having a new home under arrangements that may be made with the Building and Loan association and benefit by the home-building campaign now underway may learn all details by conferring with officials of the association.

Bowling enthusiasts from various communities hereabouts flocked to the Casino alleys here tonight to watch the final five games in the $500 match between Frank Barber's Connecticut All Stars and the Hartford City Stars.

PUTNAM

MAYOR RICHARD'S CONDITION SHOWS MUCH IMPROVEMENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Feb. 6.—The condition of Mayor Charles A. Richard, who is ill at his home on Main street, was considerably improved today. Mayor Richard was taken sick shortly after the close of Tuesday evening's meeting of the common council. It was believed that he had contracted pneumonia but a statement from the mayor's attending physician received today was to the effect that the chief executive had averted the dreaded malady. The mayor was sufficiently improved today so as to enable him to receive a few intimate friends who called to pay their respects and wish him a speedy recovery. Although confined to his bed, the mayor is expected to be well enough to return to his mayoral duties within a few days. He is suffering from a severe cold, which has settled in and congested the lungs.

As stated nearly a month ago, Yale university has received practically all of the expansive Myers acreage located in Union and touching upon the counties of Tolland and Windham, donated to the institution of learning by George H. Myers of Washington, D. C., and Philadelphia. The tract comprises about 3,000 acres of timberland. The territory is one of the wildest and unsettled in Windham county and will be used by Yale as a forestry experimental station. N. D. Canterbury has been named director of the new forest. He is a former Louisiana state forester. Mr. Myers, a well known figure in the tobacco world, graduated from Yale in 1898 and from the first forestry class of Yale in 1902.

The current issue of the telephone directory for Putnam district of the Southern New England Telephone Co. is being delivered by company officials this week. Urban subscribers were furnished with copies today and the rural sections will be served during the remainder of the week. The new directory has many new features contained within its covers. A wealth of interesting information, relative to ways and means in which to expedite service between the company and the subscriber, is given in the new book of the "number please" society. A noteworthy fact is that the Johnson family still retains the honor of having the greatest number of listings. Thirty-eight Johnsons are users of telephones in this area. The Smiths are next with 24 listings, while the Bakers take third place with 14. Fourth place is conceded to the Andersons, which name appears 11 times. An entirely new feature of the February issue of the directory is the presence of a paper tab, inserted between pages where the Putnam listings begin, making the directory of the local exchange more accessible to the subscriber.

The sudden death of Rev. William A. Keefe, pastor of St. Mary's Memorial church, Norwich, yesterday, was sincerely regretted by his numerous friends in this city. Father Keefe was a frequent visitor in Putnam while serving as pastor of St. John's church in Plainfield. On two occasions during the World war, Father Keefe appeared before a capacity house at the Bradley theatre, delivering patriotic four-minute addresses. So eloquent was the distinguished clergyman, that he raised to a high pitch the spirit of patriotism in every one of his listeners. In June, 1928, Rev. Father Keefe delivered an inspiring address to the graduating class of Putnam high school. Again Father Keefe's eloquence won for him many new Putnam admirers. Rev. U. O. Bellerose, pastor of St. Mary's church, this city, was overwhelmed with sorrow when the news of the death of the Norwich pastor reached him early yesterday afternoon. Father Keefe's first assignment, made by the late Bishop Michael Tierney, was as a curate to Father Bellerose, who was then pastor of Sacred Heart church in Taftville.

News of the death of Mrs. William E. Sault, wife of William E. Sault, assistant superintendent of the New Haven division of the New Haven railroad, at her home in New Haven last evening, was received with deep regret by her many friends in this city. Mrs. Sault on several occasions has visited her husband, whose offices are in this city. She had been ill for many weeks.

Some hope is entertained by attending physicians to save the toes of William E. Sault, divisional assistant superintendent of the New Haven railroad, whose feet were frozen last week. Mr. Sault encountered this serious affliction when he was exposed to severe cold while directing salvaging operations at the scene of a railroad wreck on the Norwich branch more than a week ago. Three toes were so badly frozen that they became discolored. Amputation of them was expected. When advised of the death of his wife, Mr. Sault was stricken with sorrow. He intimated that he had suffered much personal hardship, but believed that the amputation of his toes would not be necessary, according to the advice of his physicians. Superintendent Sault is one of the most popular officials of the New Haven division and is widely known and respected in and out of railroad circles.

Mr. Sault has endured unfalteringly many handicaps in the past year, the greatest and most severe blow being the loss of his wife today. Last summer while Mr. and Mrs. Sault were on their annual vacation, when only a few miles from their home city of New Haven, the vehicle in which they were riding encountered an accident. Both Mr. and Mrs. Sault were injured. Injuries sustained by Mrs. Sault brought on her death. A grandson of Mr. Sault sustained a fracture of the leg early last summer. The condition of the child improved rapidly and one morning hospital attendants allowed the boy to leave his bed and walk with the aid of crutches. The child acted at a time when his nurse was occupied with another task. Grasping the crutches and overwhelmed with joy at the thought of being able to walk, he stepped too quickly, lost his balance and fell to the floor, sustaining fractures of both legs as the result of the fall. The plight of his grandson caused Superintendent Sault much anxiety, dispelled only when he was able to leave his official duties here to go to New Haven, where he visited the unfortunate members of his family.

Judge M. H. Geissler of city court was the speaker at Wednesday's session of the Putnam Rotary club. Judge Geissler, one of the leading members of the Windham County Bar association, chose for his subject, Laws. He defined laws and their making and concluded his address with a few words on another subject having much bearing on the first theme of his talk—wills and their importance. The city court magistrate, a well versed person on this phase of the legal practice, discussed the manner in which a will is composed and executed. President Nikoloff presided at the executive session. Henry Dubuc of Danielson attended the meeting as a guest.

There were reports of the recent mid-winter rally of the Woman's Baptist Home and Foreign Mission societies of the New England district at Boston given by Mrs. B. R. Gardner and Mrs. A. M. Brown, and a number of interesting letters from mission schools and hospitals to which the local society had sent White Cross supplies and other articles during the past year. One was read by Mrs. G. H. Prior from Miss Billie Harris, who spoke at the Woman's Christmas party a year ago. She has since completed her year's furlough in this country and returned to her hospital in Ningpo, China. PUZZLE SOCIAL PROVIDES EVENING'S ENTERTAINMENT

The Congregational Sunday school held a Puzzle social in the vestry Wednesday evening. Each person who attended brought youthful photographs, the identification of many proving to be a real puzzle. The older members of the school particularly enjoyed the pictures, which brought back many memories. A valentine prize was given the one who identified the largest number, and this went to Priscilla Goodenough, who identified 36. All kinds of other puzzles were upon small tables, and the evening was spent most enjoyably in just working out puzzles. Cocoa and fancy cookies were served by Miss Virginia Goodenough and the Happy-Go-Lucky class of girls. Mrs. Edith Soule's class of boys, whose club name is "The Valiant Knights," sold candy made by their mothers and sisters, and assisted Mrs. E. H. Hiscox, the superintendent, who arranged the social, in many ways. Miss Bessie Thompson assisted at the door. The Sunday school has voted to purchase new singing books and the sum of $12 was received Wednesday evening, to go toward this project.

Ruthie Rebekah lodge held a valentine social Tuesday evening, also gave a shower for Miss Frances Bugbee. In the games prizes were won by Mrs. Alice Anthony, Mrs. Walter Hyde and Miss Freda Sholes. A table was placed in the center of the room and was decorated with red hearts, red streamers depending from the ceiling. A gorgeous bandbox decorated in red, made by Mrs. J. T. Stewart, was on the table and was filled with beautiful gifts for Miss Bugbee. A tiny bride and groom were conspicuous on the top of the box. Sandwiches, cake and coffee were served by Mrs. C. E. NORMAN KILPATRICK TELLS OF LIFE IN BULGARIA

The following letter has been received by Mr. and Mrs. Lavern Kilpatrick of Canterbury, from their son, Norman, a teacher at Sofia, Bulgaria, sponsored by the American Board. The young man is a member of the Newent Congregational church, Lisbon. Not long ago, Rev. J. W. Reynolds, the pastor of the Newent church, wrote to Mr. Kilpatrick asking him to write something about Bulgaria for his many home friends to read. His first education was in the schols of New London, in which city he lived, prior to making his home in Canterbury. Later he was graduated from Norwich Free Academy and Brown university. The assignment at his present station is for two years with the possibility that he may visit his parents and friends here in July.

He writes:

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Jan. 16, 1930—Bulgaria is a land of color. It is filled with people who are dressed in the brightest colors imaginable. Red, green, blue, orange, yellow and pink clash and vie with each other in their brightness. Not only are the people gaily attired, but the buildings are no less striking. The little mud houses are often painted a deep blue. Many of the public buildings are yellow, the National theater is stained raspberry and has green trimmings.

The Bulgarian peasant and his wife are an interesting couple. The man is dressed in a suit of coarse brown wool, heavily braided in black and with baggy trousers. On his head he wears a sheep skin kalpak and on his feet shallow, pointed, pig-skin shoes called tsarvuly. The woman, buxom and coarse from hard work, wears a dress of heavy black wool which has from two to four inches of heavy gold braid about the bottom of the skirt and about the neck. The outer dress has no sleeves and is very low cut about the neck. This exposes an under-slip that has six inches of embroidery on the sleeves and a great deal about the throat. She generally wears a brilliant apron of green or yellow or orange. For shoes she wears either tsarvuly like her husband or slippers made of red leather. The lady's stockings can not be surpassed, for they are gorgeous affairs knitted with pink and green flower designs.

Every Bulgarian town and city has a market day once a week. This is a gala occasion for the peasants, for they leave their mud houses and see life. In the harvest season the market place is piled high with sweet smelling onions and sweeter garlics. There are literally tons and tons of peppers—the favorite food of the Bulgarians. There are green peppers, red peppers, hot peppers, sweet peppers, every imaginable kind of pepper. A foreigner is amazed that so many peppers could be sold until he comes to understand that a piece of cheese and a pepper often are the chief constituents of a meal. Mixed with the smell of onions and garlic is the smell of markitey, dough fried in walnut oil.

The smells are nothing to the sounds. The builders of Babel could not possibly compare with a Bulgarian market place. Pigs with a string around their hind legs squeal at geese tucked under and old baba's (grandmother's) arm. Donkeys bray to one another, but these animals can scarcely be heard above the clatter of human voices. This is a country where business means argument and the best talker makes the best bargain. It takes fifteen minutes to buy even six eggs, for you must haggle about their price and about their quality and even discuss the character of the seller before you can get them at a fair price. Of course they are really cheap any how, selling at about two for five cents. Eggs over here are like stockings they are sold by the pair. This might be an advantage in case they hatched. The fact that almost nothing has a set price is a very great economic disadvantage. It slows up business and means that one must lose hours of time.

Bulgaria is essentially an agricultural country. Over eighty per cent of the population are engaged in farming. However, methods of agriculture are very primitive. Plowing is done by slow oxen or huge water-buffalo, which are slower yet. The iron plow has only recently replaced the wooden one. The government is doing a great deal to introduce modern methods of agriculture. It lends money to the peasants, and encourages them to buy tractors and other modern machinery by selling it to them on credit. The government is setting up and establishing model farms and experiment stations. There are two great difficulties which can only be overcome in time. The first is that the peasants hold their land in scattered strips instead of in consecutive plots, and the second is to change the peasant himself.

Bulgaria is a country of beautiful mountains and plains, it has great possibilities. When one considers that it is a new country, only about fifty years old, one can see great possibilities for its future.

EASTERN VOLUNTOWN

Elisha Bitgood and daughter Evelyn, of Hope Valley, visited with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. William Bitgood Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Remington had for company Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Harry Leonard of Providence.

Mrs. William Bitgood has lost her lame rooster, Moses. Mrs. Bitgood fed him Monday morning. About noon she opened the coop to let him out. She did not stop to see if he came out. In the afternoon she went to the coop and he was dead. If he had lived until June he would have been five years old. Mr. and Mrs. Bitgood feel bad over their loss.

Joel Barber and Clifford Bugbee of Jewett City, and the young man that work for Jefferson Barber is sawing up wood at the mill for Mr. Bitgood.

Mrs. Albert Dawley was home over Sunday as she had a house full of company.

Albert Dawley called on Mr. and Mrs. William Bitgood recently. He went to Norwich Tuesday on business.

Carl Gallup's choppers have commenced chopping logs on Elmer Fenner's lot.

Mrs. James Congdon has a bad cold. The rest of the family are feeling better of their colds.

Lee Remington has a bad cold. He felt a little better of his cold so he and his wife went to Centerville, R. I., Monday and the next day he did not feel as good.

Mrs. William Bitgood is not feeling very good at this writing. Her head plagues her quite a little and also she is quite lame.

An amateur dramatic company is to produce "Ali Baba." We understand that for the sake of realism the Forty Thieves will be played by people who have sold their cars to their friends.—London Opinion.

Greater Beauty For Lovely Women

Beauty's first requisite—skin perfection. That is the secret of women who use MELLO-GLO Face Powder that spreads more smoothly and produces a youthful bloom. Its new French process makes MELLO-GLO stay on longer and banish the shiny nose. Pure! Prevents roughness, flakiness, irritation and large pores. Use MELLO-GLO. The Lee & Osgood Co.

DAYVILLE

It would be interesting to know how many people witnessed the strange phenomenon of light near the setting sun Thursday evening. Vertical in form and rainbow colored, it was a thing of beauty and wonder to many.

Miss Clara Law and Mrs. Goodale have gone to Providence to spend a few weeks with relatives.

Tommy and Ruth Allen, children of Mrs. Ida Bailey Allen, of New York, were recent visitors with their aunts, the Misses Cora and Bernice Cogswell.

SEEMS TO BODE BILL ILL WHEN THEY CALL HIM WILL

CHICAGO—(AP)—The harmonies of Bill and Will, it seems, sound the keynote of domestic relations.

"If the fellows call you 'Bill,'" declares Ariel Yvon Taylor of the Illinois Women's Press club, "and your wife knows you as Will, she may love you dearly but she won't mind you. If you wish to be the boss, train her to say 'Bill, dear.'"

The difference, she explains, is one of vibration. Changing the spelling of one's name, she says, makes a different person because it changes the rate of vibration.

Famous Plane A Transport

MONTGOMERY, Ala.—(AP)—The "Question Mark," famous army air corps plane which set the vogue for refueling duration flights, has found more sober existance as a "dray horse" transporting supplies and personnel at Maxwell field.

The 70-year-old "Totenglocke," or passing bell of the former Neuenburg minister which was overwhelmed by a Rhine flood in 1923, has been restored and placed in the tower of the Catholic church.

GAVE SAFETY TALK FOR NORWICH ROTARY MEETING

"Safety" was the topic of an instructive talk by John A. Holland, safety engineer of the Travelers Insurance company, at the weekly meeting of the Norwich Rotary club held on Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel. Mr. Holland who was introduced by Charles A. Saxton, program chairman for February, laid especial stress on the automobile as an instrument of destruction as well as a vehicle of pleasure. He was very emphatic in his denunciation of the reckless driver and the man who drives his car without thought.

Mr. Holland said in part:

There are only two ways to make highways safe for all classes of traffic. One is to have separate roads for pedestrians and one for cars. In these days of burdensome taxes and high cost of road building, separate roads would be prohibitive. Thus the only way left to minimize motor accidents is the way of regulation. Better traffic laws, better traffic law enforcement and most of all better education of drivers. Here is a table that ought to educate some of them.

A car going 60 miles an hour covers 88 feet per second. A car going 30 miles an hour covers 44 feet per second, and a car going 15 miles an hour covers 22 feet per second.

If a man driving his car at 60 miles an hour does not see another car coming out of an intersecting street until he is 88 feet from it, he has only one second in which to stop—it cannot possibly be done.

If a man driving his car at 30 miles an hour and sees another car coming out of an intersecting street when he is 44 feet from it, he has only one second to stop—impossible!

If a man driving his car 15 miles an hour does not see another car coming out of an intersecting street or a child dodging out from behind a parked machine, or a woman with a baby carriage suddenly starting across the street, until he is 22 feet from the object, he has only one second in which to stop—it cannot be done.

It is more than a century ago since Mother Shipman prophecied the "horseless carriage" and she little thought at that time that when her prophecy would be realized that it would be the means of killing and maiming so many human beings.

We are indebted to the internal combustion engine and the storage battery for the operation of the automobile. We are also indebted to the careless and reckless driver; the fellow who thinks the public highways are private race courses for his benefit in order to display his qualifications as a speed artist.

Any man can drive fast; all you have to do is step on the gas. Stepping on the gas does not prove that you are an expert driver. It simply shows that you are a fool and have no regard for yourself or anyone else.

Many years ago before the advent of the automobile we were satisfied to hitch up a horse and drive it on the public highway at a rate not faster than ten miles an hour, and when we came to intersecting streets the horse had sense enough to stop if another team was coming. They had what we term "horse sense".

It was only recently that a bulletin was issued by the Connecticut state motor vehicle department that the percentage of animals being hit by automobiles was diminished at a rapid rate, which proves that animals are displaying their intelligence and are practicing safety while many auto drivers and also pedestrians are fools and are a menace to themselves and everybody else.

The automobile is an engine of destruction when placed in the hands of irresponsible or reckless people, and I believe that if they cannot be taught the highways are not race courses, they should be ruled off of same.

In these days of sudden emergencies one has a distinct duty to humanity to keep himself in readiness at all times for just such emergencies. It is scarcely necessary to dwell upon the subject of drunken drivers. These men are being treated severely by the courts as indeed they deserve to be treated.

But after all, the great responsibility must rest upon the driver. Indeed it is as much for his own protection that the driver should be cautious as it is for the safety of others.

Serious smashes very often result in physical damage to the careless or thoughtless driver and rarely does such a one come through an experience without some monetary damage being done. Yet there are those who drive wild around the streets of the city without a thought of what might happen.

A well known baseball player once said that "the ability of a baseball infielder to make stellar plays depends not so much on his knowing what to do with the ball when he gets it as upon the ability to visualize what he would do if the ball suddenly came to him." Think it over you drivers of autos—play ball!

There is one safe way to drive motor cars, and that is to drive always as though the other fellow is a fool. Don't depend on him to do the right thing. Figure that he will do the wrong thing and be ready for him.

Proceed on the presumption that the child standing on the curb is going to make a sudden and wild dash for the other side of the street; that old people are deaf and excitable and slow to move; that truck drivers will turn without signaling; that delivery boys will drive across side streets at top speed; when passing a standing line of parked automobiles from which careless pedestrians may step out unexpectedly—expect them to do it; give no one credit for being sensible and careful; don't expect the boy on the bicycle to do the right thing.

If children are playing ball on the sidewalk expect the ball to come into your path and the kids to follow it. If you are tempted to hit her up fifty or even more, ask yourself what would happen to you if anything happened to your car equipment? What chance would you have at this speed? Always keep your brakes in good shape and practice using the foot brake and emergency brake simultaneously. If you are driving at night and see another car coming in the opposite direction and the lights are blinding you, slow up to almost a walk and imagine there is someone in front of you walking. In some cases there will be.

The old alibi of the "lights blinded me" is not going to be acceptable any more.

Backing from any place without looking, no matter whether it is in the street or in your garage, is like a blind man driving.

If your automobile stalls the supposition is that your gasoline tank is empty, but remember that the empty tank, like the empty gun has sent many a man to the hospital. If you must look into the bank use a flashlight, although on the modern cars it is not necessary.

You have perhaps read in the newspapers occasionally about the rube who blew out the gas. Is he any worse than the auto driver who starts up his machine in a closed garage? Carbon monoxide is deadly poison and strikes you without warning. If it is necessary to start the car in the garage, open the doors and windows and give yourself plenty of ventilation.

Some people regard safety as excess baggage when they are out for a good time. That's why the Monday morning papers report so many accidents; that's why the day after the holiday is a heavy visiting day at the hospital. The emergency wards at the hospitals are full of people who thought that safety was a nuisance and they are the victims. Of course, safety is a nuisance. It is annoying to have to stop at a railroad crossing to let the train pass; to wait for a green light at an intersection, or to recognize the other fellows' right-of-way, but it is a lot healthier.

The doctor is a nuisance when he prescribes abstinence from tea, coffee, tobacco or late hours. Sometimes it is aggravating to be reminded to wear your rubbers when you leave home on a rainy day, but you know the advice is good.

Some precepts that should be instilled in every driver so that he can act quickly is as follows: No accident is unavoidable; after the accident happens one could always see how to avoid it. Do your thinking first, not afterward.

Safety is not a thing to be forgotten, even for a second. Keep it in your mind at all times and you will be much happier, much healthier and you will live longer.

Keep your eyes on the road, your hands on the wheel, and for God's sake never take any chances, as the most dangerous part of any car is the man holding the steering wheel, for modern inventions have come to stay. We cannot turn back the hands on the clock of evolution.

At the business session President Frank R. Murdy presided and John Richardson and Christopher Gallup were the song leaders. Program Chairman Saxton announced that at next week's meeting the Rotary Boys band would give a short concert as guests of the club.

The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

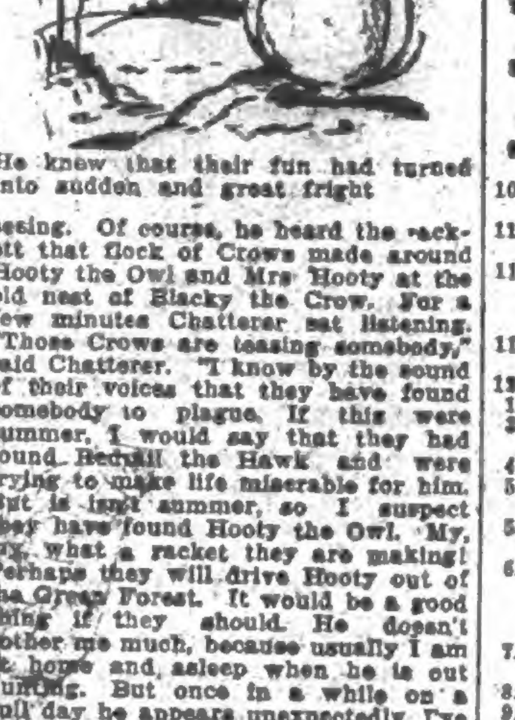
BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Chatterer the Red Squirrel Is Startled

The curious will soon or late
Find that they have have tempted fate.
—Chatterer the Red Squirrel.

Chatterer the Red Squirrel is a busybody. He is a small person, but like a lot of small persons he is inclined to think himself rather important. He wants to know everything that is going on. In this respect he is quite equal to Peter Rabbit. Like most small persons he is very active. He does sit still occasionally, but it is only occasionally. He is here and there and all about during the hours of daylight. Whenever anything is going on in the Green Forest you are pretty certain to find Chatterer the Red Squirrel not far away.

Now, Chatterer learned long ago that when a lot of Crows get to cawing and making a great racket, there is usually something going on worth seeing. Of course, he heard the racket that flock of Crows made around Hooty the Owl and Mrs. Hooty at the old nest of Blacky the Crow. For a few minutes Chatterer sat listening. "Those Crows are teasing somebody," said Chatterer. "I know by the sound of their voices that they have found somebody to plague. If this were summer, I would say that they had found Redtail the Hawk and were trying to make life miserable for him. But it isn't summer, so I suspect they have found Hooty the Owl. My, my, what a racket they are making! Perhaps they will drive Hooty out of the Green Forest. It would be a good thing if they should. He doesn't bother me much, because usually I am at home and asleep when he is out hunting. But once in a while on a dull day he appears unexpectedly. I've had two or three narrow escapes. I hope they'll drive him away. I'll go over to see what's going on."



He knew that their fun had turned into sudden and great fright

So Chatterer started in that direction, traveling through the treetops when he could, and he could most of the way. He was only a little more than half-way there when the voices of the Crows changed. "Ha!" exclaimed Chatterer, "Something has happened. Those Crows are frightened."

A moment later the cawing of the Crows ceased altogether. Then, looking up, Chatterer caught a glimpse of black-feathered folks hurrying in different directions. Each one of those Crows that he saw was flying as if life itself depended on speed. Chatterer has a shrewd little head. He chuckled. He knew just as well as if he had been there and seen it all that those Crows had had the tables turned on them, as the saying is. He knew that their fun had been turned into sudden and great fright.

Chatterer kept on. He was curious. He wanted to find out exactly what had been going on. So it was that presently he came to the tree in which was the old nest of Blacky the Crow. Chatterer knew about that nest. He had known about it for a long time. He had been tempted to make that nest over in the fall for his own winter use. He hadn't done it because he had seen Blacky the Crow around there more or less and he had a feeling that Blacky might make trouble for him.

For several minutes Chatterer sat still in a tree just a short distance from the tree that held the nest. He suspected that somewhere around that point Hooty the Owl probably was sitting. He had no desire to be seen by Hooty. He wanted to see him first. So he sat still and looked and looked and looked through all the trees. Nowhere could he see Hooty. Finally he made up his mind that Hooty must have flown away when the Crows flew. "I guess I won't see Hooty after all," said Chatterer to himself. "He doesn't belong around here anyway. Probably he has gone back to his favorite place in the lonesomest part of the Green Forest. Now that I'm here, I believe I'll have another look at that nest of Blacky's."

Chatterer was just preparing to jump over into the next tree when his sharp eyes caught sight of something black floating down from up in the tree where Blacky's nest was. It was the feather of a Crow. Chatterer's heart seemed to almost stop beating, he was so startled.

The next story: "Chatterer Jumps to a Conclusion."

The medieval Emperor Charlemagne planned to join the rivers of France, Germany and Austria by canals, but failed because too little was known about changing water-levels.

POETRY

The Isle Of Long Ago

Oh! a wonderful stream is the River Time,
As it runs through the realm of Tears,
With a faultless rhythm and a musical rhyme
And a broader sweep and a surge sublime,
As it blends in the ocean of Years!

How the Winters are drifting like flakes of snow,
And the Summers like birds between,
And the year in the sheaf—so they come and they go
On the River's breast with its ebb and flow,
As they glide in the shadow and sheen!

There's a magical isle up the River Time,
Where the softest of airs are playing;
There's a cloudless sky and a tropical clime,
And a voice as sweet as a vesper chime,
And the Junes with the roses are staying.

And the name of this Isle is the Long Ago,
And we bury our treasures there;
There are brows of beauty and bosoms of snow—
They are heaps of dust—but we loved them so!
There are trinkets and tresses of hair

There are fragments of songs that nobody sings,
There are parts of an infant's prayer,
There's a harp unswept and a lute without strings,
There are broken vows and pieces of rings,
And the garments that she used to wear.

There are hands that are waved when the fairy shore
By the mirage is lifted in air,
And we sometimes hear through the turbulent roar
Sweet voices we heard in the days gone before,
When the wind down the River is fair.

Oh! remembered for aye be the blessed Isle,
All the day of our life till night;
And when evening comes, with its beautiful smile,
And our eyes are closing in slumber awhile,
May that "Greenwood" of soul be in sight!

—Benjamin F. Taylor (1819-1887).

To A Little House

Dear little house, dear shabby street,
Dear books and beds and food to eat!
How feeble words are to express
The facets of your tenderness.

How white the sun comes through the pane!
In tinkling music drips the rain!
How burning bright the furnace glows!
What paths to shovel when it snows!

O dearly loved Long Island trains!
O well remembered joys and pains.
How near the housetops Beauty leans
Along that little street in Queens!

Let these poor rhymes abide for proof
Joy dwells beneath a humble roof;
Heaven is not built of country seats
But little, queer suburban streets.

—(Christopher Morley in the Montreal Star).

HUMOR OF THE DAY

She—Oh, you're too slow.
He—I'm afraid I don't grasp you.
She—That's just it.

Bride (coyly)—And what do I get if I cook a meal like that for you every day?

He (ruefully)—My life insurance.

Rider—Here's a $20 bill; I have no change.

Conductor—You'll have plenty in a minute.—Brooklyn Eagle.

"I really feel I have quite a literary bent."

"Hm! We'll just stick to that long enough and you'll be quite literary, broke."

Teacher—Now, Wilbur, tell us what finally happened to Noah and the Ark.

Wilbur—Please mum, Baby sucked all the paint off Noah and papa stepped on the ark and smashed it.—Pathfinder.

"Right-o, I'll get you another."

"Don't bother, I've found it now. It was just under the cloth."—London Opinion.

She: "Oh, my tooth aches dreadfully! I don't see why we can't be born without teeth."

He: "I think, my dear, that if you will look up some authority on that point you will find that most of us are."—Capper's Weekly.

A kind gentleman had to dismiss his gardener for unfaithful service. He was too fond of sneaking out to The White Raven for a glass. Not wishing to harm him, however, the old gentleman wrote this note:

"I wish to state that Blank has been in my employ over two years. In that time he got out of the garden more than any other man I have had."

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The American Brass Company, Waterbury.

From the humble origin of a brass button, the great brass industry of today traces its fascinating history.

Very early in 1800 a little group of button makers from England began to ply their trade in Waterbury. Brass buttons were then in vogue and the metal for making them had to be brought over from England; consequently these enterprising craftsmen started in to manufacture their own metal. Success attended their efforts, and from then on, as other uses for brass and copper developed, the industry grew and prospered. By 1848 there were three Waterbury brass factories employing a total of about 600 men and using 350 tons of copper a year. Twenty years later the business had extended to Ansonia and Torrington, with a total annual consumption of 2,000 tons. By 1867 the amount had reached 6,000 tons.

There was talk from time to time of consolidating some of the pioneer brass companies, and in December, 1899, The American Brass company was formed, bringing together several firms whose aggregate facilities produced two thirds of the country's brass output. Charles F. Booker had been the prime mover in bringing about this consolidation, and was fittingly honored by being chosen president.

The company's plants were in Ansonia, Waterbury, Shelton, and Torrington, Conecticut, also one in Kenosha, Wisconsin, and in 1917 the Buffalo Copper and Brass Rolling Mill company, Buffalo, N. Y., was acquired.

In January, 1922, The American Brass company was purchased by the Anaconda Copper Mining company, thus uniting the largest copper and zinc producer in the world with the largest organization fabricating copper and copper alloys.

Since the merger, The American Brass company has continued to operate under its own name, the same official heads remain, and the manufacturing methods and practices, so long and so successfully employed, have been carried on to the advantage of producer and consumer. John A. Coe, the present president of the company, has had 46 years experience in the industry, serving in an executive capacity since 1903, and succeeding Mr. Brooker as president in 1920.

Three more mills have been added since 1922—one in Canada, one at Hastings-on-Hudson, New York, and one at Detroit. The main office of the company is in Waterbury, and local sales offices are maintained in the more important large cities throughout the country.

At the present rate of production, the total output for this year will amount to approximately 580,000 tons of copper and its alloys in the various commercial forms of sheet, wire, rods, tubes, etc.

The present officers are: President, John A. Coe; treasurer, Clifford F. Hollister; secretary, Edmund H. Yates; assistant treasurer, Major W. Judge; assistant treasurer, F. Burnham Terry; assistant treasurer, Edwin J. Rockwell; assistant secretary, Edwin J. Rockwell.

WICHITAN'S PLANE ENGINE INTENDED AS FUEL SAVER

WICHITA, Kas.—(AP)—An airplane engine calculated to develop normal horsepower with half or two-thirds the amount of fuel ordinary used has been built by Guy E. Poyer, Wichita, engineer.

A combustion chamber half the usual size, Poyer explains, makes possible the fuel economy by making extra space available to push down the piston under a higher pressure rather than being filled by expanding gases that do no work.

The engine's 10 cylinders operate in pairs in radial fashion.

Ignition of the motor, Poyer claims, is not effected by storms or adverse flying conditions. He employs a cylichrome steel ball, which is exposed to exploded gases during the power stroke, and becomes red hot soon after the motor starts.

STOCK MARKET WAS IRREGULAR WITH CLOSING PRICES GENERALLY LOWER

NEW YORK, Feb. 6—(AP)—Fitful shifts of speculative sentiment sent the stock market into several blind alleys today, and closing prices, despite individual strong spots, were generally lower, cancelling most of yesterday's advances. Trading slackened, however, transfers totalling but 3,703,970 shares.

Further improvement in credit conditions, as evidenced by the reduction of the Bank of England rate from 5 to 4 1-2 percent before the market opened, and the cut from 4 1-2 to 4 percent in the New York bank rate after the close, appeared to have been largely discounted in the substantial stock market advances of the past week. The lower rate at London had been confidently forecast for several days, and while there was less certainty about the New York rate, Wall street was convinced that a reduction was only a matter of weeks.

With cheaper money taken for granted, attention remained focused upon the business outlook, and such news as came to hand was not particularly impressive. Further breaks in the cotton and wheat markets during the day were rather unsettling. Both commodities dropped to new lows for the season, although wheat rebounded smartly late in the day. Several earnings statements for 1929 appeared, but were regarded as largely dealing with water that has passed under the mill. General Motors announced 1929 profit equal to $5.49 a share, as against $6.14, calculated on the same basis in the previous year. Only the regular dividend of 75 cents was declared. Steel ingot output in January, as computed by the American Iron and Steel Institute showed considerable improvement over the past two months, but failed by substantial margins to approach the January totals of the past two years.

Brokers loans, as announced after the close, showed a gain of $67,000,000 for the week, the largest gain, with the exception of the last week of December, since October. This undoubtedly reflected in part, however, payment for recent issues of bonds. It was notable that loans by individuals and corporations were reduced by about $100,000,000, while New York and interior banks increased their loans by $137,000,000.

This evidently reflected month end interest and dividend requirements, as well as increasing commercial activity. The federal reserve condition statement showed that the system was again releasing credit through open market purchase of bills. Call money again renewed at 4 1-2 percent and dropped to 4, but both times loans and bankers acceptance rates eased.

The stock market opened with a brief burst of strength, evidently on the basis of the reduced London bank rate, but before the end of the first half hour, profit taking appeared in large volume, and was in evidence sporadically throughout the day. There were a few notable strong spots, Fox Film was sent up more than 4 points, although its gain was later reduced, on rumors that a satisfactory financing arrangement is being worked out.

Some of the less active utilities were buoyant, notably Stone and Webster, which rose more than 7 points to a new high for 1930. General American Tank, American Sumatra, Lackawanna, Continental Shares and Baldwin made fair gains.

Notable soft spots were Simmons and Gillette, which were again the targets for heavy selling. Extreme losses of about 6 and 5 points carried these shares to new lows for the movement. American and Foreign Power, Atchison, J. I. Case, Columbia Gas, Eastman Kodak, International Harvester, and Standard Gas were among shares losing 2 or 3 points. Johns Manville dropped 6. U. S. Steel, Radio and General Motors lost about a point each.

Cotton closed about $3 a bale lower, influenced by weakness in foreign markets, reports of slack textile business and rumors of cancellation of trade orders. Wheat rebounded from its early decline under the influence of bullish weather reports and revival of foreign buying, closing up about 1 1-2 cents. Corn firmed up in sympathy.

European foreign exchange rates held steady, failing to reflect the lower Bank of England rate, as the New York Reserve bank was expected to reduce its rate later in the day and maintain the relationship between the two money markets. Sterling cables closed at $4.86 1-2, up 1-16. The Latin American rates continued to sag.

Treasury Balace.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6—(AP)—Treasury receipts for Feb. 4 were: $8,897,032.87; expenditures $8,719,716.03; balance $88,193,481.22.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6—(AP)—Production of steel ingots during January, as computed by the American Iron & Steel Institute, totaled 3,756,818 tons and reflected the revival of activity in the industry since the first of the year. January production passed the November figure of 3,512,026 tons and the December figure of 2,886,369, but was considerably below the 4,511,650 tons produced in January of 1929. Operations averaged at 71.51 percent of rated mill capacity, compared to 59.07 in December, and 84.80 in January of last year.

Imports of gold at the port of New York for the week ending Feb. 5, totaled $1,654,000, of which $330,000 came from Argentina, $130,000 from Brazil, $1,046,000, from Colombia, $163,000 from Ecuador, and $37,000 from other Latin American countries. The amount of gold exported totaled $158,000. There was a net increase of $2,000,000 in the amount of gold earmarked for foreign account. Today's federal reserve bank report on the gold movement showed no imports, exports or net changes in earmarked metal.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 6—(AP)—Total sales on the New York Curb exchange crossed the million mark today for the third time this year, but prices backed up when heavy profit taking developed in some of the recent leaders, and new soft spots cropped out among some of the ordinarily inactive specialties.

There was a general disposition on the part of traders to sell stocks "on the good news" of a reduction in the Bank of England discount rate, which was followed after the market closed by a cut in the New York Federal Reserve rate.

In the absence of any adverse news developments, except for the further break in cotton to new low levels for the season, brokers were inclined to attribute the reaction to technical considerations within the market itself. One of the most interesting features of the day was the revival of speculative interest in some of the leading investment trust, holding and trading corporations, particularly Lehman corporation and Pennroad, the latter opening with a block of 10,000 shares.

Electric Bond & Share, the recent leader of the utility group, was heavy from the start, closing 2 1-8 points lower at 95 7-8, after having touched 99 yesterday. The stock sold as high as 189 and as low as 50 last year. American Superpower and Consolidated Gas of Baltimore lost about a point each and Duke Power dropped 3 on a few sales, but Allied Power & Light, International Superpower, Middle West Utilities and Standard Power & Light closed about 1 to 2 1-2 points higher.

Arkansas Natural Gas issues were turned over in large volume but showed little net change. American Natural Gas advanced 1 3-4. Southwest Gas Utilities yielded 1 3-8 despite reports that 1929 earnings, with December estimated, would run 35 percent above a year ago.

Oils were sluggish, Gulf dropping 2 5-8 and Vacuum 1 1-4. Cities Service, which is classed both as an oil and a public utility, improved fractionally on a fairly large turnover.

National Casket dropped 15 points and Deere & Co. (old stock) fell 10 to $15, or 35 points below the recent high. A. O. Smith fell 7 3-4. Motors showed an upward tendency. Franklin preferred jumping 5 points and Fiat receipts and Ford Motors Limited advancing about a point each.

The tenant discovered the fire and had an alarm sent in from Box 291, corner of Broad and Morgan streets. Deputy Chief Calvin Edmunds and four pieces of apparatus responded. When the firemen entered the house the fire, which originated from a defective chimney, had burned from the first floor to the second story, following along the chimney. A large quantity of chemicals was necessary to extinguish the fire, which caused damage of about $500.

It is believed that the awning was ignited by some one throwing a lighted cigarette from a window of a sleeping room on one of the upper floors of the building.

HABAREK FINED $200— LUCKY KORPAIZ GOES FREE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 6.—Boleslaw Habarek, 142 Winthrop street, and Witold Korpais were in the police court today, the former charged with keeping liquor in his possession for purpose of sale, while Korpais was charged with transporting. Habarek was fined $200 and costs, but the charge against Korpais was nolled. There was no evidence to show that the latter was guilty as charged, although there was no doubt in the mind of the court that Habarek had obtained his liquor through a delivery by Korpais. The Habarek residence has long been reputed to be a drinking resort. Last night, when Automobile Patrol Officer Augustus Ray and Patrolman George Perkins obtained evidence that Habarek had received a load of liquor, they went to the house and raided it. There the liquor was found, as were Habarek and Korpais. Both were arrested. In court there was not the slightest opportunity of Habarek escaping a penalty, but as witnesses were not obtainable to prove that Korpais delivered the liquor there was no other course for the court to take but to order a nolle in the case of the accused.

FARRELL MAY BE HANGED, BUT STATE GIVES HIM CHANCE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 6.—Linwood (Peanuts) Farrell, a colored youth of 17, residing on Schoolhouse lane, was in the police court this morning charged with murder in the first degree and was held for trial before the next criminal term of the superior court. Farrell has acknowledged inflicting the wound that caused the death of Jacob Waheman, Lithuanian, of 25 Shapley street, but, according to law, he cannot plead guilty to a crime where capital punishment is at stake, so he will be provided counsel and will attempt to escape the penalty of swinging by the neck until dead; for if he is proven guilty of the charge it means that the youth will be hanged, which method is used in this state in cases where capital punishment is imposed. William (Rattlesnake Pete) Franklin and Ernest Johnson, both colored and both residing on Hill street, were charged with being material witnesses, but they were freed today, the charges were nolled. From the start, Farrell has declared that Charles Williams, barge cook, was the attacker of Waheman. The youth declared that he followed Williams as the latter trailed the Lithuanian and observed Williams beat Waheman and then rifle his pockets. In relating the story, Farrell put Williams in his place for, by the boy's confession, he perpetrated just what he accused Williams of doing. A country-wide search was made for Williams and one Negro by that name was arrested in Pittsburgh, but it developed that he was not the man wanted. The day the police here were satisfied that the man under arrest in Pittsburgh was not the slayer of Waheman a more determined effort was started to obtain additional clues. The following day the three Negroes were brought to police headquarters from the county jail and after a grilling of five hours Farrell broke into tears and confessed. From the time of their arrest, Franklin and Johnson have professed ignorance of how Waheman came to his death, although they admitted being in the restaurant with the Lithuanian, but said that when the latter left they had remained in front of the restaurant.

GROTON ROUGH-HOUSE FROM DISPUTE OVER 25-CENT PIECE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 6.—Lee Perry of Center Groton and his housekeeper, Elsie Rathbun, were arrested last night charged with conducting a gambling house. Sergi Belnoeff and Thomas Nickerson, fishermen in the employ of the Portland Trawling Co., whose boats are frequently entering this port, were arrested on a charge of breach of the peace. All the arrests were the result of a murderous fight at Perry's home, over a dispute as to the owner of a 25-cent piece. After being locked up several hours, the three men and woman obtained a surety on their respective bonds and will be given a hearing in the Groton town court Monday next.

The trawler Loon entered port Tuesday and docked at the plant of the Atlantic Coast Fisheries, Groton. Last night, Belnoeff and Nickerson went to Perry's home and it is understood had been drinking. A poker game was started, with the fishermen Perry and his housekeeper the players. During the gambling the dispute over the 25-cent piece arose and during the quarrel, Belnoeff seized a piece of firewood and Nickerson pulled his knife from his pocket. Perry was attacked by both Belnoeff and Nickerson but did not get cut, for the Rathbun woman took a hand in the battle with the result that she was slashed on the wrist and the body, two ugly wounds being made, one of which was a deep one on her side. Perry received numerous blows on the head with the wood wielded by Belnoeff, but he was not rendered unconscious. After the fight had ended, Perry notified the state police and Officer John Smith went to Perry's house, where the three men and woman were arrested. While they were locked up, the wounds of Perry and the woman were dressed by a physician.

Search For Mrs. Laurie

The police of Springfield, Mass., have requested numerous police departments throughout the state to assist in making a search for Mrs. Myrtle Sands Laurie, who has been missing from her home, 19 Winthrop street, since Dec. 23, 1929. She is described as being 22, about five feet five inches in height, weighs about 150 pounds, of stocky build, light hair, blue eyes. When Mrs. Laurie disappeared from home she wore a black felt close fitting hat, light mixed gray coat, with fur collar, black dress and black low shoes and low galoshes.

FRAUD CHECK-PASSER WANTED IN TWO CITIES

The Springfield, Mass., police are seeking the arrest of a fraudulent check passer and have requested the various departments of the state to be on the lookout for the crook. He has issued worthless checks in Springfield, all drawn on the City Bank & Trust company, of Hartford. The crook presented checks made payable to Harry Pierce and were signed by S. F. Webster as the maker. At the bank it was said that Webster was not known to officials, neither did he ever have a checking account there. The check-passer is described as being about 25, about five feet, seven inches in height, weighs about 170 pounds and has light brown hair. He is also wanted in Palmer, Mass., on a similar charge and it is believed that the fraud is operating in various cities of New England.

Traffic Delay

On State street there was a tie-up of traffic this afternoon equal to that of any time last summer. A pleasure car became disabled near Main street about 5 o'clock, when traffic was at its height. There were innumerable autos behind the disabled car and before the tie-up could be relieved another auto was used to push the disabled one to a garage. The tie-up included pleasure automobiles, trucks, buses and trolley cars.

SOUSA'S BAND MEMBER PROPOSES NEW DRUM CORPS

Noank has a one-man band, who can play 14 different pieces of band music. John Bentley, known as Musical John, can play the drum, cornet and bass drum, all at once, a trick John learned when he was the drummer in Sousa's band about 40 years ago—the leading band in the world. "We traveled all over the United States and got a big hand in all the show houses and halls," he says. "Gee! talk about crowds! They were jammed in like sardines in a tin box! Never can I forget the time in a small town on the west coast. We were booked there on a certain day, but the train hit a pig that weighed as much as a circus horse, around 500 pounds. It shook a band player so hard that he put his foot through the bass drum and could not get it out. It took the train crew with force to move that foot. Gee! I lay down on the floor and laughed so much that I could not stop, and the people thought I had taken laughing gas! We came into the railroad station late, on account of the pig. We lined up and marched up the Main street. When the people heard the music they were coming from all the alleys and side streets. We came to the town hall where a sign over the door read, 'Welcome, Sousa's Band—The Best in the Land.' When the evening came to do our stuff, by 8 o'clock the crowd was going to the hall like soldiers to the World war, marching to the front. When our leader, Sousa, gave the signal a crowd of 22,000 was there to hear us. The doors were locked 20 minutes before the band let loose. Never will I forget one piece that the crowd sang: it was 'Put On Your Old Gray Bonnet.' We had to play half the night. The crowd went wild over the music and sure gave us an ovation like that Jack Dempsey used to get in his boxing days of 1923. We could have had anything in the town but the post office, for Uncle Sam owned that! The band members will never forget that town in the west where the people are so kind to strangers.

"After being in the band for several years I came to Westerly, R. I., to live and made friends and played in the band there for a while. When the Spanish American war broke out in 1898 I got in the army band as drummer and helped do my part in that war. It sure was a long way, across the pond to that island and I thought it would be the last war for me: but when Uncle Sam signed the papers to go and help out England and France for our ship was getting sunk for the World war, I was ready again and went with the Rhode Island National Guard to camp to train. But when the order came out that married men were to get the air, that was sad news to me! I wanted to go badly, being with the gang so much, they were all like brothers to me. I left them with tears in my eyes, and today if Uncle Sam wants me for another war I will be ready at a minute's notice!

"I came to the fishing village to live and in a short while joined Noank Brass band, one of the best in the state; but it got busted up some how, and now Noank is without a band for Memorial day."

One-Man-Band-Music Bentley was thinking, after hearing Andy and Amos over the radio on Tuesday night, that Noank needed a fife and drum corps. "We have the players in this town, and could have the best one around" he said. "Why can't we get together some night and form a drum corps? It is never too late to start something and we can make out all right! We have the players, but not the band. A few evenings a month and we can have a drum corps. I will help and do my part, so come on, you music boys! do your stuff and let them march behind the Noank new drum corps May 30! Run a cake sale and things like that to get suits. The old Noank band, when Freeman Rogers blew the cornet won many prizes all around this state and in Massachusetts. The way they got their start was by practice in the cellar of a band member's home, and with so much noise the pictures on the wall would hit the floor! Frank Freeman blew two buttons off his vest on the bass horn, he had so much wind—like an engine pulling away with 100 coal cars on behind! Today the picture of the old Noank band is at the community gas station. Many of the members are dead, but 23 were in the old band!"

This village has got about everything it wants, so let's try to form a drum corps, till the beat of the drums can be heard a mile away, coming down East Main street and the players in the latest West Point uniforms, with about 35 in the band!

Now, who is going to be the drum major of the new corps, soon going to get started.

After the one-man band had his talk to about 25 that crowded the cigar store on Elm street, he showed how to play a bass horn, a piano and a drum, all at the same time. He was giving a real band for that stunt. He also played two saxaphones at once—something never done before in this Indian town. If Sousa was here to see one of his pupils do those tricks, he would be back in the band. Bentley claims that when he was six and one-half years old he could play a violin and blow a cornet a little.

"Well, are we going to have the new band in the fishing village? If any one wants to get any dope on this new drum corps, call at my office, 908 Church street, any time after Andy and Amos talk to a million people. Noank has music boys, if they only get the pep to form the corps!"

EARLY-RISING BIRD HELPS LEGISLATION

LONDON—(AP)—A feathered alarm clock helps the British house of commons to get into action these days.

It is the Mexican parrot which daily awakens J. H. Hayes, labor whip and vice-chamberlain of the royal household.

The shrill-voiced bird was sent to him by a constituent without any wise-cracks about early rising, but the bird is always early.

"As whip, it is Hayes' duty to see that labor members are not slumbering or dining elsewhere when an important measure comes up for vote in the house.

An Ailing CHILD

Are you prepared to render first aid and quick comfort the moment your youngster has an upset of any sort? Could you do the right thing—immediately—though the emergency came without warning—perhaps tonight? Castoria is a mother's standby at such times. There is nothing like it in emergencies, and nothing better for everyday use. For a sudden attack of colic, or the gentle relief of constipation; to allay a feverish condition, or to soothe a fretful baby that can't sleep. This pure vegetable preparation is always ready to ease an ailing youngster. It is just as harmless as the recipe on the wrapper reads. If you see Chas. H. Fletcher's signature, it is genuine Castoria. It is harmless to the smallest infant; doctors will tell you so.

You can tell from the recipe on the wrapper how mild it is, and how good for little systems. But continue with Castoria until a child is grown.

The fourth annual open bridge whist tournament of the Westerly Square and Compass club, No. 174, National League of Masonic clubs, will be started in the club rooms in the Potter-Langworthy block Monday, Feb. 24th. So numerous have been the entries in this event in the past two years that the rooms of Westerly lodge, No. 768, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, adjoining the club rooms have been utilized, on the generous offer of the Elks, for at least the first two nights of play, or until a sufficient number of teams have been eliminated to permit the tables to be set in the Square and Compass club rooms. The event is open to bridge players in Washington and New London counties generally, and in past years numerous teams have entered from Stonington, Mystic, Groton, New London, Conn., Bradford, Hope Valley and Charlestown, R. THE FARMER'S TALK TO FARMERS

THE EXAMPLE OF MICHAEL HIRAK

(Written Specially for The Bulletin.)

Michael Hirak was a Polander. He worked from 1917 to 1927 in the oil fields near Beaumont, Texas; after that for two years on a railroad job near Kansas City.

He was paid $102.70 a month while in the oil fields. He was paid $100 a month while railroading. So far as known he had no other source of income. He was killed in 1929 by an explosion, and the public administrator had to take charge of his effects as he left no direct heirs.

This official found that Michael Hirak, poor Polish immigrant, working as a laborer at from $100 to $102.70 a month, had accumulated, during the 12 years between 1917 and 1929, $20,000 in cash and an $8,000 life insurance policy.

Such information as could be obtained about his habits indicated that Michael Hirak had been so economical as to warrant the word "miserly." He lived in a "shack" with only the simplest furniture. He did his own cooking and washing. He mended his own clothes and boots. He neither drank nor smoked nor paid dues to any lodge or union.

He was a faithful and competent workman. He earned his wages. That was all his employers asked or thought about him. That was, probably, all we should any of us have known about him, had not the public administrator, in the course of his usually formal proceedings, uncovered some highly interesting papers in the dead man's scanty effects.

First he came upon a couple of bank-books accounting for about $3,000. Then he came on a life insurance policy, paid up to date, for $8,000. Lastly, he dug out receipts for drafts aggregating $17,000, which Michael Hirak had sent to his mother in Poland. The life insurance, also, was made out in that mother's favor, and will be paid over to her.

Now this story of poor Michael Hirak seems to me to suggest either 12 or 39 or 339 reflections, I'm not sure which. Some have occurred to me; some will doubtless occur to you; and some, different still, will perhaps occure to other readers.

Let's consider, this morning, just three which are simply bubbling over each other in the none-too-deep stewpan of my brains, in their hot anxiety to get into words.

First, consider the way in which Michael Hirak must have lived during those 12 years from 1917 to 1929, to save $20,000 in cash and keep up an $8,000 insurance policy while doing it. He could have spent almost nothing on himself for anything in the line of comforts. He seems to have maintained good health. There is no record of any illness nor of any absence from work because of illness. But, beyond the simplest necessities of mere existence, he cannot have used a single penny. He just lived, and worked, and saved. That was all.

And that, according to our American standards of thought, is not really living. It is simply existing and enduring.

If we had known Michael Hirak, during his years of work and saving, had poked our noses into his almost empty hut and noted the more than Spartan simplicity of its crude fittings, had sniffed at both the quality and the quantity of his daily food,—we should, unquestionably, have set him down as a half-witted miser, thinking of nothing but money, money, money.

But, now that he has been put beyond all power of further working and saving, and we have learned what use he put his savings to, a second reflection starts up and demands sympathetic consideration.

Practically all those scrimped-together dollars had been sent to his mother in far-away Poland. His life insurance policy was made out in her favor. The smaller sums to his credit in various banks also go to that mother.

Now, when a man scrimps and scrapes and saves cheese-parings and goes without not only the comforts but what we regard as the decencies of life, just for the sake of accumulating money, I've got no objection to your calling him a miser and a tightwad and a skin-flint, or any other opprobrious names you can think of.

But when he saves, not for himself, not from any lust for money, not solely to see his wealth grow, but in order to send the very last cent he can get hold of to—his—mother, in the old home of his boyhood, then you'd better not call him names in my presence. Not so long as I can get hold of a brick-bat or a poker.

I know absolutely nothing about Michael Hirak except the facts which the Kansas public administrator has dug out, since his death. But it is reasonable to assume that he had about the same liking for comfort and the same craving for pleasure and the same capacity for enjoying the good things of life which we all have. He was still a young man, only 44, when his candle was snuffed out. He would have been only 32 when he began to save his money for that widowed old mother in the Polish home. While $102.70 a month can hardly be called a princely wage, it was enough to insure him many a "good time with the boys,"—or girls. Or, if saved solely for himself, it might very well have proved the nest-egg around which a real American fortune should gather.

But Michael Hirak deliberately, persistently, steadily, turned all such considerations down, put them behind him, and took up the joyless, lonely task of saving practically all his income for his mother. He carried it on for at least 12 gripping years of personal sacrifice and uncomplainingly borne hardships. How much longer he might have kept it up, had death spared him, we can only surmise.

I have known young men with incomes comparable to Michael Hirak's who not only thought they couldn't save money on them, who even maintained that they couldn't live on them.

When you figure it out to the last fraction, you'll see that whether a man saves his small income or wastes his big one, is all dependent on the inducement which moves him. Seems to me the inducement behind Michael Hirak's scrimping was one which lifts his conduct above any charge of miserliness and makes it near holy,—if the enfranchised young generation will permit me the use of such an unfashionable word.

Which brings me, naturally, to the third reflection, which is that economy, frugality, thrift,—it matters little what name you give the habit,—is not dependent on the amount received but is governed by the amount spent.

It is perfectly possible to save on a dollar a day,—if the will to save is potent enough. It is just as possible, and a good deal easier, to spend $100 a day and find it too little,—if the desire to spend is only active enough.

Thrift is not dependent upon income, but solely upon outgo. For one, I simply can't understand how Michael Hirak was able to live on so small and save so large a share of his income. But I am not required to understand the how of it. He proved that it can be done, for he did it. And the accomplished fact is an irrefutable argument. You can't get away from it.

Would you or I be willing to live for 12 years as this poor immigrant did? Well, I can't speak for you, but I own up right off the bat that I should not. I'm too selfish, and too ease-loving, and too weak-willed. You can speak for yourselves. But, whatever we say or do in no whit alters the immutable fact that—it—can—be—done, if only the inducement is great enough. What that inducement was, in Michael Hirak's case, seems evident.

To his fellow-workmen, who must have known something about his habits, he probably seemed an unsocial, grumpy, penny-pinching old miser. I wonder how he looked to the truer-eyed angels who stand forever before the Seat of Infinite Justice? I wonder what would be the witness before that bar of the old mother for whose sake he denied himself all that, to most of us makes life worth living? I wonder how our smug self-satisfaction would weigh in righteous scales against his stern self-denial?

I wonder if, instead of complaining because of our lack of opportunities, we wouldn't do better to repent in sackcloth and ashes for our wastages and prodigalities?

Most of us spend our time protesting that we "can't" do this, that, or the other thing, though there are mighty few things beyond lifting ourselves by pulling up on our boot-straps which we "can't" do. Said the old man to the young one: "Everything comes to him who waits." Responded Young Smarty, "Humph, how long 'd a fellow have to wait to carry water in a sieve?" "Till the sieve froze over," calmly answered the ancient.—Or else we go about proclaiming that we "must" have this, that or the other thing. When the stubborn fact is that beyond air and water and food there are mighty few things we "must" have.

It isn't what we think we "can't" do or what we think we "must" have that is of vital importance. These are merely the frills and fal-lals of life. They are the counterfeit bills with which we attempt to pay ourselves our own wages. They are the self-administered functions with which we seek to pardon our own shortcomings.

I am not informed definitely, whether Michael Hirak's soul is now in Paradise or Purgatory. But, on general principles, in the words of John Hay's river-pilot, I'd rather take my chances alongside of him than with some other sons I have heard of, who forget they ever had a mother, when their own appetites or desires make demands.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 6—(P)—Responding to expectations of easier money, the bond market made another general advance today in the most active session of the year. News of the Bank of England's rate reduction was taken as an indication that the local federal reserve bank might also make a downward revision—as proved to be the case—and the market proceeded rather vigorously.

United States governments had little difficulty in moving broadly higher. The Treasury 4 1-2s improved 3-4 of a point, the 3 3-8s of 1943-47 gained 15-32 and the 4s advanced 17-32. Rises in the Liberties were somewhat smaller.

Domestic issues of high grade, especially the rails, had good support, and this trend, together with the rise of the government securities, was regarded as a significant turn in the market which has been idling for several weeks under the pressure of new financing. Great Northern 7s, Kansas City Southern 5s, Atchison General 4s, Missouri Kansas Texas prior lien 4s, New York Central 4s, First 4s, and Southern Railway General 4s, as well as numerous secondary obligations, were accumulated in some volume.

The more active industrials and utilities included American Telephone 5s of 1965, Sinclair Pipe Line 5s, Louisville Gas & Electric 5s, International Telephone 5s, and Midvale Steel 5 1-2s, all of which worked higher.

There was less activity in the foreign list, although several prominent loans turned over in lively fashion. French Republic 7 1-2s were heavily traded, selling off 1-4 in a turnover of about $400,000, principal amount. Chile 6s (March) Italy 7s and Japanese 6s were other centers of interest. The German Republic 7s rose half a point.

Convertibles had a dull and irregular session. American Telephone 4 1-2s regained a point of a two point loss, closing at 149. American I. G. Chemical 5 1-2s rose 1-2, while International Telephone 4 1-2s eased.

New offerings scheduled for tomorrow embrace another railroad loan. A syndicate is selling $15,000,000 in Louisville & Nashville First and Refunding 4 1-2s, due 2003, at 95, and $5,000,000 in the same road's unified 4s, due 1940, at 94 1-2.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Feb. 6—(P)—Big buying for previous speculative sellers turned wheat future deliveries sharply upward today after the market had dived below bottom price records for the season. The sudden switching wholesale to the buying side of the market appeared to be more or less due to correct belief that definite steps toward establishment of a wheat stabilization corporation would speedily be announced.

A stimulating factor was that any losses of the proposed corporation could be met by federal farm board funds and not by assessments on stockholders of the stabilization corporation.

Chicago closing prices today for wheat were firm, 1 1-8c to 1 7-8c a bushel higher than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1-4 a 3-8c to 5-8c up, oats 1-8c to 1-2c advanced, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 12c.

Bulging of wheat values in the late dealings here today went hand in hand not only with greatly broadened speculative demand but also with quick development of a dearth of future delivery offerings. Houses with eastern connections were prominent in this buying, which received special impetus from reports of notable widening out of domestic milling purchases of wheat here. Preceding these developments, however, there had been an early rush of selling that was associated with sharp setbacks in Liverpool wheat quotations and with 4 1-2s a bushel break in the rye market at Hamburg.

Authoritative estimates that world import requirements of wheat during the next six months will be 14,000,000 bushels a week were given particular attention here today, and did a good deal to offset Liverpool advices that Russian wheat offerings are increasing. Latest dispatches current were to the effect that Russia is endeavoring to arrange foreign bank credits based on offers of 360,000 tons of export wheat. Assertions, though, from usually well informed sources indicated meanwhile that Russia has no grain of consequence to spare but needs cash for machinery. Export business in North American wheat today amounted to about 500,000 bushels.

Corn and oats paralleled the action of wheat. Some buying of corn was due to Peoria advices that movement of the corn crop is likely to be disappointing, and that country roads are breaking up fast.

Provisions rose on account of commission house buying of lard and because of upturns in the value of hogs.

Three Mothers Agree

When mother is tired, nervous or ill the whole home is upset. For her family's sake, every mother wants to be well and strong. These three women tell how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helps them to care for their families.

Mrs. H. Dolhonde,
6318 York St.,
New Orleans, Louisiana

"Before my last baby was born, I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I got such good results that I named her Catherine Lydia. I have six older children and five grandchildren, too. I am now taking the Vegetable Compound again because of my age. I eat and sleep better and I do all my housework, and my washing. I will do my best to answer letters."

Mrs. Harold Goodnow
36 Cane St.,
Fitchburg, Massachusetts

"I cannot praise your medicine enough. After my baby came I was rundown. I had to go to bed often through the day. I took three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I felt like a different woman. If any mother has those tired feelings I advise her to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

Mrs. Lloyd R. Blasing,
115 So. Ohio St.,
Anaheim, California

"After my baby came I was so nervous and tired that I felt miserable. One day a booklet was left at our door and after reading it I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I am now on my fourth bottle and I feel much stronger. It has helped me in every way and I feel sure that other women in rundown condition will pick up if they will only take a few bottles."

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre.

Today will be your last chance to see the greatest of all musical comedies, entirely in technicolor, with the marvelous Marilyn Miller as Sally, the part Miss Miller played for two whole years on Broadway in Ziegfeld' stage play of the same name. Miss Miller is supported with the greatest cast ever assembled in one picture, and more than half of the people of the city have seen this wonderful show and many twice. Starting tomorrow for the next four days, the greatest of all Van Dine's murder cases will be showing.

For those of our moving-going public who prefer a good, scary, hair-raising mystery drama to a romance, any old day, there is a treat in store at the Palace theatre, where Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is presenting an adaptation of S. S. Van Dine's popular thriller, "The Bishop Murder Case."

The new all-talking mystery film has all the requisites for giving its audience creeps and shivers, including an auspicious opening in which a man is found with an arrow through his heart after which the three men whom you most easily suspect as being implicated in the crime are also made off with, which lets them out.

Who did do the killing is of course finally revealed but the film has been so effectively put together and its sequences built up that when the denouement comes in the final reel, it is quite logically carried out and the audience does not feel that something has been put over on it.

The directors have assembled a great cast for this unusual picture, including Basil Rathbone, Leila Hyams, Roland Young, Alec B. Francis and Zelda Sears. This great thriller starts tomorrow and runs for four days at the Palace.

This picture is by far the best of the movie thrillers that has come out of Hollywood, to the immense satisfaction of those whose greatest pleasure is having chills run up the spinal column.

Broadway Theatre.

Picture fans have a wide choice in the marvelous double feature program which has its final showing at the Broadway today, with William Powell, Fay Wray, Hal Skelley and Kay Francis in "Behind the Make-Up," a thrilling comedy drama of backstage life, and "Hell's Heroes," with Charles Bickford, Fred Kohler and Raymond Hatton, an exciting film version of Peter B. Kyne's he-man western story, "The Three Godfathers."

Beginning tomorrow, program C in the Broadway's "Greater Entertainment Month" lineup features "The Kibitzer," with Harry Green, the inimitable Hebrew dialect comedian of "Close Harmony" in the title role. A kibitzer is anyone of a thousand people you can name, who call always "call a shot" after it's made and Harry Green is sidesplitting funny in his character as the little cigar storekeeper whose cronies stage a nightly pinochle game in the back room. Excited by the rising market he has a ticker installed in the store and the neighborhood goes crazy. Mary Brian is the charming "kibitzer's" daughter, with Neil Hamilton, David Newell, Albert Gran and a host of favorites in the cast. The surrounding bill is built for comedy and laughs, with Buster West and his "gal friends" in "The Dancing Gob," a feature comedy, Bobby Arnst and Peggy Ellis, two charming "Follies" and "Affairs" girls in a fast act, Long and Healy in "Who's Who," a rapid crossfire, Horace Heidt and his snappy Californians, a singing and dancing band, and the latest Paramount sound news, featuring the recent glider flights from the dirigible Los Angeles, and Chief Justice Taft's last public appearance with other timely topics.

Richard Halliburton

During the past season Richard Halliburton appeared before audiences in nearly 100 leading American cities from coast to coast. Not only were his audiences delighted but local committees found Mr. Hilliburton a real box office attraction.

Excerpts from recent committees reports are quoted:

Reports from the secretary of the Chicago League of Women Voters show that the Halliburton lecture at Orchestra hall drew a house of approximately $3,500, and that the speaker made a wonderful impression with the large audience.

Charles M. McLean, treasurer of the World Celebrity Series at Dayton, Ohio, writes: "Halliburton drew the crowd. He is undoubtedly the direct cause of the success of our series. He can say of Dayton: 'Veni, Vidi, Vici.' Our auditorium was filled to capacity and I believe there were more people present than had ever attended a civic lecture in the city of Dayton."

Mrs. William B. Thompson writes from Canton, Ohio: "We did not solicit the sale of a single ticket, yet we had 800 people at the lecture. It was good—and beautifully delivered. He is most gracious and obliging and we are all delighted to have had him."

Mr. Halliburton is to speak here on the evening of Feb. 12, at Slater hall, under auspices of Norwich College club.

Physicians-Surgeons Exchange.

Believing that their services may more quickly be secured by joining an exchange sixteen Norwich physicians and surgeons have arranged with the Sunshine Maternity hospital to conduct a Physicians-Surgeons exchange.

The method used in this exchange is of great benefit to the patients of the physicians. This exchange operates as follows: Day or night after a call to the home or office of a physician fails to bring an answer, the person desirous of securing the physician should call 1441. This exchange is at all times in contact with the doctors and relays the call directly to them. By this exchange it is believed that quicker service may me secured. See advertisement in this paper.

Connecticut College Concert.

To bring a great symphony orchestra to city of 30,000 is of itself a real accomplishment, yet when the Cleveland orchestra has given its concerts in New London, February 12, Connecticut college will have done it eight times, and with the afternoon and evening concerts will have made possible to its students and faculty, together with anyone living in New London and vicinity, nine symphony concerts of the highest character.

It is often said that New London is not musical. If this were wholly true, these concerts could not have been offered year after year, as well as other concerts also on the highest plane of excellence.

Out of all these concerts which the college has sponsored, there has been only one the artistic excellence of which could be assailed with justice. The college may well be proud of this record.

Last year the Cleveland orchestra was not very well known in New London, but all that is changed now, and we know this organization to be one of the finest anywhere in the country, and the public will in all probability respond to it as much.

See Norwich First

How do you think it would look to see Norwich named as among the first of all the cities of her size in a great forward movement?

Well, there is no greater movement on foot today than this same Boy Scout movement. World-wide things of unparalleled scope and unprecedented importance are to be done in the next few years in business and in politics.

But none of these things is more important than the seed of boy character sown and cultivated by scouting that will blossom in the man character and conduct of tomorrow.

How To Make Norwich First

The local council has now 461 Boy Scouts.

To add 500 is to more than double our present enrollment. It means about 105 per cent increase.

The local council wants those 500 boys as scouts.

That this council will pick 38 more as a result of this campaign beyond the 500 now promised is a conservative estimate.

Then there will be 1,000 Boy Scouts.

Recall now all the evidence presented in these articles as to what it means for a boy to be a scout.

Think of the trail of the scout in his work, his games, how "motor-minded" boy deeds, in the school with more intensity of study, in the home with more courtesy and helpfulness, in the Sunday school with more devotion and earnestness of understanding.

Then multiply that by 100 and you see Norwich's opportunity.

One thousand scouts in the eastern Connecticut council adequately supported.

That is Norwich's minimum quota in this campaign.

It will take human effort and financial support.

The local council has already arranged for the effort.

Norwich citizens will give the money.

One thousand scouts for Norwich—now.

MONTVILLE

The annual meeting of the Montville Community Library association was held Monday evening in the library at 8 o'clock. Following is the librarian's report: 267 names registered on the books Feb. 1, 1930, of which 69 are recent subscribers; books added, 104; total number of books, 2,027; circulation during the year, 2,506; largest number of books loaned in one month, 424, in April; smallest number of books loaned in one month, 214, in September; additional books, 34 volumes from the state, 185 from Robert C. Burchard, and Ernest Moss, 35 books. Mrs. Wells W. Lyman, treasurer, reported as follows: Light, $13; insurance, $10.45; wood, $5; library $100; total $128.45. This amount was paid from a dance and contributions of $25 from the Robert Gair Co., and $10 from the Connecticut Light & Power Co. Home; secretary and librarian, Mrs. Harriet Furber; treasurer, Mrs. Gladys Lyman; trustees, A. J. Huggard, George H. Bradford, Dan D. Home, Wells W. DROWNED IN BATHTUB WHEN SEIZED WITH HEART ATTACK AT HIS HOME

Seized with a heart attack while in the bathtub at his home, No. 160 Central avenue, in the Greeneville section of the city, Justin Zacher, 46, proprietor of a grocery store at the corner of Central avenue and Third street, was accidentally drowned late Thursday afternoon. His body was found by his wife about 5 o'clock. Cause of death was given as accidental drowning as a result of a heart attack, according to Medical Examiner Dr. C. C. Gildersleeve, who was summoned.

Mr. Zacher had been at the store the greater part of the day and about 2:15 o'clock in the afternoon he left for his home, leaving his wife to attend to the trade. It was said that he had been complaining of a severe cold the past few days and evidently had taken a hot-water bath in an attempt to seek relief from it. The water was still warm in the tub when his body was discovered about 5 o'clock.

Fearing that something was amiss with her husband as he informed her that he would soon return to the store, Mrs. Zacher went to the house and found her husband's lifeless body. His body was in a reclining position with his hand still holding a towel and the tub two-thirds filled with water. There was no evidence of a struggle, the body resting on its left side. No one else was in the house at the time of the accident.

Upon finding her husband's body Mrs. Zacher communicated with Dr. Paul F. Gadle, who, in turn, notified Medical Examiner Gildersleeve and Coroner Edward G. McKay was called. The physicians and coroner were all of the opinion that death was due to accidental drowning following a heart attack. It was the belief of the medical examiner that Mr. Zacher was seized with the attack while bathing and fell over into the water, absorbing it until life was extinct.

Mr. Zacher, who was a native of Poland and was a resident of Greeneville for the past 15 years, is survived by his widow, two daughters, Miss Mary Zacher, who lives at home and Mrs. Arthur Hansley of New Haven and a sister, Mrs. Bridget Zacher of 162 Central avenue.

The body was taken in charge by Undertaker Woljkowski upon permission of Medical Examiner Gildersleeve.

COLLECTOR CHARBONNEAU GIVES TALK ON INCOME TAX

The income tax law was the subject of an interesting talk given by George M. Charbonneau, collector of internal revenue, at the weekly meeting of the Norwich Lions club at the Wauregan hotel Thursday noon. President Charles W. Cassidy presided at the meeting and Joseph Panek was the song leader.

Mr. Charbonneau brought out a number of interesting points relative to the income tax law and the filing of income tax returns. In opening his talk he made mention of the fact that the income tax law became constitutional with the passing of the 16th amendment on March 1, 1913. Mr. Charbonneau also brought out the fact that as a result of a recent act of congress the rate of tax is now one half of one per cent on incomes up to and including $4,000 and 2 per cent on incomes over $4,000.

The speaker said that while matters of returns filed here and elsewhere were purely confidential, there are men in Norwich who are paying on incomes as large as will be found in any other sections of the state. Mention was made of the fact that income tax returns must be filed before March 15. Mr. Charbonneau urged the filing of returns as soon as possible, making mention of the fact that everyone benefits by an early return. He brought out numerous other interesting points and with the conclusion of his talk answered a number of questions. It was the unanimous opinion of the Lions that his talk was one of the most interesting and educational ever heard by the club.

The five-minute speaker was Louis Fontaine whose subject was How to Keep Young. President Cassidy and Joseph R. French spoke briefly of the coming financial campaign of the Boy Scouts and urged the members to support the drive. Max Hanover, who has been convalescing from a recent illness at the home of relatives in New York, was given a hearty welcome back by the club members.

SHANTOK FORT SITE PURCHASED FOR PARK

An addition of 30 acres, which includes the site of Fort Shantok, has been secured for Shantok park on the Thames river in the town of Montville by the state park and forest commission, which has bought the farm from Mrs. Orn which adjoins the present boundary of Shantok park on the north.

The ruins of the old Indian fort on top of a hill are to be found in this tract thus ading a piece of land of considerable historic interest to the Shantok park preserves. The British helped the Indians build this fort, and, according to those familiar with Indian history, this tract of land, along the banks of the Thames river in the Mohegan section of the town of Montville was the scene of more Indian tribal battles than any other point in New England.

Announcement of the purchase was made at the meeting of the state park and forest commission in Hartford Thursday. At the same time it announced the purchase of two other parcels, consisting of Squantz Pond in New Fairfield and one at Indian Well in Shelton.

SEEKS INJUNCTION ON OLD LYME BEACH PROPERTY

Seeking an injunction and damages of $2,000, suit has been brought in the superior court against Harry H. Spencer of West Hartford by Herbert W. and Georgia M. Coburn, both of Hartford. The litigants are owners of adjoining property at Howard Beach, Old Lyme, and the suit is brought in this county, having been filed with Court Clerk John H. Walker.

The charge is made that the defendant, Spencer, has caused to be erected a fence on the northeasterly portion of the land owned by the Coburns, thus depriving them of the use and enjoyment of their land and of the land adjacent thereto. The injunction is sought to restrain the defendant, his servants and agents, from in any way interfering with the use and occupation of the land and premises of the Coburns, from continuing their trespass on the land, and compelling Spencer to remove the fence.

NORWICH TOWN

The community was saddened Thursday upon learning of the death Wednesday, of John Dunderdale, of Harland road. A young man whose life was full of promise and his influence and companionship so much needed in the home, where there is a mother whose sight is seriously impaired, all feel that his passing is doubly sad. For seven years he was associated with his father, the late Robert Dunderdale in the store at Backus hospital corner, continuing to carry on the business for some time after the father's death. When at this location he made many acquaintances and all were his friends, for he was ever courteous and obliging to patrons. Not having been a strong child when quite young, after he had grown to manhood, he had been obliged to spend several winters in the south in the interests of his health. He was a devoted son and brother and the sympathy of the town has been manifested for his bereaved relatives.

The leader of Home chapter, of the King's Daughters, Mrs. William E. Manning, has made plans to have the February meeting Monday afternoon at the Johnson home, a sort of patriotic observance in honor of Abraham Lincoln. A special program will be carried out and all members are expected to be prepared with a quotation from Lincoln when called upon by the leader.

Many expressions of sorrow are heard from people in all walks of life in regard to the sudden death of Rev. William A. Keefe, of Greeneville. Rev. Father Keefe, who was a brilliant orator, was greatly admired and beloved by many Norwich Town residents. His broadminded vision, culture and liberal characteristics, impressed all who knew him and he will be greatly missed as a citizen of Norwich. He was a man among men, and could always fit himself in any place, at any time, to cope with whatever conditions might arise.

When Social Corner club No. 5 held its February meeting Wednesday at Buckingham Memorial, those in charge of the tempting dinner served at noon comprised several Corner members from Norwich Town. Mrs. Arthur Fulton was hostess and her assistants were Mrs. William Weaver, Mrs. Charles Beaver, Mrs. Louis Smith, Mrs. Andrew G. Gardner and Miss Beulah Rogers. Rev. George Warren Potter, of Norwich Town, who was a special guest, said grace, after which one stanza of Blest Be The Tie That Binds was sung, with Miss Florence Hoffman accompanying at the piano. Dr. Charles H. Lamb led the singing, after all had bowed in silent prayer for one minute for two deceased members. Upon invitation of Mrs. Harvey, general hostess for Club 5, Dr. Lamb entertained with a group of songs. Mrs. Weaver, one of the original members of the Social Corner when it was organized, and a member of Club No. 1, of Willimantic, is to be hostess to Norwich Club No. 5, when it holds its anniversary meeting at the Buckingham in March.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fulton, accompanied by Wil n Burdick, of Norwich Town, were in Voluntown Thursday, to attend the funeral of Mrs. Flora J. Kinnie, at the Methodist church.

Tuesday night, Rev. George Warren Potter, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, attended a pancake supper served by the Boys' club of Goshen Congregational church as the guest of Rev. Howard Bushnell. Following the supper Rev. Mr. Potter gave a talk on Boy Scout work and led in some scout games.

"Scouts of the Nations"

Sunday evening in the Temple of the Methodist Episcopal church there will be held a special service to celebrate the 20th anniversary of the Boy Scouts in America. The pastor, Rev. George Warren Potter, is arranging for a pageant entitled, "Scouts of the Nations," with the assistance of 14 Boy Scouts, members of Troop 2 of which he is scoutmaster. The music for the pageant will be in charge of the director of the Junior choir, Mrs Lewis E. Aldrich. The pastor will deliver a brief address on the subject of Boy Scouts. The service will begin at 7:30 and all parents and friends of Boy Scouts have been extended an invitation to attend.

TOTAL LOSS BY FIRE AT BACHELOR RESIDENCE AT NORWICH TOWN

Flames, believed to have originated from an overheated hot air furnace, made a practical total loss of the wooden frame residence at No. 22 East Town street, owned by Miss Clementine C. Bachelor, Thursday afternoon. Mrs. C. P. Lane, 94, blind and an invalid, was carried from the burning house and taken to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Worth, across the street.

Charles Pierce of Trading Cove, who looked after the furnace, started a fresh fire in the furnace, early Thursday afternoon. Shortly before 2 o'clock occupants of the house detected the odor of smoke. Miss Mary M. Bachelor, who was home at the time, went down cellar to investigate but found everything apparently all right. Miss Bachelor looked at the furnace, the cold air box and examined the hot air pipes but at that time there was no sign of fire. Miss Bachelor then made a second visit to the cellar but found nothing wrong with the furnace.

Immediately after this the house started to fill with smoke and Miss Bachelor hurriedly called the fire department for help. In the meantime, the fire had been noticed by neighbors and a maid in the employ of Mrs. Worth ran into the street and stopped a Yantic trolley car. Conductor Steve Hoffman, Frank Falconer and one or two others went into the burning house to rescue Mrs. Lane. Deputy Chief Dennis J. Brennan, who had arrived on the scene, also went to the second story room where Mrs. Lane was and she was carried down the stairs and to safety, finding refuge in the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Worth.

At the time the telephone call was received at the central fire station, 2:15 o'clock, Engine No. 3, Chief Henry R. Taft and Deputy Chief Brennan were out on a fire call that had come in five minutes earlier for a blazing automobile at the residence of Dr. Ernest J. Jones on Bliss place. The machine caught fire while Miss Jones was starting it and she immediately called fire headquarters for help. After sending in the call she threw a pail of water under the hood of the machine and the blaze was out when the firemen arrived.

It was while returning from this call that Deputy Chief Brennan met Squad A on the way to the fire at the Bachelor house, Engine No. 3, Chief Taft and Deputy Chief Brennan immediately went to the East Town street fire and the central fire station called out the Yantic apparatus by phone.

The fire had a tremendous start, owing to the fact that there was a large quantity of old shingles and cord wood in the cellar, which caught fire. The flames shot up through the building, which was in a few moments a mass of fire.

The Yantic apparatus and Engine No. 3 were put to work pumping from hydrants, one at Peck's corner and the other at Huntington lane. These were the two nearest hydrants, there being no hydrant in the immediate vicinity of the fire. In all, 1,500 feet or more of hose had to be laid to get water on the flames.

The cellar was a roaring furnace and the heat in the house was so intense and the smoke so heavy that it was impossible for the firemen to get into the structure for some time. By 4 o'clock the flames were under control but all that was left of the house was a skeleton frame. All of the contents, including antiques, valued paintings and pictures, were totally destroyed.

It was about 8:30 o'clock before the Yantic company left the scene for the night. While the firemen were fighting the blaze in the bitter cold weather, Herbert L. Yerrington and other neighbors provided hot coffee for the men, which was greatly appreciated.

The house, between 90 and 100 years old, was one of the landmarks of the town and has been owned by the Bachelor family for many years. The members of the family, Thomas Bachelor, who was not at home at the time the fire broke out, Miss Mary M. Bachelor, Mrs. Lane and the latter's nurse, found refuge for the night in the home of neighbors. The loss on buildings and contents is estimated at around $10,000, partially covered by insurance. The nurse lost all her clothing except what she was wearing when she escaped from the building.

The house was originally the Potter place and stood on what is known as the Tracy lot. Miss Clementine C. Bachelor is in New York.

Wets and Drys On Both Sides of the Chamber Cheered and Shook the Hand of Rep. Beck, Republican, as He Concluded His Denouncement of the Dry Law—Had Declared That the Law Has Developed Hypocrisy That is "Eating Away the Moral Fibre of the American People"—Predicts Destruction of the Republican Party If It Continues to "Sell Its Soul to the Fanatical Drys."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7—(AP)—Arraigning prohibition before a crowded house, Representative Beck of Pennsylvania today predicted destruction of the republican patry if it continued to lend itself to the dry cause. He also declared the constitution did not compel enforcement of the 18th amendment.

Wets and drys alike on both sides of the chamber stood up and cheered after the Pennsylvania republican, a recognized authority on constitutional law, concluded his speech of an hour and five minutes that overshadowed all the developments in the prohibition controversy in the capital today.

Talking almost casually as a rule but at times with intensity, and keeping close to the thought of a prepared address, the former solicitor general of the United States held the close attention of his audience. The galleries were thronged, the majority being fashionably dressed women. Nearly every member of the house was on the floor, and none made an effort to interrupt.

Beck discussed phases of the law enforcement commission's recommendations to strengthen dry enforcement, and the speech made a week ago by Representative Fort, republican, New Jersey, in which home brew for consumption was advocated.

Referring to the commission's report, he said that the collective experience of the past and the time-honored traditions of the English-speaking people "constitute damning indictment of the 18th amendment."

He contended Representative Fort would have every householder a vintner and every cellar a brewery, and added: "I believe that the greatest evil of our age has been the destruction of the home!"

Although the house completed general debate on the Williamson bill to transfer prohibition enforcement from the treasury to the justice department, and a house judiciary sub-committee concluded hearings on bills to broaden the powers of United States commissioners to relieve federal court congestion, interest centered in Beck's remarks.

Before the judiciary committee, Roscoe Pound, of the law enforcement commission, suggested that the Volstead and Jones acts might be rewritten to prevent district attorneys from threatening dry violators with more drastic punishment unless they entered guilty pleas.

The Harvard Law school dean explained and advocated the proposal of the commission to allow United States commissioners to try casual or minor offenders of the dry law. He denied this would be unconstitutional.

Representative Beck read from the Bible an indictment of hypocrisy, saying he commended "these quotations from the twenty-third chapter of St. Matthew to that illustrious cleric from Virginia on which to base a sermon."

Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, is a militant prohibitionist and campaigned in Virginia against Alfred E. Smith in the last presidential election. Not mentioning any names, Beck added:

"If the bishop would only get the spirit of those passages, he would moderate his activity."

The Pennsylvanian declared that prohibition had organized the country upon a vast scale of collective hypocrisy, which was destroying the moral fibre of the American people like a cancer.

"The republican party," he said, "cannot longer afford to sell its soul to the fanatical drys."

If it does, he added, it would die as the whig party expired over the fugitive slave law in 1860.

Although he asserted he did not expect to live to see the repeal of the 18th amendment, Beck said: "Fortunately, the American people are not so impotent that they cannot undo this gigantic folly."

The amendment, he said, is not self-enforcing. The means of enforcing the statute, he continued, and the duty of enforcing it rests in the political discretion of congress. He added that fleeting majoritie sshould not deprive each generation of its right to govern itself.

"When the American people thus recognize that the non-exercise of a power is not necessarily a challenge to the constitution," he explained, "they will in due time wholly sweep away that monstrous compound of inequity and folly, the Volstead law, and upon its ruins build afresh."

At the conclusion of his address, Beck said he had been threatened in a letter that if he delivered the speech he would lose his seat in the house.

"My fellow members of congress," he aded, "when the time comes that in a great fundamental, moral problem like this I compromise my convictions to save my seat in congress, may my right hand forget her cunning and my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth."

For several minutes after he had concluded his remarks wets and drys of both parties gathered around to shake his hand. He had to leave the chamber before the house could resume consideration of the Williamson bill.

Although the passage of the transfer measure by tomorrow is expected, efforts are to be made to eliminate the provision that would make the attorney general and the secretary of the treasury jointly responsible for the issuing of industrial alcohol permits. Some wets and drys are opposed to it, while others approve the provision.

Representatives Stobbs, republican, Massachusetts, late today introduced a bill to provide that the maximum penalty for casual offenders of the prohibition law would be a fine of $500 and not more than six months in jail, or both. Under the measure habitual violators would be subjected to the punishment of the Jones law, the maximum of which is a $10,000 fine or five years imprisonment or both.

In the debate on the floor on the transfer bill, Representative William E. Hull, republican, Illinois, assailed it as one to "hamper and destroy," the retail pharmacist. Congress made a serious mistake at the last session in passing the Jones law, he said, terming that act "the laughing stock of the country."

Representative Wood, Indiana, republican dry, urged that the bill be amended to place the administration of the alcohol permit system under the treasury, and Representative Dallinger, republican, Massachusetts, defended the bill in its present form.

SEES INJUSTICE OF LIFE SENTENCE FOR SHOPLIFTER

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—(AP)—General Sessions Judge Max S. Levine, who yesterday was forced to pass a life sentence upon Mrs. Ruth St. Clair, 29, when she was convicted under the fourth offender law, today said that he did not believe the Baumes act was "intended for and should not apply to persons who commit crimes similar to those this woman committed."

Pointing out that Mrs. St. Clair never physically injured anyone or carried a weapon, and that her four convictions were for department store thefts, Judge Levine said that her length of sentence should not have been more than 10 years.

"I will gladly participate in any effort that may be made to have this woman released from prison after she has served a sentence commensurate with the crime she committed," the judge said.

Mrs. St. Clair's commitment to Auburn prison was delayed for two weeks by the court upon motion by George E. Brower, Kings county district attorney, who said he might want to question the woman in the Brooklyn investigation of alleged corruption in magistrates courts.

Mrs. St. Clair, whose last arrest was for shoplifting in Brooklyn, was first dismissed on the charge in magistrates courts but later rearrested and pleaded guilty.

Her conviction as a fourth offender and sentence to life imprisonment followed.

COMMITTEE TO EXAMINE SENATOR HEFLIN LETTER

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—(AP)—After two hours of debate on religious and racial differences, the senate today agreed to appoint a committee of three to examine a letter by Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, on the question of intermarriage of whites and negroes in New York city, which he had placed in the Congressional Record.

Senator Copeland, democrat, New York, demanded that the letter be expunged from the Record because of its references to New York state and city authorities, contending it was "offensive to the people of my state."

Senator Heflin objected and spoke for an hour, repeating his words in the letter and complaining against what he called "the Roman-Tammany regime of New York state and city." Finally, Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, suggested that Heflin and Copeland agree to the appointment of a committee by Vice-President Curtis to examine whether the letter violated senate rules.

Everybody concurred and the vice-president left the appointment of the committee until tomorrow, with Heflin and Copeland conferring meanwhile on the names of the committee.

Fatal Dispute Over Brazilian Politics

Several Persons Were Killed—Vice President Wounded Three Times.

RIO JANEIRO, Feb. 7.—(AP)—Vice-President Mello Vianna of Brazil was wounded three times and several persons were killed today during a political dispute arising from the presidential election campaign in the state of Minas Geraes.

The vice-president was shot in the neck and in the head, but his three wounds were considered not to be serious. It was reported that five persons had been killed and 15 wounded in the fight, which occurred at Montes Claros, where the vice-president had just arrived at the head of a conservative delegation to launch the presidential campaign of the conservative candidate, Julio Prestes.

Minas Geraes is the stronghold of the opposition party, whose candidate is Getulio Vargas, and there has been frequent talk of federal intervention in the state's administration during the past few weeks.

Rafael Fleury, the vice-president's secretary, was reported to be among the dead, and Maeyr Dolabella, a well-known engineer and sportsman of Rio Janeiro, seriously wounded.

Conflicting reports about the place of the fight were received from Montes Claros. One version said that the shooting broke out in a banquet hall after a violent political discussion. Another said that the vice-president and his party had been attacked while passing in front of the homes of the chiefs of the "aliancista" party.

The wounded were rushed by special train to Bello Horizonte, capital of Minas Geraes.

On receiving news of the attack, President Washington Luis hastened from Petropolis, his summer capital, to Rio Janeiro for an immediate conference with the minister of justice and other members of the cabinet.

20 MEN WERE KILLED IN MINE EXPLOSION

SALT LAKE CITY, Feb. 7.—(AP)—Twenty dead was the definitely established toll tonight of the gas explosion in the mine of the Standard Coal company at Standardville, Utah, in the heart of Carbon county's mining district.

Nine of the 29 men who were at work in the mine when the explosion occurred last night, survived. Five were rescued by crews from nearby mining communities today and the other four escaped last night. The five taken out today had bratticed themselves from the deadly gas fumes, far back in the workings, and had left notes directing their rescuers where to find them. Two of the rescued, M. H. Clelland and B. A. Johnson, were in a hospital suffering from the effects of the gas, but were expected to recover.

The explanation of the explosion, advanced by members of mine rescue crews, is that a pocket of carbon monoxide gas became ignited by spontaneous combustion. The mine was considered one of the safest in the district.

The mayor still was ignoring the suggestion.

THREE CHILDREN BURNED TO DEATH IN THEIR HOME

WESTFIELD, Mass., Feb. 7—(AP)—A wall of flames held back an hysterical mother and a bewildered group of neighbors here today, while three of her seven children burned to death.

When firemen finally were able to penetrate their way into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph T. Dorman, they found only a charred and huddled group, seeking safety with the baby underneath the covers of their mother's bed.

The victims were Roy, four months; Frank Henry 2, and Marguerite, 3.

Mrs. Dorman left for a neighbor's house at about 11 to use the telephone. She left four children home, the oldest being Blanche, five. Three others were at school. It was Blanche who notified her mother.

Mrs. Dorman found the flames had already progressed so that she was driven back in her desperate efforts to make her way inside. By the time the firemen arrived a few minutes later, the whole rambling house was ablaze.

He was first questioned by O'Connell, and Palmer was later notified and called the Bridgeport police, who in turn called New Haven authorities to arrange for the man's safe return to New Haven. Although attorneys for Price have decided that no reward would be given inasmuch as Price was on his way home at the time he was "found" O'Connell and Palmer have placed their claims with the chief of police in New Haven.

"What's the News?"

When Columbus and his caravels returned from the new world, the first question shouted from the shore was, "What's the news?"

That's always the question of paramount importance. Years ago folks asked it of the post rider or at the general store. Today, you find the answer in your newspaper. Through the newspapers the news of the world and of the community quickly become public knowledge. And remember this—it takes two kinds of news to make a modern paper complete.

The first tells of happenings near and far—of fires, sports, elections, accidents, marriages, deaths, great men, great events.

The second tells of things to eat, wear and use—things you buy, things being sold to your friends and neighbors. This news is advertising.

It is just as important to keep up to date on the advertising in The Bulletin as it is to read about what's doing in the world of events. It is distinctly to your advantage to be guided by advertising.

During the past week the following news matter appeared in the columns of The Bulletin for two cents a day:

BRITISH NAVAL PROPOSAL IN ACCORD WITH AMERICAN

World's Greatest Naval Powers Nearer to Agreement On Question of Sea Armament Than Ever Before—British Proposals Regarding Aircraft Carriers Provide the Only Important Clash of British and American Policies—Abolition of the Submarine is Definitely Proposed.

LONDON, Feb. 7.—(AP)—Prime Minister MacDonald, of England, today laid his cards on the London naval conference table beside the spectacular hand that Secretary Stimson of the United States delegation uncovered last night.

Their similarity shows that Great Britain and the United States, the world's greatest naval powers, are in closer accord on the age-old question of sea armaments than ever before.

Mr. MacDonald's full statement with facts and figures on Britain's policy at the London conference, backed by full authority of the dominion delegations and approved by the British cabinet, was as unexpected as was Mr. Stimson's outline of American policy last night.

It definitely proposes the abolition of the submarine; a battleship holiday until 1936, with the ultimate hope that battleships may be ruled off the seas like submarines; tonnage limitation for small cruisers; combination global and category limitation to maintain equilibrium between the fleets of the various nations, also further limitation of tonnage and gun calibre for aircraft carriers of the United States and Great Britain from 135,000 tons to 100,000 tons, with the maximum size of these ships reduced to 35,000 tons each.

The proposals regarding aircraft carriers provide the only clash of British and American policy except for very minor matters which spokesmen say can be easily adjusted.

Mr. MacDonald's statement combined cold facts with the emotional appeal that the ondLon conference "ought not only reduce existing fleets and building programs but put an end finally to competition in naval armaments and thus contribute an important step for ultimate elimination of the causes of war and the establishment of peace on an unassailable foundation."

While the Stimson and MacDonald declarations have clarified the atmosphere of the London conference, one outstanding point of difference in the two national viewpoints—that is, on the question of aircraft carriers—was attracting considerable attention, the American delegation said tonight.

The difference of opinion exists between Mr. Stimson's diplomatic advisors and his technical naval advisors, the latter objecting to the reduction from the 135,000 tons allowed the United States by the Washington treaty.

The naval experts have laid before the American delegates an extensive and complete case for the maintenance of an aircraft tonnage of 135,000, declaring this category of ships largely experimental and saying that a large percentage of the American allotment had been consumed by the carriers Lexington and Saratoga.

The experts argued for retention of the present level by citing that Great Britain has 50 merchant ships suitable for conversion into aircraft carriers, while the United States has 14 and Japan the same number.

The Japanese withheld official comment on both British and American statements. The Italians expressed satisfaction with both declarations as hastening the work of the conference and getting down to figures. Only the French seemed dissatisfied, with Premier Tardieu reported displeased both as to contents and method of the British and American announcements.

STORMY DISCUSSION OF TARIFF IN THE SENATE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7—(AP)—In one of the stormiest scenes yet witnessed in the long tariff struggle, leaders of the republicans and democratic-republican independent coalition fought over in the senate today the right of the opposition coalition to slash existing import levies.

With nerves on edge from the long months of wrangling, republicans made a determined stand against further attempts by the coalition senators to cut present rates on which no testimony had been taken in committees.

Leaders of the democrats and western republicans retorted with equal vehemence against what they termed the writing of tariff bills in secret. They declared every senator had a right to offer an amendment, whether it affected an existing levy or a higher or lower rate carried in the Hawley-Smoot bill.

At times two or three senators were shouting at once. Vice-president Curtis was kept busy pounding the gavel. Crowded galleries frequently had to be warned against emotional outbursts resulting from high-pitched colloquies and personal encounters.

Out of it all came a score of three to two on rate changes in favor of the coalitionists. They succeeded in cutting the duty on red lead, used in the manufacture of preservative paints, from 2 3-4 to 2 1-8 cents a pound; in cutting the duty on litharge, a lead pigment used in glass and pottery manufacture, from 2 1-2 to 2 1-8 cents; and in reducing the levy on carbon black from 20 to 15 per cent ad valorem. One was decided by only one vote and another by two.

Republicans rallied their forces, however, and defeated, 33 to 37, an attempt to reduce the rates on white lead, used for exterior paint-making, from 2 1-2 to two cents a pound. By 39 to 34 they also rejected an amendment to slash from 30 to 25 per cent the existing tariff on all lead pigments not specially provided for in the bill.

HAITIAN COMMISSION APPOINTED BY HOOVER

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—(AP)—President Hoover took another step toward development of a new policy in the Caribbean today by appointing a commission to study the question of when and how the United States should withdraw from participation in the affairs of Haiti.

SAYS DOLORES SALAZAR FELL INTO HIS LAP LIKE RIPE PEACH

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 7—(AP)—Reading of the first of three depositions made by Ferdinand Pinney "Affinity" Earle, artist, denying charges of breach of pre-nuptial contract in a $50,000 damage suit brought against him by Dolores Salazar, Spanish dancer, was begun in the trial of the case in superior court today. The prosecution rested its case yesterday.

Regarding their alleged love affair Earle said "she (Miss Salazar) fell into my lap like a ripe peach." Shortly afterward, reading of the deposition was halted, and attorneys successfully appealed to the court to excuse the jury after the reading of the first deposition to permit the lawyers an opportunity to peruse the remaining statements.

Earle deposed that he first met Miss Salazar at his home in Hollywood in April, 1926. He said he did not see her again until she called him by telephone of her own volition the following December.

Thereafter, he said, she came to his home almost daily. When he moved to Juarez, Mexico, he said she followed him there and arrived in February 1927. They went to Mexico City, he said, and during dinner in a cafe, she created a "rumpus" and he slapped her.

Several days later the deposition read, they continued on to Vera Cruz and sailed for St. Nazarre, France. Arriving in France in April, 1927, they registered at a hotel and then spent a week touring France. On their return to Paris, they separated.

"There was no quarrel, just a friendly argument interrupted by the realization by both of us that she had a rendezvous with an aunt." Miss Salazar, Earle said, did not return to the hotel that night. He said he pleaded with her, the aunt and her friends in an effort to win the girl back but she remained adamant.

"I pleaded incessantly for her to come back and go to London with me. I was as kind as one human being could be to another."

The next he heard from Miss Salazar, Earle deposed was a letter written from Los Angeles. In it she asked him to return her clothes.

SETTLEMENT REACHED IN FAIRBANKS CASE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 7—During a brief session of the Windham county superior court held here this forenoon with three civil cases listed for the day, a settlement was announced in one of these, the case of Marian Fairbanks versus Theodore Marrotte. The case resulted from a coasting accident at Mansfield avenue and Quarry street, February 21, 1928. A car driven by the defendant collided with a sled manned by the plaintiff.

The case of Irene Boucher versus Peter St. Rock was announced as put over until May. Two motions by Attorney Howard C. Bradford, setting a hearing for the sale of the National Rhea company's property at Putnam without restriction for February 21, were granted and Judge Booth allowed the receiver permission to purchase yarn and engage in manufacture in the interval.

Indefinite suspension of sentences in the following probation cases were made by the court upon recommendation of State's Attorney Bradford: Edward Baafich, theft; Joseph Sidney Rood, statutory burglary and theft; George Feeney, operating a motor vehicle without permission of the owner; and Albert Messier, indecent assault.

Following luncheon recess the case of Leonard Brothers Garage, Inc., versus Amelia Weick was heard. The basis of this action is on the purchase by Mrs. Weick, on August 15, 1928, of a used Chrysler sedan from Leonard Bros. for $550. Payments to the amount of $500 were made and the balance of $50 was not paid owing to an alleged defect, termed a "knock" in the motor. Offering testimony for the plaintiff concern were: Maurice S. Leonard, general manager and president; Raymond L. Angier, treasurer; Peter L. Gagnon, secretary and Albert E. Beck, service manager and stockholder. Testifying for the defendant besides herself was her husband, Albert J. Weick and William L. Anthony, mechanic at Sadd's garage who made repairs to the sedan in October, 1929, the work costing $41.50. The sale was made in the name of Mrs. Weick by Mr. Gagnon, who stated that the car had previously been put into good runable condition. The car was taken back to the garage about a year after the purchase and was again put into condition without additional expense. Mr. Weick stated that the knock in the motor remained even after Mr. Anthony had completed his repairs. Mrs. Weick said that the car ran nicely after that time. Damages sought by the concern are for $65.56, the balance on payments and a bill for oil, the latter being admitted by the defendant. Judge Booth took the case under consideration, to announce his decision later. Court was then adjourned until next Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock in this city.

Milk producers are busy filling their ice houses. There is a wide variation in the thickness of ice on the different ponds, some report 14-inch ice, but most of which is being stored is around 12-inches and of fine quality. Those who get their supply from spring-fed ponds are waiting for the ice to thicken. Such ponds show only 6 to 8 inch ice.

Andrew Colburn shot a large gray fox one day this week. Foxes are very scarce around this vicinity this winter, but after the usual hunting and trapping season is over they will appear from some where to make life miserable for the poultry raisers as usual.

The Ladies' Aid society met Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Alan Moody.

Memory of the January thaw will linger with us until road-repairing time in the spring. Outlying roads are deeply rutted and full of holes, practically all the frost came out during the thaw, then froze and has remained frozen with no chance to wear down the ruts.

DANIELSON

FORMER DANIELSON MAN HEADS HARTFORD BANK

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Feb. 7—Clayton C. Chase, a native of Danielson and graduate of Killingly high school, has been named as president of the City Bank and Trust company at Hartford, an institution of which he has been president for the past six years. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cassius S. Chase, for many years resident here, his father having been in the woolen manufacturing business, and gained his first banking experience in the Windham County National bank of Danielson. He went with the City Bank and Trust company in 1913.

As president of that institution he succeeds Leroy Campbell, who resigned to become president of the Chemical National Associates of New York.

Mr. Chase's advancement with the City Bank and Trust company has been steady. He was made a junior officer in 1919, and cashier in 1922, and remained in that post until elected vice-president in 1928. He was elected a director of the bank in 1928. Mr. Chase was married in 1919. They have two children. The family is resident in West Hartford.

Mr. Chase is a director of the Wethersfield Bank and Trust company, the Jewett City Trust company, the City Company of Hartford, Inc., and the Silent Glow Oil Burner company. He is a member of Wyllis lodge of Masons of West Hartford, the Wampanoag Country club, the City club and the Kiwanis club.

He is the second Danielson man to attain the presidency of a Hartford bank, Nathan D. Prince being for several years past president of the Hartford-Connecticut Trust company.

A press despatch from Jacksonville, Fla., stating that Detective W. D. Smith had identified Roland Lalone as the bandit who wounded him when a companion detective was killed while trying to arrest Lalone and his two companions, also escaped convicts from this state, confirms a suspicion held widely here. In identifying Lalone, Smith is quoted as saying, "I'll never forget that face!" This is of special interest here, because ever since the happening, many who investigated that case have been of the opinion that Lalone fired the shot that killed State Officer Irving H. Nelson in Pomfret, nearly two years ago.

Raymond N. Allen

Raymond N. Allen, 21, of Dayville, died today at St. Vincent's hospital in Worcester, where the young man had been a patient to undergo a surgical operation. He was a native of this town, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Napoleon Allen, and had lived his life here. Prior to his illness he had been employed at the Assawaga company mill in Dayville in the spinning department. In addition to his parents, he leaves one brother. The body was brought from Worcester to the home in charge of Undertaker L. E. Kennedy.

John C. Phillips

John C. Phillips, 58, died this afternoon in Hartford. He had been in failing health for a number of years. For several years something more than a decade ago Mr. Phillips was superintendent of the Wauregan company's mills at Wauregan. He was born in Putnam, a son of Attorney and Mrs. Gilbert Phillips, his father having been counsel for the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad company. After graduating from Putnam high school he attended Andover academy and later entered Yale university, graduating in the class of 1900. Starting to learn the cotton manufacturing business, he entered the employ of the Putnam Cotton Manufacturing company and subsequently was with mills at North Grosvenordale and Vermont and in Fall River, before coming to Wauregan. He leaves one daughter, Jane, who lives at Broad Brook, this state. Mrs. Phillips died a number of years ago.

Following services conducted at the home of a relative, Grover Miller, in Moosup this afternoon, the body of Mrs. Ann Elizabeth Boller was buried in the High street cemetery at Dayville. Rev. A. Elwyn Tingley of Moosup conducted the funeral and committal services. Relatives acted as bearers. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

This Saturday evening, Feb. 8, only, the Alice-Eleanor shop will close at 9 o'clock.—adv.

There was a recurrence this afternoon of the dangerous practice of many young people coasting on unguarded hilly streets of the borough. There was a particular danger today because the streets where the coasting was underway were not only snow-covered but also ice-sheathed, making control of a motor vehicle very difficult in case a quick stop had to be made. Many of the children were sliding with utter abandon and entirely heedless of the danger of being struck by a car.

Danielson finds itself in the throes of a law enforcement campaign and the making of charges and countercharges in the public press. One viewpoint is that there is not sufficient enforcement here and that court penalties are not sufficiently severe in some liquor cases. The opposition sees things in a different light. They contend that Danielson is one of the cleanest towns of its size in southern New England, though far from perfect, and that injury is being done its fair name by the present discussion. This group, too, holds that all laws should be enforced, but that each case should be judged exclusively on its own merits, or lack of them, and that no yard-stick rule of procedure is possible or desirable.

Acting under a chapter of the Public Acts of 1929, William L. Slate, director of the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment station at New Haven, has issued an order that all cornfields within the areas under quarantine against the European corn-borer must be cleaned up before April 15. The penalty for failure to comply is a fine not to exceed $100. Killingly and Brooklyn are towns within the quarantined area. Instructions to owners of cornfields are that all cornstalks must be disposed of by feeding to livestock, burning or plowing under cleanly, and that all larger weeds in or around cornfields must be destroyed. These regulations apply even to home gardens where corn is grown.

Lieut. Ross V. Urquhart of the Danielson barracks was at Hartford to attend a meeting of lieutenants of the state police department.

Alfred L. Reed and Victor T. Anderson of Danielson are members of a committee of the Putnam Country club that have caused to be prepared plans for remodeling and enlarging the club house, work that likely will be done during the coming spring season.

A considerable number of bowling enthusiasts came here last night from Waterbury, Hartford and other towns in the central section of the state to watch the match games rolled at the Casino alleys.

An interesting ceremony at the state armory tonight was the inspection of the Headquarters by Major E. L. Darbie, who has been inspecting the various bodies of special troops of the 43d division throughout the state this week.

Miss Beatrice Cooper LaPierre of Jamaica, L. I., has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Elvina LaPierre, to Edwin W. Carlson of Norwich, formerly of Brooklyn. Miss LaPierre was a summer visitor here for several years.

Lepralet M. Logee, who this week passed his 104th birthday at the Masonic home at Charlton, Mass., and who at one time was a resident of Danielson, is said to be the oldest Mason in the country.

Miss Clarice E. Verbuner of New Bedford is in Danielson to spend the week end with relatives.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Methodist Episcopal church is to meet at the church Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Chester Armstrong will have the members of the W. C. T. U. at the Baptist parsonage on Broad street for a meeting Tuesday afternoon.

Burton Brown is recovering from injuries he received when he was shocked and burned by an electric current of 2,300 volts, while at work at the sub-station here last Sunday.

The Standard Oil Company of New York has leased from the Westcott and Wilcox Old People's Home, Inc., the old Westcott homestead and a piece of land at the junction of North Main street and Westcott road, for, it is understood, the erection of an ornate filling station.

Continuing its cantankerous record, February sent more snow and sleet to this section today and keeping the highways as slippery as they have been for more than a week, the greater part of the time.

A Danielson man, who in the past 32 years has paid in approximately $2,600 in assessments or dues, has taken a settlement of $600, rather than stand a prohibitive monthly assessment, and he is but one of several facing the same situation as members of a fraternal insurance organization.

A large attendance is looked for at the citizens' meeting to be held at the Westfield Congregational church Sunday evening at 7 o'clock at which Commissioner Robert T. Hurley of Hartford, head of the state police department, is to be the speaker.

Rev. Myron E. Genter, district superintendent, will come here next Monday evening to hold the fourth quarterly conference at the Methodist Episcopal church. Officers of the church will make reports on the year's work.

PLAINFIELD

The Parent-Teacher association held its February meeting Tuesday evening at the club house, Mrs. Arthur Holmes presiding. Mrs. George Eastman, county secretary, read a report of the county council meeting held at Pomfret. It was planned to go to Canterbury, February 11th, to form a parent-teacher association in that district. At the close of the meeting a public whist was held, the prizes being won by Arthur Daigneault, Gerard Smith and Normand Wood.

The death of Rev. William A. Keefe, former pastor of St. John's church here, brings sadness to many people. Rev. Father Keefe made many friends and was highly esteemed while he was in Plainfield.

Plainfield grange held its meeting Tuesday evening, Worthy Master Elmer Greene in the chair. There were visitors from Killingly and Pachaug. The refreshments were in charge of the Three Graces. Lecturer Hall put on a fine program. The next meeting will be February 18.

VOLUNTOWN

The Voluntown Baptist and Methodist church have been bequeathed $1,500 each in the will of Mrs. Lucy Peabody of Westerly who died recently in that city. Mr. Briggs was one of the founders of the Briggs Manufacturing company, which operated the four mills in the village until recently. The Baptist and Methodist churches and the Voluntown school committee share equally with the Westerly Baptist church a trust fund of $15,000. Mrs. Peabody was a former Voluntown girl, but had made her home in Westerly since her marriage. This remembrance of her home town is pleasing to the townspeople.

News of the death in Norwich, Wednesday, of Rev. William A. Keefe, pastor of St. Mary's Memorial church, was received with sincere sorrow by this entire community. He endeared himself to all the townspeople during his pastorate at St. Thomas' church during 1910 and 1911. His mother, brother and sister who are remembered here and St. Mary's parish have the sincere sympathy of townspeople here in their irreparable loss.

Charles A. Downing has been engaged since Monday filling the Beachdale ice houses with a good quality of ice. He has filled his ice houses at Plainfield.

Several more homes are being wired this week to take advantage of the electric service recently installed by the Eastern Connecticut Power company.

A number of new electric radios are being placed in local homes since the advent of electric service.

PUTNAM

CONDITION OF PUTNAM'S MAYOR REMAINS CRITICAL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Feb. 7—The condition of Mayor Charles A. Richard continued critical today, late reports from the chief executive's sick room said. Since taken suddenly ill Tuesday evening following the adjournment of the February meeting of the common council Mayor Richard has been confined to his bed suffering from an attack of pneumonia. The mayor passed a comfortable, but sleepless night Thursday, the third since he was seized with chills. Dr. John J. Russell, the mayor's attending physician visited his patient twice today. On the occasion of the second visit, Dr. Russell informed Mrs. Richard that only a slight improvement had been noted in her husband's condition. The congested area of Mayor Richard's lungs it was said cleared somewhat today, but the improvement which ordinarily follows such a relief was counteracted by a rise in temperature late this afternoon.

Scores of friends and associates called at the mayor's residence today but were unable to see him because of his serious condition.

Attorney Archibald Macdonald, Jr., chairman of the special committee of the chamber of commerce, seeking the cooperation of other communities between New London and Worcester to combine in an effort to the restoration of passenger and mail service by trains running on the Norwich branch of the New Haven railroad said this afternoon that the city of Norwich, through its chamber of commerce and the borough of Jewett City are the only towns to respond to the call of the local body. The city of Norwich answered the questionnaire of the committee only in part, leaving some of the more important topics untouched while Jewett City, through its warden of the court of burgesses complained of unsatisfactory mail service.

The special committee of the chamber of commerce entertained General Passenger Agent Regan and Divisional Superintendent Robert E. Smith of the New Haven division of the New Haven road last week. The present situation was discussed and the railroad officials could see no possibility of an agreement according to the terms of the local body being reached. The committee however is not to be discouraged by the sentiment of the railroad authorities but is to continue in its efforts enlisting the cooperation of others along the Norwich branch who were affected by the policy of the railroad when passenger and mail service was removed to the large overland trucks which was rendering unsatisfactory service.

Local police are receiving numbers of complaints from motorists hereabouts, who state that the ice coated rails of the Connecticut company's line, which were left in the streets of the city following the removal of trolleys four years ago are causing them much trouble. Several minor auto accidents occurring in the city within the past week have been directly attributed to the presence of the rails. Ernest E. Bullard, a Norwich musician, narrowly escaped serious injury Tuesday when the vehicle struck a rail which was protruding from the center of the street on Main street. His car skidded and crashed into an iron fence and only by luck did the driver avert being hurled into the Quinebaug river. Again this afternoon an automobile being operated by E. Leslie Beebe, manager of the Southern New England telephone office here, skidded while rounding the turn at the intersection of Front and South Main streets, when the wheels of the car struck the rails. Rails on the outskirts of the city were removed some years ago, when the line was no longer used by the company, but no move was ever made to relieve the situation in the center of the city.

Lemunees Desmaris, daughter of Napoleon Desmaris of Van Den Noort street, died yesterday at the Day Kimball hospital following a brief illness. Miss Desmaris was 19 years of age. She was born in Canada and came to the United States a few years ago with her parents. She was employed here as a textile operator in one of the city silk firms. She had many friends and associates among the younger set.

Putnam people who purchased insurance policies from Henry J. Devlin and Fred J. Kemplin, Providence agents arrested here Tuesday on a charge of selling insurance without licenses, have little chance of recovering funds which they invested. After an investigation it was revealed by Officer Joseph Page that four local people were drawn into the deal by the attractiveness of the proposition. Since January first the police have uncovered a number of bogus solicitors who were operating in this city. Captain A. J. Dubreuil of the police department has requested the cooperation of the public in notifying the police of the presence of such agents in the city. Since men canvassing the city, swindling housekeepers out of small amounts by offering such bargains make every effort to avoid the police, it is only with the cooperation of local people that the police are able to act.

Many local men will be in Danielson Sunday evening to attend a mass meeting of the evangelical churches at the Westfield Congregational church at which Robert T. Hurley, commissioner of the state police department will be the speaker. Commissioner Hurley is a well known figure in this city. One of the most prominent cases of his career as a policeman was closed here when a Putnam fire-bug was arrested.

Due to the continued cold spell ice dealers were enabled to get the city's supply of ice under cover by nightfall today. Tons of ice have been stored and all worries of a shortage this summer because of unseasonable winter weather have been eliminated.

About 2269 telephones are in use in the Putnam exchange of the Southern New England Telephone company it was said today by Manager E. L. Beebe. This number is a considerable increase over the number of stations listed in the summer issue of the phone directory.

Superintendent of Streets Frederick Dumas today called attention to the fact that many property owners in the city are leaving their sidewalks in a dangerous condition by allowing ice and snow to remain on them after storms have cleared away. Supt. Dumas said that in cases of severe storms the street department aids the property owners in eliminating the hazards of the walks by despatching men to sand the icy spots. This cooperation in no way excuses the owner from the regular duties of placing his property in a safe condition for public passage. An ordinance is in force whereby the careless property owner may be compelled under a court order to free sidewalks of snow and ice.

NORWICH ARCHITECTS PLAN FANNING LIBRARY ANNEX

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Feb. 7—Dr. G. H. Jennings, Alex McNicol, A. D. Tripp, and E. A. Faust, trustees and building committee of the Slater library, and Arthur M. Thompson of the firm of Cudworth & Thompson, Norwich architects, held a meeting today relative to the new David Hale Fanning annex, which is to be erected within a year, in the rear of and in connection with, the present Slater library. The new building, considerably larger, than the present library, is to cost about $75,000, these funds having become available by the terms of the will of the late David Hale Fanning. Mr. Thompson exhibited to the committee an architects draft of the annex. Mr. Fanning stipulates that on the lower floor, there shall be a room fitted and equipped for the use of boys and girls as a reading room. The building material is to be granite, and of fire proof construction. Over the door, which will connect the two buildings there will appear a bronze tablet, which will bear the inscription David Hale Fanning Annex.

At the time of construction this summer, and after the awarding of the contract, which will be made next week, some plans will be carried out, which contemplate a number of changes and improvements in the present building. The street floor of the annex will be so arranged that 10,000 books can be accommodated in that room. The present street floor will contain no books, but will be a reading room, and for the accommodation of the librarian. Within the annex there is to be a department for research and study, which will be constructed with glass sides.

The upper floor of the new part, which will be merged to some extent with the present second story, will be finished as a large assembly hall, where 260 persons may be seated. David Hale Fanning, in addition to a bequest of $75,000, was at all times deeply interested in the Slater library. Some years before his death, he gave $20,000, in duplication of an equal amount raised as the result of the untiring efforts of Dr. Jennings.

Don't fail to share in the bargains offered this week at Kesch's department store. Their Feb. sale is now on. —Adv.

The clause in David Hale Fanning's will reads: "To the Slater library of Jewett City I bequeath the sum of $75,000, this sum to be used for the purpose of enlarging the library building by an extension in the rear to be known as the David Hale Fanning Annex. In the basement there shall be fitted up a reading room for boys and girls. This room should have tiled floors and tiled walls and be made attractive with plenty of light on three sides. This bequest is made on condition that the extension be made within five years from date of probate of this will and the executors of my will shall pay over this amount when the trustees of the library shall formally vote to accept the same, and make the extension within the time above specified; and failing to do so this bequest shall fall into the final residue of my estate."

The scores made in Thursday evening's games by the Borough Pinochle club are: C. L. Dudkowski 6765; W. A. Field 7585; Stanley Winroth 6010; Wilfred LeClaire 7475; Clovis Cassavant 6230; Francis McLaughlin 6565; Velo Sharkey 5960; Eugene Carroll 6975; Frank McCarthy 7170; T. Lamarine 7215; Dr. C. H. Jennings 5900; Dennis Sullivan 6475; J. B. LeClaire 7485; Eudor LeClaire 6620; James H. Shea 7170; Horace Dawley 6580; John Davis 6405; Henry Popham 6065; Charles Maynard 6640; Mose Loranger 6840.

Walter A. Field swept the board for the high score 7585, James Q. Dolan, who was supposed to be a sort of fill-in, supernumerary player, has suddenly developed into the professional class, having been high man last week. Some have thought that James sort of slipped over a fast one on the club, and that he was in the world-beater register all the while. Anyhow, he is out of the running for the grand season's prize, taking a hand here and there, now and then.

L. G. BUCKINGHAM CHAIRMAN ELECTRIC LIGHT COMMISSION

With the appointment of a new member to the borough electric light commission the board now stands: L. G. Buckingham, Daniel F. Finn, Sr., and Jacob Wechsler. The assigning of Mr. Wechsler to this important position, is by no means the first time he has been identified with the borough's welfare, in which he is deeply interested. He has seen terms of service as a member of the board of borough burgesses, over a period of four years. At the time when the first motor driven truck was purchased for the fire company, Mr. Wechsler was chairman of the fire commission, and to his activity and interest its final installation was largely due. Also, when the streets of the borough were macadamized, he was a member of the board, at the time when Joseph H. McCarthy was warden of the borough.

L. G. Buckingham, who now becomes chairman of the commission, has served on the board for a long term of years, and is well equipped for his advancement. The second member of the board, Daniel F. Finn is the first selectman of the town of Griswold, with a knowledge of requirements of civic interest in many lines.

George P. Moeller, who retires from the commission, was its efficient chairman for a long term of years. The senior member of the board, he has put into operation many of the features which stand to the credit of the system today. During his term as the result of of economic management, the electric light plant has become a valuable borough asset.

Newent Ladies' Aid society plans a chicken pie supper when Mrs. George Helmboldt and Mrs. Jesse Phillips are to provide an entertainment. A play, Cinnamon Buns is to be given, and a musical program, during which Miss Doris Myott is to sing.

LeRoy DesJardines, a lad of nine or ten, sometime ago found a package of small camera pictures. Last week he picked up a bunch of keys on Slater avenue, and this week he found a crystal bead necklace. So far, he says he has not visioned any money.

Lincoln's birthday exercises were held Friday, in Miss Gohery's department, at Riverside grammar school, with Julia Nowakowski, leader. The program: The Life of Abraham Lincoln, Robert Smith; Anecdotes of Lincoln: Lincoln's Promise, James Larrabe; Said He Would Hit Slavery, Helen Glowacki; Why Lincoln Wore a Beard, Helen Zagranski; Lincoln and the Birds, Eddie Kudeichuk; Attention to Small Things, Stella Baldyga; Lincoln and the Pig, Sophie Pheka; Good Advice, Louis Calexic; The Dying Soldiers, Steven Tenser; Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, by Anthony Vanchu; A dramatization, "Lincoln, Deputy Surveyor," Time 1832, Scene: Office of Surveyor Calhoun in Sangamon county, Illinois. Characters: County Surveyor Calhoun, Stanley Bernard; U. S. land agent, Felix Graska; Abraham Lincoln, William LaPointe; Dennis Hanks, Chester Zadora.

The second act was six weeks later, with same scene and characters. In conclusion the entire cast sang, Lincoln.

Mrs. John Hansen, who has been ill for the past week, was much improved Friday.

Automobile night was observed at Pachaug grange Thursday with the following program: A stunt, "The Grange Shifts Gears," by all; song, Drive Your Cares Away; brief history of the auto, Ellen Young; song, Get Out and Get Under, Byron Kinnie; Courtesy in a Motorist, talks by Albert Bradlow and Arthur Park; a grange brother was asked to rise who had a certain registration number for his auto; the brother did not recognize the number immediately; reading, You and Your Car, Marion Thornton; reading, Estella Brand; song, If a Driver Meet a Driver, Walter A. Hyde; games, tinkering with an auto, changing tires, and filling radiator. The lecturer announced that the next meeting would be a Washington and Valentine program.

CENTRAL VILLAGE

Business conditions at the Central Worsted mill are not very encouraging at present. The stock on hand is being used up and as the work is finished in the different rooms, the room is closed until further notice. The weave shop and dresser rooms are closed but the finishing room help have not yet finished. Many of the help are seeking employment elsewhere although their families are here. The company owns none of the tenements in which their help lived so the closing of the mill will not affect the rents.

Miss Genevieve Violette has been a Norwich visitor.

Friends of Mrs. Stella Duxbury Larose are glad to learn that she is recovering. She recently underwent a serious operation at a hospital in Providence. Mrs. Larose now lives in Moosup, but before her marriage she lived here.

Rev. George Reese will be at the Rice City church Sunday evening, as speaker, also as soloist.

Elmer Rider has been the guest of friends in Plainfield.

Unearthing a mass of dinosaur bones in East Africa has convinced a British scientist that these gigantic prehistoric beasts perished because the rains failed, and even in swamp country, where they retreated, they could find no food.

HOUSECLEANING AT WETHERSFIELD

From such developments as have taken place since the escape of the three convicts from Wethersfield it becomes apparent that there was need for the housecleaning that is going on.

The discharge of guards and the assistant warden indicated that there was dissatisfaction with the service they were rendering. There was indication of a laxity there which should not exist in an institution of that kind. Whether such knowledge as was possessed would have been sufficient to have prevented the triple break may not be definitely established but it seems highly probable that it would have served to place the officials and attendants on their guard against just what did happen.

Possibly their conduct can be charged to errors of judgment, since they were in no way involved in aiding the escape, but it is impossible to overlook the fact that if they had communicated their information to the head of the institution and the men had been put under closer surveillance they would not have had the opportunity to saw through the bars which kept them from the outside.

For any such possibility to have been regarded as a joke and taken so lightly that the warden was not informed was a serious error, one that could not be overlooked.

But from the arrest of an instructor in the shirt factory it would appear that others stand in the way of a reminder of their responsibilities to the institution and its regulations. Evidently the facts are such in this case that discharge is not sufficient. It isn't a case of error of judgment but, if the confession is correct, a case where there was a deliberate violation, where convicts were being permitted to carry on communications with those on the outside without the knowledge of the prison authorities.

It isn't a time for considering how little was actually accomplished by these notes which were delivered to the person who had the freedom of the institution and who was supposed to be trustworthy. It is a time to see that it doesn't happen again, and the course pursued is well calculated to accomplish that very thing. The fewer there are of such individuals at Wethersfield the better, but the fewer deserve to be made an example of every time they appear.

DEALING WITH PARKING

Almost from the first, the car-parking problem has been a big one. Regulations have been established, but the increase in the number of cars and the volume of traffic has made it necessary to revise them often. Less parking has been ordered, one-way streets have been established, double parking has been stopped and gradually the difficulty in getting a place to stop a car has been increased. And yet, in spite of all that is done, congestion continues and there are demands for a freer use of the streets.

New York is engaged in trying to determine how it is going to handle the problem of the auto traffic. Commissioner Whalen has been so well impressed by the results that have been obtained in Chicago where parking has been prohibited in the business section, known as "the loop," that he is advocating a similar order for New York city. That would do away with much of the complaint that is heard at the present time. It would leave the streets open for the moving vehicles which they are supposed to accommodate and it would eliminate much of that dissatisfaction caused by the inability to find a stopping place. It would end the practice of making a garage of the public highway.

In Hartford the authorities are confronted with the situation where merchants are unable to have goods delivered at their places of business without the trucks stopping in the lane of traffic and getting tagged. Consequently, there is appeal for considerate treatment in view of the fact that the curb line is blocked, while the merchants feel that they should not be deprived of an opportunity to get goods with which to do business.

The parking problem has continued to grow more complicated. In a great many instances there is no question but what parking privileges are greatly abused but if, as claimed, the automobile manufacturers expect to produce a half million more cars this year than they did last, it can be reasonably expected that the situation will become worse before it is better unless the parking privileges, as threatened, are more and more curtailed. Certainly there cannot be more cars left standing in the streets and an increasing volume of traffic and parkers accommodated.

INTERSTATE TRAFFIC IN LOOT

It it were not possible for thieves to dispose of much of their loot they would not be interested in stealing it. They understand that they will not get full value for the booty but they are satisfied to take what will be paid. Thus it is, to a large extent, that the business of stealing is in the hands of those who buy the goods that are stolen. Just as long as they will buy, just as long as they give encouragement to robbery by providing a place to sell the illegally acquired property, there will be those who will make use of their help.

It is for the purpose of striking at this situation that a bill has been introduced in congress, and passed by the house, calling for the imposition of a penalty of $10,000 or ten years' imprisonment for those who are convicted of sending or receiving, across state borders, goods which are known to be stolen.

The purpose is to put an end to the transportation about the country of large amounts of goods which could not be disposed of in the vicinity of the theft, but which are easily marketed at some distant point. That there are those who are doing a flourishing business in this respect is no secret. Discouragement has been placed in the way through efforts to prevent the thefts and to locate the goods stolen, but the great trouble has been the inadequate means of reaching those who may be regarded as the head and shoulders of the organization.

Through this federal law it is believed that an effective means of placing a check upon such business will be available. Because the house has given its approval to the measure without delay doesn't mean that the same action can be expected from the senate, and yet it is difficult to see why that body, which pretends to be so strong for better law enforcement, should not be as anxious as the house for providing the means of meeting this situation. There can be no sympathy for those who deal in this line of activity and most certainly there can be none for the higher-ups or the brains and chief beneficiaries of the system.

RHODE ISLAND SENTIMENT

In these days, when much continues to be heard in regard to the wet and dry question, there can be no surprise over the fact that there is a demand in the state of Rhode Island for the submission of the question of repealing the 18th amendment to the people of that state at the next election.

The announced purpose of this resolution which has been submitted to the legislature is to get the opinion of the people of the state, to find out what the desire of voters of the state is. The resolution calls for a vote as to whether the amendment should be repealed. It might as well have been framed to vote on the question of favoring the amendment. In either instance it would permit those whose minds have been made up, and who are ready to express them, to let it be known in black and white what the situation is as to public sentiment. It would mean that people would have an opportunity to pass judgment upon the results obtained since the amendment became effective. It would open the way for the respective sides to rally in support of their cause, the wets in their endeavor to get out the bigger vote for the affirmative while the drys would be expected to do their best on the negative side.

Whether Rhode Island's legislature sanctions the resolution that has been offered and submits it to the people will be followed with interest. Rhode Island is one of the states which never ratified the amendment. It might be expected, therefore, that it would be in favor of the repeal of the amendment, but it is always possible to make claims for or against until there has been an actual determination by some such method as the resolution provides for.

LONDON INDICATIONS

What must be regarded as satisfactory progress is being made at London. By the statements which have been made by the leaders of the American and British delegations it is apparent that it is not going to be difficult to come to a complete understanding if we can judge by the policies set forth.

The idea of having such agreement as results from the present conference run until 1936, with another conference called in 1935 to review the situation and determine what should be done then must be looked upon as a sensible one. That would be in keeping with the plan that is being followed at the present time as the result of the Washington conference. No one can definitely tell what the situation is going to be in 1936 but in the year before conditions will have so shaped themselves that it will be possible to ascertain the sentiment of the nations relative to continuance, to abolition or to further limitation.

It is to be expected that any move that is made in the way of limitation will have the similar salutary effect that has developed from the present naval pact. That being the case, there should be a desire in 1935 to take as much of a step in advance as is indicated will be done at the present time. Thus it would mean progressive limitation in which all the nations would have an opportunity to experience the benefits involved and to find out by actual test that it is the thing to do.

The spirit displayed from the very beginning of the conference has been such as to support the belief that all the nations have gathered with the idea of actually carrying out the purpose of the conference. Through better understanding and possible compromise on various points, progress is being made and the prospects for a successful outcome appear bright.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

There are very few times, places or situations in life where the law of compensation does not work. As an illustration take the situation in Florida. We are all aware of the effect the land boom collapse had on the immediate prosperity of that "land of flowers." Inflated prices always take a heavy toll from the people who indulge in them whether it is in the land of Florida or on the stock exchange in New York city. But notice the reaction that is coming to Florida! If a fictitious price was put on the land (and there can be little doubt about it) and it didn't work, then the attempt was made to create valuable property out of land that hitherto was regarded as worthless, and this decidedly did work. I refer to the reclamation of that vast area of marsh land in the southern part of the state known as the Everglades. In the long run this will be vastly more valuable to Florida than putting fabulous prices on city land.

Perhaps it was perfectly natural at first to sneer at the Everglades proposal, especially when so many people were smarting under the failure of the land boom. But that was at the beginning of the Everglades proposition. Until this work of utilization began, this section of marsh land was regarded as a vast area of utterly useless swamp land. The first necessary step was to irrigate the land. As we know this muck land bordered on the shores of Lake Okeechobee from which a drainage canal was dug connecting this body of water with the Atlantic. Then cross canals were cut through this entire stretch of vast morass, by means of which this whole vast area was drained. Then after the soil had been examined by an eminent chemist and its probabilities made clear, then a sugar company planted thousands of acres to sugar cane. The result has been the astonishment of the business world.

Nothing is more astonishing than the capability of man for labor when he bends every faculty he possesses to the task. It is fully as amazing what a variety of pursuits some men follow and attain distinction in all of them. It certainly shows that the old saying, "Jack of all trades and master of none" does not by any means apply to all cases. There are names in history that show us how some men made a success of whatever they undertook. In making this statement I am reminded of a remarkable volume recently published entitled "The Memoirs of Lorenzo da Ponte," an Italian who emigrated from his native land to the United States more than a century ago. A mere enumeration of the different things he engaged in proves my point conclusively. He was a successful distiller, he wrote able but sarcastic poetry, he tried opera and was successful, he became a politician, and ended by being a professor of languages at Columbia university.

In a recent lecture given to a cultivated audience by Dr. M. Luksish, director of light research for the General Electric Co., statements were made that sounded like a fairy tale: "In this new era, as pictured by the scientist, a dark cellar can be transformed into a healthful place, even in winter, as a hillside in the country under the sun. Colds and more serious ailments will diminish, nervous troubles will decrease, and the life of man will be increased by many years. Habits of work and play will change, social customs will be different and fewer clothes may be worn in order to take advantage of the health-giving rays that will surround us at work and at leisure." In view of what science has wrought in the last two decades can we call this extravagant language?

The foolish display of any unusual talent, instead of meeting with interest and applause, only stirs up feelings of disgust. The reason is, or at least ought to be, perfectly apparent. A splendid capacity either of mind or body is given by the Creator for some splendid purpose, and no one has any right to belittle or degrade what the Creator intended should be done with the talent bestowed. This is clearly brought out in the temptation of Jesus. We can imagine his physical condition after fasting in the wilderness 40 days. The temptation was that if He "be the Son of God" he should command "that these stones be made bread." Now this would not have been a temptation if Christ had not been able to have performed the miracle. He knew that the exigencies of the case did not demand a miracle. Hence the suggestion was indignantly spurned. It would be a vulgar display of power.

Great spirits who possess unusual power feel that it is an insult to use it just to create in the crowd wonder and amusement. That is the province of the mountebank. Upon a certain time far less remote than the episode in the life of our Lord, a scene once took place in an opera house in New York which brought out the same quality of spirit. A great songstress from Europe was the dazzling idol of the evening. As a soprano she had no living superior. The capacity crowd went wild over her classic songs and some of the popular songs of the day. At length some one yelled out a song that was quite the rage but rather coarse. She absolutely refused to sing it. The manager pleaded with her to sing it as the crowd yelled. At length she said firmly, "I'll break my contract before I will prostitute my abilities." When this came out the real America said, "amen!"

There is an old saying that certainly applies to many cases whether it has any scientific basis or not. It is this, "he tempers the wind to the shorn lamb." The meaning evidently is that some of the feebler elements of creation are under the protection of a kindly providence. Just how far this extends is very difficult to say. Explain it as you may, the lower animals and birds sometimes in vast numbers perish from cold and starvation. Just the same as many human beings are now doing in China. But there is truth in the fact that birds have an amazing instinct in finding food in winter. On the writer's premises provision is made for feeding birds in winter. They seem to know by instinct just where the minutest crumbs are. They certainly carry out one of the important injunctions of Scripture and that is "gather up the fragments so that nothing be lost."

By the time these words appear in print February 2 will have passed. This day marks the birth of the Christian Endeavor movement which since 1881 has encircled the globe. Beyond all doubt it is the greatest enterprise for the development of religion in the hearts of the young since the world began, the Sunday school alone excepted. It is certainly one of the greatest helps that the Sunday school has ever had. About three years after Dr. Francis E. Clark had formed such a society in his Portland church, he was one Sunday the guest of the writer and assisted him in founding one here in Connecticut. Little then did he think that his name some day would be a household name in every part of the world. He certainly builded better than he knew. Although this splendid man has been translated his work will remain like that of Wesley and Moody.

Chickadees, Woodpeckers, Warblers, Robins, Goldfinches, Are Wintering Here

Following are recent bird notes from the Kimball bird sanctuary, the Audubon society's official observation post for the transition, or Alleghanian, zone of bird life, in which eastern Connecticut is situated. The sanctuary is located at Watchaug pond, nine miles east of Westerly. These notes are extracted from articles in the Providence Journal:

As of Jan. 4: Our Christmas was very pleasant, and I think the birds all had a pleasant Christmas, too. We had our little Christmas tree Christmas morning, then trimmed it for the birds and set it outside the kitchen window so we could watch it.

We trimmed it with pieces of suet, pieces of apple (with core and seeds left in), nut-meats strung on twine and fastened to the boughs, small branches of bayberry and sumac, and then poured melted suet on the branches and down the trunk of the tree and filled it with seeds. We also scattered seeds around the base of the tree.

It was a Christmas tree for all the birds, or so we meant it to be, but the chickadees seemed to think it was their very own. They were not long in finding it and are certainly enjoying it. There were so many on the tree today we really could not accurately count them. A myrtle warbler and a downy woodpecker came to look it over and a white-breasted nuthatch is having a delightful time eating the melted suet that ran on the ground.

It reminds us of a very appropriate card that a friend sent for the feast of Christmas, a snow-ladened tree with birds and squirrels on the tree, rabbits at the base of the tree and a handsome doe standing near, caroling "Joy to the World."

Birds are on our sanctuary tree, a rabbit came and ate pieces of apple, deer are in the garden, and in a cage in the cellar we have a pair of flying squirrels, which were caught under the eaves of the house.

Dec. 22 a flock of surely 70 bluebirds went over the sanctuary, going toward the south. Dec. 23, when it looked as though there might be a real blizzard, the birds came from every direction. There were so many in the large foodhouse west of the bungalow that it looked like one big black spot. What do you know about birds as barometers? We watch them pretty closely here and used to when in Ashaway, and we find that before a heavy storm, they come to the food-trays in great numbers, and eat very ravenously.

It is a wonderful sight to see all the black ducks sitting on the ice on Watchaug, unmindful of the cold, the drakes even telling the world how happy they are with their loud "quack, quack, quack."

Dec. 29 a large goshawk went sailing over, the first seen this winter.

As of Jan. 11: Our springlike weather is past and we are having a sample of winter weather, for it was only seven degrees above zero at 7 a. m. (Jan. 5) By noon it was 44 degrees above zero. The first bird to greet us January first was a barred owl, who at 6:30 a. m., said: Happy New Year. Later a flock of nine blue jays seemed quite upset because they had not been the first to greet us. A little later many chickadees, juncos and tree sparrows came and fed under the kitchen window. This particular feeding place seems to be a favorite one for a great number of birds.

On Dec. 31 one lone pine grosbeak was seen, which brings our list up to 117 species from April 1, 1929 to Jan. 1, 1930. On Jan. 3 a flock of golden-eyes or "whistlers" came into Watchaug and are still with us. The black ducks are still here too, and also, a flock of mergansers.

Yesterday morning a flock of robins, a flock of goldfinches and many myrtle warblers came and stayed around until after the noon hour. Just before dinner a flock of geese came into the pond from toward the south. There were 12 of them and they probably stayed all night. A very large bald eagle paid us a visit, while the excitement of watching the geese was on, and when watching both geese and eagle, flock after flock of ducks came in.

People ask, "Don't you get lonesome at the sanctuary?" Please tell me how anyone could possibly get lonesome with such thrills as these. From where I sit writing, I am watching flock after flock of ducks, whistlers and mergansers, flying up and down the pond, then in circles, either doing their daily dozen or playing tag. They do that several times, then settle down in one of the open places and splash around as if it were a June day.

From the state ornithologist of Massachusetts comes word that "the most notable feature of December, 1929, from the bird student's point of view has been the remarkable influx of pine grosbeaks in New England. Flocks have ranged from six or eight to 150 birds with an unusually large proportion of brightly colored males. The favorite food seems to be ash seeds, but the birds are also found in maples, box-elders, spruces, pines and hawthornes." He adds: "Canada geese are more abundant at Block Island than in many years," an interesting statement to compare with the sanctuary record.

As of Jan. 18: January 12, the light snow of this morning has entirely disappeared and it has been raining hard. I am sure last Tuesday morning (Jan. 7) the birds thought spring was really here. The robins were chirping loudly, chickadees calling "phoe-be," while the gulls flying in and out of the pond filled the air with their voices. All day long you could hear the "quacking" of the ducks. I think they were talking over the good news, only a few more days now and the hunters will leave us alone to enjoy this beautiful pond.

Another shrike has been with us a few days but seems to be on its good behavior. Jan. 8 a flock of 14 quail was feeding west of the house, quite unafraid of our being near. A partridge, too, was feeding on some brier berries, but was off in an instant when I went closer to it. The chickadees are still enjoying the Christmas tree. They do so enjoy picking the suet off the branches. Our flock of chickadees has steadily increased, and now there are over 70, I am sure. Thursday, Jan. 9, when it was so very warm (the thermometer was nearly 82 degrees at the back door, southern exposure, at noon), very few birds were about the house or around the food trays, but no matter where I walked they were twittering in the low bushes or among the grasses.

Where the ice is still on the east cove, hundreds of crows come every day to feed, on what, I do not know, but there they are, all picking away at something. I wonder if it is the salt ice they like?

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—About the only part of the administration program for federal prison reforms which precipitated much house discussion was an effort to apply civil service requirements to selection of probationary officers and stenographers by federal judges. The house voted specifically and overwhelmingly not to do that.

Incidental to that discussion it developed that court probation work has become a definite profession since state and federal practice has gradually adopted this method of dealing with first offenders.

Examinations announced by the civil service commission in January to make up a federal qualified list produced no less than 3,500 applications.

The maximum age limit is 55 and it seems possible that this fact played a part in defeat of proposals to require civil service appointment under the pending bill.

Old Heads Safe

Far out in South Dakota George A. Pettigrew, now past 70, has been serving as probation officer for four years under District Judge Elliott with a background of nearly two score years of philanthropic activities behind him. Yet he would be debarred from such federal court work had the civil service amendment been adopted.

Representative Christopherson of South Dakota had much to say of Pettigrew's achievements as probation officer.

"He has served without pay, without any remuneration whatever," he said. "When the (state) law requiring that probation officers take civil service examinations came, George Pettigrew had passed the age limit. The only person who qualified under that examination was a lady in the northern part of the state whom neither the judge nor anyone else down state knew.

"The judge said: 'No; as long as I can keep George Pettigrew on the work, I am going to keep him.' And of the many prisoners assigned to Pettigrew only a single one has gone back to the penitentiary. That is the best evidence of his fitness."

There was meager support for the civil service amendment when the test came, but Representative LaGuardia of New York, its sponsor, promptly tried again as to civil service status for court reporters. He cited Chief Justice Taft as having written:

"I do not know of any branch of any profession to which the civil service is so admirably applicable as it is to the profession of court reporters, and you can use my name in support of such a proposition."

Confidential

"The same sob stuff that was pulled here about probation officers cannot be invoked against this amendment," LaGuardia said.

And what did the house do about that? It voted "no," enthusiastically, uproariously. So the Civil Service Commission was repulsed all along the line, the house concurring in Representative Graham's theory that a court reporter "ought to be a confidential man with the judge."

YOUR HEALTH

First Aid For Snake Bites

By Robert T. Morris, M. D., New York

When the fangs of our American rattlesnakes and copperheads inject poison into almost any part of the body, excepting blood vessels, absorption of the poison takes place more slowly than most persons imagine.

Full effects of poison from a bite may not develop until several hours after the injury, so that there is plenty of time to place a ligature around an arm or a leg where venomous snakes strike most often. Fear usually increases the rate of heart action and thus causes more rapid dissemination of the poison. Undue haste to get to some place for treatment has a similar bad effect. Whiskey increases the rate of absorption because of stimulation of blood circulation, and is therefore dangerous.

A ligature may be made of strong cord if one is at hand or a strip may be torn from clothing and twisted into rope form if a handkerchief will not roll up long enough. It is difficult to tie a ligature just right for the alternate tightening and loosening that are required. Consequently we make use of the Spanish windlass which is this:

Tie the ligature with a square knot loosely above the bite; pick up a stick, slip one end of it under the ligature and twist the stick around until the ligature is very tightly wound up. The long end of the stick will untwist at once when released. In order to prevent that tie something else around this long end to keep it in place. At intervals of about fifteen minutes untwist the ligature and allow circulation to proceed while one counts ten. This will avert danger from gangerene which might follow complete obstruction of natural blood circulation for too long a time at one stretch. Next, and while the ligature is still in place, make a cross-cut an inch long through the skin over each puncture. Muscle pressure has a natural tendency to force venom, like any other fluid, out back through the skin punctures. The elastic skin does not allow such escape freely. It makes a sort of stop-valve. So you cut the skin in order to allow the free escape of venom which is trying to escape back through the skin punctures. All that is necessary is to make a clean cut all the way through the skin in two directions in the form of a cross. If a large blood vessel should be cut the bleeding may be controlled by pressing a finger point firmly on the spot. No one need ever die from a bleeding blood vessel if there is a finger handy to press on the spot! A cut nerve may be stitched up later by a surgeon.

Sucking the wound is commonly advised, but it adds more peril for the patient than it is worth because of danger of infection of the wound from mouth microbes. Snake venom taken into the mouth, however, is no more harmful than so much white of egg.

These are but the emergency activities. If a doctor is not available to inject serum, treat the wound etc. a complete first-aid outfit can be secured at a drug store.

YOUR INCOME TAX

How to report the return of a minor is a subject of frequent inquiry. The revenue act specifically provides that every individual that has a net income of $1,500 or over, or $3,500 or over, depending upon his marital status, shall file a return. However, whether the minor has been emancipated—allowed control of his income—by his parents and the source of the minor's income are material factors in determining how the income shall be taxed. Most minors are unemancipated. In such instances, the parent has the legal right to the minor's earnings and must include them in his return.

A minor living in the home of his parent may be emancipated. If the minor pays his board and otherwise supports himself, there is an implied emancipation. The same rule governs if the minor is carrying on a business for himself and the parent exercises no control over his earnings. Emancipation may be expressed or implied, general or limited. However, generally, and in the absence of proof to the contrary, a parent is assumed to have the legal right to the earnings of his minor child, and the minor's earnings are taxable income to the parent.

On the other hand, any income to an unemancipated minor not analogous to earnings, such as interest, dividends, rents, royalties, etc., from a bona fide trust fund or from property possessed by the minor, are not to be included in the parent's return. Instead, such income must be reported on a separate return of the minor and be taxed to him as in the case of any individual. The return is to be filed either by the minor or his parent, or by the trustee of a trust fund in behalf of the minor.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Chatterer Jumps To a Conclusion

Who to conclusions blindly jumps
Should be prepared for many bumps.
—Old Mother Nature.

To jump to a conclusion is to make up your mind in regard to something without really knowing the facts. It is to think that a thing is thus or so. Chatterer the Red Squirrel saw a black feather floating down from high up in a tree in which was the old nest of Blacky the Crow. Then Chatterer saw more than that black feather. By looking very sharply he made out a dark form well hidden by the green branches of the hemlock tree from which the feather had fallen. Instantly Chatterer knew that he was looking at Hooty the Owl. A moment later his attention was caught by a slight movement just back of the nest.

"Mrs. Hooty!" exclaimed Chatterer under his breath. "This is no place for me." He looked down. He saw more black feathers on the ground at the foot of that tree. They were feathers of a Crow. There was no question about that. Chatterer turned and taking care to make no sound he stole back until he had the trunk of the tree between him and Hooty and Mrs. Hooty. Then he ran down the trunk of the tree to the ground and scampered as fast as he could to another big tree. By this time he was sure he hadn't been seen; so then he started for home through the treetops as fast as he could go.

It was when Chatterer reached home and felt wholly safe that he began to think things over and so jumped to a conclusion. "Blacky the Crow is dead," said Chatterer to himself very solemnly. "Those feathers I saw were Blacky's feathers. That was Blacky's nest over there and Hooty the Owl, or Mrs. Hooty, caught and killed Blacky. Of course, it might be Mrs. Blacky, but somehow I feel sure it was Blacky. My, my, how we shall miss him in the Green Forest! I never did like him very well, but I'll miss him just the same. It was when Hooty caught Blacky that all those other left in such a hurry. This will be a piece of news. Blacky must have been careless. Yes sir, Blacky must have been very careless. He has had experience enough with Hooty the Owl to know how to keep out of Hooty's claws. I wouldn't have believed it."

Now, without thinking, Chatterer had been talking to himself aloud. "What is it you wouldn't have believed?" asked Sammy Jay, who had come up just in time to hear Chatterer's last words.

"Mrs. Hooty!" exclaimed Chatterer under his breath

It was on the tip of Chatterer's tongue to tell Sammy that it was none of his business; but this was big news and it was too good to keep. Besides, Blacky was a cousin of Sammy's. "Your cousin Blacky the Crow is no more," said Chatterer.

"What's that?" demanded Sammy sharply.

"I said your cousin Blacky the Crow is no more," repeated Chatterer.

"What do you mean by 'no more'?" inquired Sammy.

"I mean," replied Chaterer, "that you'll never see him again."

"Why won't I ever see him again?" persisted Sammy.

"Because," replied Chatterer, "he is inside Hooty the Owl. He was caught and eaten by Hooty."

Sammy stared long and hard at Chatterer. "Who told you all this?" he demanded. "I don't believe a word of it. Who told you all this?"

"Nobody," replied Chatterer. "If you want to see Blacky's feathers, I can tell you where you can find them."

Little Talks on Thrift

Rewards That Come From Thrift

"The first and best victory is to conquer self," said Plato. "To be conquered by self is, of all things, the most shameful and vile."

The first step in thrift is "to conquer self." Until this self-conquest has been made we will never change our habits for the better.

We may realize the folly of wastefulness and extravagance. We may wish that we might get out of the way of always being behind financially. We may realize in the honesty of our own hearts that we are doing ourselves a grave injustice by the neglect of our physical well being. We may know that we are allowing golden opportunities for self-improvement and advancement to be neglected. We may have a clear viewpoint of all of these attitudes. But until we apply the Platonian test to our rules of conduct, we are "conquered by self" which is "of all things, the most shameful and vile."

Perhaps we have not thought all the way through these personal problems. In neglecting to save money or practice other phases of thrift, we have not realized, possibly, the great harm being done to ourselves mentally and spiritually. We have thought only of the material phases.

It is well for us in this fast and fascinating era to listen across the ages to the voice of Plato, reminding us of the glory of victory over self and the shame of a conquest won by our own follies.

Those who practice thrift may rest assured that not all the values accruing to them can be measured in terms of dollars. They may find inspiration in the concept that they are gaining what is more priceless than gold—a strong character, a sturdy will.—By S. W. Straus, President American Society for Thrift.

THE GARDEN

By REX REED

John Burroughs in his last book, "Accepting the Universe," says: "It ought not to be a hard thing to accept the universe since we have no choice in the matter but I have found it worth while to look the gift in the mouth and convince myself that it is really worth accepting. It were a pity to go through life with a suspicion in one's mind that it might have been a better universe and that some wrong has been done us because we have no freedom of choice in the matter. The thought would add a tinge of bitterness to all our days. And so, after living more than four score of years in the world and pondering long and intently upon many problems which life and nature present, I have come to accept the universe, and frankly to accept that first verdict pronounced upon creation, namely, that it is very good."

John Burroughs was a lover of all outdoors and looked upon the earth as a garden of beauty. Every living thing was to him an object of interest. To him as a whole the universe was all good. It is good for all of us to get outside the sphere of our personal life, and look at things as they really are. Nowhere can some of us do this so well as we can in our gardens, and a beautiful garden, one that is symmetrical, not crowded with every variety of annual and perennial, but planted with regard to harmony of color, is a joy forever.

The art of gardening is not learned in a day, but there are certain lines and principles which underly and apply to all gardens, the simpler the lines the better. If you can have a background of shrubbery, this adds wonderfully to your garden. The masses of green for instance, of common-juniper or of arborvitae certainly accentuated the garden as nothing else can. The vivid colors of the flowers run into and blend with the green wall perfectly and you feel the restfulness and harmony begotten of plan. A few varieties well massed in relation to color are far more beautiful than many varieties planted hit and miss here and there without regard to color and harmony. No real gardener can tolerate the hit and miss method of planting a flower here and there because there is space to "chuck it in". Better throw the plant on the dump than disfigure the garden.

Now is a good time to look over catalogues and order your seeds. Make out your lists and plan your garden, having a color scheme in view. Some of the seeds you will surely need are delphinium, pyrethrum, and gaillardia. You can buy choice seed from a number of American seed houses but the best strains of delphinium come from England. It is better to order yearling clumps of delphiniums than seed, because they will bloom a few weeks after setting and again in the autumn.

Now, right now, if you have not planted your petunia seed, plant it and grow it in a cool place until you are ready to transplant it out of doors. Petunias are very hardy and will withstand dry weather better than most plants, it really loves sunshine and when grown in mass nothing excels it.

You will want to grow some sweet peas and they can be had in every shade of color. Be careful in sowing not to sow too thick for your plants will thrive better and produce more flowers if they have plenty of room.

Sow your Bismarck stocks now and they will be ready to flower in May. It would be a good thing, after transplanting and once the plant is growing, to pinch out the central spike. The plant will spread and produce a number of good spikes ready for cutting at the same time. There is nothing more satisfactory than a fine bed of stocks. They are heat and cold resistant and have such variety of color that they win their way in every gardener's heart. It is well when planting stocks to dig into the soil a moderate handful of lime as these plants need lime to develop them to their highest point.

Of course you will want to trim your borders with sweet alyssum for white, and the low growing dwarf marigold for yellow.

The finest strains of pansies are always to be used because the pansy is so cheerful and pleasant and so resistant to cold that it would not surprise me to find in your garden in some unforgotten nook pansies blooming in the snow. Last year as I rode through the pansy gardens of northern New Jersey great fields of pansies were blooming through the snow, and when I again visited them in April they were one mass of bloom. They not only bloom in the early winter but in the early spring and are beautiful as bedding plants and as welcome as the bluebirds in the spring.

If you wish salvias, they should be sown in flats this month. You will get a better stand than if you wait for later sowings.

In sowing salvia, delphinium, petunia, snap dragon or any small seed, first wet the earth thoroughly and press down the seed with a piece of lath, or shingle. It would be well to mix a little fine sand with the earth so the tiny seeds have a good opportunity to grow. Keep the flats covered with a damp burlap bag for the first few days, and when the plants show, be careful not to wet them too much as they very easily damp off, and, too, be careful they are not kept too dry. A good stand of plants is always desirable, as friends are nearly always glad to absorb the surplus of any thing you may have.

Another thing you can do at this time of the year, build some lath frames to shade your delicate plants from the heat of the summer. You know that there is no other device of the gardener equal to a lath shade for the distribution of light and shade. Place the lathes about one and a half inches apart, and any length you choose from one foot up to four feet.

Too, you will need flats to sow your seed in. You can frequently get wooden boxes which you can take down and cut to the size desired. Do not make the bottoms too tight but leave space for drainage.

Sunday Morning Talk

THE ONE SOLUTION

In Christ alone is found the panacea for all man's ills. Our only hope is in Him. Why, O why, will man not realize this. What a change it would make in our lives if we would only give Him first place. May each heart say as for me, I will be true, I will make Christ superior in my life. What joy would be ours, O if we would give our Saviour a chance to show us what He would do for and be to us, what it would mean to us. O that our eyes might be opened that we might see life in its true light.

The prayer of David, "Open thou mine eyes," should be the prayer of all, without we are blind and helpless but with His help life is not only a joy and blessing to ourselves but to all we come in contact with. When we walk with Christ all is light and our hearts are filled with a true peace which the world cannot mar or take away, which makes the simplest duties of life a privilege. May we seek this life with our whole heart knowing that if we do our part our Saviour will do His to the fullest of his promise. May it be the goal of each life to live each life wholly for him; allowing nothing in our lives that would grieve Him; looking ever to Him for guidance and strength, as our Creator, our Saviour knows and understands the human heart as none other. He can do for us as none other. We know that with Him all things are possible. We know He never misjudges and always understands. We know He appreciates our every effort for Him.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The Aspinook Company, Jewett City.

The Aspinook company, Jewett City, was organized in 1893. The moving spirit—Moses Pierce, then 85 years of age, was a typical product of New England, a venerable old patriarch with a wide variety of interests in the industrial development of New England's manufacturing, transportation and banking. Mr. Pierce had grown up in the times before the cheap generation of steam power and electrical energy, when a water power privilege was the determining factor in locating an industry. He chose the present site of The Aspinook company because of the power and abundance of pure, soft water which is a factor of prime importance to a bleachery. Mr. Pierce lived to be 93 years of age and to see his last venture operating successfully, and with an expanding market for his product.

In 1895-1896, the first full year of operation, 21,000,000 yards were finished. The present annual production is between 50,000,000 and 60,000,000 yards, with a total annual sales value of over $2,000,000.00.

The company bleaches, dyes, prints and finishes cotton, and cotton and rayon goods for such purposes as linings for men's and women's clothing, underwear fabrics, dress goods, cretonnes, glazed chints for furniture and window shades, tickings for mattresses, warp prints for bedspreads and upholstery purposes, surface print reproduction by machine of old-fashioned hand-block prints, etc. It has also developed a specialty fabric product known as "Permatex" (trademark registered in the U. S. patent office) which because it is waterproof and sunfast, is greatly in demand for coverings and cushions for porches, sun porches, curtains, card table tops, walls, etc. The Permatex finish can also be applied to imitate leather for pocketbooks, book-bindings, belts, novelties of various kinds, upholstery purposes, etc.

The present officers are: F. Colt Johnson, president; Philip S. Johnson, vice president, treasurer and manager; O. Frank Durfey, Asst. treasurer and superintendent.

DRAWS PARALLEL BETWEEN LINCOLN AND MOSES

"The two classic emancipators, Abraham Lincoln and Moses, signify for us the abiding power of humility, the magnificent driving force of faith and to our deep regret the frustration that comes with death that shuts off the hero from his achievement," said Rabbi Ira Eisenstein of New York city, a student at the Jewish Theological seminary, in an earnest sermon before a congregation of 400 at the service of the Norwich Community Synagogue Friday evening at the B'nai B'rith rooms.

"It is a thrilling thing to recall that Lincoln trod upon the soil of Norwich just 70 years ago, to be exact, on March 5, 1860, and with the thrill that comes with such a recollection we feel the deep identity with Moses," declared the rabbi. "Both rose from humble station, both regarded their careers as the handiwork of God rather than their own and most significant of all both conceived of freedom in its truest sense, namely, emancipation from the bonds that restrain, together with another enslavement, this time to a great ideal. 'The New Birth of Freedom,' which Lincoln prayed for at Gettysburg, was the freedom that exchanged the bonds of physical and spiritual slavery for the new bonds that made one the proud slave of spiritual, cultural, religious aspiration."

Abner Schwartz president of the synagogue, again urged the congregation to make every effort to have the opening dinner, which will inaugurate the campaign for funds for the purchase of the Community house, a decided success.

ONE IN CELL AND ONE IN HOSPITAL AFTER TROLLEY-AUTOMOBILE COLLISION

Stanley Grobofski, of 46 Canal street, Jewett City, and Michael Jennett, P. O. Box 1304, Jewett City, were but slightly injured, when the automobile in which they were riding plunged head-on into a trolley car on Norwich avenue, Taftville, near the Ponemah Wheel club early Friday evening.

As a result of the crash Grobofski, driver of the machine, was arrested on a charge of operation under the influence of liquor, while the other man was charged with intoxication. They will be tried in the city court this (Saturday) morning. The arrests were made by State Police Officers Arthur Whitmarsh and Murphy of the Groton barracks, who investigated.

The trolley, which was in charge of Motorman Winthrop Abel, was proceeding toward Norwich, while the machine was headed in the opposite direction. They came together head-on near the Ponemah Wheel club with such force that the driver, Grobofski, was thrown through the windshield of the machine and landed in the highway. The brunt of the damage was received by the automobile, which had the appearance of an accordion after the collision.

The two men were taken in a machine to the W. W. Backus hospital, where they were examined and found to be suffering from only minor cuts and bruises about the face. The two investigating officers brought Grobofski to local police headquarters from the hospital and lodged him in a cell where he will await trial in the morning. Jennett was retained at the institution, but will be discharged in the morning in time for court hearing.

On Reckless Driving Charge.

While the officers were making an investigation of the accident, in sight of a large crowd, a machine came along at an excessive rate of speed and narrowly escaped hitting a number of the bystanders. The automobile was stopped by Officer Whitmarsh and the driver, Harold L. Talbot, 29, of Montville, who some time ago received the sobriquet of "The Fighting Motorman," while engaged in the amateur fisticuffs war, was arrested on a charge of reckless driving. He also will appear in the city court this (Saturday) morning to answer to this charge.

On Tannery Curve.

Slippery conditions in the streets, resulting from the freezing of the light rain that was falling, accounted for a number of minor accidents. At the tannery curve on North Main street there were several collisions, machines sliding into each other or into trolley cars as they rounded this point. Several minor smash-ups were also reported on the Montville road.

FOUR TEACHERS IN FIVE MONTHS FOR BOLTON SCHOOL

Over on Birch mountain in Bolton there is a little one-room school. It is just the type of school that the old timers would rave over because of it resemblance to the schools of their youth. But times have changed, possibly not with the pupils, but certainly with the modern teachers, says a Connecticut paper.

The Birch mountain school has had four teachers since school opened last September, three normal school graduates and one training teacher. Birch mountain is not exactly lively at night and the first three girls, accustomed to reasonably bright lights, music and social activities, departed in order.

The first teacher, a graduate of the Willimantic Normal school, came from Norwich. She stayed until Christmas, by which time she was ready to give up the Birch mountain district school. She obtained a transfer to another school and another teacher came. The new teacher, also a graduate of Willimantic Normal, lived in New London. There was absolutely no comparison with the seaport city and the Bolton hills and teacher No. 2 departed.

Ansonia produced the third schoolma'm, a graduate of Danbury Normal, and she went the way of the others and for the same reason. At this point a departure was made and a small town teacher was employed by the superintendent. Her home was in Stonington where they make tar soap and do some fishing in the winter. She appears to be a fixture, at least until June, because she has had a year's training in a rural school and seems to like it, after two weeks on the job up to date.

MASON 104 YEARS OLD JOINED IN JEWETT CITY

Leprelet M. Logee, who joined the Masonic order in Jewett City in 1871, when he was 45 years old, observed his 104th birthday on Wednesday of this week at the Masonic home in Charlton, Mass., entertaining the Most Worshipful, Herbert W. Dean, grand master of Masons in Massachusetts, and other Masonic dignitaries as his guests.

Mr. Logee, who is a native of Burrillville, R. I., is at present a member of Granite lodge of Whitinsville, Mass.

There now appears to be little doubt that Mr. Logee is the oldest Mason in the world, and from the way he conducted himself during the visit, the goal of 110 years of life, which he has set for himself, apparently is well within his reach.

The observance of the birthday began Tuesday night when the "Charltonians," an amateur theatrical organization of the Charlton Methodist church, presented a minstrel show at the home in honor of Mr. Logee.

Tuesday the centenarian received many gifts and messages, among them a letter of congratulation from Governor Frank G. Allen of Massachusetts. A birthday cake with 104 candles graced his table in the dining hall.

Among the guests at Mr. Logee's celebration were the worshipful master and officers of Granite lodge of Whitinsville.

He is still active and maintains his interest in events of the day.

He does not believe in prohibition, and his pipe remains his chief solace.

The body was placed before the main altar where it was viewed by hundreds who filled the edifice. The church decorations are in purple. Friday night at 8 o'clock the priests assembled to chant their office for the dead and then all through the night vigil was kept by members of the Fourth degree, Rev. Flynn, chancellor of the diocese, and Rev. Francis P. Keough, assistant chancellor, will have charge of the ceremonies.

Friday morning at 7 o'clock another public requiem mass for the soul of Father Keefe was offered by his curate, Rev. Frederick M. Coholan, and it being the first Friday of the month the entire congregation received holy communion for the soul of their pastor, a practice which the late priest often urged his people to follow. At 5 o'clock Father Coholan gave holy communion to a large number of the early workers who remembered their late pastor in this manner.

NO TROUBLE AT ALL NOW

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Has Benefited This Woman

Millions today are eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN—guaranteed to relieve both temporary and recurring constipation.

The cause of constipation is the lack of roughage in food. Add sufficient roughage and constipation disappears. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is nearly all roughage.

Here is a letter from Mrs. H. Gilbert, 107 E. Knight Ave., Collingswood, N. J., which will be interesting to many sufferers:

"I had a very serious operation in October and when I came from the hospital my main trouble was constipation. One day I said to the doctor, 'I am going to eat ALL-BRAN,' and since I started I have no trouble whatever. So you see I can't praise it enough and am always telling my friends what it did for me."

You will enjoy the nut-like flavor of this delicious, ready-to-eat cereal. It is rich in iron, and when eaten with milk or fruit juices, adds important vitamins to the diet.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is an essential in any reducing diet. It means every-day health to people all over the world. Your grocer has it in the red-and-green package. Served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

POETRY

A Calendar Romance

Our hero was the common sort, when all is said and done;
He worked his head off daily and [illegible]
  out to get the MON.
The reason for his diligence was commonplace, 'tis true—
He tried to swell his salary so it would suffice for TUE.
And maybe that's the reason why one day he lost his head,
And falling on his knees, he said,
  "O, maiden wilt thou WED?"
He may have thought this sudden, but it seemed not so to her;
She lisped a quick acceptance and said forcibly "Yeth THUR."
But when they went to keep house, he feared that he would die;
For, oh, that modern maiden could neither bake nor FRI.
She could not run a bungalow, or even run a flat,
So on many sad occasions in a restaurant they SAT.
But he forgave her everything —as man has always done,
When she presented him one day a bouncing baby SUN.

—Border Cities Star.

A Florist's Window

Pale lilies there and roses red,
  A few forced violets;
My heart lost all its dreariness
  And all its worries, frets.

Pale lilies there, carnations pink
  And tulips golden-bright;
My body lost its tired and pain
  Because of that fair sight.

Pale lilies there, and hyacinths
  Shown gaily through the snow;
That sight in chill December gave
  My heart new warmth and glow.

I saw it passing at a glance,
  My worries slipped away;
A florist's window gave me strength
  To live another day.

The fact that she found a police tag on her sedan was worth $5 to a Bank (Mo.) woman. She was considerably put out to find that her car had been bumped. The rear left mudguard was dented. Her feelings were not improved as she entered the car, and found the police tag. But at the police station, instead of a warning or worse, she received a $5 bill to pay for the damage to her car. The local motorist, who left the money, was C. E. Pike, of Prides Crossing. The policemen who found the way to have the money turned over was John H. Platt.

CONNIE MACK LOOKS FOR KEEN COMPETITION IN 1930 PENNANT RACE

MOUNT PLYMOUTH, Fla., Feb. 7—(AP)—Connie Mack, manager of the World Champion Athletics, believes "it's going to be a hard fight for us this year." He said so today between growls about the weather that kept him off the golf course.

"Those Yankees are going to be in there fighting hard. So are the Cleveland and St. Louis teams. But I think it's going to be the Yanks that will give us the real competion. They lost last year because they were over-confident.

"They had been winning regularly and just got careless. This year they are going to see revenge."

Asked if he contemplated any changes this year in his last season's lineup, Mack was quick to reply, "No siree. The team was mighty good last year and we're going to leave it that way. Of course, we have a few new men—utility men, I call them—but the regular squad will be kept intact. We traded Hale, third baseman, for Schang, and also sold French, the outfielder."

Grove, Walberg and Earnshaw will be the pitching mainstays, Mack said with about seven supporting box men.

Mack said Cochrane, Perkins and Schang would again be seen in action behind the plate this year with Foxx at first, Bishop at second, Boley at shortstop and Dykes at third base. Miller, Haas and Simmons, all veterans from last year, will make up the Athletics' outfield this season.

Mack indicated that if there were any holdouts this year they were not worrying him.

The Athletics open their regular season with the New York Yankees at Philadelphia on April 15, to be followed by a three-game series there with Washington, before they take to the road for another series with the Yankees at New York.

Tony Butler of Corpus Christi, paired with John Kattmann of Houston, Herman Barron, Port Chester, N. Y., and Loew Pollock of Austin; Tony Creavy of New York and Jack Spear of Houston; Jack Burke, Houston and George "Runt" Young, Houston and Frank Walsh, Chicago and Jack Dodd, Houston, all had totals of four under perfect golf.

Lew Waldron of Boston, and R. S. Bayless, Houston and Tony Manero, Elmsford, N. Y., and George Rotan, Houston were the other two teams who also had 69.

The victory for Wood and Cox means $87.50 each as they will split first and second money of $175. The pros in teams in a tie for third, five in all, will collect checks for $10 when the prize money is handed out Sunday night after play in the 72 hole Houston open is completed.

MONTVILLE HAS LITTLE DIFFICULTY WITH ALL-STARS

Asserting their superiority with a vengeance in the second half, the Montville Aces trimmed Christy's All Stars of this city Friday evening at Montville by a score of 59 to 37.

It was a close game for the first half, at the conclusion of which the Aces were leading by four points, 24 to 20 but during the next two periods they put on pressure and moved rapidly away from their opponents. The All Stars had a brief reign of glory in the first quarter when they piled up a 12 to 4 lead, which was overcome soon after the second stanza commenced.

McDermott and Morosky played brilliant basketball for Montville, scoring 46 points between them while Long chipped in with the other 13. Rizzuto and Valgares led the Norwich scorers.

W. F. CARTER APPOINTED TO BROOKLYN BOARD OF DIRECTORS

NEW YORK, Feb. 7—(AP)—As part of the peace pact in Brooklyn's baseball family affairs, President Heydler of the National league, today named Walter F. Carter, famous old Yale pitcher and now a prominent lawyer, to serve as the fifth member of the club's board of directors.

Baseball men greeted the appointment as a happy selection in the concerted move to straighten out Brooklyn's tangled affairs. Mr. Carter has never been connected heretofore with organized baseball.

Mr. Carter completes the new Brooklyn directorate, the other members of which are Frank B. York, the new president and S. W. McKeever, representing one faction of interests; Joseph Gilleaudeau and Harry Demott, representing the Ebbets interests. They will hold their first meeting tomorrow since arbitration by the National league resulted in the compromise to name York as president and Wilbert Robinson, as manager for two more years.

BOB WALSH SIGNED AS PITCHER FOR YANKEES

NEW YORK, Feb. 7—(AP)—The New York Yankees today announced the signing of Robert E. Walsh, son of "Big Ed" Walsh, former ace of the White Sox pitching staff. Young Walsh, who is 23 years old, six feet, four inches tall and weighs 205 pounds, will report to Manager Shawkey with the first Yankee squad.

Since his brother, Ed Walsh, Jr., left the University of Notre Dame to join the White Sox, young Robert has been a Notre Dame pitching star. Taught many of the tricks of the pitching trade, by their accomplished father, before they entered college, the two boys have been stars in intercollegiate baseball.

Robert Walsh is said to combine ability to hit with his pitching skill and some scouts have suggested that he would be a success as a major league outfielder, if his pitching should fail to meet the exacting requirements of the big time.

RYAN MAY BE LOST TO AGGIE BASKETBALL

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Feb. 7.— Captain Ray Ryan, mainstay of the Aggie basketball team, and one of the greatest all-round athletes in the history of the State college, may be lost to the Connecticut five in their contest with the University of New Hampshire, at Durham, Saturday night. Captain Ryan, who suffered an injury to his back in the Holy Cross game Wednesday at Storrs, had an examination this afternoon, and x-ray pictures taken. Ryan's injury was at first thought to be slight but has since given him some trouble. If the star forward is not able to play at Durham Saturday, it will materially affect his team's chances of winning as he has made a large percentage of the points scored by the Aggies this season.

Mgr. Sullivan Talks

Sporting Editor: I noticed that the manager of the Army-Navy basketball team is still in a dream concerning that basketball game he claimed was scheduled for Feb. 4th. Where does he get that stuff? He also stated that my players discussed such a game. I wish to state that most of the discussion came from some of his own so-called basketball players. As to the lineup being too strong, I think that some of his supporters are giving out, and think we have nothing to worry about. I think that my club is as fast as the one that he has picked out. I would like to know who is this board of strategy that the manager of the Army-Navy team talks about. I see where he again refused to sign his name to the letter although he claims he is not afraid. Why don't he come out like a man and let the fans know who is the manager of that team. As for accepting the challenge we are waiting until he comes out with names so that we will know how to make the arrangements with his team of world-beaters and try to take some of the conceit away from them.

PAT SULLIVAN,
Mgr. Shyms Basketball Team.

When you see a misspelled word on an advertising placard in a window what is your reaction?

Is it pity for the proprietor? Do you laugh or do you just give him the benefit of the doubt and say it's just another mistake?

Does it influence you in your decision to trade at that store? It shouldn't because you can get as good a bargain from a man who can't spell "cat" as you can from the English scholar.

But really it's surprising the number of mistakes in spelling and grammar you see on advertising signs in the local store windows.

A local store advertises "hoisery" for sale.

Another store announces the fact that it has fresh "layed" eggs for its customers.

A fruit store tells the public that "chickery" can be had there.

Still another fruit store advertises its lettuce as being crisp and "tenter.

The sign writer in another store always makes an S the wrong way.

Another store makes sure of the price by writing it this way: "$.25c".

And there's lots of others you'll observe if you watch the advertising signs. But on the whole it may not be such a bad idea at that.

It certainly attracts attention. And look at this piece if there hadn't been any errors in those signs I never would have mentioned them.

These may be termed profitable mistakes.

HUNTER BATTLES FOR TITLE WITH SELIGSON

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—(AP)—Frank Hunter and Julius Seligson, two of the hardest drivers in the game, reached the final round of the National Indoor Tennis tournament today and tomorrow will fight it out for the championship.

Hunter, the New Rochelle, N. Y., veteran, who is ranked second only to Bill Tilden in the country, is heavily favored to win and capture the title he held eight years ago, as he and the Lehigh collegian have met four times in the past and Seligson never has won.

Youth is on Seligson's side, however, and he demonstrated in the semi-finals this afternoon that he is close to his great form of 1928 when he won the Intercollegiate championship and a ranking of ninth in the National.

Both players reached the final to the tune of straight set victories. Arrayed against J. Gilbert Hall of South Orange, N. J., former Canadian indoor champion and a particularly formidable opponent on hardwood courts, Seligson was given somewhat less than an even chance to win. But so powerful was his service and so fierce his driving off forehand and backhand that he won by the decisive scores of 6-4, 7-5, 6-2.

Hunter was easily the master in his semi-final match with Perrine Rockafellow of New York and hammered his way to victory at 6-2, 6-1, 7-5.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 7—(AP)—Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight world's champion pugilist, who returned here today with his wife, Estelle Taylor of the films, for a fortnight's sojourn in southern California criticised the matching at Miami of Phil Scott and Jack Sharkey.

Dempsey said the Britisher had done nothing to entitle him a fight with Sharkey, and that he believed Otto Von Porat would have knocked Scott out in their battle in New York, had not Dempsey been forced to award the decision to Scott on a foul.

The former champion said he had no plans for entering the boxing game here, that he had come west to celebrate his fifth wedding anniversary and attend to some business matters.

To friends several weeks ago Grimes pointed to the comparative records of himself and Dazzy Vance, Brooklyn moundsman and a $25,000 a year man.

Grimes briefly touched on the subject at a sport writers banquet here last night. He said "I hear Mr. Dreyfuss says his club wants to be fair and, since I want to be fair, I guess things will turn out all right."

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

MILD WINTER KEEPS FRUIT TREES FROM NEEDED REST

Severe winters in the north usually mean short crops, but with peaches in Georgia and apples southward from Virginia, the rule works just the other way. This is because temperate-zone fruit trees require a definite amount of cold weather during which certain changes are carried on which prepare them for growth in the spring. This period of "rest," which is so definitely required for many trees and plants, is really therefore a period of slight but important changes in the trees.

Dr. M. B. Waite, of the United States department of agriculture, observed many years ago, that our northern fruits, such as the peach, when cultivated too far south in Georgia, frequently exhibit symptoms of delayed growth in the spring, attributed to lack of sufficient resting period. Dr. Lee M. Hutchins, of the same department, has recently observed the same phenomena and points out that as a rule, in about one year in five, the mild winters of Georgia do not give peach trees the required amount of resting period, and the result is what peach growers call "prolonged dormancy." When this happens, peach trees in the lower portion of the state fail to bloom at their regular time. Finally they bloom, from a week to several weeks late.

This disturbance may interfere with the setting of the fruit, and the ripening of the fruit may also be thrown off schedule and come in with the crop in other parts of the state farther north, which tends to make an overcrowded market.

Albany is given by Dr. Hutchins as about the southern limit for the commercial production of our standard varieties of peaches. South of this limit the trees during most winters do not get enough cold weather for maximum production. The same principle applies to apples in a zone much farther north.

MICHIGAN'S 9-YEAR FIGHT ON BOVINE T. B. NEARS END

LANSING, Mich. —(AP)— Federal veterinarians are working themselves out of a job in Michigan, where a nine-year battle against bovine tuberculosis has been waged.

The crusade has been so effective that the original force of 14 men engaged in the work has dwindled to one.

As a result of their work, Michigan, when the job is finished in June, will be the first of the major dairy states to complete the task.

The eradication work has cost the federal government $4,626,029, but dairymen estimate the increased value of dairy cows, resulting from the work, at $15,000,000.

STARVING BABY CHICKS IS FOUND UNNECESSARY

The popular belief that baby chicks should be starved for the first 48 or 72 hours to prevent bowel trouble has finally given way to scientific knowledge. It is now known that early feeding is not harmful. However, neither does delayed feeding seem to be harmful.

Experiments conducted by Burt W. Heywang and Dr. M. A. Jull, poultry specialist of the United States department of agriculture, to determine the effect of early feeding on the absorption of the egg yolk which is usually present in the body of the chick when hatched show that early feeding actually tends to stimulate slightly the rate of yolk assimilation. Feeding starch grain caused more rapid assimilation than feed mash.

As a result of these experiments Dr. Jull points out, poultry raisers now have unbiased facts to guide them in the management of baby chicks. Under normal conditions the best thing to do is feed them early. If there is some special reason for withholding food for the first two or three days, this can be done without running the risk of stunting the chicks. Baby chicks shipped by parcel post or by express probably should not be fed before being shipped, Dr. Jull says.

PORK RAISED BY TEXANS FOR SEVEN CENTS POUND

COLLEGE STATION, Tex.—(AP)—Pork can be produced and put on the market for 7 cents a pound, experiments at Texas A. and M. college reveal.

Not only that but records of the school's extension service show that hogs thus furnished a market for farm-grown corn and grain sorghums that is from 25 to 50 per cent higher than the cash market affords.

Records of demonstrators tell how a well-fed pig, marketed when weighing about 200 pounds, represents a total investment of about 7 cents a pound, including original costs, feed and labor.

Figuring profits in terms of what hogs paid for their feed, corn feed to these hogs brought an average of $1.60 a bushel.

LARGE PROFIT IN TURNIPS FOUND BY POTATO GROWERS

MUSKOGEE, Okla.—(AP)—Quite by accident, potato growers in this section of Oklahoma have discovered that turnip production is profitable.

Several farmers sowed turnips, intending to plow them under for fertilizer. They produced in such quantities that the farmers marketed them. More than 150 carloads were sent to northern markets.

In addition to bringing heavier revenue than potatoes, the turnip crop gave employment to hundreds of extra men. About half the turnips produced were too large for commercial consumption, so they are to be replanted for fertilizer.

NEW USES FOR SOYBEANS DISCUSSED IN BULLETIN

Increased utilization of soybeans in the last ten years has resulted in a rapid increase in acreage and production, and has advanced the crop to a position of major importance in American agriculture. The soybean was brought to the United States from Japan and has been known here for the last 100 years. However, it is only within recent years that its real value has been recognized. It is now grown in most of the states in the eastern part of the country.

The principal use of soybeans in the United States has been as a feed for livestock. Recently, however, attention has been given to the extraction of a valuable oil contained in the seed. Another use for soybeans in this country is as a human food. These beans have been utilized for many centuries by the people of oriental countries and indications point to their wider use here as human food.

With the increased production of soybeans, definite knowledge of their feeding value for livestock was needed, and several of the state experiment stations conducted feeding tests with all kinds of livestock. Results of a number of these tests are summarized and included in a new publication of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Farmers' Bulletin No. 1617-F, "Soybean Utilization."

As a feed for livestock, the bulletin says, soybeans offer a wide range of uses. The feeding value of the seed compares favorably with that of other concentrated feeds. Soybean hay, it has been found, may be fed profitably to all kinds of livestock. As a forage crop soybeans may be used as hay, mixed with corn and used for silage, cut and fed green, or pastured.

A feeding test at the Iowa station illustrates the value of soybeans as a feed for dairy cattle. In this test cracked soybeans proved to be worth $60 a ton when old process linseed meal was worth $45 a ton. The beans were palatable the report says, and had no harmful effects on the cows.

The oil content of soybeans seed has been the basis of a new industry in sections of the country where the beans are grown extensively. Several mills in the mid-western and southern states are now crushing domestic-grown beans for oil and meal. Many cottonseed oil mills in the south have been equipped to crush soybeans.

The soybean is a legume, and is used as a soil-building crop in sections of the south and middle west, where the soils are acid and the clovers do not grow well. It has almost displaced the "cowpea" or field pea as a soil improvement and hay crop in parts of the south.

NEW SPRAY PROMISES CONTROL OF BACTERIAL SPOT OF PEACH

A new spray containing zinc and lime which promises to give commercial control of bacterial spot of peaches has been developed by the United States department of agriculture. This discovery is especially important, since this is the first time, so far as known, that bacterial disease of fruits has been brought under direct control by spraying.

Bacterial spot has been known to plant-disease specialists for about 20 years, but it is only within the past 10 or 12 years that the disease has become seriously destructive over extensive areas. It occurs in practically all peach sections of the eastern half of the country, but causes serious loss mainly in sections in which the soils are light and comparatively low in fertility.

Tests carried on in southern Indiana and in Arkansas have shown that six applications of the spray at intervals of two weeks, beginning at "petal fall," greatly decrease the effects of the disease with no injury to fruit or foliage. In addition there was a stimulation which resulted in larger and darker green leaves. It was found also that lead arsenate might be used in connection with this material, thus reducing labor costs.

The spray solution is prepared by using four pounds of zinc sulphate, four pounds of hydrated lime, and 50 gallons of water. One pound of aluminum sulphate may be added where agitation is poor or entirely lacking, as this helps to keep the material in suspension.

One of the first recommendations in the control of bacterial spot of peaches is to keep the orchard in a high state of vigor through good cultivation, pruning, fertilization, control of borers, etc. In spraying it is necessary to cover the fruit and the under side of the leaves thoroughly.

Had I Loved Less

Had I not shewn my heart
He might have cared for me;
For silence is an art,
And love a mystery.

I gave him all my love
And told him in a letter;
Had I not shown my heart
He might have loved me better.

The birds that sing at dawn
Their happiness reveal;
They know no mortal bounds
Ah! Hopes of youth are real.

Across the sands of time
In all my eagerness
I would have won his love
If—I had loved him less.

Miss Gresham's Valentine

One February's fourteenth day
Miss Gresham, gaunt, and grim, and gray,
Locked fast her bedroom door.
Then, furtively, as though with shame
At secret, sentimental aim,
An age worn packet with her name
She drew from bureau drawer.

The faded ribbon withered hands
Untied, and, loosened from its bands,
Out-dropped old valentines:
In each some tender sentiment
With hearts and cupids deftly blent
Upon the embossed page—a'vent
To ardent love the lines!

"Thy golden tresses"—"bright blue eyes"—
"Affection true that change defies;"—
The old maid softly wept
As phrase by phrase she read them o'er,
Her valentines, full half a score
That, twenty weary years or more,
She had so fondly kept.

"The gold is silver now, dear heart,"
She whispered:—"brightness has no part
In these dull orbs of mine;
For me,—who thrust thy love aside
In haughty anger, wilful pride,—
Me, stranded wreck from fortune's tide,

So saying band of faded blue
She tied in "lover's knot" so true
About her valentines.
"O sailor laddie, good and brave,
In dreamless slumber 'neath the wave,
Still, still, above they ocean grave
One star of memory shines!"

A rap upon the door. "Who's there?"—
"The maid, Miss Gresham. Down the stair
A visitor for you."—
"A visitor? Who may it be?"—
He gave no card, but said to me
A captain who was lost at sea,
Returns with shipwrecked crew."

Four clasping hands, two hearts that beat
In rhythm with love's music sweet,—
Forgotten all the past.
Time, hardship, trial—on each face
These foes of youth have left their trace.
Yet he finds beauty, she sees grace,—
One thought: "We meet at last!"

Stairs and Stars

Stairs and stars—one small letter makes the difference.
Stairs are made to climb by, Stars to see and reach to;
Each day is like a stair, our hopes and aims like stars,
Upward we toil our way into God's vaulted blue.

Each friendly smile and deed, each kindly spoken word,
Are well-worn treads upon that upward-striving stair;
Each thankful thought and prayer, each lilt of love and praise,
Bring us nearer to our stars, so far and golden-fair.

Thus day by day, slow stair on stair, we live our span,
Till comes the final night—the stars burn bright and close;
Our stairs have reached the stars—and merged—stairs and stars are God's,
And in His all-wise glowing heart our souls repose.

Laughtertown

Would ye learn the road to Laughtertown,
O ye who have lost the way
Would ye have young heart though your hair be gray?
Go learn from a little child each day,
Go serve his wants and play his play
And follow his dancing feet as they stray
For he knows the road to Laughtertown
O ye who have lost the way.

INTERESTED IN GARDENING

To the Social Corner:

Pisces: Many thanks for your interesting letter of February 1st. Please write one every week on the same subject.

I hope the trundle bed writers will switch off on to a new subject soon. Irva Lynn is very clever in canning milk but I think I will pass that economy up.

Good for Betsy Bobbett. I join her in hoping to hear from other garden hobby riders but am more interested in growing vegetables as I don't have much luck with flowers. I take Better Homes and Gardens and the Country Gentleman—two very good but inexpensive helps.

I don't belong to any of the clubs and have never attended any of their meetings. I don't go about much socially anyway and write to the Social Corner very seldom. GERTRUDE

AN INQUIRY OR TWO

Dear Social Corner Members: How nice it is to receive a paper from a member and to see your letter in print. Thank you, Aries, for it.

When I see the name Aries and Pisces it makes me think of the astrology that I have been studying lately. It is most interesting to me. I wonder if Aries and Pisces believe in it at all. Will you write and tell us members if you do?

So Betsy Bobbett likes poems about flowers. I will try to send one soon.

I do not know L. T. H., Club 2, but one may be able to find out who "June" is some day. I will tell you something, I am a married woman who is trying to do good all the way along and have many home duties also to do, but is always willing to help out in case of sickness or trouble, when I can.

SOCIAL CORNER EVENTS

Feb. 11—Club No. 2 meets in Buckingham Memorial.

Feb. 12—Donation day at Club No. 1's meeting in Chamber of Commerce rooms, Willimantic.

Will Aries, when she next writes, tell me what club I belong to? I have forgotten so soon, but will write it down next time.

Don't you think it would be kind of nice to have folk write what state they write from? You would know more about what to write about, and really I think it would be more interesting. I feel that I am the only one that has the name of the state in her pen name.

I wonder if the readers like love poems? Will some of the members write in and tell what kind of poems they like best? I will send a love poem this time. JANE OF R. I.

WINTER IN THE PARK

Dear Social Corner Sisters: We are having all kinds of weather but spring will soon be here and we will then wonder where the winter has gone.

I went down to Roger Williams park last Sunday afternoon. It is a lovely ride, especially if you go one way and come back another. The children were having a splendid time sliding down hill and skating. It makes a fine, safe place for them to play. Then in the Art museum there are many interesting exhibits. But to really see it all, and enjoy it, I would like to go down there and spend the whole day when the flowers are in bloom.

At the last meeting we missed a lot of the sisters, as the weather was bad and some were sick. I hope that they are better now. We always have a good time if Sumac is around. She is so full of pep.

Milky Way: I hope that you had a nice trip to Norwich Thursday. It surely was some day. I thought of you and hoped that you did not have to go alone.

With best wishes,
COONIE (No. 6)

A CORRECTION

Dear Readers of the Social Corner: What a difference one little letter in a word makes in a meaning of a sentence! It is senseless to the reader and very embarrasing to the writer, so I am asking our editor to reprint the sentence. The misprint is at the end of the last paragraph of last week's letter. It is printed, "This idea may prove valuable to some one who is saving kitchen pinks." It should be, "This idea may prove valuable to some one who is saving "kitchen kinks."

Yesterday I made Cenzi's Martha Washington cake and it came out fine. Plates were passed for the second helping. It seems as though we ought to read a letter from Stranger-in-the-City. She must be nicely settled by now.

I have made three of those perplexing, 20-sided pinballs. I had quite a time putting the first two together, took them apart three times, would lay the work aside for a couple of days until my nerves came back to normal then pick it up and try it again. Finally I conquered. So my third one went together with out any trouble—and I found too, I could sew most of the pieces on the wrong side and turn them, but please don't ask about the stitches on the first two.

Some one has mentioned the approach of the longer dresses. I, for one, am pleased with the new style. For a person like me with more angles than curves it is more becoming to have the dress four inches below the knee than—well—seemingly there was no restriction before. The limit was in accordance with the individual's taste. Now I must close this letter before it gets to be an essay. I intended when I started to write, to have only the misprint corrected, but here I have rambled along, been "spoony" with Martha Washington's cake, "played ball, pinball," "stepped into one of those longer dresses so before this gets monotonous, I'll close with a written quotation and put on my hat and coat and go down street. "Just the art of being kind, is what a sad world needs. A kind act is a good seed sown."

BIRTHDAY THIS MONTH

Dear Social Corner Friends: It has become a habit with me, as I believe it has with many others, to lay aside anything which might prove helpful to our Social Corner membership and embody it in a letter to our page as opportunity offered. Yesterday a friend left a copy of the Boston Post with me, a newspaper I seldom see. Glancing over its many pages I was attracted by the heading, "Poems for Your Scrap Book." Below appeared the last two verses of "How You Played the Game," by Grantland Rice, these being published in response to several requests for them. Perhaps they are familiar to some of you but I had never seen them before and I give them here, for I think they are wonderfully inspiring. I know I need them and I feel sure many of my Corner sisters do.

"You'll find the road is long and rough with soft spots far apart,
Where only those can make the grade
who have the Uphill Heart.
And when they stop you with a thud
or halt you with a crack,
Let courage call the signals as you keep on coming back.

"Keep coming back, and though the world may romp across your spine
Let every game's end find you still up on the battling line;
For when the One Great Scorer comes to mark against your name,
He writes not that you won or lost—
but how you played the Game."

The line that sticks closest with me is the second: "Where only those can make the grade who have the uphill Heart." And I would stress in this letter the last three words of this line, "the uphill heart." What a priceless possession. It has been the uphill heart in people that has kept this world in the way of progress.

During this month we celebrate the birthdays of two men whom we call our first countrymen, Washington and Lincoln. They really were too great to be ours alone—they belong to the world. In full measure each of these had this uphill heart of which the poet writes. Without it neither could have made the grade, with it the greatest obstacles became but stepping stones in the path of accomplishment.

There is another birthday which occurs in this month which I want to mention, otherwise I should feel recreant to both privilege and duty. This is the birthday of Susan B. Anthony, author of the 19th or Anthony amendment to our Constitution which gave the ballot of the women to America. She, too, was the possessor of the uphill heart without which her courage must have faltered during the Valley Forges of her experience. I get so weary of hearing people sing the changes on that worn out theme—the good old times, and the more we read of the past the more plainly do we realize that the old timers were not so good after all. Unless one reads the extracts from the newspapers in the earlier years of the fight for equal suffrage one wouldn't think it possible that editors and others would have so dishonored themselves as to put into print such scurrilous articles. But that is past now.

Many people have been reading Harry Lauder's autobiography, "Roamin' in the Gloamin." It is a fascinating book, filled with the struggles of his poverty stricken youth, his early attempts at getting a chance to entertain with his songs, reminiscences of travel all over the world in the years after he had made good, his acquaintance with some of our presidents and other great ones of earth, his happy family life and the crushing sorrow that came to him in the death of his son, Captain John Lauder, who was killed in France during the World war. It was then, more than ever before, that the uphill heart in him manifested itself. Among the soldier boys he went and sang his songs to entertain them and wherever he could be of help to the cause Sir Harry was seen "smilin' through."

I know that our Corner has many members who are making the grade in spite of discouragement and trial. Their names may not appear on the front pages of city newspapers but their influence is as irresistable as is the incoming tide. With greetings to you all. EVELINE BURR

LIKES OUTDOOR PASTIMES

Dear Editor and Social Corner Folks: I guess it is about time I crawled out and said hello to everybody.

How fast the winter is going. Just think we are now having our shortest month and the one nearest to spring. Let us all try to enjoy the rest of the winter as much as we can.

I have been out sliding down hill two afternoons and hope to some more.

Maisie and Anona: When it comes good sliding again come down and join me and I will serve refreshments after.

I like to go on hikes over the hills and through the woods, as I can find so many interesting things.

I did both washing and ironing today so perhaps I can go on a hike tomorrow, although I have a lot of sewing waiting for me.

Betsy Bobbett: If your Chinese-forget-me-nots self sowed like mine did last year, you will have enough plants to supply the neigbors for miles around. I think the blossoms are a beautiful shade and mix in bouquets so prettily.

Theoda: I think it is about time I got some soil ready for pepper seeds as it takes so long for them to come up. Every one please take notice that Club No. 1's next meeting will be the 12th in the Chamber of Commerce rooms in Willimantic. As it is Donation day we hope to see a good crowd. Everyone that can put your best foot forward and come along, and we will try and give you a hearty time. With best wishes to all from WISTERIA.

THE OLD LOG CABIN

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: Our sister Wiltwyck makes the inquiry, who has seen a log cabin? I suppose she means one that was originally occupied and used for a home by some of our early settlers. Well, in August, I, for one, can respond that I have. In August, 1888, I went with a girl friend to visit friends in Rome, N. Y., and while there, one day we went on a long ride with horses and carriage, back into the country (as they called it). I do not remember the exact location, but as near as I can recall it, in the vicinity of a little village called Northwestern, Oneida county, we were shown an old log cabin, but which was vacated long before. It certainly had every appearance of being genuine as on early homestead.

When I was in Plymouth, Mass., in 1921 attending the tercentury celebration there, I saw a reproduction of a log cabin that was made to resemble those built by the Pilgrims. It was very close to the site where the first cabin had stood. It was quite interesting to see even only a substitute for the thousands of people who viewed it. There was also another log cabin used for a restaurant on Main street and while the outside was antique in style, the inside was very modern and up-to-date service, for I enjoyed a fine dinner in there. During the Pan American Exposition in Buffalo, N. Y., in 1901, I had the pleasure of being there, and among the many things to see, was a Nebraska sod house. It was built of logs with sod roof and evidently it was a sample of those homes used by the western pioneers. I had lunch in this log house also, consisting of baked beans and brown bread and coffee.

WANTS TO CAN CREAM

Social Corner Editor: In reading Saturday's paper I find one sister, Irva Lynn, writes about canning milk. I have wondered if any of the sisters had tried that. I canned 65 pints this year just as an experiment, during the cow's dry period, and so far have found it fine. Would sister, Irva Lynn, please tell how she cans the cream. I have never tried that, but would like to know how. I put up about two dozen quarts of whole milk and one day last week I opened up one to try and found about a 1-2 teacup of thick cream on top so took it off and churned it a little and I had a fair sized lump of butter sweet and nice.

I am interested in all these things because one needs to save where ever we can, and get the most out of the things we have. As I am a new member, I won't take up to much space. Glad to hear from all. STEBELIA.

MEETS MEMBERS OFTEN

Dear Social Corner Friends: When I have been trading lately, I most always see some of my Social Corner friends either in the store or on the street. The other day I saw Your Neighbor. She and her brother's wife were going to the theatre. It was down at the Wildwood park that I saw Neighbor Eveready with that beautiful hand-painted card. What a nice time we had. You would hardly know the place now with trees cut down and a nice large dance hall. It is a beautiful place in summer for a picnic, but no place to go in if it rains.

I want to thank the Social Corner Member for the little calendar. I always kept a diary until my home burned. When young people get married, I think it is nice for them to write down all of there incomes and outgoes, especially if they are on a farm. ROSALIND.

IF YOU LIKE A LETTER TELL ABOUT IT

Dear Social Corner Friends: I want to thank the good friend, who remembers us each year with a pretty calendar. What a task to send so many, and as the numbers of writers increase, so the task grows in proportion. I certainly appreciate it, spelled with a large A.

Quid Nunc: I want to tell you, too, how much I have enjoyed your letters, especially the one telling of the frost king's work. I, too, stood in front of a large store window, a short time ago, and to say the tracings on that window were a wonderful piece of art was putting it mild. From the first lacy pattern, to mammoth ferns of all description that reached the top of the window, not a blemish could be found. How I wish you were there that we might enjoy the beauty together, for I feel sure, like myself, nature appeals to you. Where did the artist find the pattern, as the window was on a business street with no foliage surrounding it? No human hand could reproduce that picture, as the early morning sun, sent its bright rays transforming every dainty line into a beautiful fairy picture in silver. Come again Quid Nunc.

By the way, why not tell our sister writers when a letter particularly appeals to us? All can not win prizes, and different letters interest different people, but it is an incentive to try again, even if we ourselves feel our own contributions are unworthy. So if we like a letter let's tell each other so and why.

PRACTICAL POLLY.

A SUGGESTION FULFILLED

Dear Social Corner Editor and Readers: While entertaining dear old friends last summer, our conversation turned to reminiscinces of our school days, and a wonder was expressed, why the writers of reminiscinces never wrote of the old time school houses, scholars and matters connected with the school.

One of the company saying that they had for some time contemplated writing a brief history of the old school house and her school days. The idea was encouraged and a suggestion was made to write a reminiscence of "Old Brunswick."

A few days ago I received a very creditably written article entitled "Reminiscences of The Old School House, by an Old Time Pupil."

Knowing that many of the Social Corner readers would be interested in the article; also would the old school mates, the few that are living, cherish an article that would awake in their memories school days of long ago, I asked and was given permission to have the letter printed in the Social Corner page of the Bulletin.

The following is the letter: "Reminiscences of The Old School House by an Old Time Pupil." "In reading reminiscences of old names, roads, old scenes vividly portrayed in the times of my youth, the writers fail to touch on the primitive school houses of that time. In the small hamlet of Scotland, not a town till 1857, when it achieved its independence by separating from the town of Windham. At that time the schools were divided into five districts, viz., Scotland, Pinch street, Pudding Hill, Lower Scotland and Brunswick. Brunswick district being number five, located one and one-half miles east from the center.

"In 1852, were my first recollections of the small one-story structure, standing almost in the road, so near that it was almost impossible for teams to pass. It was said, that when the teacher saw a team coming, he or some of the larger scholars rushed out to take up the big stone doorstep, lest it be broken by the team passing over it.

"While out six years of age, I will recall the first day of school, and the years that followed. The oak wood benches in circular for mwith writing desks at the back; when writing lessons came, we were obliged to turn around and then twist back again.

"For the A B C scholars, a long plank with four legs was their seating place. One never knew which side was back or which front.

"An open stove kept us warm in moderate weather; in the cold winter winds, we gathered around it and shivered.

"In the winter term of sixteen weeks, we were supposed to have a man of great ability for a teacher. Some twenty pupils gathered in the old structure, and we were taught the branches which now comprise our high school teaching, algebra, geometry, Latin, English, etc.

"The summer term of eight weeks; some young lady, from sixteen to eighteen, taught. Our winter term usually numbers at twenty or more pupils; in summer, half that number, and none of the higher branches were taught.

"In 1861, after much agitation it was voted to build a new school house, which was located in the forks of the road, one leading to Hanover, Norwich and Baltic, the other to Ford Ned, Westminster and Canterbury.

"That building was a wonderful improvement on the old one, being pleasantly situated, light and sunny and with the then all modern equipments, was a model school house.

"From that school building emanated young people of ability; some fitted for Yale university, taking a prominent place in life.

"I have omitted speaking of one great day in our school life, examination day, for which we were drilled for weeks, and knew just what questions would be asked, and what was required of us. The power of criticism was interested in one man the examining committee. Our fathers and grandfathers, mothers and grandmothers, would show their interest in being present.

"I have known the August committee to be asleep part of the time, but at his closing remarks, would say how well we had done and how he had been entertained from that school.

"I graduated in 1864 and very dear and pleasant recollections still linger in my memory of the old school and old time friends.

From one of the old time pupils, F. C. Bacon." QUID NUNC.

TRUNDLE BED DAY AGAIN

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: Hello everybody, as we hear over the radio. I want to thank everyone who sent me Christmas cards, and a Social Corner Member for a lovely little calendar.

I have been very much amused over the different ideas about trundle beds. It was my lot to sleep in one, as I was a number of years younger than the rest of the children, and both my sisters were married and went to homes of their own when I was quite small and mother would not send me upstairs to sleep alone. Well, can I remember the big white covered bed in the sitting room (for it was not unusual for people to have a bed in the sitting room, and even in the kitchen in trundle bed days) and the neat little trundle bed with its soft feather bed and pillows, pieced quilts and white spread. When it was trundled in under the big white bed and the frill put down over the headboard and the white spread pulled down over that, no one would guess a trundle bed was there. Well, I remember my father reading and mother sewing or knitting by the kerosene lamp before a big wood heater after I had been tucked into the trundle bed. Pleasant childhood memories.

Prairie Chicken: Here I am at last, perhaps one reason I could not hear you very well Mr. I. R. was very much interested in Durant's Hero's of the World coming in from Station WJZ. We will have to do our visiting before evening.

Estel: Have not seen you in a long time. I am still doing patch work. Have several quilts under way now. I cut the largest blocks first, then the next size, and so on using up the pieces, tie each block together and pack in boxes and get the litter of cutting out of the way all at one time and piece the blocks at my leisure.

Sumac: Yes, I knew I had a double when I was a youngster but thought I had outgrown her by this time. When did you see her?

Crimson Rambler: Have not heard that S O S call yet. Hope you won't get any farther away than WJZ.

B Natural: Glad to hear you are improving. Call up if you are well enough to get to the phone.

Best wishes to all.

OLD SONG RECALLS OLD DAYS IN CLAYVILLE, R. I.

To the Editor of the Social Corner: I noticed in the Social Corner the other day a poem "Just as Young as I Used to Be." I wonder if the writer knows that this was a song that "Comical Brown," a traveling entertainer used to sing some 60 years ago. Personally I don't consider it a nice song, but I remember hearing "Comical Brown" sing it about 59 years ago in Riley Coles' hall, Clayville, R. I., and as "Comical Brown" sang it it sure did tickle the audience. I also remember attending an entertainment given by Nasau Leavitt and his Swiss bell ringers 58 to 60 years ago in this same hall. I also heard the song, "The Sword of Bunker Hill," by the composer and another, the words of which I don't remember but in it he extolled his wife's many virtues, telling what a fine housekeeper she was, what nice biscuits she could make etc. and winding up such verse with "But she's such a fidgety thing, O, she's such a fidgety thing."

A part of this song was spoken. This was in 1875 or 1876. I can't recall the author's name but at that time he was an old man with gray hair and whiskers.

Perhaps some one can send in one or both of these songs and give the author's name.

Leander Cady of Willimantic I think is the sole survivor of the Nason Leavitt bell singers. Mr. Cady is around 80, but still active and a whole orchestra in himself.

Riley Cole kept a sort of general store and dealt some in furniture. My brother bought a set of chairs of him and they are still in use in the Amidon family of this place. (Scotland.) Later on "Tom Jack" Thomas Jackson bought this property and while he owned it it was burned to the ground.

There were peculiar circumstances connected with this fire that impressed themselves upon my mind. The house was a large square, two-story building with store or bar-room and hall overhead and barn and shed, all attached to the north side. The fire started in the north end of the barn and as the wind was blowing toward the north the fire had to eat its way toward the wind and after all buildings attached to the house were burned clean to the ground. The house was left standing, but of course fire was eating into clapboards and it had to go. In the meantime a family in the house was awakened, moved out, and all the windows doors and sinks were taken out and neatly packed up across the road. I have been told that a few years later Thomas Jackson commited suicide by plunging beneath a locomotive in the old brick depot in Providence.

If it would interest any of the readers I might have more to say about Clayville later.

BITTER TASTE IN BUTTER

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: If it isn't too late, will wish the editor and all the members a happy New Year. I always read every letter in the Social Corner and enjoy them all. I am not much on letter-writing and can't write such interesting letters as the other sisters, so just don't dare try it very often.

Can any of the sisters tell me why my butter has a bitter taste for the last two weeks. We are feeding just the same. I always wash and scald every dish and pan I use for milk and cream, also scald milk pail and strainer every time we use them and then put out in the air.

1492: Will you please tell me just how you can the baked beans. Do you cold pack them after you put in the jars?

Effie M: Hope you are feeling better all the time. Say, we talked so much about salt, that after I came home that night I made a cake and forgot the salt. Hubby said there wasn't any taste to that cake so only took a little taste. And I couldn't blame him a bit.

J. E. T.: Received your nice letter tonight and glad to hear from you. How would you like some clam chowder?

Bumble Bee: I send my sympathy to you. I am very sorry. Will stop and see you before long. Best wishes to all. AUGUST, 1894.

SEEKS CROCHETING HELP

To the Social Corner: Social Corner member busy with the crochet needle, I can see by your letter that you do lots of fancy crocheting. Well, I am crocheting a pattern from the February needlecraft scarf ends of the lyre design only I am making mine for a chair back. When I came to row 32, I seemed to get puzzled about how to slip a stitch to narrow. I thought you might be able to explain through the Corner Saturday. I will greatly appreciate an answer.

TRUNDLE BED SLEEPER.

(You have neglected to send your correct name and address. Please do so in compliance with Corner rules. S. C. Editor.)

GREETINGS FROM TUNY ANN

Dear Social Corner Sisters: First I wish to thank all the sisters who sent me Christmas cards.

Bay State: I tried your recipe for corn cake this morning and I will say it was great. I am not very good at baking but I had wonderful luck with your recipe.

Glad: What, don't you ever write, if only a few lines? How are the girls?

I like to read about the trundle beds. I can remember ours when I was a little girl.

Sympathy to all those who have lost dear ones and also to the shut-ins. TUNY ANN (Club 1).

BUSY DYEING

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: How are you all? Well, I hope.

Coambs: I was down to Aunt H.'s. I asked her for your address and I will write you a letter later. I am very busy today, dyeing rags for a rug.

Evelyn Burr: Hope I can come up to see you some time this month as I always have a nice time at your house. We have a radio now. I enjoy it and don't know what I would do without it.

I must close now and get back to my dyeing rags. ALVERNON

GREETINGS FROM CANTERBURY BELL

Dear Editor: I'm truly ashamed of myself, because I've never taken the time to thank you for my last yellow slip. But I thank you now. I have missed a number of Social Corner pages but I hope I'll not have to miss any more and hope you all are well.

Bumble Bee: I'm so sorry for you. I do wish you had been down here. If I understand correctly you are in excellent care. Now be patient as you can.

I'm as usual watching my little friends, the birds. Here is my dear little chipping sparrows, martins, brown thrashers, cardinal birds, mocking birds, blue jays and crows so far. I know there are more.

M. I. G.: Why don't you write again?

I. J. B.: Was glad to see your letter on the page. Come again.

Aunty No. 1: How are you?

Nelly Bly: Didn't you get my letter? You don't realize how good a letter looks from a friend when you are a long way from home. But the weather is beautiful and so many of my favorite flowers are blooming now and more coming right along I try to content myself even if there is no one I know here in Florida. I'm feeling rather better and I'm not cold, as there is no snow or ice, but lots of sun, birds and blossoms.

Cosmos: Congratulations.

B Natural: I sincerely hope I will be able to take in some Florida fairs soon.

Buddy: How are you? I think you must be warm in that big fur. Come on and start your pen, or take your phone and call 1048-5, then write me a letter. I haven't your address and I would love to hear from you.

Well next time I'll try and write a readable letter. Best wishes to all from CANTERBURY BELL.

THE SPICE OF LIFE

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: The old saying is that variety is the spice of life. Well I guess we are having plenty of spice in the variety of weather we have been having lately. But a little thing like that shouldn't upset us when we have six weeks more of winter weather ahead of us. Who knows, eh? I don't believe even that little fellow that looked for his shadow last Sunday can tell that.

Well, Quid Nunc, you flatterer, I think that you and Mr. Shaw both kissed the blarney stone at the same time. We sure had a good laugh and I was very pleased to meet your daughter and, oh yes, surely, her father also. I have thought of you both often and also that little lady with the red hair. Isn't she a prim little lady though, all dressed up and nowhere to go, ha, ha. It's all in the game called, life.

We have been having so many nice letters and it is so good to see the corner page full every week.

It won't be long now before we will hear the blue birds and yes, I read in The Bulletin this week that some one had seen one.

Olga: I wanted to tell you that I had one good laugh when I read your account of sleeping in a trundle bed. I have never seen one, but they must have been handy.

Now I will say "thank you" to the Social Corner member for my little calendar. BLACK EYED SUSIE.

AN ICY TRIP TO WALLINGFORD

Dear Social Corner Members: What a wonderful day Sunday was, so much like spring. I heard one person say they saw several robins. Guess they will be glad to crawl back into winter quarters

Lauret: Had dinner at the Palace recently, and it was fine.

Dearie: I often think of you, and wondered how you would get to the meetings after the ringing of wedding bells in your family as I think that took your chauffeur away; didn't it? I saw your relative in this town, Mr. C. D., this morning out on business. Isn't it remarkable how smart he gets after being so ill? Hope I may meet you at the Buckingham next week, as I hope to go.

Tafts: So sorry to hear of your bereavement. It seems I know you, having tried so many of your good recipes.

Topsy: I suppose you are still taking walks. As you say, so few walk nowadays but, I think many would if they could. My trouble is my feet won't let me, even if I could get time.

Commuter: So sorry to hear of all your troubles. Hope things soon change for the better. Today I had a trip to Wallingford. As it was raining all night and then began to snow this morning, I did not think I would go, but the snow proved only a flurry and as the sun came soon, we started. When we got a few miles this side of Middletown, the fields were white with snow and people were cleaning off their walks and the road was very icy. Men were busy sanding hills and curves. From Middletown to Meriden it was much better and the scenery was beautiful, as trees, grass weeds and wire fences were covered in ice. There had been an ice storm and how everything did glisten when the sun struck it. From Meriden to Wallingford there was more ice in the road but, when we came back it was not bad and from Middletown home it was all gone except on the sides of the road. We saw two cars that had come to grief. I thought what a lot it costs the towns for putting on the sand that was needed for only a few hours but, on the other hand it may have been the means of saving many lives.

H. E. N.: Sorry you are ill; hope you are better soon. E. L. M.

MAKING USE OF LEISURE TIME

Dear Editor and Members: I was interested in Capricorn's letter regarding the use of leisure time, especially in regard to our young folks. As she points out they should have work to do and parents should see to it that both boys and girls are prepared to earn their own living. But let us consider this leisure time a bit.

I honestly believe the training that our children receive in their homes in regard to its right use and the example set by their parents is going a long ways towards giving them the power to find great satisfaction in little things and as St. Paul writes "therewith to be content."

Young people whose lives are filled with many joyous hobbies, interests and pursuits will not have much time nor thought for the vicious and unprofitable. And let us see that these pursuits are not passive but active and constructive.

Now all this sounds rather theoretical so let us give a few concrete examples.

When children make a practice of attending the "movies" several times a week they are doing little of a constructive nature. So much for the negative example.

What are some of the things, now, that will make their lives richer and fuller?

Almost all young children are keenly interested in nature if an older person can give them a little guidance and a corner somewhere for their jars of tadpoles, old birds nests, sparkling stones and pebbles and other "junk" that young naturalists are bound to accumulate. And when adults find pleasure in it with the children how quickly they recognize it!

My great uncle, Charles, I saw only a few times yet in my heart is a kindly memory because he let me show him my favorite patch of bird foot violets.

Children may be interested in those by making a collection of different kinds of native woods, varnishing them and neatly mounting and labeling.

A study of the constellations will be encouraged by representing them as they are located with little gold stars on a piece of blue bristol board such as one gets at the stationery for 10 or 15 cents.

Bird study can be made much more fun if some money that would be spent for candy and sundaes is saved and used to purchase a good field-glass.

A camera can be used to pass leisure time profitably, for a child who is fond of history there would be an opportunity to take snapshots of historical interest in his community and making them into a booklet

Much as we enjoy the radio it does not take the place of the music we create ourselves. If the violin and piano seem too difficult, or do not appeal to the child, perhaps he will be interested in playing some of the simpler instruments.

Don't heavy a boy who likes to make things by giving him a box of tools that fall to pieces the minute they're used. And don't be afraid a little praise and encouragement will go to his head when he shows you what he has made. Nothing succeeds like success.

In regards to gardens let me quote from Bruce Barton, "No matter where you live or how busy you are, help your boy to make a garden.

Perhaps you are penned up in an apartment. Never mind. Let him plant something if it be only a packet of seed in a window box, and let him read the greatest mystery serial story in the world—the serial story of which God writes a new and more wonderful installment every spring." BO PEEP.

PREFERS THE LONGER DRESSES

Dear Social Corner Sisters: As the editor didn't throw my other letter in the waste basket I will try again. I have just finished reading the Social Corner page and I noticed Betsy Bobbett wrote about no one saying "hurrah for long dress." I, for one, am glad they are longer, as I admit, some of my dresses were pretty short but, for my age and being so slender and to get a dress that fit my shoulders and waist line, I had to get a short dress like other girls wore and they were too short. So I am glad dresses are longer. Although I don't fancy the extra pieces sewed on the bottom; they look out of place. I prefer a straight bottom. Flared skirts don't take my fancy either. The plainer a dress is the better I like it.

Did any one see the Delineator last month? The dresses were terrible. I don't see how girls feel dressed in them. I would imagine something was falling off. But style is style!

Wishing all the sick and shut-ins speedy recovery. I will sign off for today. PALEFACE (Club 1).

DEVONA'S OATMEAL COOKIES.

To the Editor and Sisters of the Social Corner: I am indeed a very poor member as I have only written one other letter since I joined and no one enjoys reading the letters the sisters write more than I do.

I want to thank E. L. M. for her kindly message to me. I certainly have been having quite a time worrying as my husband was in the hospital four weeks with an infected finger but I am thankful to write he is coming along all right.

I will send a recipe for—

Oatmeal Cookies: 1 cup sugar, ½ cup of lard, 2 eggs, 1 teaspoon soda in six taspoons of milk, 2 cups of chopped oatmeal and 1 cup of chopped raisins, 2 cups of flour, 2 teaspoons vanilla, cinnamon and nutmeg.

Sumac: Sorry I could not be with the sisters at the last meeting as I know I missed a good entertainment.

My best wishes to all shut-ins: my sympathy to those in sorrow and trouble. DEVONA (Club No. 1)

Takes Another's Name

Dear Social Corner Editor: As Holly and Beth are names which have already been taken by members of the Social Corner, I am sending in CHEERIO.

(Once again you have taken the name of another. Would suggest that you send in several from which one can be chosen in the order desired. S. C. Ed.)

HOOP SNAKES.

Dear Editor and Everybody: This is Candlemas day and we had a pretty little snow fall this morning. Just as I raised my curtain to look out for a nice, pleasant Sunday. As soon as I got down to breakfast the sun was shining and I was glad to hear the thermometer registered 30 above. As I listened to the children's hour. After a while I went over to the house to myself so thought I'd read some of my letters answered, and also write a few lines for the Social Corner page. At noon we had the Dudley Carroleen for our dinner music, which I certainly enjoyed.

Suppose Mr. Ground Hog has been out and seen his shadow ere this, will go back and we will have six weeks more of cold winter weather. Wait and see.

Reading about hoop snakes in two letters which appeared in the columns of our Social Corner page, I must tell you that I have seen one in the pasture across the road from my home. In a cow path just ahead of me I saw a black hoop of something and started to see what it was. It was the creature began to wiggle and take its tail into its mouth and started rolling over and over as one would roll a hoop. I stood amazed and watched it out of sight. I never went out for berries without thinking of Mr. Hoop Snake. I do not know its color but this fellow looked to be an invisible black. I hope to see more stories about hoop snakes. I was glad to read that two different writers had seen these rolling reptiles.

Some way this is a very sad day for there is a funeral going on for a good man in Woodstock and everything is so quiet and still around me here, and as the day draws near to its close I can only say: "We mourn when a good man dies."

BIRTHDAY BARTY.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Well here I am again. I did not think I should write so soon again but I had a birthday and would like to thank the Social Corner ladies for lovely cards and presents. It is very nice to be remembered.

Scottie: Many thanks, very pretty.

Bridge: Where were you? I saved a chair for you.

Olga: Where were you? I missed you.

Biddy: Now don't get sick eating all of that 40 pounds of sausage, six quarts of soup, ten pounds of headcheese besides all the liver. If you should get sick you would never cackle again. Now why don't you invite the Social Corner ladies to you home for a picnic. I am sure we would all love to come and enjoy eating some of that home smoked ham. I think I could eat three or four pounds of ham right now. I don't know how much the other ladies could eat but we surely would help you get rid of it. Isn't that so, Aunty No. 1?

Paporee: Glad to hear you are well.

Nellie Sly: Sorry to hear Mr. W. was so sick, hope he is feeling better.

Chauffeur: Hope Mr. W. will soon recover.

Bumble Bee: Sorry to hear you had a fall, hope you will soon be out again.

Best wishes to all and sympathy for ill and shut-ins.

I. J. B.

CLUB NO. 2 TO MEET FEB. 11

Cornerites: Just to say that Club No. 2 meets on Tuesday, Feb. 11 in Buckingham Memorial. As no hostess was volunteered would be glad of some help on the dinner.

Georgette and myself can't do it all and unless there are more willing to work instead of the faithful few who always do it, I fear some time it will be a self serve dinner. Another thing that has been repeatedly said to me by different members is "why can't they remain in the hall for the whole afternoon instead of going to the cause of shopping or movies? It is poor respect to those working to go there and get your dinner and then jump up and leave, so please come prepared to serve and also stay and visit, etc. Those who haven't heard of Mrs. Frank Lathrop of Yantic, Conn., who has broken her leg, just cheer her up with a letter or a card or a phone call as she has an extension to her bed and can talk a little while.

Naomi and Sister: You surely have had your overflow of sorrow with another member of your family taken, four so soon is a hard blow. Accept

WESTERLY

DERRICO IS BOUND OVER FOR SHOOTING GARDNER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Feb. 7—The hearing given James Derrico, charged with the fatal shooting of Atwood Gardner on the night of Jan. 14th on the tracks of the New Haven railroad, began before a crowded courtroom Friday morning. The doors in the hallways and vestibules leading to the court rooms were locked and the corridors were kept clear, although scores clamored both morning and afternoon for admission.

The front settee in the courtroom was occupied by the wife and nine children of the accused who gave vent to their grief as the prisoner, who has been at the Washington county jail at Kingston for the past few weeks, was led into the courtroom, between Sheriff Fred T. Mitchell and Deputy Sheriff Fred W. Bull, Kingston jailer. Present, besides Chief of Police Brown, were Deputy Sheriff Elmer E. Edwards, of Wickford, Court Officer Charles A. Pullen of Wyoming and from the Hope Valley barracks State Police Sergt. Ernest F. Stenhouse and Trooper Florence J. Harvey. From the Westerly police force were Lieut. George H. Champlin and Patrolmen Robert M. Kessel, Leroy H. Norman, Frank E. Knight, Charls Button and Paul McCarthy.

The hearing was before Judge Oliver H. Williams. The state was represented by Prosecutor John Ferguson while Attorney M. Walter Flynn appeared for the defendant. The state's case rested mainly upon the "dying declaration" of Gardner, as it was termed by the prosecutor, which was made to him in the emergency operating room of the Westerly hospital between 11 and 12 p. m. Jan. 14th last when the accused Derrico was taken from the Westerly police station where he had been locked up and confronted at the hospital operating room by Gardner. At that time Gardner said in the presence of Chief Brown, Solicitor Ferguson, Medical Examiner Dr. Michael H. Scanlon, Police Officers Kessel and McCarthy and a number of hospital nurses:

"There is Jimmie Derrico, the fellow who shot me." To test the mental ability of Gardner, Dr. Scanlon, the first witness for the state, asked who the different ones were in the operating room and Gardner said he did not know Solicitor Ferguson but correctly identified "Tom Brown," "Dr. Scanlon" and "Jimmie Derrico," whom he correctly identified a second time when asked to repeat.

Medical Examiner Scanlon testified that he was called by telephone Jan. 14th about 10:30 p. m. to the home of Walter P. Talbot, Mountain avenue, where he found Gardner collapsed in a front entry way and suffering from a wound in the front of his body. He informed Gardner that his condition was serious. In company with Officer Norman Dr. Scanlon with the help of others placed Gardner in his auto and rushed him to the Westerly hospital. A short stop was made in Dixon square where Chief Brown was at work on the shooting case and Officer Norman was left while witness proceeded to the hospital. Later the doctor said Chief Brown and Attorney Ferguson came to the hospital operating room a short time after his arrival and then Officers Kessel and McCarthy brought the accused Derrico. Dr. G. Grant Savage was also called to the hospital as consultant and assisted in giving medical attention to the wounded man together with the night supervisor and many of the hospital nurses, all being in the operating room at one time or another. Just outside Dr. Scanlon said were the newspaper men.

The nature of the wound was brought out by cross examination when Dr. Scanlon said that the wound entrance was on the right side between the 9th and 10th ribs and the wound of exit was just below the end of the breast bone, slightly to the left. The wound of exit was a little bit higher, he said. No missile was found in the body. The missile had pentrated the lung and the liver.

Dr. Scanlon said that Gardner gave his age as 25. He was admitted to the hospital at 11 o'clock, Gardner walking from the Talbot house to the automobile with the doctor assisting him, according to the testimony. The witness said Gardner was mentally normal up to 4 o'clock on Jan. 15. He died that night at 9:50. Dr. Scanlon said that Gardner stated that Derrico had shot him on the railroad track, firing three shots, the third one striking him. The witness told of Gardner stating that he had seen "an automatic."

Chief Thomas E. Brown testified as to Gardner telling him about Derrico following him up Oak street when he was on his way to his home on the Bradford road. The chief said Gardner stated that he became frightened and ran down toward the railroad tracks and Derrico fired three shots.

Continuing testimony on cross-examination Chief Brown said that when he arrived at the hospital he sent for Derrico, who was at the police station. The witness said that Gardner stated that when he was on his way home to the Cottrell farm, Derrico stopped him and asked him to throw a stone and break a window in a house near the DeSantis store on Oak street.

Gardner, according to the chief, said that Derrico offered to give him some wine. According to the chief's testimony, Gardner further stated that Derrico followed him as he ran toward the railroad tracks, and three shots were fired, the first time Derrico was 20 feet away, the second time five feet and the third time Gardner was hit and fell on the tracks. Chief Brown testified that he asked Gardner if he saw a revolver and Gardner replied that he saw an automatic.

Court took a recess at 12:45 o'clock until 1:45.

At 2 p. m. after the state had rested at 12:30, Attorney Flynn had Prosecutor Ferguson take the stand, having made him his own witness and in what Solicitor Ferguson characterized as a most unusual proceeding. The effort was unsuccessfully made by Mr. Flynn to have the written declaration produced. Mr. Ferguson saying "The state will absolutely refuse to produce it, even upon the witness stand." He charged that it was asked for in bad faith which was denied by Mr. Flynn. Further examination showed that the written document was made in the operating room of the hospital by Mr. Ferguson who wrote down the answers given by Mr. Gardner to questions asked by him and Chief Brown, but Gardiner did not read the paper nor was it read to him; it was not sworn to, but Gardner had subscribed his name thereto.

After Mr. Ferguson had left the stand Mr. Flynn asked for two witnesses to take the stand whom he declared he was sure had been summoned by the state, John DeSantis, whose window it was claimed Derrico had offered Gardner a bottle of wine to throw the stone through and after his refusal opened fire and Mrs. Mary Groccia, both having houses on Marion street.

The defense rested its case at 2:40 p. m. when Mr. Flynn indicated that an attempt might be made to have the complaint changed from first degree to second degree murder, when he declared that he would not ask for a dismissal of the case.

Judge Williams found the defendant probably guilty and bound him over to the grand jury of the February term of Washington county superior court without bail. Theg rand jury meets at Kingston courthouse Feb. 17th.

Ware, commander of the sub, has friends in the village, also was at the Jan. 10th meeting of the Parent-Teacher association of Mystic academy, when he gave an illustrated lecture on the submarine, with pictures which he had taken himself. The next night it was said that the sub had been pulled clear of the rocks and had gone to the Portsmouth, N. H., yard under its own power and the crew was all safe.

PARTY TO GOSHEN ENJOYS FIREMEN'S BIG DANCE

Several members of the Saturday Night club went in a big sedan to attend the Whoopee dance at the Firemen's ball in Goshen Wednesday night. They left the village at an early hour so as to look the town over. Coming to a dark place, in the road was a large animal. It was so dark they could see only a few feet ahead. William Franklin at the wheel wanted to know what that animal was that would not let them go by. Flash McDonald got out and found it was a Waterford cow that got lost from its sister cows. She would not get off the road and seemed not afraid. A farmer boy, Marvin Potter, was in the back seat and knew how to talk to a cow so that tears would come from the animal's eyes and the farmer lad went up to Mrs. Cow and in a soft voice said, "Why don't you let us pass, Bossy? We have a big dance to attend and you are spoiling our evening. We've been here now 40 minutes!" The cow listened and walked over to Farmer Potter with her head hanging low, then went out of the road, so the big sedan could pass. The cow was given a vote of thanks. The party was held up for 52 minutes. Reaching the dance hall, they were soon looking over the Smoke Eaters' building. Some of the best pool sharps of the Goshen Fire company were crowded around the pool table, where shots were pulled off that would make the world champion, Greenleaf, sit up and take notice, getting them a big hand from the crowd. A new red fire engine was there—a Ford, shined up so a man could shave in it. A little town like that has a real fire company and many Goshen oyster stews have been served in the back room, to the Smoke Eaters, known as the kitchen. After looking all over downstairs the Saturday Night members went upstairs to the dance hall, which was dressed up with red and black crepe paper and colored balloons hanging from the ceiling. It is one of the best floors for dancing this side of the Niantic river. Perry's orchestra of five Music Boys in full dress suits were ready to give the jazz dancers some snappy music. Perry on the drum sure could make them sticks talk. A Paul Jones made fun, where a sheik could win the hand of a lady for a dance. That is where you get a lady for a partner and some get left out; but it is more fun than a pie-eating contest at a picnic. The crowd of dancers packed the floor and during intermission they all went down to the kitchen for a lunch. Goshen doughnuts, made by the ladies of the auxiliary of the company, and coffee were passed around. After everyone had a feed, upstairs they went, to see William Franklin do the Harvard Hop in a new way, as light on his feet as a feather. Many times he got called back and he received such a big hand from the dancers that it shook the pool balls on the table. Flash McDonald is a fellow with a sweet voice that almost made them cry, when he sang, "Just Break the News to Mother" and "Sweet Dreams of You." The crowd cheered him time after time and said, "He will beat Al Jolson some day." The song bird then did the tap dance moving his feet as Perry's five Music Hounds stepped on the music. Marvin Grant was dressed up like a fireman, having a red shirt and rubber boots. He put on an act, "Fireman, Save My Child," as Max Skat jumped from the building, which was all afire, and Smoke Eater Grant saved the child and its doll.

Time was up, so the dancers could shake a leg or two before the lights went out for the night. The Goshen Smoke Eaters are trying to pay for the building by running dances and are getting good crowds, twice a week. If any dancer does not have a good time at the Goshen Firemen's hall it is his own fault, for the committee in charge will get a visitor a girl, if he is at all shy.

Jumping into the big sedan, the Noank crowd was soon bound for the fishing village after an evening of fun and real jazz music. Going all good, they came to a place in the road where there was not a house within half a mile. They struck a bad place in the winter-torn highway, and a tire blew out so loud that it scared Al Maxson so much he fainted; thought a highwayman had got him. A dash of water on his neck soon brought him to. Driver William Franklin walked to the house, that showed no lights (for it was after 1 o'clock in the wee hours of Thursday morning) to see if the owner had a pump to push up the air in the tire. When he got there a watchdog came to greet him with a noisy bark. Not afraid, he walked up to the house and asked if they had an auto pump; that the members of the Saturday Night club were in trouble. By luck, the man had one and kindly jumped into his Ford car and went down to the hard luck auto while the tire was ready for the air. In 20 minutes everything was O. K. again and Al Maxson gave the kind neighbor a tip, a greenback, and that fellow was all smiles and wished the party luck for the rest of the trip, getting into the clam and fish town around the time the fishermen were going out to haul their nets with their A. & P. lunch baskets. The hands on the watch of Flash McDonald read 4:32 a. m., so the big sedan was put up and the several members of the club said the big dance with the Goshen Smoke Eaters made an evening well spent, even though they had trouble getting home.

MELKSHAM'S FUDGE

Dear Editor and Friends: Such a long time since I could be one among the many, however, duty to a dear one kept me busy. I am trying to keep home of my New Year resolutions, so will take this time to thank the many Social Corner sisters for their kindness in sending cards with such comforting words in my hours of sadness, in the loss of my dear blind father, who passed on at the age of 85. I hope I am not quite forgotten for I have done so little for Club No. 4 of late, and it is true we are only remembered by what we have done. Hope to do better next time.

Bay State: Corn bread was fine.

This recipe of fudge, which I have never seen in a paper, is very nice although it takes one hour to make it.

Fudge: 3 cups of granulated sugar, 3 squares of chocolate, 1½ cups of milk, 1 teaspoon of vanilla, 2 tablespoons of syrup, 3 tablespoons of butter, 3 tablespoons of cocoa.

Method—Boil sugar and milk together; when it boils five minutes add the butter and shaved chocolate, syrup and cocoa. Cook all until a soft ball is formed when dropped in cold water and does not spread. Cook slowly. Let cool before beating; add vanilla and beat until dry; turn into a buttered pan.

Greetings to all. MELKSHAM'S.

10,000,000 Women Use This Toast Test

to Choose the Bread They Serve

Unusual "Timed Toast Test" proves slo-baking of ingredients results in better bread quality.

By ALICE ADAMS PROCTOR

Ten million women have discovered a new way to select the bread they buy. Right in their own kitchens they learned how to judge true bread quality. You can do the same.

Even with many brands of bread on your grocer's shelves, you can easily choose correctly the bread which is most nourishing . . . the bread that is slo-baked . . . in short, the bread most suited for everyday use in your own home.

Choose Bread This Way

Make the famous Timed Toast Test. It takes but a few moments of your time, and your choice is made. Because only from a bread containing the finest ingredients, perfectly baked, can perfect toast be made every time.

How You Can Make It

You, too, can be your own bread judge by making this simple test. Just take a slice of Wonder Bread and a slice of the bread you have been using. Place both in your toaster.

See which slice is toasted first. Which is an even golden brown from edge to edge? Which is crisper, with a new delicate toast flavor and a delightful aroma? And which slice is unevenly browned and burned . . . with just the ordinary disappointing toast taste?

YOUR GROCER has it fresh every day!

Why Wonder Bread Makes Better Toast

The better toast you get from Wonder Bread is due to the extra-fine ingredients used and the special slo-baking process, which eliminates all excess moisture and gives you a bread of fine, delicate texture.

So toasting starts the instant you slip Wonder Bread into the toaster. With ordinary bread, your toaster actually has to finish cooking the bread before toasting starts.

We have won ten million women with this test. If you find the results of your toast test convincing, we believe you will want only Wonder Bread hereafter. Your grocer has it fresh twice daily. Will you make the toast test today?

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Fifty years ago this week Palmyra Encampment, No. 3, I. O. O. F., held its fourth annual reception at Breed hall. The encampment members turned out in full regalia and about 50 couples took part in the grand march. The Buckingham Guard held their first annual concert and ball the same week. Interesting extracts taken from the files of The Norwich Bulletin of the first week in February a half century ago are as follows:

Monday, Feb. 2, 1880—The funeral of Joseph Ellis, the Bavarian baker, who died suddenly of heart disease in the Wauregan house kitchen, Friday evening, took place from the rooms of Henry Allen & Son yesterday afternoon.

There will be a union meeting of the Congregational churches at the Broadway church next Sunday night, to hear a report from Mr. Petit on his work of canvassing the town lately. Interesting facts concerning the churchless and Bibleless of Norwich are looked for.

A telegram from the Rev. John Davies has been received by friends announcing his safe arrival at Liverpool.

If every man who is suspected of having been in the O. D. One pageant, Friday, had really been there, the procession would have been truly imposing.

Tuesday, Feb. 3, 1880—The fourth annual reception of Palmyra Encampment I. O. O. F., to be held at Breed hall on Thursday evening. The arrangements thus far indicate the finest reception yet given. The members will appear in regalia. Obtain tickets early.

The property owned by the late Austin Brewster, situate on the corner of Laurel Hill avenue and Walnut street, was sold to Walter H. Brewster, Saturday.

Mr. F. W. Nichols purchased the Leonhardt property near the Laurel Hill school house on Monday.

Mercury was one degree below zero Monday morning. It was the coldest morning of the season.

The collection in St. Patrick's church, last Sunday, for the poor in Ireland, including the amounts collected at St. Patrick's, St. Mary's and Sacred Heart chapel, was $596.70.

Wednesday, Feb. 4, 1880—The first annual concert and ball of the Buckingham Guard at Breed hall, last evening, was well patronized, considering the inclement weather. The Guard, under Captain John Williams, gave an exhibition drill between eight and nine o'clock, embracing many new and fancy evolutions, in which the company appeared to be perfectly at home. Lewis' brass band gave a fine concert. The hall was handsomely trimmed with flags, and the "boys in blue" and ladies in rich and costly costumes, formed a fine spectacle as they tripped lightly up and down the hall to the excellent music of Lewis' Quadrille band.

The heaviest snow storm of the season occurred Monday night. About five inches of snow fell on the level. The sleighing was heavy and all the trains more or less late during Tuesday.

Charles W. Jennings of Greeneville, died yesterday, after an illness of several years' duration, in the 64th year of his age. He owned the hourly line between Greeneville and this city before the establishment of the horse railroad, and for a while kept the American house in this place.

Thursday, Feb. 5, 1880—Mr. Peter McIntyre has sold his young and promising black horse, William A. Buckingham, to Detroit parties for $2,500. The animal is about five years old and promises to develop a high rate of speed.

As the Rev. Hugh Montgomery was riding behind his colt on the West Side yesterday, the sleigh by some accident ran on to the animals heels at the corner of Thames and Main streets. For a minute or two both occupants of the sleigh had lively work to dodge his hoofs. Suddenly he started on a wild race and Mr. Montgomery and his friend rolled out of the sleigh for safety. A brave Irishman stopped the animal before he had crossed the Central wharf bridge.

A very pleasant entertainment was given last night in the People's course at Breed hall, consisting of dramatic readings by Alfred J. Knight and music by the Young Apollo club of New York.

Friday, Feb. 6, 1880—The fourth annual reception of Palmyra Encampment, No. 3, I. O. O. F., at Breed hall, last evening, was largely attended and immensely enjoyed. Tubb's brass band played a splendid concert between eight and nine o'clock. At 9 o'clock Palmyra Encampment entered the hall in full regalia and promenaded to the music of the full band. Some fifty couples took part in the grand march.

Mr. Daniel Lee finished the enumeration of the school children of the Central school district Thursday. The whole number of children residing in the district between the ages of four and sixteen is 1,507 which is five less than was enumerated last year.

Broadway hill was covered with coasters last night.

Saturday, Feb. 7, 1880—The railroad social which is to take place Thursday evening, the 19th inst., has been arranged by the committee to be their best one. The tracks are all laid, the rolling stock is complete. The music to be furnished by Miller, and, with Gurdon Cady as conductor, and the road being thrown open for their use only, there can be no doubt of a successful termination. Delegations from Boston, Worcester and Hartford are expected.

An alarm of fire was raised last evening on Chestnut street, between 8 and 9 o'clock, occasioned by the igniting of some wood in the oven of a stove in the apartments of Charles Banner, in the Converse block. Before a general alarm could be raised, several members of Wauregan Hook and Ladder company rushed into the house and took a child from its bed nearly suffocated by smoke and removed the burning wood from the stove and threw it into the street.

The brown stone front of the new banking house of the Second National bank on Shetucket street arrived yesterday from Springfield.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Halliburton Lecture.

During the summer months of 1928 Richard Halliburton sought further romantic adventures in Mexico, Yucatan and Panama. The author of The Royal Road to Romance and The Glorious Adventure having used up just about all the thrills offered in Europe, turned his attention to the lands beyond the Rio Grande. And once again he got his fill of exciting adventure.

His first job was retraveling the old Cortez trail in Mexico. Then he turned his attention to the Sacred Well of Chichen Itza in Yucatan, where the ancient Mayas were wont to sacrifice their maidens. Thompson of Yucatan first brought out from the mirky depths of the well, the graphic and dramatic story of what happened in this historical swimming pool some three or four thousand years ago. Not only were the maidens hurled into the well as a sacrifice to the Gods, but also priceless possessions in the form of jewels, jade trinkets and golden utensils were cast into the depths. Mr. Halliburton not only swam about in the pool, but made a spectacular dive from a shelf of overhanging rock some 70 feet above the water. The well is about 80 feet deep.

A few weeks later he tackled the irksome job of swimming the Panama Canal—not across it but rather the full length of it. This job was handled during the day time for the Panama Canal is no place for the evening swimmer. An expert rifleman accompanied him in a nearby boat and inquisitive crocodiles were turned away with well directed bullets.

Halliburton typifies the undaunted spirit of youth and every so often he does some spectacular thing that most people believe to be impossible.

The story of his adventures of 1928 will be touched upon when he speaks here on the evening of Feb. 13 at Slater Hall.

Russell Conwell Picture at Y.M.C.A.

At 4 o'clock on Sunday afternoon, a high grade moving picture story will be shown in the big gymnasium of the local Y. M. C. A. The picture is titled Johnny Ring and the Captain's Sword.

A true and thrilling story of the Civil war and of Russell H. Conwell, an atheist, and his orderly, Johnny Ring, a true Christian. Johnny enlists in Captain Conwell's company and is forbidden to read his Bible.

After braving extraordinary dangers, Johnny is killed while trying to save his captain's sword. Captain Conwell is severely wounded in battle, and in his long hours of pain and suffering, he finds his God and goes forth with faith and determination. This is an important period in the life of one who became a man of great power and influence in America.

The public sixteen and over are cordially invited and boys and girls eleven to fifteen inclusive, may come if they are accompanied by their parents.

Red Arrow Booster Contest.

The great success of the first Red Arrow Booster contest prompted the Red Arrow merchants of Norwich to institute a second Red Arrow Booster contest with prizes amounting to $1,800.

The valuable prizes offered to the Red Arrow patrons are six in number and are as follows: First prize, 10 piece living room suite, $625; 3 piece Italian velour suite, French seamless Wilton rug 9x12, junior floor lamp and shade, table lamp and shade, mahogany davenport table, end table; second prize, Electrolux gas refrigerator, $400; third prize, diamond ring and setting, $250; fourth prize, Zenith radio, $215; fifth prize, Maytag washing machine, $160; sixth prize, Domestic electric sewing machine, $150.

The contest is open to all the people of Norwich. Every customer in a Red Arrow store can nominate himself or his friend as a booster, by obtaining a free nomination blank in any of the 15 Red Arrow stores of Norwich. By signing the nomination blank and depositing it at the Palace theatre Treasure Chest, the person becomes a booster and is ready to vote for himself or any of his friends. The voting is done by red arrows, which can be obtained at the Reid and Hughes company by exchanging Red Arrow money. For every dollar of Red Arrow money the Reid and Hughes company will issue a voucher in the person's name equal to 500 arrows. These vouchers are to be deposited in the Treasure Chest at the Palace theatre lobby, and at the finish of the booster contest, the person having the largest amount of arrows, will receive the first prize; the person having the next largest number of arrows will receive second prize, and so on until the six prizes are disposed of.

The enthusiastic reception given by the Norwich public to the first Red Arrow Booster contest is assurance that the present contest will be received with even greater interest. By the success and interest manifested by the winners in the first contest the Red Arrow merchants are hopeful that a new set of patrons will realize that there is no other medium by which one can obtain an article valued at $625, equal to the amount of the first booster prize, with so little effort.

About 115 boosters have entered the present contest and the Red Arrow club would like to see the number increase as it will give the Red Arrow game a real boost and will offer a real sportsmanship trial for all who are in the game to win a prize.

The most attractive feature for the Feb. 24 auction will be the Red Arrow Handicraft contest. Everyone who can produce with his hands, any kind of artistic piece of work, such as embroidery, crocheting, weaving, braided rugs, artificial flowers, dolls (whose dresses are made by girls under 14 years of age), bird houses, model aeroplanes, drawings (made by children under 14 years), and the best collection of handicraft sent in by any Boy Scout troop of the Norwich council. The Red Arrow club will award 15 prizes for the handicraft articles in amounts of $5.00 and $2.50 and $10 to the Boy Scout troop. The articles entered in the contest will be returned to the contributors, whether they win a prize or not. Three prominent Norwich citizens will assist the Red Arrow club in awarding the prizes. All articles entered into the Red Arrow contest will be displayed in the windows of the Silberman Furniture company from Feb. 21 to Feb. 24. The Boy Scout articles will be displayed in the windows of the former Banker's Trust company, Franklin square.

The Boy Scouts have entered the contest with great enthusiasm and the Norwich public may expect to see some very fine handicraft work.

Physicians-Surgeons Exchange

A call to 1441 the Physicians-Surgeons exchange in Norwich will put a patient in almost immediate touch with their doctor. This exchange has been arranged by sixteen local doctors to provide service for their patients when the home or office phone of the physician is left uncovered for the time.

If, after calling the home or office of your physician and receiving no answer, a call is put in to 1441, the exchange will immediately get in touch with the doctor and relay your call to him where ever he may be at the time.

The names of the sixteen local physicians, who are now in the exchange, are listed in an advertisement in another section of this paper.

RAILS WERE STRONG IN STOCK MARKET; PRICES OF OTHER ISSUES VACILLATED

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—(AP)—The stock market was rather jumpy today, reflecting indecision on the part of professional traders. Rails gave the best account of themselves in weeks, generally reaching new peak levels for 1930, but price trends in other sections of the list were vacillating and divergent. Trading was of moderate proportions, total sales falling short of 2,400,000 shares.

The reduction in the New York rediscount rate, announced late yesterday, inspired more profit taking than buying, as did the reduction in the Bank of England rate in the previous session. Traders were inclined to feel that both the improved business and credit situations had been amply discounted for the movement in the more recent rise, and were disposed to test the present levels before launching any further bull campaigns.

Although the latest freight car loadings reports have not been particularly cheering, the prospect of further progress in rail consolidation in the comparatively near future, announcement of a 4-fold split-up in Canadian Pacific, and the fact that the rails have participated but slightly in the recent market advance, caused a diversion of bullish attention to this group, when the market turned stale in other sections.

The week end mercantile and business reviews indicated that conditions remain rather spotty, despite the progress that has been made toward recovery in steel and some other important lines. Dunn's, however, pointed out that these are "phases which are natural to periods of economic transition." Both retail and wholesale trade continued to lag, due in part to unfavorable weather.

The lower reserve bank rate had the natural consequence of further easing in credit conditions. Call money renewed at 4 per cent for the second time in two years and held at that figure. Time money eased moderately. There were no changes in commercial paper rates, but it is expected that prime names will be quoted as low as 4 1-2 per cent by next week. Institution of a 4 per cent rediscount rate at Chicago, and reductions from 5 to 4 1-2 at Cleveland, Minneapolis and Dallas were in keeping with the trend.

Canadian Pacific was the buoyant feature of the market, shooting up more than 18 points to 220 1-4, a new high for the year, although it sold above 265 last year. Chesapeake and Ohio, Lackawanna, Delaware and Hudson, New York Central, Norfolk and Western and Union Pacific were among issues rising 1 to 4 points to new 1930 tops. Some of the utilities were strong for a time, notably Stone and Webster, and its affiliate, Engineers Public Service, which mounted 6 and 4 points to new tops for the year, although most of these gains were lost before the close. American Can, American Bosch, American Tobacco B, and Mack Truck were other shares to meet with strong buying. Gillette rallied sharply in short covering prompted by an optimistic statement from the management, counteracting disconcerting rumors which have been circulated of late.

Simmons continued under pressure, dropping about 5 points to a new low for the movement at 72. Allied Chemical, J. I. Case, Columbian Carbon, Dupont, General Electric, Paramount and Western Union were among issues closing about 2 to 5 points lower. Industrial Rayon dropped 6 points to a new low for the year at 101. U. S. Steel closed a point lower.

Commodities were irregular, with cotton again dropping sharply. Closing quotations were about $3 a bale lower, making a loss of $12 in the past three weeks. Wheat moved over a wide range, but closed fractionally higher, helped by a bullish farm board statement and smaller Argentine exports. Corn also closed firm.

Foreign exchanges were inclined to ease, but Sterling cables held steady at $4.86 1-2.

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—(AP)—Business failures in the United States this week totaled 619, R. G. Dun & Co. reports. This figure is 74 above last week's 545 defaults, but is 25 less than the 644 insolvencies of two weeks ago. In the corresponding week a year ago, the number of failures was 550.

Total sales of the Spiegel-May-Stern Co., Chicago mail order house, for 1929 were $23,921,905, compared with $20,571,845 in 1928. The company's net profits for the year amounted to $1,717,909, equal to $7.21 a share on the common stock, as against $1,756,108 or $7.48 a share in 1928.

Stockholders of the White Rock Mineral Springs Co. of Waukesha, Wis., have approved an increase in the common stock from 200,000 to 250,000 shares. They also assented to the plan whereby the company's second preferred stock was exchanged for common on the basis of five shares of common for one share of preferred. Complete conversion of the second preferred into common stock, of which 90 per cent already has been exchanged, would leave the company with a capitalization of 20,000 shares of first preferred and 250,000 shares of common.

The United States Steel Corp. is expected to show between 75,000 and 100,000 tons in its unfilled orders at the close of business Jan. 31, the figures of which will be announced next Monday, Dow Jones & Co. reports.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—(AP)—Backing and filling movements characterized today's curb market, with closing prices irregular. The reduction in the New York federal reserve rediscount rate apparently had been discounted as it failed to arouse much bullish enthusiasm. Traders, who had built up profits earlier in the week, showed a disposition to convert them into cash, and little new buying was attracted by the easier credit situation.

American Gas & Electric showed consistent strength, touching a new high for the year at 136 3-4, and then easing a point to close with a net gain of 5 5-8. American Light & Traction, Commonwealth Edison and Duke Power jumped 4 1-2 to 7 1-2 points on small transactions but American & Foreign Power, Electric Bond & Share and the Arkansas Natural Gas issues lost 1 to 2 points.

Humble Oil advanced 2 points and Gulf sagged about a point, with the other petroleum issues holding fairly steady. Airplane stocks were quiet with a gain of 1 1-4 points in Dayton Airplane Engine and a smaller gain in Western Air Express as the only features. Newmont dropped 3 5-8 points despite the improved demand for the metal shares on the "big board." Engineers gold doubled in price, selling above $2 a share after having been down to 25 cents a few weeks ago.

Investment trust shares displayed a firm undertone, Fourth National Investors, Lehman Corporation, Marine Midland, New York Investors and Sisto Financial all advancing a point or so. Goldman Sachs closed unchanged at 39 1-4 after having sold a point above that figure. Pennroad improved fractionally on a heavy turnover.

Aluminum Co. of America jumped 9 1-2 points on a few sales and A. and P. and United Chemicals each advanced about 5 points.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Feb. 7.—(AP)— Wheat prices came tumbling down like Jack and Jill today after running up at a lively rate. Buying support for the market gave out after previous speculative sellers had engaged in a stampede to get away from new risks arising because of federal farm board moves to establish a wheat stabilization body with emergency power to incur losses payable from government funds. Contributing to late reactions today from wheat price upturns was notable dearth of North American wheat export business as well as severe breaks in wheat values at Buenos Aires.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat were unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to half cent higher. Corn closed unchanged to 1-2c up, oats 1-8 to 1-4 at 3-8c advance, and provisions showing 10 to 13c gain.

Before jumping higher as a result of definite steps being taken to form a wheat stabilization corporation, the wheat trade here showed considerable uncertainty on account of unlooked for transient setbacks in wheat prices at Liverpool. Then came a general rush of buying orders here, and Chicago wheat values rose quickly more than 2c a bushel compared with today's bottom figures. On the price bulges, however, selling broadened out, and in some quarters it was asserted that the emergency measures proposed were in reality a bearish factor as being sensational advertising to the world that the United States has a burdensome wheat surplus to dispose of.

An additional disturbing influence was a statement from a Chicago trade authority that whereas the federal farm board will maintain the present loan basis for wheat already harvested, the board will not guarantee any loan basis for the next crop. This was taken to mean that at least the July delivery of wheat would be affected, inasmuch as a considerable amount of new domestic wheat is marketed in July. On the other hand talk was heard from important sources that owing to easier money conditions prevailing, the outlook is improving for abandonment of trans-Atlantic practice of only hand-to-mouth buying. However, export business in North American wheat today totalled barely 200,000 bushels and most of this pittance was from Canada.

Corn and oats paralleled the action of wheat. Country offerings of corn were light, and eastern demand fair.

Provisions advanced in response to upturns in the value of hogs.

January sales of the Safety Stores Co. amounted to $18,439,302, as against $14,902,795 in January, 1929. On Dec. 31, 1929, there were 2,600 stores in the chain, compared with 1,995 on Dec. 31, 1928.

RAILS WERE STRONG IN STOCK MARKET; PRICES OF OTHER ISSUES VACILLATED

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—(AP)—The stock market was rather jumpy today, reflecting indecision on the part of professional traders. Rails gave the best account of themselves in weeks, generally reaching new peak levels for 1930, but price trends in other sections of the list were vacillating and divergent. Trading was of moderate proportions, total sales falling short of 3,400,000 shares.

The reduction in the New York rediscount rate, announced late yesterday, inspired more profit taking than buying, as did the reduction in the Bank of England rate in the previous session. Traders were inclined to feel that both the improved business and credit situations had been amply discounted for the movement in the more recent rise, and were disposed to test the present levels before launching any further bull campaigns.

Although the latest freight car loadings reports have not been particularly cheering, the prospect of further progress in rail consolidation in the comparatively near future, announcement of a 4-for-1 split-up in Canadian Pacific, and the fact that the rails have participated but slightly in the recent market advance, caused a diversion of bullish attention to this group, when the market turned stale in other sections.

The week end mercantile and business reviews indicated that conditions remain rather spotty, despite the progress that has been made toward recovery in steel and some other important lines. Dunn's, however, pointed out that these are "phases which are natural to periods of economic transition." Both retail and wholesale trade continued to lag, due in part to unfavorable weather.

The lower reserve bank rate had the natural consequence of further easing in credit conditions. Call money renewed at 4 per cent for the second time in two years and held at that figure. Time money eased moderately. There were no changes in commercial paper rates, but it is expected that prime names will be quoted as low as 4 1-2 per cent by next week. Institution of a 4 per cent rediscount rate at Chicago, and reductions from 5 to 4 1-2 at Cleveland, Minneapolis and Dallas were in keeping with the trend.

Canadian Pacific was the buoyant feature of the market, shooting up more than 18 points to 220 1-4, a new high for the year, although it sold above 265 last year. Chesapeake and Ohio, Lackawanna, Delaware and Hudson, New York Central, Norfolk and Western and Union Pacific were among issues rising 1 to 4 points to new 1930 tops. Some of the utilities were strong for a time, notably Stone and Webster, and its affiliate, Engineers Public Service, which mounted 6 and 4 points to new tops for the year, although most of these gains were lost before the close. American Can, American Bosch, American Tobacco B, and Mack Truck were other shares to meet with strong buying. Gillette rallied sharply in short covering prompted by an optimistic statement from the management, counteracting disconcerting rumors which have been circulated of late.

Simmons continued under pressure, dropping about 5 points to a new low for the movement at 72. Allied Chemical, J. I. Case, Columbian Carbon, Dupont, General Electric, Paramount and Western Union were among issues closing about 2 to 5 points lower. Industrial Rayon dropped 6 points to a new low for the year at 101. U. S. Steel closed a point lower.

Commodities were irregular, with cotton again dropping sharply. Closing quotations were about $3 a bale lower, making a loss of $12 in the past three weeks. Wheat moved over a wide range, but closed fractionally higher, helped by a bullish farm board statement and smaller Argentine exports. Corn also closed firm.

Foreign exchanges were inclined to ease, but Sterling cables held steady at $4.86 1-2.

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—(AP)—Business failures in the United States this week totaled 619, R. G. Dun & Co. reports. This figure is 74 above last week's 545 defaults, but is 25 less than the 644 insolvencies of two weeks ago. In the corresponding week a year ago, the number of failures was 560.

Total sales of the Spiegel-May-Stern Co., Chicago mail order house, for 1929 were $23,921,905, compared with $20,371,845 in 1928. The company's net profits for the year amounted to $1,717,309, equal to $7.21 a share on the common stock, as against $1,756,108 or $7.43 a share in 1928.

Stockholders of the White Rock Mineral Springs Co. of Waukesha, Wis., have approved an increase in the common stock from 200,000 to 250,000 shares. They also assented to the plan whereby the company's second preferred stock was exchanged for common on the basis of five shares of common for one share of preferred. Complete conversion of the second preferred into common stock, of which 90 per cent already has been exchanged, would leave the company with a capitalization of 20,000 shares of first preferred and 250,000 shares of common.

The United States Steel Corp. is expected to show between 75,000 and 100,000 tons in its unfilled orders at the close of business Jan. 31, the figures of which will be announced next Monday, Dow Jones & Co. reports.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—(AP)—Backing and filling movements characterized today's curb market, with closing prices irregular. The reduction in the New York federal reserve rediscount rate apparently had been discounted as it failed to arouse much bullish enthusiasm. Traders, who had built up profits earlier in the week, showed a disposition to convert them into cash, and little new buying was attracted by the easier credit situation.

American Gas & Electric showed consistent strength, touching a new high for the year at 136 3-4, and then easing a point to close with a net gain of 3 5-8. American Light & Traction, Commonwealth Edison and Duke Power jumped 4 1-2 to 7 1-2 points on small transactions but American & Foreign Power, Electric Bond & Share and the Arkansas Natural Gas issues lost 1 to 2 points.

Humble Oil advanced 2 points and Gulf sagged about a point, with the other petroleum issues holding fairly steady. Airplane stocks were quiet with a gain of 1 1-4 points in Dayton Airplane Engine and a smaller gain in Western Air Express as the only features. Newmont dropped 8 5-8 points despite the improved demand for the metal shares on the "big board." Engineers gold doubled in price, selling above $2 a share after having been down to 25 cents a few weeks ago.

Investment trust shares displayed a firm undertone. Fourth National Investors, Lehman Corporation, Marine Midland, New York Investors and Sisto Financial all advancing a point or so. Goldman Sachs closed unchanged at 39 1-4 after having sold a point above that figure. Pennroad improved fractionally on a heavy turnover.

Aluminum Co. of America jumped 9 1-2 points on a few sales and A. and P. and United Chemicals each advanced about 5 points.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Feb. 7.—(AP)— Wheat prices came tumbling down like Jack and Jill today after running up at a lively rate. Buying support for the market gave out after previous speculative sellers had engaged in a stampede to get away from new risks arising because of federal farm board moves to establish a wheat stabilization body with emergency power to incur losses payable from government funds. Contributing to late reactions today from wheat price upturns was notable dearth of North American wheat export business as well as severe breaks in wheat values at Buenos Aires.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat were unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to half cent higher. Corn closed unchanged to 1-2c up, oats 1-8 to 1-4 at 3-8c advance, and provisions showing 10 to 12c gain.

Before jumping higher as a result of definite steps being taken to form a wheat stabilization corporation, the wheat trade here showed considerable uncertainty on account of unlooked for transient setbacks in wheat prices at Liverpool. Then came a general rush of buying orders here, and Chicago wheat values rose quickly more than 3c a bushel compared with today's bottom figures. On the price bulges, however, selling broadened out, and in some quarters it was asserted that the emergency measures proposed were in reality a bearish factor as being sensational advertising to the world that the United States has a burdensome wheat surplus to dispose of.

An additional disturbing influence was a statement from a Chicago trade authority that whereas the federal farm board will maintain the present loan basis for wheat already harvested, the board will not guarantee any loan basis for the next crop. This was taken to mean that at least the July delivery of wheat would be affected, inasmuch as a considerable amount of new domestic wheat is marketed in July. On the other hand talk was heard from important sources that owing to easier money conditions prevailing, the outlook is improving for abandonment of trans-Atlantic practice of only hand-to-mouth buying. However, export business in North American wheat today totalled hardly 300,000 bushels and most of this pittance was from Canada.

Corn and oats paralleled the action of wheat. Country offerings of corn were light, and eastern demand fair.

Provisions advanced in response to upturns in the value of hogs.

January sales of the Safety Stores Co. amounted to $18,439,302, as against $14,302,795 in January, 1929. On Dec. 31, 1929, there were 2,660 stores in the chain, compared with 1,385 on Dec. 31, 1928.

INTENTIONAL SECOND EXPOSURE

OLD MAN'S DARLING

—By—

SARA J. WARDEL

A RACE BETWEEN SOPHISTICATED MIDDLE AGE AND VIRILE YOUTH FOR THE HAND OF MODERN SPORTS-LOVING MAID WHO IS INCLINED TO FAVOR THE WORLDLINESS OF HER OLDER SUITOR.

"IT'S got to stop, I tell you!" sputtered Mr. Hubbard. He pounded the table until the silver jumped.

"You are breaking up housekeeping," suggested Mrs. Hubbard mildly. "If you'll only listen to me, I think I have a plan."

The mother of a girl as pretty and high-handed as Joyce Hubbard is usually bubbling over with plans. She has to be. At 19 spankings are out of date. Scoldings ran off Joy's back like water off a duck. A laying-down of the law a la Mr. Hubbard went in one shell-like ear and out the other. What was left for a defenseless mother but to scheme? Long experience had made Mrs. Hubbard clever at it.

"I'll put my foot down!" exploded Joy's irascible male parent.

"Yes, and ruin everything," interposed her mother. "You'll have her eloping with the man just to prove her independence. Now you just listen to me, John Hubbard. We'll invite a crowd of young people for a house party at the lake over Easter, Guy Withington to be included—"

Mr. Hubbard's roar could have been heard a block away. His fist made the breakfast china rattle. An egg cup near his elbow did a fantastic Charleston.

"You're crazy, Mary. A girl's a lot like a cow. Give her enough rope and she'll hang herself. We'll be in a nice tangle then. I wouldn't trust that middle-aged scoundrel around the corner with my daughter, let alone giving him the run of the lake. I won't hear of it—that's final!"

Mrs. Hubbard sighed. Her troubles had begun when the 9-year-old boy next door fell in love with Joy at 4! She had watched him have hysterics on the front porch when the family moved away and he had to part with her. Right then and there she realized what she was in for. A daughter who begins breaking hearts at 4 has an early start and a long road ahead of her.

Joy had run true to form ever since. Right now it was 38-year-old Guy Withington, divorcee, man-about-town and recent tenor addition to the church choir. If Joy's father had been mildly jealous of her other affairs, he was eligible for a strait-jacket over the present conquest. His idea of a daughter was a girl who stayed happily at home until her parents selected the man best fitted to be her husband. Mid Victorian stuff, and Joy was decidedly not that kind of a girl!

SHE waltzed in now, as if to prove the point, wearing black satin pajamas and a mandarin coat. She was young enough to belong to the post-bob period and had not worn her hair short since long hair began to appear in style once more. At the moment she looked slightly Chinese, with her almond-shaped eyes, ivory-tinted skin and tightly drawn headdress as silkily dark as her pajamas.

She slumped into a chair and blew casual kisses at both her parents. Faced by their little problem, Mr. and Mrs. Hubbard stared at each other across the breakfast table. Inwardly each was thinking the same thing:

"Isn't she the loveliest thing in the world?"

The "loveliest thing" waved her breakfast away.

"Just coffee, Marie. Food is fatal before noon."

"Now, Joy!" remonstrated her mother.

"Fatal to what, I'd like to know?" boomed her father.

"To one's figure, of course. Look at your own tummy dad or mummy's hips. Pancakes and sirup—ugh! They give me the creeps."

"Yes, and if you don't watch out you'll be coming own with consumption or anemia or something else more fatal than a few pounds of flesh. I don't know what's come over girls nowadays. They used to be proud of a decent figure. Who wants to hug a skeleton?"

"Guy does," said Joy calmly, refusing the sugar bowl.

Mr. Hubbard's face turned purple.

"Hereafter you'll kindly leave that man's name out of your conversation. He's no fit companion for a girl your age. Why, it's like gallivanting around with your father—"

"Oh, no, sweetheart," laughed Joy. "You're all wrong. Guy treats me like a decent, grown-up person. You don't. That's the difference."

Mrs. Hubbard shook her head furiously at Mr. Hubbard, which gesture did not escape their daughter.

"Now run along to the office, John. You'll be late again. Joy and I will talk this thing over and settle matters."

She wrapped his muffler about his neck and held his overcoat ready. Trust her to handle Joyce. You could catch more flies with molasses than with Mr. Hubbard's particular brand of vinegar. John was a darling, but he certainly did not know how to manage daughters. He had decided to veto the house party, had he? Well, she'd see to that.

"Give a girl enough rope and she'll hang herself," he had said. Well, bless his heart, that was exactly what she intended to do. Inspiration dawned. She would drop a bee in Silas Greene's ear. Silas had a large hunting lodge just over the Canadian border. John had been itching to go gaming lately. She was reasonably sure the plan would work. It was hateful to have to scheme this way, but John was such a dear old dunce that he could be counted on to help her more if he were safely out of the way for a few days.

She turned to her daughter as the front door slammed behind the irate Mr. Hubbard.

"What do you say to a house party over the vacation, Joy? A real one, you know, at the lake cottage. You may ask all the young folks you like."

"Provided I leave Guy out, I suppose? What's the big idea? Is this a bribe?"

Joy was coolly insolent. Her mother smiled.

"Don't be a sill, dear. Guy is to be the guest of honor."

The girl's face changed. She catapulted across the room like a young tornado.

"Hot dog, mums! It'll be some party. Takes Guy to show the hicks around here how to throw one."

"Better get busy, then, and make a list of the crowd you want. Here's a pencil. You'll ask Bill, of course?"

Joy's smile clouded. Until she met Guy, Bill had been the nicest man in the world. But a college undergraduate can scarcely be compared to a man of the world. Even Bill's wonderful football record did not balance Guy's travel and experience, his sophisticated line.

Bill was different. He was—well, he was just Bill. Sweet and everything, but really just an infant, a big, overgrown infant. She'd known him all her life. If she invited him to the house party, he'd be sure to queer her with Guy. Not intentionally of course, but he'd put his foot into it somehow. He was bound to spring some fool story about their kid days just when she was trying to impress Guy by her sophistication.

"Oh, let's not ask Bill this time," she drawled. "He's an awful killjoy. Always in training for something or other! Won't smoke, won't drink, don't do a darn thing human."

Mrs. Hubbard thrilled to a new idea. How did the old adage go? "Which would you rather be, an old man's darling or a young man's sweetheart?" After all, why not? Joy was asserting her right to fall in love with an older man. Let her see how it looked to reverse the cases!

She beamed foolishly on her daughter.

"But I want him, Joy. I'm the hostess, and I think I have some right to pick my own escort. Father won't be able to go along, and I've always had a sneaking passion for Bill. He's a darling. Do let me be gay and young once in a while!"

JOY regarded her suspiciously. Was mother trying to pull a fast one? Why, she was 39 years old! Bill was only 21.

"Oh, be your age, mother. Quit kidding."

"But I'm not kidding, honey. I'm just silly about Bill. I don't see why I shouldn't play around with him a little. Nothing serious, of course. Just a few harmless little thrills. Gracious, Joyce, I'm not an old lady. I bet Bill won't think so, either!"

Mrs. Hubbard smiled mysteriously. Joy, running upstairs to dress, remembered that smile with a funny chill. Of course, mother was only fooling. She was an awful tease. Still, she'd heard somewhere that middle-aged women struck a childish period when they made idiots of themselves over younger men. Poor dad! It would just about kill him. Mother would stand close watching.

The crowd of week-enders whirled off bright and early Friday morning. There was only one flaw in Joy's happiness. Her mother, simpering like a schoolgirl, insisted on going alone in Bill's little car, the back seat piled high with luggage. At the last minute she thrust Clarice Gray and Tom Edwards in the rumble seat of Guy's coupe.

"I'm old enough not to need a chaperon, dear," she whispered. "You're not."

And off she went, Bill turning back to grin triumphantly, as if he'd made some sort of a conquest. The trip would have been completely ruined for Joy if it had not been for Guy. A girl cannot be entirely miserable when a good-looking man with a dark mustache keeps telling her that she is the most glorious woman in the world! He was so subtle, not at all like the boys Joy knew, shouting their love for all the world to hear. His eyes said things, his shoulder brushing against hers. He had technique. He did not just blunder along like a bull in a china shop, the way Bill did. Poor Bill! Poor, foolish mother! Joy resolved to talk some sense into her.

But the opportunity was a long time coming. When they reached the lake cottage, Bill's car had not yet showed up. An hour passed. The rest of the party had all arrived. The house was in an uproar. There were fires to be built, a meal to be cooked. Every one was famished. Where in the world was mother? Joy had never cooked anything in her life before.

She did her best, but was not very successful. The kitchen range smoked and smoldered. The coffee pot leaked. Guy was fussy because his bag was in Bill's car, and the situation demanded an immediate change into his new sport clothes. He refused sulkily to chop wood in his best suit. Joy threw a pair of overalls at him, but he turned up his nose and mixed cocktails instead.

Joy, remembering the time Bill had helped her open the cottage last summer, felt abused. Bill had put on the old overalls, swept floors, moved furniture around and chopped wood. Now he was out gallivanting with mother just when she needed him most. It didn't seem fair.

The girls stood around in their fur coats and shivered. The boys sat on the porch steps throwing stones into the lake. Joy, stubbornly refusing her cocktail, burned the steak. She cut bread in awkward slices and thumped the china down on the table. Dinner was finally assembled. The others fell to heartily, but Guy, after one look at the charred steak and dish of canned peas, began shaking more cocktails.

"Bootleg liquor is not more poisonous, oh, my friends, than yonder victuals," he chanted.

The others roared. Joy was furious. She felt tired, cross and hungry. She had burned her hand trying to rescue the steak and cut a finger with the bread knife. She pushed back her chair, but Guy fed her a cocktail forcibly, the liquid scalding her throat. Some one turned on the victrola. Guy caught her up and began to dance. All the fight went out of her. She clung to him and they circled the floor madly. She forgot to be grouchy. The swoop and dip of the tango went to her head. The one-step that followed brought them closer together again. She laid her soft white cheek against his. Her eyes closed. There were a million men who could wear overalls and chop wood like Bill, but only one who could dance like Guy!

The bleat of a horn outside announced the arrival of Bill. Mother was beaming shamelessly.

"Sorry, youngsters, but we had an accident. Lost one of the bags somewhere and retraced most of the way to look for it. Guess some one is out of luck, though. It's gone for good."

"Mine, I suppose," groaned Guy.

He was a little stuffy about it. He had intended to cut a fine figure in the neatly fitted riding breeches and leather boots. Sartorial perfection was essential to his peace of mind. Guy was decidedly at his best when provided with plenty of hot water, porcelain bathtubs, barber shops and tailoring establishments. He had not counted on the house party being a back-to-nature affair.

"Awfully sorry, old chap," volunteered Bill. "I'll do my best to make it up to you. Come on upstairs and change into some of my duds right away. I've plenty here."

But Guy was more amusing than impressive in Bill's golf trousers. Bill, who was considerably taller and more heavily built, filled them out, but they flapped mournfully about Guy's shanks. Their tweed stripes emphasized his thinness. Joy was horrified to discover he was slightly bowlegged. But he already felt so obviously wretched that she made no comments.

There was a fine drizzle in the air when Mrs. Hubbard insisted on chasing the young folks out for a walk.

"All except Bill," she said. "He's my right-hand man. We're going to put this place to rights and cook you a good supper."

"Let me stay and help, too," begged Guy. "I've the start of a little cold, and I'm not so sure about tramping around in the rain."

"Oh, nonsense. Nobody's ever sick up here. You need a little fresh air. Now run along and take care of Joy."

But Joy was feeling distinctly down in the mouth. Was Guy going to fall for mother, too? She was brief with him, especially when he lagged behind the others. Joy liked to walk with a quick, free stride. That was half the fun of country hiking. But Guy limped along like a cripple. Later she felt sorry for him. He was breathing hard and hobbling quite painfully. After all, Guy was a city man. That was why she liked him. He wasn't used to strenuous exercise. She patted his hand, but he answered her with a sneeze. His eyes were appealing.

"I'b afraid I'b going to be sick," he said thickly.

Five or six more sneezes followed in violent succession.

"Mother shouldn't have made you go," raged Joy. "Never mind, dear, I'll doctor you up and you'll be as good as new tomorrow. You'll see."

SHE made him a hot lemonade and did not object to the generous portion of whiskey he added to the glass. He went to bed early. The evening was a total loss so far as Joy was concerned. The other couples paired off. Joy asked Bill a few questions about the spring baseball team. He answered politely and turned eagerly to Mrs. Hubbard again. Joy had to content herself with driving off lonesomely with a few of the others to a movie across the lake. She sat unconscious of the couples all about her holding hands. What a flop this party had turned out to be! Guy sick in bed and Bill, faithful old Bill, tagging around like a donkey after mother!

Morning found Guy unromantically red-nosed and weepy-eyed. There was certainly no prospect of his going on the picnic to the old mill. He proposed staying home alone, but Joy nobly insisted on staying with him.

"Might as well get in practice, I suppose," suggested mother cheerily.

"Now just what do you mean by that?" bristled Joy.

"Well, of course, he isn't so decrepit now. But most old men do need a good nurse eventually."

Joy flounced out of the room, suddenly painfully conscious of the hot-water bottle she was carrying to Guy. A wave of loyalty swept over her. Guy wasn't an old man. He just had a bad cold. It might happen to any one. She threw another blanket over his feet tenderly.

"A drink of water, please, darling," he begged. "And do lower the shades. The light's in my eyes."

Joy waved good-by to the rest with a show of bravado. Then she settled down to study the cookbook. Guy had requested a poached egg on toast for luncheon. How in thunder did one poach an egg? This was certainly a dumb way to spend the morning when spring was in the air and sunshine flooded the out-of-doors. She was surprised that mother had not insisted on staying there in her place. It was not exactly proper to be alone in the house with a sick man who was virtually a total stranger. A total stranger? How terrible of her to be feeling that way about Guy, whom yesterday she had been going to marry! Horrified, she crept upstairs to reassure herself. He was sleeping soundly, his lips forming a little whistle that was not exactly musical. Joy wanted to laugh. It really was funny. Or was it tragic? She could not decide.

Poaching an egg was not so easy as it sounded in the cookbook. While she was trying to rescue the white, which floated elusively about in the water, the toast burned. Patiently she made another batch. By that time the egg was cold. She cooked another. It was too soft, though, Guy complained. He liked them firm. Soft eggs made him sick. He turned his head petulantly to the wall. Joy wasted half a dozen before she got one to suit him. Exhausted, she wanted to crawl away and sleep the rest of the afternoon. Guy asked her to read to him. She mumbled drowsily until he said she made every sentence sound alike and hadn't she ever gone to school? Then she flung the book at him, repented and knelt down beside him in a flood of tears.

"We mustn't quarrel this way, darling. You're everything in the world to me now," she sobbed, remembering how even her mother seemed to have deserted her.

He patted her shoulder. They clung together mournfully until he reminded her that if she didn't look out she'd catch his cold. At best, a cold is not romantic. At worst, it is perfectly capable of destroying a romance. Joy was bound that should not happen. She still had her pride to consider. After all, she did love Guy. There was that bit in the wedding service about for better or for worse. Most girls didn't have any experience with the "for worse" part before their marriage. Maybe it was just as well to have this happen. Surely there could not be any more trying "for worse"! She kissed Guy circumspectly on the forehead.

WHEN the happy picnickers returned, harmony reigned supreme in the cottage. Only Mrs. Hubbard noticed that her daughter's mouth was a little grim. Her words gave no hint of the discovery.

"We've had such a gay time," she caroled. "Bill is a regular knight-of-old. I declare, he's waited on me hand and foot. How's your patient, darling?"

The patient was able to be up and about by Sunday morning. The day was balmy. Most of the party motored to the nearby town for church. Word spread through the little chapel that one of the visitors was a singer. Joy was bursting with pride when Guy's high tenor floated out over the rapt audience. The sun, slanting through a stained-glass window behind added the last perfect touch. Peace settled over her heart after the wretched hours of doubt.

Joy sighed happily. It was like a benediction. Everything was suddenly miraculously right again. The fears had been just a bad nightmare. But Guy was grouchy on the way home. He had sung abominably, he said. The cold affected his voice.

"Who got me in for it, anyhow?" he demanded crossly.

"Why, I did, darling. I thought you'd be glad to do it. I was so proud of you, Guy. You sang beautifully. Every one was thrilled."

It took a lot of praise to mollify him. Eventually he was his own happy self again. Darling Guy! Like all temperamental artists, flattery appealed to him. She smiled up understandingly. He stopped the car on a side road and caught her up to him. They were disgracefully late for dinner. Joy had a sneaking suspicion that mother had been nervous, though she disguised it under a running fire of banter with Bill.

A few brave souls decided to take a dip in the lake toward the middle of the afternoon. The rest chose to paddle aimlessly about in the canoes. Joy, watching Bill running down to the shore in his bathing suit, suffered a pang of jealousy. She was a good swimmer herself. Ordinarily she would have been right beside him. She shook off the regret.

"Come on, Guy. Let's race down and launch a canoe. It can't possibly hurt you. The sun's as warm as summer."

He hesitated a moment and then followed her. Canoes were treacherous craft.

"Let's take the rowboat instead," he suggested. "Then you won't have to work."

Joy flashed him a startled glance. He had never been so thoughtful before. Maybe she had misjudged him. It was just as well to encourage his generosity. But she noticed that she did most of the tugging when they tried to launch the rowboat.

She settled back prettily and watched Guy row. He certainly was not very expert with the oars. And he did look funny in those black-and-white-striped tweeds. He could not wear just about anything the way Bill did. She had seen Bill look divine in a pair of old foo ball pants. But then again in evening dress Guy could draw circles around him. Bill in a tuxedo looked rather hastily assembled. She was always afraid that he was about to lose some essential part of his costume!

"I didn't notice any water in the bottom of the boat when we started."

Guy interrupted her thoughts. She glanced down. A good-sized pool was rapidly accumulating under her feet. She sprang up hastily.

"Great Scott, the old tub's leaking. Must have sprung a hole during the winter. Here, quit rowing and take this can. We'll have to bail like sixty."

They worked fast. For a few minutes they broke even. Then the water crept up on them. All the seams of the boat leaked. The inflow crept in through visible cracks. It covered the whole bottom of the boat now. Their cans were too small for the task.

"We'll have to jump and swim for it," called Joy. "Pull off your shoes!"

For the first time she noticed that his face was vivid. Why, the man was scared! How funny! She and Bill had pulled this trick a score of times just for fun. There was no time to argue now. The water was creeping rapidly up the sides. The boat was sinking fast. She pushed Guy overboard and followed. He clung to the gunwale desperately. His eyes were terror-stricken.

"I can't swim!" he moaned. "I can't swim!"

She went to him then, told him to rest part of his weight on her and the rest on the boat. But in his fright he leaned too heavily on the gunwale. The boat tipped crazily and he went under for a moment, coming up sputtering and screaming. He dragged at her so frantically that she felt herself being pulled down with him. His cries were terrible.

SHE hit him then. The blow crumpled him up. Holding on to him as if he were a sack of meal, she fought her way back toward the boat. It was their only hope. If only she could manage to cling to it.

But a stiff offshore wind made progress impossible. She was growing rapidly weaker. The water was icy. There was no longer any sensation in her limbs.

Moments passed like hours. Her hand was powerless any longer. One by one the fingers grasping the boat relaxed. Like a queer, faraway thought it came to her: "Why, I'm going to die!"

The waters closed over her head. Guy's limp body still held close to her.

When she opened her eyes again, Bill's wet face was pressed into hers.

"Thank heavens!" he cried. "I'm in time."

Guy came to at the moment and demanded all their strength to quiet him. Bill flopped him expertly on his back and took a strangle hold on him.

"I'm all right," panted Joy. "We'll have to swim in. Don't worry, Bill. I'll make it. Just take care of Guy."

"I ought to drop him off," snarled Bill. "You're all in, Joy."

But Joy shook her head. Useless to waste breath on words. She needed all her wind. They struggled along silently. Joy resolutely refused Bill's help. He had enough to do managing the terrified burden under his arm.

Exhausted, they crawled up on the beach. Bill turned to Joy, covering her face with long, sobbing kisses.

"Oh, my girl, I thought I'd lost you! I thought I'd lost you. If I hadn't happened to be looking for you it would have been too late—"

He started to stumble up the hill with her, but she fought him off.

"We've got to tend to Guy, you idiot. He's as good as dead."

"Good riddance, too" stormed Bill. "You're the only thing I give a hoot about. I've risked you long enough to that coward!"

Her eyes blazed with the fire of the die-hard fighter.

"You forget! He's my fiance!"

He dropped her then with a little shrug and took to rolling the now angrily sputtering Guy.

Joy, tucking hot-water bottles at the feet of her hoarse fiance later in the evening, felt a tear splash on her hand. If this was all that life held for her, she might as well be dead! Taking care of a crabbed old man whose teeth and hair would soon be falling out! Nursing an aged patient in a wheel chair or hobbling about on crutches! What a girl wanted was a young man with whom she could race through life, the wind blowing about their victorious heads! A man who could help her over the rough places, carry her on his strong back when the going was hard! A young man—a man like Bill! But now her stubborn heart had lost him to her. Why hadn't she drowned while she was about it?

A low whistle rose high on the wind outside the window. Mrs. Hubbard, her eyes tender, tiptoed softly into the sick-room.

"Bill's calling, dear," she whispered.

In the moonlight under the old oak tree that had always been their trysting place, Bill tipped her head back.

"You sort of run to relatives, Bill," she wailed. "First mother, then me!"

"You're wrong, dear. First you and always you, ever since I was old enough to wear trousers. It's a good idea to get acquainted with your future mother-in-law, though. Especially when my sweetheart is a long time realizing that she belongs to me!"

GOSHEN

In recognition of the forty-ninth anniversary of the Christian Endeavor society, founded in Portland, Me., Feb. 2, 1881, by Rev. Francis E. Clark, the Goshen church celebrated the event with a special service by the C. E. society, Sunday morning. The pastor, Rev. Howard Bushnell, who is also president of the local society, conducted the service. Helen Kostowich led in a short prayer, Mary Varnish read the Scripture lesson, Alice Faulkner the second prayer and Ruby Faulkner read a Scripture passage. Stephen Gorski sang at the offertory and gave a very fine account of the recent council meeting at Preston Baptist church, also a condensed account of the C. E. society from its humble beginning to its present proportion of several million members and its world wide influence for good. The pastor closed the service with a future outlook for the local society for the year 1930 and the Mispah benediction. The organist, Mrs. E. W. Jones, accompanied for the hymns. Thirty-eight were present.

Mr. William T. Curry, who has been ill, is able to be out again. A Farm bureau meeting was held with Mrs. J. A. Thomas, Wednesday. Miss Ruth Russell demonstrated dry cleaning.

Friends in Goshen were surprised and grieved to learn of the recent death of Benjamin F. Carpenter. His schoolmates in West Street school district, Columbia, over 50 years, recall that he possessed a musical ear, and was a fine harmonica player. He was also an old time fiddler and played by ear all of the old time melodies. He was one of the contestants in "Ye Old Tyme Fiddlers' Contest," held in grange hall last winter.

CANTERBURY GREEN

A meeting will be held in the church next Tuesday evening at 7.30 for the purpose of forming a parent-teacher association.

Edwin Linall, of New Haven, is spending the mid-year recess with his parents at the parsonage.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Barrows are entertaining the former's brother, Frank Barrows from New Haven.

Webster Wainwright fractured his elbow by a fall on the ice while skating on the high school grounds.

Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Frink were recent guests of Mrs. Frink's sister, Mrs. Walker, of Hartford.

At the whist Saturday evening prizes were won by Mrs. Kerr, Mrs. Hawes and Mrs. Silva of Moosup, and Earl McCleod, Mr. Park of Packang and Clinton Frink. Clam chowder, cake and coffee were served. The next whist will be given next week.

The meeting of Canterbury grange took place Wednesday evening. The program was in honor of the birthday of Lindbergh and Edison, Malcolm Wibberly and Mrs. Happy Tracy speaking on these celebrities respectively. Doughnuts and coffee were served after the meeting. The next program will be of a patriotic order.

At the meeting of the juvenile grange Saturday afternoon the following officers were installed by Mrs. Lillian Frink assisted by Miss Dawley: Master Harry Kinne; lecturer, Althea Williams; steward, Raymond Moffat; treasurer, Marguerite Tracy; secretary, Viana Vaara; gate keeper, Manfred Moody; Ceres, Muriel Hansen; Pomona, Hazel Williams; Flora, Francis Lovell; lady assistant, Olive Linton. Three of the newly elected officers were not present. Refreshments were served.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—(AP)—The ease in money which accompanied the reduction in the federal reserve bank's rediscount rate was a favorable factor in today's bond market and prices moved moderately higher in the busiest session of the year. Sales crossed the $12,000,000 mark, nearly half a million above yesterday's total.

Time funds were quoted at 4 1-2 per cent for the short maturities and 4 3-4 flat for the longer dates. These figures represented declines of about a quarter percent. In response to this trend in interest charges, United States government securities traded actively, but finished with some irregularity. The Fourth Liberty Loan sold off an eighth on the day, while the Liberty 3 1-2s and the Treasury 3 3-8s of 1943-47 made tiny fractional advances.

First grade rails and the utilities had an upward trend, but the features of the domestic list were provided by some of the secondary carrier obligations. Seaboard Air Line issues were buoyant and very active, making gains of 2 to 3 5-8 points on the rise in the shares. Seaboard All Florida 6s, Series B, shot up 3 points and the 6s, rose 2. Florida East Coast 5s were also strong, climbing 3 1-2 points. St. Paul, Denver & Rio Grande Western, Erie and Missouri Pacific listings reflected persistent accumulation.

The $12,000,000 offering of Louisville & Nashville Railroad bonds was quickly oversubscribed. Activity in the listed rails of investment calibre embraced Canadian Nation 5s, Burlington 4 1-2s, Great Northern 7s, New Haven 4 1-2s, Pennsylvania General 4 1-2s, West Shore 4s and the Southern Railway group, all of which held firm. Southern Railway General 4s rose a full point.

Several of the utilities moved briskly in extensive trading. American Telephone 5s of 1965 crossed 101 and the 1960 maturity rose 3-4. Consolidated Gas of New York 5 1-2s and Western Union Gold 5s were other favorites, the latter turning over to the extent of $120,000 principal amount, and losing a shade on the day. Utah Power & Light 5s were firm despite the announcement of an additional issue scheduled to appear next week.

The industrials were rather neglected and ruled steady. Chile Copper 5s, Goodrich 6 1-2s, Goodyear 5s, Lorillard 7s and Standard Oil of New Jersey 5s exhibited some vitality, but net changes proved to be inconsequential.

It was another busy day for the French Republic bonds. The 7 1-2s rallied half a point but were unable to hold the gain and had a small net loss. A $200,000 block of these bonds changed hands, swelling the day's volume to about $670,000 par value. The 7s lost 3-8.

Other popular European loans were rather dull and there was evidence of minor profit taking from the recent advance, apparently on switching operations to domestic issues. British 5 1-2s lost 1-2. Sweden 5 1-2s gained the same amount.

With attention turning to bonds of more seasoned types, the stock privilege division was quiet. The American Telephone 4 1-2s moved in good volume, moving up a point and then turning downward to close 7-8 lower. Both of the Allegheny 5s advanced a point.

NEW LONDON BOOZE SO ENRAGES MAN THAT HE BITES FATHER-IN-LAW

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 7—A former member of the U. S. Coast Guard, too drunk to reveal his name, was arrested tonight by Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Automobile Patrol Officer Augustus Ray, charged with breach of the peace and intoxication. He will be in court Saturday. The man, who is the son-in-law of Anthony Lewis, 58 Bayonet street, went to the home of his relative and was ugly and abusive. During an altercation, the former military man attacked his father-in-law and during the fight Lewis was brutally abused for one ear was severely bitten by the younger fighter. A telephone message to police headquarters caused the two officers to be sent to the Bayonet street house and the disturber was quickly landed in a cell at police headquarters.

FUNERAL

Mrs. James O'Flaherty

The funeral of Mrs. Agnes O'Flaherty, widow of James O'Flaherty of 24 Shapley street, was held at 9 o'clock this morning at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and was attended by a large assemblage of mourners. The solemn mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. George Clark, with Rev. Michael Reagan deacon and Rev. Raymond J. O'Callaghan sub-deacon. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

REFORM SCHOOL SENTENCES FOR BOYS WHO STOLE STOCK

Five youths, none of whom is over 16, were presented before Deputy Judge John J. McGarry in the juvenile court, municipal building, today, all of the boys being charged with theft. Two of the youths, who have been mixed up in several other cases of theft, were committed to the State Reform School for Boys at Meriden, while the other three youths were committed to the school, but their sentences were suspended and the boys were placed on probation. The Capitol haberdashery, 30 Bank street, was damaged by fire a week ago and since then the store has been closed. The fire caused much damage in the tailor shop, which is located in the rear and where the entrance was destroyed. A temporary door was erected, but the youths succeeded in making several entrances and stole much of the stock from time to time. The stock removed included about 50 shirts, a quantity of hosiery, neckwear and other furnishings. Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh obtained knowledge that the stock was being taken and his investigation determined the identity of the thieves. The shirts were found secreted in a pile of lumber in the rear of the National Whaling bank and the hosiery, neckwear, etc., were found at the homes of the boys on Hobron, Shaw and Golden streets. George McCormick of Norwich is manager of the store rifled.

Pinched Family Provisions

Theodore Tucker, Waterford, employed in New London, a barber, believes that he is the victim of the meanest kind of a thief, and rightfully so. Tucker purchased foodstuffs for his family last night and, placing them in his automobile, started for his home in Waterford. On Bank street, near Colman, Tucker parked the auto while he visited a friend. When he reached his home he did not discover that a thief had visited the auto and stolen the goods, but he did make the discovery this morning when he made the return trip to New London and reported the theft at police headquarters.

An automobile driven by Ernest Rolfe, 46 Gorton street, hit a traffic beacon in the safety zone, State street, this morning and damaged it.

Mrs. Charles J. Mulvey, 65 Gorton street, informed the police today that she was harboring a dog that has been loitering about her home for several days. The dog has a license issued by the town of Groton attached to his collar and it is No. 27338.

A NORWICH MAN'S CAR STRIKES MRS. BERARDI

Mrs. Caroline Berardi, 72 Walbach street, was struck by an automobile driven by Hyman Schwartz, 38 Maple street, Norwich, this morning, but escaped with minor injuries, although knocked down. Mrs. Berardi was starting to cross Golden street, at its intersection with Bank street, when hit. She was thrown to the pavement but when Mr. Schwartz went to her assistance she informed the driver that she was uninjured.

Miss Florence Gardner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen A. Gardner, 16 Prospect street, has resumed her studies at Abbott academy, Andover, Mass., with other members of her class, after having attended the winter sports at Intervale, N. H. Miss Gardner is a graduate from Williams Memorial institute.

A lease of the garage at 46-48-50 Jefferson avenue, owned by Anthony Piscatelli and Joseph Grillo, to Fred I. Fabricant, has been filed for record at the office of the city clerk. The lease is for five years, from Aug. 1, 1929, and at the annual rental of $1,500. A provision of the lease is that a renewal may be obtained, but at the annual rental of $1,800. The lease was drawn last July.

RUM-RUNNING LAUNCH ESCAPES FROM PATROL BOAT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 7—A rum-runner, believed by Coast Guard officials to be the 80-foot launch Gander, owned by Arthur Rowland, Bridgeport, known to be a rum-runner of the contact boat type, was the target for a rain of machine gun fire and one pound shots from the deck of a patrol boat, which was scouring Long Island sound last night in quest of traffickers in liquor. But the boat was speedy and made a getaway. Little is known at the local section base of the chase of the rum-runner and the gun fire that failed to bring the Gander to a stop. Capt. H. M. Wolf, state pier, stated that he had not received a detailed report of the chase of the Gander.

Shortly after 8 o'clock this morning a suspicious launch which closely resembled the Gander was sighted off Bartlett's Reef lightship by the crew of the patrol boat. An effort was made to overtake the launch, which was headed in a westerly course. Finally a signal was given the master of the launch to stop, but he failed to halt his engine. Several warning shots, one-pounders, were fired across the bow of the launch, but that did not result in the launch pulling up. Then the order was given to direct machine gun fire at the boat, but this also failed to cause the master to bring his boat to a stop. The suspected craft was gradually leaving the patrol boat behind and the chase was of necessity abandoned, and the launch disappeared leaving the patrol boat in her wake. The shooting aroused residents in the vicinity of Goshen Point and Pleasure Beach and some of them peered through open windows as the shots were fired and observed the search light of the patrol boat following the course taken by the rum runner.

The Gander is a sister ship of the Goose and is well known here. She was captured several months ago as a rum-runner and at that time Rowland, her master, was fined $500 and costs.

CITY MANAGER W. A. HOLT FREES DRIVER ROY HART

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 7—Roy Hart, driver of the Nameaug Engine company's fire engine, was given a hearing on charges of violation of the fire department rules and regulations at 10 o'clock this morning at the office of City Manager William A. Holt, municipal building. After interrogating Hart, State Police Officer James Dygert and Fire Chief Thomas Shipman, the city manager found Hart not guilty. The decision of City Manager Holt, it is believed, was the result of Hart having been found not guilty of stealing an automobile, in the police court several days ago. The nolle of the theft charge was the result of Hanson, the owner of the auto, declaring that he had given Hart permission to use his auto at any time, but when the car was taken the owner believed someone else had stolen it. Hanson was not aware that Hart knew of the purchase of the Studebaker auto to replace an Oldsmobile, which latter car was the one that Hart had been using.

HAD FOUR FIRE ALARMS INSIDE OF TWELVE HOURS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 7—New London's fire department was kept busy last night and this morning, for three bell alarms and one still alarm were responded to within 12 hours, two alarms being for fires in the same building. The most serious fire was at 2:15 o'clock this morning, which resulted in the gutting of Dolly's Filling station, Jefferson avenue, owned by Adolph Carino, together with the loss of a greater part of the stock. When the fire was discovered the interior of the building was a mass of flames and an alarm was sent in from Box 41, corner of Jefferson avenue and Bank street. Deputy Chief Calvin Edmunds and four pieces of apparatus responded and when the firemen reached the building the flames were leaping through space made by the collapse of plate glass windows. Two streams of water were necessary to extinguish the fire, but by that time the interior of the building was badly damaged, while the stock was either damaged or destroyed. It is believed that the fire originated from defective wiring.

At 6:13 o'clock this morning the residence, 467 Broad street, owned by Lina Beckwith and occupied by Samuel Taylor, colored, and his family, was discovered on fire. The fire was the result of a blaze there earlier in the night. Last evening, a defective chimney caused the woodwork surrounding the chimney to become ignited and the fire followed the woodwork to the upper story and into partitions. When the fire was thought to be extinguished and after damage of about $500 had been occasioned, the several companies returned to their houses, but a fireman was left on duty in the building the entire night. When the fire was discovered again today the fireman attempted to extinguish the blaze and was applying chemicals when a member of the household sent in an alarm. The first of the companies to arrive subdued the blaze with a small amount of chemical and without additional damage in excess of $100.

At 11:09 o'clock last night a still alarm was received at headquarters for a fire in the College garage, 400 Williams street. Deputy Chief Calvin Edmunds and the Thomas Hose company responded. The fire was quickly extinguished, but a truck was damaged, the cab and a part of the body being destroyed.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

Hidden away in the teeming East Side, almost under the shadow of the New York "L" was the neighborhood cigar store of Ike Lazarus, and the backroom of the shop was the scene of many a hot pinochle game between Lazarus's cronies. Never did Ike play—no, indeed—for Ike was a "kibitzer," who stood behind every chair in turn, and played every hand—in fact, no game was complete without him. Not only did he kibitz in pinochle, but he was the self-appointed arbiter of all the neighborhood affairs—love spats, family rows, investments, anything at all—his advice was free and plenty—and in most cases, welcome—for he had a shrewd mind, this Lazarus, in everybody's affairs but his own—and there he was a complete failure. He couldn't kibitz for himself. His daughter's one love affair he ruined completely, he almost lost his business, and when he installed a stock-ticker in the store to "follow the market," not only he but the whole neighborhood went crazy over the possibilities in the rapidly shifting market. Ticker tape superseded the morning "Tag" and the evening "Wahrheit," and the store became a hive of activity. From a penny a point at pinochle, to fifty or sixty bucks on the ponies, and then to thousands on the bear market were but short steps, and poor Lazarus, with his big heart, overflowing sympathy and canny advice, seemed about through kibitzing. A sudden turn of the wheel, however, and he was vindicated—and wealthy! With Harry Green, famous Hebrew stage and screen comedian, in the title role, "The Kibitzer" which opens at the Broadway today, offers a welcome relief from society dramas, murder trials, and stage plays, and presents a picture of real people we all know and meet every day—just plain neighborhood folks. The picture, all-talking, of course, is brimming with hearty laughs with an occasional lump in the throat for seasoning, and many deft touches of tense and thrilling drama. Neil Hamilton, David Newell, Mary Brian, Albert Gran and a host of cleverly drawn characters complete the cast of one of the most human photoplays ever screened. On the same bill is a howling featured comedy "The Dancing Gob," featuring Buster and Johnny West with a host of classy cabaret beauties, in a speedy, jazzy, peppy revuette of navy life—and how Long & Healy in "Who's Who" massacre the English language in a side-splitting effort to straighten out some cockeyed identities. Bobby Arnst and Peggy Ellis, well known Follies and Affairs girls, stage a singing, dancing and piano skit, and Horace Heidy and His Californians, offer the jazziest orchestra Norwich has yet seen. Not only do the boys play hot rhythms, but every one is a talented singer or dancer, and with "Lobo," their clever police dog leader, they have a distinct novelty. The Paramount Sound News has some of the latest headlines pictured in sound.

Palace Theatre

From its very first reel in which a black chess bishop and a jeering note in "Mother Goose" rhyme are found beside the body of a man with an arrow through his heart, to the final sequences in which the mysterious "bishop" is revealed, "The Bishop Murder Case" offers a succession of thrills to visitors at the Palace theatre where the new all-talking Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer vehicle is playing for 4 days.

S. S. Van Dine's best seller lost none of its mystery or suspense in its adaptation to the screen, but on the contrary, under skillful direction of Nick Grinde and David Burton, it has turned out to be even more effective under Klieg lights than on the printed page.

BASIL RATHBONE and LEILA HYAMS in "THE BISHOP MURDER CASE"

A splendid cast headed by Basil Rathbone, Leila Hyams, Roland Young and Alec B. Francis, contributes considerably toward making this screen mystery the success it is. Rathbone, last seen in "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney," plays the role of Detective Philo Vance, in his usual finished manner; Miss Hyams, looking more beautiful than ever, is cast as Belle Dillard, who all unwittingly becomes involved in the series of murders and plays no small part in unraveling the mystery at the end of the picture. Roland Young plays the part of Sigurd Arnesson, one of the suspected persons, with the same humor and deft touches for which he was noted on New York stage and which he first introduced to screen audiences in "Unholy Night." Alec B. Francis, known as the screen's finest character actor, upholds his reputation in role of Professor Bertrand Dillard, an eccentric gentleman who is relieved from suspicion only when he in turn becomes a victim of the "bishop."

The distinctive feature of "The Bishop Murder Case" lies in the fact that while the observer will be led to suspect first one and then another of the many characters involved in the crimes, by the time the film reaches its conclusion the true murderer is revealed as a result of logical deductions rather than by a sudden coincidence or through the use of hackneyed and obvious devices which only insult the intelligence of the audience.

Breed Theatre

With a male chorus of thirty voices and an orchestra of fifty pieces, "Marianne," Marion Davies' latest starring vehicle for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, an all-talking picture, which will open at the Breed theatre today, has come to the talking screen, it is said, as a rival in harmony to the perennial favorite operetta, "The Student Prince."

In producing this romantic comedy-drama as Miss Davies' first feature talking film, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has combined the efforts of six noted composers who have turned out a musical score acclaimed by Arthur Lange, music arranger, as the most tuneful written in recent years.

Included in the song numbers are "Just You—Just Me" and "Hang On To Me," by Greer and Klages; "Sugar," "Oo La La La La" and "Marianne," by Turk and Ahlert, and "Blondy," by Brown and Freed.

All the numbers are sung individually by the cast principals: Miss Davies, Lawrence Gray, Cliff ("Ukulele Ike") Edwards, Benny Rubin and George Baxter, with the massed vocal and instrumental ensembles providing a stirring background of harmony.

Robert Z. Leonard directed the musical movie, his first microphoning experience.

The story deals with the A. E. F. in France after the signing of the armistice. Miss Davies plays a French peasant girl.

Timber from the same forest that supplied the original beams for Old Ironsides is to be used in restoring the health of the famous frigate. Eugene W. Lewis, Detroit banker, has given the navy permission to obtain whatever timber needed from the Hamilton plantation on St. Simion island for that purpose. The ship was built originally of timbers supplied by the plantation. The wood is known for its extreme hardness and durability.

BOY SCOUT CAMPAIGN TEAMS GET OFF TO ENTHUSIASTIC START

The financial campaign of Eastern Connecticut council of Boy Scouts got off to a stirring start Friday night. The 125 leading men of the city who are to push the campaign for a week to reach the goal of $8,000 met at 6 o'clock for dinner at the Arcanum club, heard a most inspiring address upon Scouting by Ray O. Wyland, director of education of the Boy Scouts of America, and received the cards which will be their working guides in the campaign.

The Boy Scouts drum and bugle corps and a group of Scouts who were assembled on the steps of the Arcanum club gave the men a serenade as they assembled to take their places at the special tables arranged in the dining hall, a table for each team, with American flags and the Scout flag displayed on the walls.

H. D. Larrabee, president of the council, called the gathering to order and after a verse of "America," with William G. Park leading and Henry J. LaFontaine at the piano, the invocation was offered by Rev. J. J. Reilly, curate at St. Patrick's church.

Boy Scouts in their uniforms were the waiters for the dinner at which the following menu was served:

Clam Chowder
Saltines
Broiled White Fish
Mashed Potatoes Escalloped Tomatoes
Olives
Rolls
Lemon Jelly Whipped Cream
Coffee

During the dinner hour Mr. Park was song leader and when the business part of the evening was reached Scout Executive John L. Sellman carried out the distribution of cards and gave explanation of how they were to be used.

President Larrabee followed with some apt and vigorous words upon the campaign and introduced Mr. Wyland, the speaker of the evening, who held the closest attention of his hearers with his brilliant presentation of the value, vigor and vitality of the Boy Scout work.

Social Engineering

This is an age of great advance in engineering, he said, but there has come an awakening of social consciousness and in the next 50 years we are to see a great advance in social engineering. We have an engineer in the president's chair in the white house and he has pointed out in his message that the government is to concern itself more and more during his administration with the social side as related to the peoples of the United States. In this awakening of social consciousness we have spent more than two billion dollars in agencies relating to this aspect of the national life.

Mr. Wyland went on to speak of four agencies which contribute to the character of the nation, first, the home, which is the basic institution, for with better homes we have a better society. Then there is the church, which is not slipping back as some seem to think, but has had a membership gain in the past year of four percent, which exceeds the population increase of two percent, has better prepared leaders, better building and a better programme than ever before. Third in the list of agencies are the schools, in which we have the greatest school system that the world has ever seen, giving education to every boy and girl that wants to reach out for it. Fourth in the list are the social agencies, such as the Y. M. C. A., the Y. W. C. A, the K. of C. and the Y. M. H. A. and such organizations including the Boy Scouts.

The Boy Scouts, Mr. Wyland said, came into being 21 years ago and in that time have formed a spiritual brotherhood of ten million that encircles the world. In America there are over four million boys and men in this organization which has captured the imagination of the nation.

Vitality in Movement

There are four major reasons, the speaker declared, for the vitality of the Boy Scout movement. In the first place, it has an organization that is national and local. Then it has the support and the co-operation of every organization that deals with boy life, for it puts into their hands a programme that will better serve them. In the third place there is the double appeal of the Boy Scout programme; it satisfies the boy and it satisfies the man. In its outdoor life it speaks to the boy in a language that he understands. There is no such thing as parlor scouting. Its skill tests offer the boy a chance for mastery, opens to him a place for leadership and a place for service. It is a stabilising influence in the life of the boy and its "good turn" recognizes him as a participating citizen. The patrol is a wonderful game to him and meets the gang spirit. The directed gang becomes an asset to the community. He learns the team-work game.

Finally there is the friendship and the fellowship of men. Who of you, knowing that some boy is looking to you for an example, will not say with God's help you will set an example that will be worthy for the boy to follow?

The pattern that the Boy Scout movement sets, said Mr. Wyland in conclusion, is found at the four compass points of loyalty to God, loyalty to country, loyalty to others and loyalty to self. Men and boys who square to that compass is the object of this movement, making for a better manhood that will build a better nation that will keep the flag in the sky for centuries to come. Your co-operation will put this campaign across.

After a verse of the Star Spangled Banner the meeting adjourned to meet again Monday evening at 6 o'clock for reports. Supper will be served at that time.

DIVORCES GRANTED IN THREE UNCONTESTED CASES

Three uncontested divorces were granted by Judge Christopher L. Avery in the superior court at New London Friday.

Bessie Meyer Owitz of New London was given her freedom from Mike Miller of New York on grounds of desertion. The couple were married Nov. 9, 1918.

Selma Bergman Cassell of Mystic was granted a divorce from George C. Cassell of parts unknown on grounds of intolerable cruelty. The couple were married June 21, 1919. Mrs. Cassell was given the custody of an eight-year-old child.

Phyllis Eccleston Brown of Mystic was freed from Philip S. Brown of parts unknown and given the custody of two minor children. The couple were married Nov. 3, 1915. Intolerable cruelty was the grounds.

Two other cases, those of Charlotte Sonk Page of Stonington, against William H. Page, and Anna Coleredo Demarco against Guy Demarco, went off the list.

TRANSCRIPT EDITOR'S TRIBUTE TO FATHER KEEFE

Rt. Rev. Magr. Thomas S. Duggan, vicar-general of the diocese of Hartford and editor of The Catholic Transcript, had the following editorial tribute Thursday to St. Mary's pastor:

Father Keefe

St. Mary's parish, Norwich, is passing through a week of trial. The pastor holds the stage: Monday, the orator of the occasion, eloquent and inspiring; Tuesday, stricken and speechless; Wednesday, cold in death; Thursday, robed for the tomb; Friday, lying in state before the altar where he had daily offered the morning sacrifice; Saturday, reverently bestowed by clergy and sorrowing laity. A full, sad week! A week to be long remembered and to be recalled with mingled sentiments—sentiments of sorrow, for the loss of a devoted pastor, and gratitude for the exalted service which he had rendered among them.

The pastor of St. Mary's had but begun to pass from middle life. His friends had allotted him many more years of activity. He had started his course as a fine preacher and as one who was warranted in aspiring to a leading place among the clergy of the diocese of Hartford. His sermons were notable—solemnly thought out and eloquently spoken. The pulpit was as native ground to him. He easily and naturally developed into a forceful and untiring preacher of the Word.

The pastor of St. Mary's also won distinction as a speaker on public occasions. He was heard from coast to coast at the national assemblies of the Knights of Columbus. His impressive words gave courage and inspiration to the members of the Holy Name society throughout the entire east. Indeed, so unsparing was he of his energies and of his voice that he laid the members of that society under lasting obligation. If they have remained faithful in the practice of the works of piety to which they are committed, they will readily acknowledge that their steadfastness in exemplifying the finest traditions of the church is owing in no small degree to his exhortations and example.

Before Father Keefe had completed his seventh year in the priesthood he was taken from the ranks of the curates and made pastor of a bi-lingual parish. His years of study spent at Montreal and Louvain gave him ample opportunity to become master of the tongue of Bossuet. So familiar was he with the genius of the French language that his congregation were at times left to speculate as to whether he was more eloquent in his acquired or in his native tongue.

After a decade spent in Voluntown and Plainfield, he was promoted to the more responsible post as pastor of St. Mary's parish. He immediately set to work erecting the beautiful church whose walls remain as a monument to his zeal for souls and for the honor and glory of the Master whom he served. The success which he attained as the spiritual leader of his people and as a parish administrator easily gave him a place among the most efficient pastors of his time. Though his death was altogether unlooked for, his parish and the affairs of his parish are left in a most healthy condition. His successor, as well as his immediate flock, will find reason, eloquent and enduring, for blessing his memory.

Father Keefe numbered many fast friends among clergy and laity. Kindness was a part of his nature. He dispensed blessings with an open and generous hand. His early death will bring to many a profound sense of dereliction. They are robbed of a friend to whom they are much beholden and whom they will not readily forget now that his race is run.
